yāvassa kāyo ṭhassati, tāva naṁ dakkhanti devamanussā,
As long as his body remains he will be seen by gods and humans.

kāyassa bhedā uddhaṁ jīvitapariyādānā na naṁ dakkhanti devamanussā”ti.
But when his body breaks up, after life has ended, gods and humans will see him no more.”

Evaṁ vutte, āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, Venerable Ānanda said to the Buddha, “acchariyaṁ, bhante, abbhutaṁ, bhante, ko nāmo ayaṁ, bhante, dhammapariyāyo”ti?

“It’s incredible, sir, it’s amazing! What is the name of this exposition of the teaching?”

“Well, then, Ānanda, you may remember this exposition of the teaching as ‘The Net of Meaning’, or else ‘The Net of the Teaching’, or else ‘The Prime Net’, or else ‘The Net of Views’, or else ‘The Supreme Victory in Battle’.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Attamanā te bhikkhū bhagavato bhāsitaṁ abhinandunti.
Satisfied, the mendicants were happy with what the Buddha said.

Imasmiñca pana veyyākaraṇasmiṁ bhaññamāne dasasahassī lokadhātu akampitthāti.
And while this discourse was being spoken, the galaxy shook.

Brahmajālasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ paṭhamaṁ.

The Fruits of the Ascetic Life

1. Rājāmaccakathā

1. A Discussion With the King’s Ministers

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā rājagahe viharati jīvakassa komārabhaccassa ambavane mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ aḍḍhateḷasehi bhikkhusatehi.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Rājagaha in the Mango Grove of Jīvaka Komārabhacca, together with a large Saṅgha of 1,250 mendicants.

Tena kho pana samayena rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto tadahuposathe pannarase komudiyā cātumāsiniyā puṇṇāya puṇṇamāya rattiyā rājāmaccaparivuto uparipāsādavaragato nisinno hoti.
Now, at that time it was the sabbath—the Komudi full moon on the fifteenth day of the fourth month—and King Ajātasattu Vedehiputta of Magadha was sitting upstairs in the stilt longhouse surrounded by his ministers.

Atha kho rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto tadahuposathe udānaṁ udānesi:
Then Ajātasattu expressed this heartfelt sentiment,

“ramaṇīyā vata bho dosinā ratti, abhirūpā vata bho dosinā ratti, dassanīyā vata bho dosinā ratti, pāsādikā vata bho dosinā ratti, lakkhaññā vata bho dosinā ratti.

“Oh, sirs, this moonlit night is so very delightful, so beautiful, so glorious, so lovely, so striking.

Kaṁ nu khvajja samaṇaṁ vā brāhmaṇaṁ vā payirupāseyyāma, yaṁ no payirupāsato cittaṁ pasīdeyyā”ti?
Now, what ascetic or brahmin might I pay homage to today, paying homage to whom my mind might find peace?”

Evaṁ vutte, aññataro rājāmacco rājānaṁ māgadhaṁ ajātasattuṁ vedehiputtaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, one of the king’s ministers said to him, “ayaṁ, deva, pūraṇo kassapo saṅghī ceva gaṇī ca gaṇācariyo ca ñāto yasassī titthakaro sādhusammato bahujanassa rattaññū cirapabbajito addhagato vayoanuppatto.

“Sire, Pūraṇa Kassapa leads an order and a community, and teaches a community. He’s a well-known and famous religious founder, regarded as holy by many people. He is of long standing, long gone forth; he is advanced in years and has reached the final stage of life.

Taṁ devo pūraṇaṁ kassapaṁ payirupāsatu.
Let Your Majesty pay homage to him.

Appeva nāma devassa pūraṇaṁ kassapaṁ payirupāsato cittaṁ pasīdeyyā”ti.
Hopefully in so doing your mind will find peace.”

Evaṁ vutte, rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto tuṇhī ahosi.
But when he had spoken, the king remained silent.

Aññataropi kho rājāmacco rājānaṁ māgadhaṁ ajātasattuṁ vedehiputtaṁ etadavoca:
Another of the king’s ministers said to him,

“ayaṁ, deva, makkhali gosālo saṅghī ceva gaṇī ca gaṇācariyo ca ñāto yasassī titthakaro sādhusammato bahujanassa rattaññū cirapabbajito addhagato vayoanuppatto.

“Sire, Makkhali Gosāla leads an order and a community, and teaches a community. He’s a well-known and famous religious founder, regarded as holy by many people. He is of long standing, long gone forth; he is advanced in years and has reached the final stage of life.

Taṁ devo makkhaliṁ gosālaṁ payirupāsatu.
Let Your Majesty pay homage to him.

Appeva nāma devassa makkhaliṁ gosālaṁ payirupāsato cittaṁ pasīdeyyā”ti.
Hopefully in so doing your mind will find peace.”

Evaṁ vutte, rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto tuṇhī ahosi.
But when he had spoken, the king remained silent.

Aññataropi kho rājāmacco rājānaṁ māgadhaṁ ajātasattuṁ vedehiputtaṁ etadavoca:
Another of the king’s ministers said to him,

“ayaṁ, deva, ajito kesakambalo saṅghī ceva gaṇī ca gaṇācariyo ca ñāto yasassī titthakaro sādhusammato bahujanassa rattaññū cirapabbajito addhagato vayoanuppatto.
“Sire, Ajita Kesakambala leads an order and a community, and teaches a community. He’s a well-known and famous religious founder, regarded as holy by many people. He is of long standing, long gone forth; he is advanced in years and has reached the final stage of life.

Taṁ devo ajitaṁ kesakambalaṁ payirupāsatu.
Let Your Majesty pay homage to him.

Appeva nāma devassa ajitaṁ kesakambalaṁ payirupāsato cittaṁ pasīdeyyā”ti.
Hopefully in so doing your mind will find peace.”

Evaṁ vutte, rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto tuṇhī ahosi.
But when he had spoken, the king remained silent.

Aññataropi kho rājāmacco rājānaṁ māgadhaṁ ajātasattuṁ vedehiputtaṁ etadavoca:
Another of the king's ministers said to him,

"ayaṁ, deva, pakudho kaccāyano saṅghī ceva gaṇī ca gaṇācariyo ca ñāto yasassī titthakaro sādhusammato bahujanassa rattaññū cirapabbajito addhagato vayoanuppatto.
"Sire, Pakudha Kaccāyana leads an order and a community, and teaches a community. He's a well-known and famous religious founder, regarded as holy by many people. He is of long standing, long gone forth; he is advanced in years and has reached the final stage of life.

Taṁ devo pakudhaṁ kaccāyanaṁ payirupāsatu.
Let Your Majesty pay homage to him.

Appeva nāma devassa pakudhaṁ kaccāyanaṁ payirupāsato cittaṁ pasīdeyyā"ti.
Hopefully in so doing your mind will find peace."

Evaṁ vutte, rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto tuṇhī ahosi.
But when he had spoken, the king remained silent.

Aññataropi kho rājāmacco rājānaṁ māgadhaṁ ajātasattuṁ vedehiputtaṁ etadavoca:
Another of the king's ministers said to him,

"ayaṁ, deva, sañcayo belaṭṭhaputto saṅghī ceva gaṇī ca gaṇācariyo ca ñāto yasassī titthakaro sādhusammato bahujanassa rattaññū cirapabbajito addhagato vayoanuppatto.
"Sire, Sañjaya Belaṭṭhiputta leads an order and a community, and teaches a community. He's a well-known and famous religious founder, regarded as holy by many people. He is of long standing, long gone forth; he is advanced in years and has reached the final stage of life.

Taṁ devo sañcayaṁ belaṭṭhaputtaṁ payirupāsatu.
Let Your Majesty pay homage to him.

Appeva nāma devassa sañcayaṁ belaṭṭhaputtaṁ payirupāsato cittaṁ pasīdeyyā”ti.
Hopefully in so doing your mind will find peace.”

Evaṁ vutte, rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto tuṇhī ahosi.
But when he had spoken, the king remained silent.

Aññataropi kho rājāmacco rājānaṁ māgadhaṁ ajātasattuṁ vedehiputtaṁ etadavoca:
Another of the king’s ministers said to him,

“ayaṁ, deva, nigaṇṭho nāṭaputto saṅghī ceva gaṇī ca gaṇācariyo ca ñāto yasassī titthakaro sādhusammato bahujanassa rattaññū cirapabbajito addhagato vayoanuppatto.
“Sire, Nigaṇṭha Nātaputta leads an order and a community, and teaches a community. He’s a well-known and famous religious founder, regarded as holy by many people. He is of long standing, long gone forth; he is advanced in years and has reached the final stage of life.

Taṁ devo nigaṇṭhaṁ nāṭaputtaṁ payirupāsatu.
Let Your Majesty pay homage to him.

Appeva nāma devassa nigaṇṭhaṁ nāṭaputtaṁ payirupāsato cittaṁ pasīdeyyā”ti.
Hopefully in so doing your mind will find peace.”

Evaṁ vutte, rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto tuṇhī ahosi.
But when he had spoken, the king remained silent.

2. Komārabhaccajīvakakathā

2. A Discussion With Jīvaka Komārabhacca

Tena kho pana samayena jīvako komārabhacco rañño māgadhassa ajātasattussa vedehiputtassa avidūre tuṇhībhūto nisinno hoti.

Now at that time Jīvaka Komārabhacca was sitting silently not far from the king.

Atha kho rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto jīvakaṁ komārabhaccaṁ etadavoca:
Then the king said to him,

“tvaṁ pana, samma jīvaka, kiṁ tuṇhī”ti?
“But my dear Jīvaka, why are you silent?”

“Ayaṁ, deva, bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho amhākaṁ ambavane viharati mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ aḍḍhateḷasehi bhikkhusatehi.
“Sire, the Blessed One, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha is staying in my mango grove together with a large Saṅgha of 1,250 mendicants.

Taṁ kho pana bhagavantaṁ evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:
He has this good reputation:

‘itipi so bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavā’ti.
‘That Blessed One is perfected, a fully awakened Buddha, accomplished in knowledge and conduct, holy, knower of the world, supreme guide for those who wish to train, teacher of gods and humans, awakened, blessed.’

Taṁ devo bhagavantaṁ payirupāsatu.
Let Your Majesty pay homage to him.

Appeva nāma devassa bhagavantaṁ payirupāsato cittaṁ pasīdeyyā”ti.
Hopefully in so doing your mind will find peace.”

“Tena hi, samma jīvaka, hatthiyānāni kappāpehī”ti.
“Well then, my dear Jīvaka, have the elephants readied.”

“Evaṁ, devā”ti kho jīvako komārabhacco rañño māgadhassa ajātasattussa vedehiputtassa paṭissuṇitvā pañcamattāni hatthinikāsatāni kappāpetvā rañño ca ārohaṇīyaṁ nāgaṁ, rañño māgadhassa ajātasattussa vedehiputtassa paṭivedesi:
“Yes, Your Majesty,” replied Jīvaka. He had around five hundred female elephants readied, in addition to the king’s bull elephant for riding. Then he informed the king, “kappitāni kho te, deva, hatthiyānāni,

“The elephants are ready, sire.

yassadāni kālaṁ maññasī”ti.
Please go at your convenience.”

Atha kho rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto pañcasu hatthinikāsatesu paccekā itthiyo āropetvā ārohaṇīyaṁ nāgaṁ abhiruhitvā ukkāsu dhāriyamānāsu rājagahamhā niyyāsi mahaccarājānubhāvena, yena jīvakassa komārabhaccassa ambavanaṁ tena pāyāsi.
Then King Ajātasattu had women mounted on each of the five hundred female elephants, while he mounted his bull elephant. With attendants carrying torches, he set out in full royal pomp from Rājagaha to Jīvaka’s mango grove.

Atha kho rañño māgadhassa ajātasattussa vedehiputtassa avidūre ambavanassa ahudeva bhayaṁ, ahu chambhitattaṁ, ahu lomahaṁso.
But as he drew near the mango grove, the king became frightened, scared, his hair standing on end.

Atha kho rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto bhīto saṁviggo lomahaṭṭhajāto jīvakaṁ komārabhaccaṁ etadavoca:
He said to Jīvaka,

“kacci maṁ, samma jīvaka, na vañcesi?
“My dear Jīvaka, I hope you’re not deceiving me!

Kacci maṁ, samma jīvaka, na palambhesi?
I hope you’re not betraying me!

Kacci maṁ, samma jīvaka, na paccatthikānaṁ desi?
I hope you’re not turning me over to my enemies!

Kathañhi nāma tāva mahato bhikkhusaṅghassa aḍḍhateḷasānaṁ bhikkhusatānaṁ neva khipitasaddo bhavissati, na ukkāsitasaddo na nigghoso”ti.
For how on earth can there be no sound of coughing or clearing throats or any noise in such a large Saṅgha of 1,250 mendicants?”

“Mā bhāyi, mahārāja, mā bhāyi, mahārāja.
“Do not fear, great king, do not fear!

Na taṁ, deva, vañcemi;
I am not deceiving you,

na taṁ, deva, palambhāmi;
or betraying you,

na taṁ, deva, paccatthikānaṁ demi.
or turning you over to your enemies.

Abhikkama, mahārāja, abhikkama, mahārāja, ete maṇḍalamāḷe dīpā jhāyantī”ti.
Go forward, great king, go forward! Those are lamps shining in the pavilion.”

3. Sāmaññaphalapucchā

3. The Question About the Fruits of the Ascetic Life

Atha kho rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto yāvatikā nāgassa bhūmi nāgena gantvā, nāgā paccorohitvā, pattikova yena maṇḍalamāḷassa dvāraṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā jīvakaṁ komārabhaccaṁ etadavoca:

Then King Ajātasattu rode on the elephant as far as the terrain allowed, then descended and approached the pavilion door on foot, where he asked Jīvaka, “kahaṁ pana, samma jīvaka, bhagavā”ti?

“But my dear Jīvaka, where is the Buddha?”

“Eso, mahārāja, bhagavā;
“That is the Buddha, great king, that is the Buddha!

eso, mahārāja, bhagavā majjhimaṁ thambhaṁ nissāya puratthābhimukho nisinno purakkhato bhikkhusaṅghassā”ti.
He’s sitting against the central column facing east, in front of the Saṅgha of mendicants.”

Atha kho rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi.
Then the king went up to the Buddha and stood to one side.

Ekamantaṁ ṭhito kho rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto tuṇhībhūtaṁ tuṇhībhūtaṁ bhikkhusaṅghaṁ anuviloketvā rahadamiva vippasannaṁ udānaṁ udānesi:
He looked around the Saṅgha of monks, who were so very silent, like a still, clear lake, and expressed this heartfelt sentiment, “iminā me upasamena udayabhaddo kumāro samannāgato hotu, yenetarahi upasamena bhikkhusaṅgho samannāgato”ti.

“May my son, Prince Udāyibhadda, be blessed with such peace as the Saṅgha of mendicants now enjoys!”

“Agamā kho tvaṁ, mahārāja, yathāpeman”ti.
“Has your mind gone to one you love, great king?”

“Piyo me, bhante, udayabhaddo kumāro.
“I love my son, sir, Prince Udāyibhadda.

Iminā me, bhante, upasamena udayabhaddo kumāro samannāgato hotu yenetarahi upasamena bhikkhusaṅgho samannāgato”ti.
May he be blessed with such peace as the Saṅgha of mendicants now enjoys!”

Atha kho rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā, bhikkhusaṅghassa añjaliṁ paṇāmetvā, ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
Then the king bowed to the Buddha, raised his joined palms toward the Saṅgha, and sat down to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
He said to the Buddha,

“puccheyyāmahaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ kañcideva desaṁ;
“Sir, I’d like to ask you about a certain point, if you’d take the time to answer.”

sace me bhagavā okāsaṁ karoti pañhassa veyyākaraṇāyā”ti.

“Puccha, mahārāja, yadākaṅkhasī”ti.
“Ask what you wish, great king.”

“Yathā nu kho imāni, bhante, puthusippāyatanāni,
“Sir, there are many different professional fields.

seyyathidaṁ—hatthārohā assārohā rathikā dhanuggahā celakā calakā piṇḍadāyakā uggā rājaputtā pakkhandino mahānāgā sūrā cammayodhino dāsikaputtā

Sir, can you point out a fruit of the ascetic life that's likewise apparent in the present life?"

"Abhijānāsi no tvaṁ, mahārāja, imaṁ pañhaṁ aññe samaṇabrāhmaṇe pucchitā"ti?
"Great king, do you recall having asked this question of other ascetics and brahmins?"

"Abhijānāmahaṁ, bhante, imaṁ pañhaṁ aññe samaṇabrāhmaṇe pucchitā"ti.
"I do, sir."

"Yathā kathaṁ pana te, mahārāja, byākariṁsu, sace te agaru bhāsassū"ti.
"If you wouldn't mind, great king, tell me how they answered."

“Na kho me, bhante, garu, yatthassa bhagavā nisinno, bhagavantarūpo vā”ti.

“Tena hi, mahārāja, bhāsassū”ti.
“Well, speak then, great king.”

3.1. Pūraṇakassapavāda
3.1. The Doctrine of Pūraṇa Kassapa

“Ekamidāhaṁ, bhante, samayaṁ yena pūraṇo kassapo tenupasaṅkamiṁ; upasaṅkamitvā pūraṇena kassapena saddhiṁ sammodiṁ.
“One time, sir, I approached Pūraṇa Kassapa and exchanged greetings with him.

Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁ. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho ahaṁ, bhante, pūraṇaṁ kassapaṁ etadavocaṁ:
When the greetings and polite conversation were over, I sat down to one side, and asked him the same question.

‘yathā nu kho imāni, bho kassapa, puthusippāyatanāni, seyyathidaṁ—hatthārohā assārohā rathikā dhanuggahā celakā calakā piṇḍadāyakā uggā rājaputtā pakkhandino mahānāgā sūrā cammayodhino dāsikaputtā āḷārikā kappakā nhāpakā sūdā mālakārā rajakā pesakārā naḷakārā kumbhakārā gaṇakā muddikā, yāni vā panaññānipi evaṅgatāni puthusippāyatanāni, te diṭṭheva dhamme sandiṭṭhikaṁ sippaphalaṁ upajīvanti;

te tena attānaṁ sukhenti pīṇenti, mātāpitaro sukhenti pīṇenti, puttadāraṁ sukhenti pīṇenti, mittāmacce sukhenti pīṇenti, samaṇabrāhmaṇesu uddhaggikaṁ dakkhiṇaṁ patiṭṭhapenti sovaggikaṁ sukhavipākaṁ saggasaṁvattanikaṁ.

Sakkā nu kho, bho kassapa, evameva diṭṭheva dhamme sandiṭṭhikaṁ sāmaññaphalaṁ paññapetun’ti?

Evaṁ vutte, bhante, pūraṇo kassapo maṁ etadavoca:
He said to me:

‘karoto kho, mahārāja, kārayato, chindato chedāpayato, pacato pācāpayato socayato, socāpayato, kilamato kilamāpayato, phandato phandāpayato, pāṇamatipātāpayato, adinnaṁ ādiyato, sandhiṁ chindato, nillopaṁ harato, ekāgārikaṁ karoto, paripanthe tiṭṭhato, paradāraṁ gacchato, musā bhaṇato, karoto na karīyati pāpaṁ. Khurapariyantena cepi cakkena yo imissā pathaviyā pāṇe ekaṁ maṁsakhalaṁ ekaṁ maṁsapuñjaṁ kareyya, natthi tatonidānaṁ pāpaṁ, natthi pāpassa āgamo.
‘Great king, the one who acts does nothing wrong when they punish, mutilate, torture, aggrieve, oppress, intimidate, or when they encourage others to do the same. They do nothing wrong when they kill, steal, break into houses, plunder wealth, steal from isolated buildings, commit highway robbery, commit adultery, and lie. If you were to reduce all the living creatures of this earth to one heap and mass of flesh with a razor-edged chakram, no evil comes of that, and no outcome of evil.

Dakkhiṇañcepi gaṅgāya tīraṁ gaccheyya hananto ghātento chindanto chedāpento pacanto pācāpento, natthi tatonidānaṁ pāpaṁ, natthi pāpassa āgamo.
If you were to go along the south bank of the Ganges killing, mutilating, and torturing, and encouraging others to do the same, no evil comes of that, and no outcome of evil.

Uttarañcepi gaṅgāya tīraṁ gaccheyya dadanto dāpento yajanto yajāpento, natthi tatonidānaṁ puññaṁ, natthi puññassa āgamo.
If you were to go along the north bank of the Ganges giving and sacrificing and encouraging others to do the same, no merit comes of that, and no outcome of merit.

Dānena damena saṁyamena saccavajjena natthi puññaṁ, natthi puññassa āgamo’ti.

In giving, self-control, restraint, and truthfulness there is no merit or outcome of merit.’

Itthaṁ kho me, bhante, pūraṇo kassapo sandiṭṭhikaṁ sāmaññaphalaṁ puṭṭho samāno akiriyaṁ byākāsi.
And so, when I asked Pūraṇa Kassapa about the fruits of the ascetic life apparent in the present life, he answered with the doctrine of inaction.

Seyyathāpi, bhante, ambaṁ vā puṭṭho labujaṁ byākareyya, labujaṁ vā puṭṭho ambaṁ byākareyya;
It was like someone who, when asked about a mango, answered with a breadfruit, or when asked about a breadfruit, answered with a mango.

evameva kho me, bhante, pūraṇo kassapo sandiṭṭhikaṁ sāmaññaphalaṁ puṭṭho samāno akiriyaṁ byākāsi.

Tassa mayhaṁ, bhante, etadahosi:
I thought:

‘kathañhi nāma mādiso samaṇaṁ vā brāhmaṇaṁ vā vijite vasantaṁ apasādetabbaṁ maññeyyā’ti.
‘How could one such as I presume to rebuke an ascetic or brahmin living in my realm?’

So kho ahaṁ, bhante, pūraṇassa kassapassa bhāsitaṁ neva abhinandiṁ nappaṭikkosiṁ.
So I neither approved nor dismissed that statement of Pūraṇa Kassapa.

Anabhinanditvā appaṭikkositvā anattamano, anattamanavācaṁ anicchāretvā, tameva vācaṁ anuggaṇhanto anikkujjanto uṭṭhāyāsanā pakkamiṁ.
I was displeased, but did not express my displeasure. Neither accepting what he said nor contradicting it, I got up from my seat and left.

3.2. Makkhaligosālavāda

3.2. The Doctrine of Makkhali Gosāla

Ekamidāhaṁ, bhante, samayaṁ yena makkhali gosālo tenupasaṅkamiṁ; upasaṅkamitvā makkhalinā gosālena saddhiṁ sammodiṁ.
One time, sir, I approached Makkhali Gosāla and exchanged greetings with him.

Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁ. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho ahaṁ, bhante, makkhaliṁ gosālaṁ etadavocaṁ:
When the greetings and polite conversation were over, I sat down to one side, and asked him the same question.

'yathā nu kho imāni, bho gosāla, puthusippāyatanāni …pe…

sakkā nu kho, bho gosāla, evameva diṭṭheva dhamme sandiṭṭhikaṁ sāmaññaphalaṁ paññapetun'ti?

Evaṁ vutte, bhante, makkhali gosālo maṁ etadavoca:
He said:

'natthi, mahārāja, hetu natthi paccayo sattānaṁ saṅkilesāya, ahetū apaccayā sattā saṅkilissanti.
'Great king, there is no cause or condition for the corruption of sentient beings. Sentient beings are corrupted without cause or condition.

4. Sāmaññaphala

4. The Fruits of the Ascetic Life

4.1. Paṭhamasandiṭṭhikasāmaññaphala

4.1. The First Fruit of the Ascetic Life

Sohaṁ, bhante, bhagavantampi pucchāmi:
And so I ask the Buddha:

‘yathā nu kho imāni, bhante, puthusippāyatanāni
Sir, there are many different professional fields.

seyyathidaṁ—hatthārohā assārohā rathikā dhanuggahā celakā calakā piṇḍadāyakā uggā rājaputtā pakkhandino mahānāgā sūrā cammayodhino dāsikaputtā
These include elephant riders, cavalry, charioteers, archers, bannermen, adjutants, food servers, warrior-chiefs, princes, chargers, great warriors, heroes, leather-clad soldiers, and sons of bondservants.

āḷārikā kappakā nhāpakā sūdā mālakārā rajakā pesakārā naḷakārā kumbhakārā gaṇakā muddikā, yāni vā panaññānipi evaṅgatāni puthusippāyatanāni, te diṭṭheva dhamme sandiṭṭhikaṁ sippaphalaṁ upajīvanti,
They also include bakers, barbers, bathroom attendants, cooks, garland-makers, dyers, weavers, basket-makers, potters, accountants, finger-talliers, or those following any similar professions. All these live off the fruits of their profession which are apparent in the present life.

te tena attānaṁ sukhenti pīṇenti, mātāpitaro sukhenti pīṇenti, puttadāraṁ sukhenti pīṇenti, mittāmacce sukhenti pīṇenti, samaṇabrāhmaṇesu uddhaggikaṁ dakkhiṇaṁ patiṭṭhapenti sovaggikaṁ sukhavipākaṁ saggasaṁvattanikaṁ.
With that they bring happiness and joy to themselves, their parents, their children and partners, and their friends and colleagues. And they establish an uplifting religious donation for ascetics and brahmins that’s conducive to heaven, ripens in happiness, and leads to heaven.

Sakkā nu kho, bhante, evameva diṭṭheva dhamme sandiṭṭhikaṁ sāmaññaphalaṁ paññapetun’”ti?
Sir, can you point out a fruit of the ascetic life that’s likewise apparent in the present life?”

“Sakkā, mahārāja.
“I can, great king.

Tena hi, mahārāja, taññevettha paṭipucchissāmi. Yathā te khameyya, tathā naṁ byākareyyāsi.
Well then, I’ll ask you about this in return, and you can answer as you like.

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, mahārāja,
What do you think, great king?

idha te assa puriso dāso kammakāro pubbuṭṭhāyī pacchānipātī kiṅkārapaṭissāvī manāpacārī piyavādī mukhullokako.
Suppose you had a person who was a bondservant, a worker. They get up before you and go to bed after you, and are obliging, behaving nicely and speaking politely, and gazing up at your face.

Tassa evamassa:
They’d think:

‘acchariyaṁ, vata bho, abbhutaṁ, vata bho, puññānaṁ gati, puññānaṁ vipāko.
‘The outcome and result of good deeds is just so incredible, so amazing!

Ayañhi rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto manusso; ahampi manusso.
For this King Ajātasattu is a human being, and so am I.

Ayañhi rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto pañcahi kāmaguṇehi samappito samaṅgībhūto paricāreti, devo maññe.
Yet he amuses himself, supplied and provided with the five kinds of sensual stimulation as if he were a god.

Ahaṁ panamhissa dāso kammakāro pubbuṭṭhāyī pacchānipātī kiṅkārapaṭissāvī manāpacārī piyavādī mukhullokako.
Whereas I’m his bondservant, his worker. I get up before him and go to bed after him, and am obliging, behaving nicely and speaking politely, and gazing up at his face.

So vatassāhaṁ puññāni kareyyaṁ.
I should do good deeds.

Yannūnāhaṁ kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajeyyan’ti.
Why don’t I shave off my hair and beard, dress in ocher robes, and go forth from the lay life to homelessness?’

So aparena samayena kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajeyya.

After some time, that is what they do.

“Sakkā pana, bhante, aññampi evameva diṭṭheva dhamme sandiṭṭhikaṁ sāmaññaphalaṁ paññapetun”ti?
“But sir, can you point out another fruit of the ascetic life that’s likewise apparent in the present life?”

“Sakkā, mahārāja.
“I can, great king.

Tena hi, mahārāja, taññevettha paṭipucchissāmi. Yathā te khameyya, tathā naṁ byākareyyāsi.

Well then, I’ll ask you about this in return, and you can answer as you like.

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, mahārāja,
What do you think, great king?

idha te assa puriso kassako gahapatiko karakārako rāsivaḍḍhako.
Suppose you had a person who was a farmer, a householder, a hard worker, someone who builds up their capital.

Tassa evamassa:
They’d think:

‘acchariyaṁ vata bho, abbhutaṁ vata bho, puññānaṁ gati, puññānaṁ vipāko.
‘The outcome and result of good deeds is just so incredible, so amazing!

Ayañhi rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto manusso, ahampi manusso.
For this King Ajātasattu is a human being, and so am I.

Ayañhi rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto pañcahi kāmaguṇehi samappito samaṅgībhūto paricāreti, devo maññe.
Yet he amuses himself, supplied and provided with the five kinds of sensual stimulation as if he were a god.

Ahaṁ panamhissa kassako gahapatiko karakārako rāsivaḍḍhako.
Whereas I’m a farmer, a householder, a hard worker, someone who builds up their capital.

So vatassāhaṁ puññāni kareyyaṁ.
I should do good deeds.

Yannūnāhaṁ kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajeyyan’ti.

"But sir, can you point out a fruit of the ascetic life that's apparent in the present life which is better and finer than these?"

"Sakkā, mahārāja.

“I can, great king.

Tena hi, mahārāja, suṇohi, sādhukaṁ manasi karohi, bhāsissāmī”ti.
Well then, listen and pay close attention, I will speak.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” replied the king.

Bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said this:

“idha, mahārāja, tathāgato loke uppajjati arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavā.
“Consider when a Realized One arises in the world, perfected, a fully awakened Buddha, accomplished in knowledge and conduct, holy, knower of the world, supreme guide for those who wish to train, teacher of gods and humans, awakened, blessed.

So imaṁ lokaṁ sadevakaṁ samārakaṁ sabrahmakaṁ sassamaṇabrāhmaṇiṁ pajaṁ sadevamanussaṁ sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā pavedeti.
He has realized with his own insight this world—with its gods, Māras and Brahmās, this population with its ascetics and brahmins, gods and humans—and he makes it known to others.

So dhammaṁ deseti ādikalyāṇaṁ majjhekalyāṇaṁ pariyosānakalyāṇaṁ sātthaṁ sabyañjanaṁ, kevalaparipuṇṇaṁ parisuddhaṁ brahmacariyaṁ pakāseti.
He teaches Dhamma that’s good in the beginning, good in the middle, and good in the end, meaningful and well-phrased. And he reveals a spiritual practice that’s entirely full and pure.

Taṁ dhammaṁ suṇāti gahapati vā gahapatiputto vā aññatarasmiṁ vā kule paccājāto.
A householder hears that teaching, or a householder’s child, or someone reborn in some clan.

So taṁ dhammaṁ sutvā tathāgate saddhaṁ paṭilabhati.
They gain faith in the Realized One,

So tena saddhāpaṭilābhena samannāgato iti paṭisañcikkhati:
and reflect:

‘sambādho gharāvāso rajopatho, abbhokāso pabbajjā.
‘Living in a house is cramped and dirty, but the life of one gone forth is wide open.

Nayidaṁ sukaraṁ agāraṁ ajjhāvasatā ekantaparipuṇṇaṁ ekantaparisuddhaṁ saṅkhalikhitaṁ brahmacariyaṁ carituṁ.
It’s not easy for someone living at home to lead the spiritual life utterly full and pure, like a polished shell.

Yannūnāhaṁ kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajeyyan’ti.
Why don’t I shave off my hair and beard, dress in ocher robes, and go forth from the lay life to homelessness?’

So aparena samayena appaṁ vā bhogakkhandhaṁ pahāya mahantaṁ vā bhogakkhandhaṁ pahāya appaṁ vā ñātiparivaṭṭaṁ pahāya mahantaṁ vā ñātiparivaṭṭaṁ pahāya kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajati.
After some time they give up a large or small fortune, and a large or small family circle. They shave off hair and beard, dress in ocher robes, and go forth from the lay life to homelessness.

So evaṁ pabbajito samāno pātimokkhasaṁvarasaṁvuto viharati ācāragocarasampanno, aṇumattesu vajjesu bhayadassāvī, samādāya sikkhati sikkhāpadesu, kāyakammavacīkammena samannāgato kusalena, parisuddhājīvo sīlasampanno, indriyesu guttadvāro, satisampajaññena samannāgato, santuṭṭho.

Once they've gone forth, they live restrained in the monastic code, conducting themselves well and seeking alms in suitable places. Seeing danger in the slightest fault, they keep the rules they've undertaken. They act skillfully by body and speech. They're purified in livelihood and accomplished in ethical conduct. They guard the sense doors, have mindfulness and situational awareness, and are content.

Evameva kho, mahārāja, bhikkhu yathā iṇaṁ yathā rogaṁ yathā bandhanāgāraṁ yathā dāsabyaṁ yathā kantāraddhānamaggaṁ, evaṁ ime pañca nīvaraṇe appahīne attani samanupassati.
In the same way, as long as these five hindrances are not given up inside themselves, a mendicant regards them thus as a debt, a disease, a prison, slavery, and a desert crossing.

Seyyathāpi, mahārāja, yathā āṇaṇyaṁ yathā ārogyaṁ yathā bandhanāmokkhaṁ yathā bhujissaṁ yathā khemantabhūmiṁ;
But when these five hindrances are given up inside themselves, a mendicant regards this as freedom from debt, good health, release from prison, emancipation, and sanctuary.

evameva kho, mahārāja, bhikkhu ime pañca nīvaraṇe pahīne attani samanupassati.

Tassime pañca nīvaraṇe pahīne attani samanupassato pāmojjaṁ jāyati, pamuditassa pīti jāyati, pītimanassa kāyo passambhati, passaddhakāyo sukhaṁ vedeti, sukhino cittaṁ samādhiyati.
Seeing that the hindrances have been given up in them, joy springs up. Being joyful, rapture springs up. When the mind is full of rapture, the body becomes tranquil. When the body is tranquil, they feel bliss. And when blissful, the mind becomes immersed.

4.3.2.5. Paṭhamajhāna

4.3.2.5. First Absorption

Quite secluded from sensual pleasures, secluded from unskillful qualities, they enter and remain in the first absorption, which has the rapture and bliss born of seclusion, while placing the mind and keeping it connected.

So imameva kāyaṁ vivekajena pītisukhena abhisandeti parisandeti paripūreti parippharati, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa vivekajena pītisukhena apphuṭaṁ hoti.

It’s like when a deft bathroom attendant or their apprentice pours bath powder into a bronze dish, sprinkling it little by little with water. They knead it until the ball of bath powder is soaked and saturated with moisture, spread through inside and out; yet no moisture oozes out.

evameva kho, mahārāja, bhikkhu imameva kāyaṁ vivekajena pītisukhena abhisandeti parisandeti paripūreti parippharati, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa vivekajena pītisukhena apphuṭaṁ hoti.
In the same way, a mendicant drenches, steeps, fills, and spreads their body with rapture and bliss born of seclusion. There’s no part of the body that’s not spread with rapture and bliss born of seclusion.

Idampi kho, mahārāja, sandiṭṭhikaṁ sāmaññaphalaṁ purimehi sandiṭṭhikehi sāmaññaphalehi abhikkantatarañca paṇītatarañca.
This, great king, is a fruit of the ascetic life that’s apparent in the present life which is better and finer than the former ones.

4.3.2.6. Dutiyajhāna
4.3.2.6. Second Absorption

Furthermore, as the placing of the mind and keeping it connected are stilled, a mendicant enters and remains in the second absorption, which has the rapture and bliss born of immersion, with internal clarity and confidence, and unified mind, without applying the mind and keeping it connected.

So imameva kāyaṁ samādhijena pītisukhena abhisandeti parisandeti paripūreti parippharati, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa samādhijena pītisukhena apphuṭaṁ hoti.
In the same way, a mendicant drenches, steeps, fills, and spreads their body with rapture and bliss born of immersion. There’s no part

4.3.2.7. Tatiyajhāna

4.3.2.7. Third Absorption

Puna caparaṁ, mahārāja, bhikkhu pītiyā ca virāgā upekkhako ca viharati sato sampajāno, sukhañca kāyena paṭisaṁvedeti, yaṁ taṁ ariyā ācikkhanti: ‘upekkhako satimā sukhavihārī’ti, tatiyaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
Furthermore, with the fading away of rapture, a mendicant enters and remains in the third absorption, where they meditate with equanimity, mindful and aware, personally experiencing the bliss of which the noble ones declare, ‘Equanimous and mindful, one meditates in bliss.’

So imameva kāyaṁ nippītikena sukhena abhisandeti parisandeti paripūreti parippharati, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa nippītikena sukhena apphuṭaṁ hoti.
They drench, steep, fill, and spread their body with bliss free of rapture. There’s no part of the body that’s not spread with bliss free of rapture.

Seyyathāpi, mahārāja, uppaliniyaṁ vā paduminiyaṁ vā puṇḍarīkiniyaṁ vā appekaccāni uppalāni vā padumāni vā puṇḍarīkāni vā udake jātāni udake saṁvaḍḍhāni udakānuggatāni antonimuggaposīni, tāni yāva caggā yāva ca mūlā sītena vārinā abhisannāni parisannāni paripūrāni paripphuṭāni, nāssa kiñci sabbāvataṁ uppalānaṁ vā padumānaṁ vā puṇḍarīkānaṁ vā sītena vārinā apphuṭaṁ assa;
It’s like a pool with blue water lilies, or pink or white lotuses. Some of them sprout and grow in the water without rising above it, thriving underwater. From the tip to the root they’re drenched, steeped, filled, and soaked with cool water. There’s no part of them that’s not soaked with cool water.

evameva kho, mahārāja, bhikkhu imameva kāyaṁ nippītikena sukhena abhisandeti parisandeti paripūreti parippharati, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa nippītikena sukhena apphuṭaṁ hoti.

4.3.2.8. Catutthajhāna
4.3.2.8. Fourth Absorption

Puna caparaṁ, mahārāja, bhikkhu sukhassa ca pahānā dukkhassa ca pahānā, pubbeva somanassadomanassānaṁ atthaṅgamā adukkhamasukhaṁ upekkhāsatipārisuddhiṁ catutthaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati, so imameva kāyaṁ parisuddhena cetasā pariyodātena pharitvā nisinno hoti, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa parisuddhena cetasā pariyodātena apphuṭaṁ hoti.
Furthermore, giving up pleasure and pain, and ending former happiness and sadness, a mendicant enters and remains in the fourth absorption, without pleasure or pain, with pure equanimity and mindfulness.

Seyyathāpi, mahārāja, puriso odātena vatthena sasīsaṁ pārupitvā nisinno assa, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa odātena vatthena apphuṭaṁ assa;
It's like someone sitting wrapped from head to foot with white cloth. There's no part of the body that's not spread over with white cloth.

So evaṁ samāhite citte parisuddhe pariyodāte anaṅgaṇe vigatūpakkilese mudubhūte kammaniye ṭhite āneñjappatte ñāṇadassanāya cittaṁ abhinīharati abhininnāmeti.
When their mind has become immersed in samādhi like this—purified, bright, flawless, rid of corruptions, pliable, workable, steady, and imperturbable—they extend it and project it toward knowledge and vision.

So evaṁ pajānāti:
They understand:

‘ayaṁ kho me kāyo rūpī cātumahābhūtiko mātāpettikasambhavo odanakummāsūpacayo aniccucchādanaparimaddanabhedanaviddhaṁsanadhammo;
‘This body of mine is physical. It’s made up of the four primary elements, produced by mother and father, built up from rice and porridge, liable to impermanence, to wearing away and erosion, to breaking up and destruction.

idañca pana me viññāṇaṁ ettha sitaṁ ettha paṭibaddhan’ti.
And this consciousness of mine is attached to it, tied to it.’

Seyyathāpi, mahārāja, maṇi veḷuriyo subho jātimā aṭṭhaṁso suparikammakato accho vippasanno anāvilo sabbākārasampanno.

With clairvoyance that is purified and superhuman, they see sentient beings passing away and being reborn—inferior and superior, beautiful and ugly, in a good place or a bad place. They understand how sentient beings are reborn according to their deeds: ‘These dear beings did bad things by way of body, speech, and mind. They spoke ill of the noble ones; they had wrong view; and they acted out of that wrong view. When their body breaks up, after death, they’re reborn in a place of loss, a bad place, the underworld, hell. These dear beings, however, did good things by way of body, speech, and mind. They never spoke ill of the noble ones; they had right view; and they acted out of that right view. When their body breaks up, after death, they’re reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.’ And so, with clairvoyance that is purified and superhuman, they see sentient beings passing away and being reborn—inferior and superior, beautiful and ugly, in a good place or a bad place. Evaṁ vutte, rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When the Buddha had spoken, King Ajātasattu said to him, “abhikkantaṁ, bhante, abhikkantaṁ, bhante.

Now at that time Pokkharasāti had a student named Ambaṭṭha. He was one who recited and remembered the hymns, and had mastered in the three Vedas, together with their vocabularies, ritual, phonology and etymology, and the testament as fifth. He knew philology and grammar, and was well versed in cosmology and the marks of a great man. He had been authorized as a master in his own teacher's scriptural heritage of the three Vedas with the words:

So he approached the Buddha's dwelling and knocked, and the Buddha opened the door.

Pāvisi ambaṭṭho māṇavo. Māṇavakāpi pavisitvā bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodiṁsu, sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu.
Ambaṭṭha and the other students entered the dwelling. The other students exchanged greetings with the Buddha, and when the greetings and polite conversation were over, sat down to one side.

Ambaṭṭho pana māṇavo caṅkamantopi nisinnena bhagavatā kañci kañci kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāreti, ṭhitopi nisinnena bhagavatā kañci kañci kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāreti.
But while the Buddha was sitting, Ambaṭṭha spoke some polite words or other while walking around or standing.

Atha kho bhagavā ambaṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ etadavoca:
So the Buddha said to him,

"evaṁ nu te, ambaṭṭha, brāhmaṇehi vuddhehi mahallakehi ācariyapācariyehi saddhiṁ kathāsallāpo hoti, yathayidaṁ caraṁ tiṭṭhaṁ nisinnena mayā kiñci kiñci kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretī"ti?
"Ambaṭṭha, is this how you hold a discussion with elderly and senior brahmins, the teachers of teachers: walking around or standing while I'm sitting, speaking some polite words or other?"

2.1. Paṭhamaibbhavāda

2.1. The First Use of the Word "Riffraff"

"No hidaṁ, bho gotama.
"No, Master Gotama.

Gacchanto vā hi, bho gotama, gacchantena brāhmaṇo brāhmaṇena saddhiṁ sallapitumarahati, ṭhito vā hi, bho gotama, ṭhitena brāhmaṇo brāhmaṇena saddhiṁ sallapitumarahati, nisinno vā hi, bho gotama, nisinnena brāhmaṇo brāhmaṇena saddhiṁ sallapitumarahati, sayāno vā hi, bho gotama, sayānena brāhmaṇo brāhmaṇena saddhiṁ sallapitumarahati.
For it is proper for one brahmin to converse with another while both are walking, standing, sitting, or lying down.

Ye ca kho te, bho gotama, muṇḍakā samaṇakā ibbhā kaṇhā bandhupādāpaccā, tehipi me saddhiṁ evaṁ kathāsallāpo hoti, yathariva bhotā gotamenā”ti.
But as to these shavelings, fake ascetics, riffraff, black spawn from the feet of our Kinsman, I converse with them as I do with Master Gotama.”

“Atthikavato kho pana te, ambaṭṭha, idhāgamanaṁ ahosi, yāyeva kho panatthāya āgaccheyyātha, tameva atthaṁ sādhukaṁ manasi kareyyātha.
“But Ambaṭṭha, you must have come here for some purpose. You should focus on that.

Avusitavāyeva kho pana, bho, ayaṁ ambaṭṭho māṇavo vusitamānī kimaññatra avusitattā”ti.
Though this Ambaṭṭha is unqualified, he thinks he’s qualified. What is that but lack of qualifications?”

Atha kho ambaṭṭho māṇavo bhagavatā avusitavādena vuccamāno kupito anattamano bhagavantaṁyeva khuṁsento bhagavantaṁyeva vambhento bhagavantaṁyeva upavadamāno:
When he said this, Ambaṭṭha became angry and upset with the Buddha because of being described as unqualified. He even attacked and badmouthed the Buddha himself, saying,

“samaṇo ca me bho gotamo pāpito bhavissatī”ti bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
“The ascetic Gotama will be worsted!” He said to the Buddha, “caṇḍā, bho gotama, sakyajāti;

“Master Gotama, the Sakyan clan are rude, pharusā, bho gotama, sakyajāti;

harsh,

lahusā, bho gotama, sakyajāti;
touchy,

bhassā, bho gotama, sakyajāti;
and argumentative.

ibbhā santā ibbhā samānā na brāhmaṇe sakkaronti, na brāhmaṇe garuṁ karonti, na brāhmaṇe mānenti, na brāhmaṇe pūjenti, na brāhmaṇe apacāyanti.
Riffraff they are, and riffraff they remain! They don’t honor, respect, revere, worship, or venerate brahmins.

Tayidaṁ, bho gotama, nacchannaṁ, tayidaṁ nappatirūpaṁ, yadime sakyā ibbhā santā ibbhā samānā na brāhmaṇe sakkaronti, na brāhmaṇe garuṁ karonti, na brāhmaṇe mānenti, na brāhmaṇe pūjenti, na brāhmaṇe apacāyantī”ti.
It is neither proper nor appropriate that the Sakyans—riffraff that they are—don’t honor, respect, revere, worship, or venerate brahmins.”

Itiha ambaṭṭho māṇavo idaṁ paṭhamaṁ sakyesu ibbhavādaṁ nipātesi.
And that’s how Ambaṭṭha denigrated the Sakyans with the word “riffraff” for the first time.

2.2. Dutiyaibbhavāda

2.2. The Second Use of the Word “Riffraff”

“Kiṁ pana te, ambaṭṭha, sakyā aparaddhun”ti?

“But Ambaṭṭha, how have the Sakyans wronged you?”

“Ekamidāhaṁ, bho gotama, samayaṁ ācariyassa brāhmaṇassa pokkharasātissa kenacideva karaṇīyena kapilavatthuṁ agamāsiṁ.
“This one time, Master Gotama, I went to Kapilavatthu on some business for my teacher, the brahmin Pokkharasāti.

Yena sakyānaṁ sandhāgāraṁ tenupasaṅkamiṁ.
I approached the Sakyans in their meeting hall.

Tena kho pana samayena sambahulā sakyā ceva sakyakumārā ca sandhāgāre uccesu āsanesu nisinnā honti aññamaññaṁ aṅgulipatodakehi sañjagghantā saṅkīḷantā, aññadatthu mamaññeva maññe anujagghantā, na maṁ koci āsanenapi nimantesi.
Now at that time several Sakyans and Sakyan princes were sitting on high seats, poking each other with their fingers, giggling and playing together. In fact, they even presumed to giggle at me, and didn’t invite me to a seat.

Tayidaṁ, bho gotama, nacchannaṁ, tayidaṁ nappatirūpaṁ, yadime sakyā ibbhā santā ibbhā samānā na brāhmaṇe sakkaronti, na brāhmaṇe garuṁ karonti, na brāhmaṇe mānenti, na brāhmaṇe pūjenti, na brāhmaṇe apacāyantī”ti.
It is neither proper nor appropriate that the Sakyans—riffraff that they are—don’t honor, respect, revere, worship, or venerate brahmins.”

Itiha ambaṭṭho māṇavo idaṁ dutiyaṁ sakyesu ibbhavādaṁ nipātesi.
And that’s how Ambaṭṭha denigrated the Sakyans with the word “riffraff” for the second time.

2.3. Tatiyaibbhavāda

2.3. The Third Use of the Word “Riffraff”

“Laṭukikāpi kho, ambaṭṭha, sakuṇikā sake kulāvake kāmalāpinī hoti.
“Even a little quail, Ambaṭṭha, speaks as she likes in her own nest.

Sakaṁ kho panetaṁ, ambaṭṭha, sakyānaṁ yadidaṁ kapilavatthuṁ, nārahatāyasmā ambaṭṭho imāya appamattāya abhisajjitun”ti.
Kapilavatthu is the Sakyans own place, Ambaṭṭha. It’s not worthy of the Venerable Ambaṭṭha to lose his temper over such a small thing.”

“Cattārome, bho gotama, vaṇṇā—“Master Gotama, there are these four castes:

khattiyā brāhmaṇā vessā suddā.
aristocrats, brahmins, merchants, and workers.

Imesañhi, bho gotama, catunnaṁ vaṇṇānaṁ tayo vaṇṇā—
Three of these castes—khattiyā ca vessā ca suddā ca—aristocrats, merchants, and workers—aññadatthu brāhmaṇasseva paricārakā sampajjanti.

in fact succeed only in serving the brahmins.

Tayidaṁ, bho gotama, nacchannaṁ, tayidaṁ nappatirūpaṁ, yadime sakyā ibbhā santā ibbhā samānā na brāhmaṇe sakkaronti, na brāhmaṇe garuṁ karonti, na brāhmaṇe mānenti, na brāhmaṇe pūjenti, na brāhmaṇe apacāyantī”ti.
It is neither proper nor appropriate that the Sakyans—riffraff that they are—don’t honor, respect, revere, worship, or venerate brahmins.”

Itiha ambaṭṭho māṇavo idaṁ tatiyaṁ sakyesu ibbhavādaṁ nipātesi.
And that’s how Ambaṭṭha denigrated the Sakyans with the word “riffraff” for the third time.

2.4. Dāsiputtavāda

2.4. The Word “Son of Bondservants” is Used

Atha kho bhagavato etadahosi:
Then it occurred to the Buddha,

“atibāḷhaṁ kho ayaṁ ambaṭṭho māṇavo sakyesu ibbhavādena nimmādeti, yannūnāhaṁ gottaṁ puccheyyan”ti.
“This Ambaṭṭha puts the Sakyans down too much by calling them riffraff. Why don’t I ask him about his own clan?”

Atha kho bhagavā ambaṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ etadavoca:
So the Buddha said to him,

“kathaṁ gottosi, ambaṭṭhā”ti?
“What is your clan, Ambaṭṭha?”

“Kaṇhāyanohamasmi, bho gotamā”ti.
“I am a Kaṇhāyana, Master Gotama.”

“Porāṇaṁ kho pana te, ambaṭṭha, mātāpettikaṁ nāmagottaṁ anussarato ayyaputtā sakyā bhavanti; dāsiputto tvamasi sakyānaṁ.
“But, recollecting the ancient name and clan of your mother and father, the Sakyans were the children of the masters, while you’re descended from the son of a female bondservant of the Sakyans.

Sakyā kho pana, ambaṭṭha, rājānaṁ okkākaṁ pitāmahaṁ dahanti.
But the Sakyans claim King Okkāka as their grandfather.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, ambaṭṭha, rājā okkāko yā sā mahesī piyā manāpā, tassā puttassa rajjaṁ pariṇāmetukāmo jeṭṭhakumāre raṭṭhasmā pabbājesi—
Once upon a time, King Okkāka, wishing to divert the royal succession to the son of his most beloved queen, banished the elder princes from the realm—okkāmukhaṁ karakaṇḍaṁ hatthinikaṁ sinisūraṁ.

Okkāmukha, Karakaṇḍa, Hatthinika, and Sinisūra.

Te raṭṭhasmā pabbājitā himavantapasse pokkharaṇiyā tīre mahāsākasaṇḍo, tattha vāsaṁ kappesuṁ.
They made their home beside a lotus pond on the slopes of the Himalayas, where there was a large teak grove.

Te jātisambhedabhayā sakāhi bhaginīhi saddhiṁ saṁvāsaṁ kappesuṁ.
For fear of diluting their lineage, they slept with their own sisters.

Atha kho, ambaṭṭha, rājā okkāko amacce pārisajje āmantesi:
Then King Okkāka addressed his ministers and counselors,

‘kahaṁ nu kho, bho, etarahi kumārā sammantī’ti?
‘Where, sirs, have the princes settled now?’

‘Atthi, deva, himavantapasse pokkharaṇiyā tīre mahāsākasaṇḍo, tatthetarahi kumārā sammanti.
‘Sire, there is a lotus pond on the slopes of the Himalayas, by a large grove of _sāka_, the teak tree. They’ve settled there.

Te jātisambhedabhayā sakāhi bhaginīhi saddhiṁ saṁvāsaṁ kappentī’ti.
For fear of diluting their lineage, they are sleeping with their own (_saka_) sisters.’

Atha kho, ambaṭṭha, rājā okkāko udānaṁ udānesi:
Then, Ambaṭṭha, King Okkāka expressed this heartfelt sentiment:

‘sakyā vata, bho, kumārā, paramasakyā vata, bho, kumārā’ti.
‘The princes are indeed Sakyans! The princes are indeed the best Sakyans!’

Tadagge kho pana, ambaṭṭha, sakyā paññāyanti; so ca nesaṁ pubbapuriso.

From that day on the Sakyans were recognized, and he was their founder.

Rañño kho pana, ambaṭṭha, okkākassa disā nāma dāsī ahosi.
Now, King Okkāka had a female bondservant named Disā.

Sā kaṇhaṁ nāma janesi.
She gave birth to a black boy.

Jāto kaṇho pabyāhāsi:
When he was born, Black Boy said:

‘dhovatha maṁ, amma, nahāpetha maṁ amma, imasmā maṁ asucismā parimocetha, atthāya vo bhavissāmī’ti.
‘Wash me, mum, bathe me! Get this filth off of me! I will be useful for you!’

Yathā kho pana, ambaṭṭha, etarahi manussā pisāce disvā ‘pisācā’ti sañjānanti;
Whereas these days when people see goblins they know them as goblins, evameva kho, ambaṭṭha, tena kho pana samayena manussā pisāce ‘kaṇhā’ti sañjānanti.

in those days they knew goblins as ‘blackboys’.

Te evamāhaṁsu:
They said:

‘ayaṁ jāto pabyāhāsi, kaṇho jāto, pisāco jāto’ti.
‘He spoke as soon as he was born—a blackboy is born! A goblin is born!’

Tadagge kho pana, ambaṭṭha, kaṇhāyanā paññāyanti, so ca kaṇhāyanānaṁ pubbapuriso.
From that day on the Kaṇhāyanas were recognized, and he was their founder.

Iti kho te, ambaṭṭha, porāṇaṁ mātāpettikaṁ nāmagottaṁ anussarato ayyaputtā sakyā bhavanti, dāsiputto tvamasi sakyānan”ti.

That’s how, recollecting the ancient name and clan of your mother and father, the Sakyans were the children of the masters, while you’re descended from the son of a female bondservant of the Sakyans.”

Evaṁ vutte, te māṇavakā bhagavantaṁ etadavocuṁ:
When he said this, those students said to him,

“mā bhavaṁ gotamo ambaṭṭhaṁ atibāḷhaṁ dāsiputtavādena nimmādesi.
“Master Gotama, please don’t put Ambaṭṭha down too much by calling him the son of a bondservant.

Sujāto ca, bho gotama, ambaṭṭho māṇavo, kulaputto ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, bahussuto ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, kalyāṇavākkaraṇo ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, paṇḍito ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, pahoti ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo bhotā gotamena saddhiṁ asmiṁ vacane paṭimantetun”ti.
He’s well-born, a gentleman, learned, a good speaker, and astute. He’s capable of having a dialogue with Master Gotama about this.”

Atha kho bhagavā te māṇavake etadavoca:
So the Buddha said to them,

“sace kho tumhākaṁ māṇavakānaṁ evaṁ hoti:
“Well, students, if you think that

‘dujjāto ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, akulaputto ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, appassuto ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, akalyāṇavākkaraṇo ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, duppañño ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, na ca pahoti ambaṭṭho māṇavo samaṇena gotamena saddhiṁ asmiṁ vacane paṭimantetun’ti, tiṭṭhatu ambaṭṭho māṇavo, tumhe mayā saddhiṁ mantavho asmiṁ vacane.
Ambaṭṭha is ill-born, not a gentleman, uneducated, a poor speaker, witless, and not capable of having a dialogue with me about this, then leave him aside and you can have a dialogue with me.

Sace pana tumhākaṁ māṇavakānaṁ evaṁ hoti:
But if you think that ‘sujāto ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, kulaputto ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, bahussuto ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, kalyāṇavākkaraṇo ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, paṇḍito ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, pahoti ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo samaṇena gotamena saddhiṁ asmiṁ vacane paṭimantetun’ti, tiṭṭhatha tumhe; he’s well-born, a gentleman, learned, a good speaker, astute, and capable of having a dialogue with me about this, then you should stand aside and let him have a dialogue with me.”

ambaṭṭho māṇavo mayā saddhiṁ paṭimantetū”ti.

“Sujāto ca, bho gotama, ambaṭṭho māṇavo, kulaputto ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, bahussuto ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, kalyāṇavākkaraṇo ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, paṇḍito ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo, pahoti ca ambaṭṭho māṇavo bhotā gotamena saddhiṁ asmiṁ vacane paṭimantetuṁ, tuṇhī mayaṁ bhavissāma, ambaṭṭho māṇavo bhotā gotamena saddhiṁ asmiṁ vacane paṭimantetū”ti.
“He is capable of having a dialogue. We will be silent, and let Ambaṭṭha have a dialogue with Master Gotama.”

Atha kho bhagavā ambaṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ etadavoca:
So the Buddha said to Ambaṭṭha,

“ayaṁ kho pana te, ambaṭṭha, sahadhammiko pañho āgacchati, akāmā byākātabbo.
“Well, Ambaṭṭha, there’s a legitimate question that comes up. You won’t like it, but you ought to answer anyway.

Sace tvaṁ na byākarissasi, aññena vā aññaṁ paṭicarissasi, tuṇhī vā bhavissasi, pakkamissasi vā ettheva te sattadhā muddhā phalissati.
If you don’t answer, but dodge the issue, remain silent, or simply leave, your head will explode into seven pieces right here.

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, ambaṭṭha,
What do you think, Ambaṭṭha?

kinti te sutaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ vuddhānaṁ mahallakānaṁ ācariyapācariyānaṁ bhāsamānānaṁ kutopabhutikā kaṇhāyanā, ko ca kaṇhāyanānaṁ pubbapuriso”ti?
According to what you have heard from elderly and senior brahmins, the teachers of teachers, what is the origin of the Kaṇhāyanas, and who is their founder?”

Evaṁ vutte, ambaṭṭho māṇavo tuṇhī ahosi.
When he said this, Ambaṭṭha kept silent.

Dutiyampi kho bhagavā ambaṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ etadavoca:
For a second time, the Buddha put the question,

“taṁ kiṁ maññasi, ambaṭṭha, kinti te sutaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ vuddhānaṁ mahallakānaṁ ācariyapācariyānaṁ bhāsamānānaṁ kutopabhutikā kaṇhāyanā, ko ca kaṇhāyanānaṁ pubbapuriso”ti?

Dutiyampi kho ambaṭṭho māṇavo tuṇhī ahosi.
and for a second time Ambaṭṭha kept silent.

Atha kho bhagavā ambaṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ etadavoca:
So the Buddha said to him,

“byākarohi dāni, ambaṭṭha, na dāni, te tuṇhībhāvassa kālo.
“Answer now, Ambaṭṭha. Now is not the time for silence.

Yo kho, ambaṭṭha, tathāgatena yāvatatiyakaṁ sahadhammikaṁ pañhaṁ puṭṭho na byākaroti, etthevassa sattadhā muddhā phalissatī”ti.
If someone fails to answer a legitimate question when asked three times by the Buddha, their head explodes into seven pieces there and then.”

Tena kho pana samayena vajirapāṇī yakkho mahantaṁ ayokūṭaṁ ādāya ādittaṁ sampajjalitaṁ sajotibhūtaṁ ambaṭṭhassa māṇavassa upari vehāsaṁ ṭhito hoti:
Now at that time the spirit Vajirapāṇi, holding a massive iron spear, burning, blazing, and glowing, stood in the sky above Ambaṭṭha, thinking,

"sacāyaṁ ambaṭṭho māṇavo bhagavatā yāvatatiyakaṁ sahadhammikaṁ pañhaṁ puṭṭho na byākarissati, etthevassa sattadhā muddhaṁ phālessāmī"ti.
"If this Ambaṭṭha doesn't answer when asked a third time, I'll blow his head into seven pieces there and then!"

Taṁ kho pana vajirapāṇiṁ yakkhaṁ bhagavā ceva passati ambaṭṭho ca māṇavo.
And both the Buddha and Ambaṭṭha could see Vajirapāṇi.

Atha kho ambaṭṭho māṇavo bhīto saṁviggo lomahaṭṭhajāto bhagavantaṁyeva tāṇaṁ gavesī bhagavantaṁyeva leṇaṁ gavesī bhagavantaṁyeva saraṇaṁ gavesī upanisīditvā bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Ambaṭṭha was terrified, shocked, and awestruck. Looking to the Buddha for shelter, protection, and refuge, he sat down close by the Buddha and said,

"kimetaṁ bhavaṁ gotamo āha?
"What did you say?

Punabhavaṁ gotamo bravitū"ti.
Please repeat the question."

"Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, ambaṭṭha,
"What do you think, Ambaṭṭha?

kinti te sutaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ vuddhānaṁ mahallakānaṁ ācariyapācariyānaṁ bhāsamānānaṁ kutopabhutikā kaṇhāyanā, ko ca kaṇhāyanānaṁ pubbapuriso"ti?

According to what you have heard from elderly and senior brahmins, the teachers of teachers, what is the origin of the Kaṇhāyanas, and who is their founder?”

“Evameva me, bho gotama, sutaṁ yatheva bhavaṁ gotamo āha.
“I have heard, Master Gotama, that it is just as you say.

Tatopabhutikā kaṇhāyanā;
That’s the origin of the Kaṇhāyanas, so ca kaṇhāyanānaṁ pubbapuriso”ti.

and that’s who their founder is.”

2.5. Ambaṭṭhavaṁsakathā

2.5. The Discussion of Ambaṭṭha’s Heritage

Evaṁ vutte, te māṇavakā unnādino uccāsaddamahāsaddā ahesuṁ:
When he said this, those students made an uproar,

“dujjāto kira, bho, ambaṭṭho māṇavo; akulaputto kira, bho, ambaṭṭho māṇavo; dāsiputto kira, bho, ambaṭṭho māṇavo sakyānaṁ. Ayyaputtā kira, bho, ambaṭṭhassa māṇavassa sakyā bhavanti.
“It turns out Ambaṭṭha is ill-born, not a gentleman, son of a Sakyan bondservant, and that the Sakyans are sons of his masters!

Dhammavādiṁyeva kira mayaṁ samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ apasādetabbaṁ amaññimhā”ti.
And it seems that the ascetic Gotama spoke only the truth, though we presumed to rebuke him!”

Atha kho bhagavato etadahosi:
Then it occurred to the Buddha,

“atibāḷhaṁ kho ime māṇavakā ambaṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ dāsiputtavādena nimmādenti, yannūnāhaṁ parimoceyyan”ti.

“These students put Ambaṭṭha down too much by calling him the son of a bondservant. Why don’t I get him out of this?”

Atha kho bhagavā te māṇavake etadavoca:
So the Buddha said to the students,

“mā kho tumhe, māṇavakā, ambaṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ atibāḷhaṁ dāsiputtavādena nimmādetha.
“Students, please don’t put Ambaṭṭha down too much by calling him the son of a bondservant.

Uḷāro so kaṇho isi ahosi.
That Black Boy was an eminent sage.

So dakkhiṇajanapadaṁ gantvā brahmamante adhīyitvā rājānaṁ okkākaṁ upasaṅkamitvā maddarūpiṁ dhītaraṁ yāci.
He went to a southern country and memorized the Prime Spell. Then he approached King Okkāka and asked for the hand of his daughter Maddarūpī.

Tassa rājā okkāko:
The king said to him,

‘ko nevaṁ re ayaṁ mayhaṁ dāsiputto samāno maddarūpiṁ dhītaraṁ yācatī’ti, kupito anattamano khurappaṁ sannayhi.
‘Who the hell is this son of a bondservant to ask for the hand of my daughter!’ Angry and upset he fastened a razor-tipped arrow.

So taṁ khurappaṁ neva asakkhi muñcituṁ, no paṭisaṁharituṁ.
But he wasn’t able to either shoot it or to relax it.

Atha kho, māṇavakā, amaccā pārisajjā kaṇhaṁ isiṁ upasaṅkamitvā etadavocuṁ:
Then the ministers and counselors approached the sage Black Boy and said:

‘sotthi, bhaddante, hotu rañño;
‘Spare the king, sir,

sotthi, bhaddante, hotu raññoʼti.
spare him!’

‘Sotthi bhavissati rañño, api ca rājā yadi adho khurappaṁ muñcissati, yāvatā rañño vijitaṁ, ettāvatā pathavī undriyissatīʼti.
‘The king will be safe. But if he shoots the arrow downwards, there will be an earthquake across the entire realm.’

‘Sotthi, bhaddante, hotu rañño, sotthi janapadassāʼti.
‘Spare the king, sir, and spare the country!’

‘Sotthi bhavissati rañño, sotthi janapadassa, api ca rājā yadi uddhaṁ khurappaṁ muñcissati, yāvatā rañño vijitaṁ, ettāvatā satta vassāni devo na vassissatīʼti.
‘Both king and country will be safe. But if he shoots the arrow upwards, there will be no rain in the entire realm for seven years.’

‘Sotthi, bhaddante, hotu rañño sotthi janapadassa devo ca vassatūʼti.
‘Spare the king, sir, spare the country, and let there be rain!’

‘Sotthi bhavissati rañño sotthi janapadassa devo ca vassissati, api ca rājā jeṭṭhakumāre khurappaṁ patiṭṭhāpetu, sotthi kumāro pallomo bhavissatīʼti.
‘Both king and country will be safe, and the rain will fall. And if the king aims the arrow at the crown prince, he will be safe and untouched.’

Atha kho, māṇavakā, amaccā okkākassa ārocesuṁ:
So the ministers said to Okkāka:

‘okkāko jeṭṭhakumāre khurappaṁ patiṭṭhāpetu. Sotthi kumāro pallomo bhavissatīʼti.

‘Okkāka must aim the arrow at the crown prince. He will be safe and untouched.’

Atha kho rājā okkāko jeṭṭhakumāre khurappaṁ patiṭṭhapesi, sotthi kumāro pallomo samabhavi.
So King Okkāka aimed the arrow at the crown prince. And he was safe and untouched.

Atha kho tassa rājā okkāko bhīto saṁviggo lomahaṭṭhajāto brahmadaṇḍena tajjito maddarūpiṁ dhītaraṁ adāsi.
Then the king was terrified, shocked, and awestruck. Scared by the prime punishment, he gave the hand of his daughter Maddarūpī.

Mā kho tumhe, māṇavakā, ambaṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ atibāḷhaṁ dāsiputtavādena nimmādetha, uḷāro so kaṇho isi ahosī”ti.
Students, please don’t put Ambaṭṭha down too much by calling him the son of a bondservant. That Black Boy was an eminent sage.”

3. Khattiyaseṭṭhabhāva

3. The Supremacy of the Aristocrats

Atha kho bhagavā ambaṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha addressed Ambaṭṭha,

“Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, ambaṭṭha,
“What do you think, Ambaṭṭha?

idha khattiyakumāro brāhmaṇakaññāya saddhiṁ saṁvāsaṁ kappeyya, tesaṁ saṁvāsamanvāya putto jāyetha.
Suppose an aristocrat boy was to sleep with a brahmin girl, and they had a son.

Yo so khattiyakumārena brāhmaṇakaññāya putto uppanno, api nu so labhetha brāhmaṇesu āsanaṁ vā udakaṁ vā”ti?
Would he receive a seat and water from the brahmins?”

“Labhetha, bho gotama”.
“He would, Master Gotama.”

“Api nu naṁ brāhmaṇā bhojeyyuṁ saddhe vā thālipāke vā yaññe vā pāhune vā”ti?
“And would the brahmins feed him at an offering of food for ancestors, an offering of a dish of milk-rice, a sacrifice, or a feast for guests?”

“Bhojeyyuṁ, bho gotama”.
“They would.”

“Api nu naṁ brāhmaṇā mante vāceyyuṁ vā no vā”ti?
“And would the brahmins teach him the hymns or not?”

“Vāceyyuṁ, bho gotama”.
“They would.”

“Api nussa itthīsu āvaṭaṁ vā assa anāvaṭaṁ vā”ti?

“At this point, Ambaṭṭha, that aristocrat has reached rock bottom, with head shaven, inflicted with a sack of ashes, and banished from city or nation.

Iti kho, ambaṭṭha, yadā khattiyo paramanihīnataṁ patto hoti, tadāpi khattiyāva seṭṭhā, hīnā brāhmaṇā.
Yet still the aristocrats are superior and the brahmins inferior.

Brahmunā pesā, ambaṭṭha, sanaṅkumārena gāthā bhāsitā:
Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra also spoke this verse:

‘Khattiyo seṭṭho janetasmiṁ,
‘The aristocrat is best of those people

ye gottapaṭisārino;
who take clan as the standard.

Vijjācaraṇasampanno,
But one accomplished in knowledge and conduct

so seṭṭho devamānuse’ti.
is best of gods and humans.’

Sā kho panesā, ambaṭṭha, brahmunā sanaṅkumārena gāthā sugītā no duggītā, subhāsitā no dubbhāsitā, atthasaṁhitā no anatthasaṁhitā, anumatā mayā.
That verse was well sung by Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra, not poorly sung; well spoken, not poorly spoken, beneficial, not harmful, and it was approved by me.

Ahampi hi, ambaṭṭha, evaṁ vadāmi—
For I also say this:

Khattiyo seṭṭho janetasmiṁ,
The aristocrat is best of those people

ye gottapaṭisārino;
who take clan as the standard.

Vijjācaraṇasampanno,
But one accomplished in knowledge and conduct

so seṭṭho devamānuse”ti.
is best of gods and humans.”

Bhāṇavāro paṭhamo.

4. Vijjācaraṇakathā

4. Knowledge and Conduct

“Katamaṁ pana taṁ, bho gotama, caraṇaṁ, katamā ca pana sā vijjā”ti?
“But what, Master Gotama, is that conduct, and what is that knowledge?”

“Na kho, ambaṭṭha, anuttarāya vijjācaraṇasampadāya jātivādo vā vuccati, gottavādo vā vuccati, mānavādo vā vuccati:
“Ambaṭṭha, in the supreme knowledge and conduct there is no discussion of ancestry or clan or pride—

5. Catuapāyamukha

5. Four Drains

Imāya kho, ambaṭṭha, anuttarāya vijjācaraṇasampadāya cattāri apāyamukhāni bhavanti.
There are these four drains that affect this supreme knowledge and conduct.

Katamāni cattāri?
What four?

Idha, ambaṭṭha, ekacco samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā imaññeva anuttaraṁ vijjācaraṇasampadaṁ anabhisambhuṇamāno khārividhamādāya araññāyatanaṁ ajjhogāhati:
Firstly, take some ascetic or brahmin who, not managing to obtain this supreme knowledge and conduct, plunges into a wilderness region carrying their stuff with a shoulder-pole, thinking ‘pavattaphalabhojano bhavissāmī’ti.

they will get by eating fallen fruit.

So aññadatthu vijjācaraṇasampannasseva paricārako sampajjati.
In fact they succeed only in serving someone accomplished in knowledge and conduct.

6. Pubbakaisibhāvānuyoga

6. Being Like the Sages of the Past

Brāhmaṇo kho pana, ambaṭṭha, pokkharasāti rañño pasenadissa kosalassa dattikaṁ bhuñjati.
But Pokkharasāti lives off an endowment provided by King Pasenadi of Kosala.

Tassa rājā pasenadi kosalo sammukhībhāvampi na dadāti.
But the king won't even grant him an audience face to face.

Yadāpi tena manteti, tirodussantena manteti.
When he consults, he does so behind a curtain.

Yassa kho pana, ambaṭṭha, dhammikaṁ payātaṁ bhikkhaṁ paṭiggaṇheyya, kathaṁ tassa rājā pasenadi kosalo sammukhībhāvampi na dadeyya.
Why wouldn't the king grant a face to face audience with someone who'd receive his legitimate presentation of food?

Passa, ambaṭṭha, yāva aparaddhañca te idaṁ ācariyassa brāhmaṇassa pokkharasātissa.
See, Ambaṭṭha, how your teacher Pokkharasāti has wronged you.

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, ambaṭṭha, idha rājā pasenadi kosalo hatthigīvāya vā nisinno assapiṭṭhe vā nisinno rathūpatthare vā ṭhito uggehi vā rājaññehi vā kiñcideva mantanaṁ manteyya.

Suppose King Pasenadi was holding consultations with warrior-chiefs or chieftains while sitting on an elephant's neck or on horseback, or while standing on the mat in a chariot.

So tamhā padesā apakkamma ekamantaṁ tiṭṭheyya.

And suppose he’d get down from that place and stand aside.

Atha āgaccheyya suddo vā suddadāso vā, tasmiṁ padese ṭhito tadeva mantanaṁ manteyya:
Then along would come a worker or their bondservant, who’d stand in the same place and continue the consultation:

‘evampi rājā pasenadi kosalo āha, evampi rājā pasenadi kosalo āhā’ti.
‘This is what King Pasenadi says, and this too is what the king says.’

Api nu so rājabhaṇitaṁ vā bhaṇati rājamantanaṁ vā manteti?
Though he spoke the king’s words and gave the king’s advice,

Ettāvatā so assa rājā vā rājamatto vā”ti?
does that qualify him to be the king or the king’s minister?”

“No hidaṁ, bho gotama”.

They were the authors and propagators of the hymns. Their hymnal was sung and propagated and compiled in ancient times; and these days, brahmins continue to sing and chant it, chanting what was chanted and teaching what was taught.

‘tyāhaṁ mante adhiyāmi sācariyako’ti, tāvatā tvaṁ bhavissasi isi vā isitthāya vā paṭipannoti netaṁ ṭhānaṁ vijjati.

Evaṁ su te sālīnaṁ odanaṁ sucimaṁsūpasecanaṁ vicitakāḷakaṁ anekasūpaṁ anekabyañjanaṁ paribhuñjanti, seyyathāpi tvaṁ etarahi sācariyako”ti?

“Did they eat boiled fine rice, garnished with clean meat, with the dark grains picked out, served with many soups and sauces, like you do today in your tradition?”

“No hidaṁ, bho gotama”.
“No, Master Gotama.”

“ …pe…

Evaṁ su te veṭhakanatapassāhi nārīhi paricārenti, seyyathāpi tvaṁ etarahi sācariyako”ti?
“Did they amuse themselves with girls wearing thongs that show off their curves, like you do today in your tradition?”

“No hidaṁ, bho gotama”.
“No, Master Gotama.”

“ …pe…

Evaṁ su te kuttavālehi vaḷavārathehi dīghāhi patodalaṭṭhīhi vāhane vitudentā vipariyāyanti, seyyathāpi tvaṁ etarahi sācariyako”ti?
“Did they drive about in chariots drawn by mares with plaited manes, whipping and lashing them onward with long goads, like you do today in your tradition?”

“No hidaṁ, bho gotama”.
“No, Master Gotama.”

“ …pe…

Evaṁ su te ukkiṇṇaparikhāsu okkhittapalighāsu nagarūpakārikāsu dīghāsivudhehi purisehi rakkhāpenti, seyyathāpi tvaṁ etarahi sācariyako”ti?
“Did they get men with long swords to guard them in fortresses with moats dug and barriers in place, like you do today in your tradition?”

“No hidaṁ, bho gotama”.
“No, Master Gotama.”

“Iti kho, ambaṭṭha, neva tvaṁ isi na isitthāya paṭipanno sācariyako.
“So, Ambaṭṭha, in your own tradition you are neither hermit nor someone on the path to becoming a hermit.

Yassa kho pana, ambaṭṭha, mayi kaṅkhā vā vimati vā so maṁ pañhena, ahaṁ veyyākaraṇena sodhissāmī”ti.
Whoever has any doubt or uncertainty about me, let them ask me and I will clear up their doubts with my answer.”

7. Dvelakkhaṇādassana
7. Seeing the Two Marks

Atha kho bhagavā vihārā nikkhamma caṅkamaṁ abbhuṭṭhāsi.
Then the Buddha came out of his dwelling and proceeded to begin walking mindfully, Ambaṭṭhopi māṇavo vihārā nikkhamma caṅkamaṁ abbhuṭṭhāsi.

and Ambaṭṭha did likewise.

Atha kho ambaṭṭho māṇavo bhagavantaṁ caṅkamantaṁ anucaṅkamamāno bhagavato kāye dvattiṁsamahāpurisalakkhaṇāni samannesi.
Then while walking beside the Buddha, Ambaṭṭha scrutinized his body for the thirty-two marks of a great man.

Addasā kho ambaṭṭho māṇavo bhagavato kāye dvattiṁsamahāpurisalakkhaṇāni yebhuyyena ṭhapetvā dve.
He saw all of them except for two,

Dvīsu mahāpurisalakkhaṇesu kaṅkhati vicikicchati nādhimuccati na sampasīdati—which he had doubts about:

kosohite ca vatthaguyhe pahūtajivhatāya ca.
whether the private parts are retracted, and the largeness of the tongue.

Atha kho bhagavato etadahosi:
Then it occurred to the Buddha,

“passati kho me ayaṁ ambaṭṭho māṇavo dvattiṁsamahāpurisalakkhaṇāni yebhuyyena ṭhapetvā dve.
“This brahmin student Ambaṭṭha sees all the marks except for two,

Dvīsu mahāpurisalakkhaṇesu kaṅkhati vicikicchati nādhimuccati na sampasīdati—which he has doubts about:

kosohite ca vatthaguyhe pahūtajivhatāya cā”ti.
whether the private parts are retracted, and the largeness of the tongue.”

Atha kho bhagavā tathārūpaṁ iddhābhisaṅkhāraṁ abhisaṅkhāsi. Yathā addasa ambaṭṭho māṇavo bhagavato kosohitaṁ vatthaguyhaṁ.
Then the Buddha used his psychic power to will that Ambaṭṭha would see his retracted private parts.

Atha kho bhagavā jivhaṁ ninnāmetvā ubhopi kaṇṇasotāni anumasi paṭimasi, ubhopi nāsikasotāni anumasi paṭimasi, kevalampi nalāṭamaṇḍalaṁ jivhāya chādesi.
And he stuck out his tongue and stroked back and forth on his ear holes and nostrils, and covered his entire forehead with his tongue.

Atha kho ambaṭṭhassa māṇavassa etadahosi:
Then Ambaṭṭha thought,

“samannāgato kho samaṇo gotamo dvattiṁsamahāpurisalakkhaṇehi paripuṇṇehi, no aparipuṇṇehī”ti.

“The ascetic Gotama possesses the thirty-two marks completely, lacking none.”

Bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
He said to the Buddha,

“handa ca dāni mayaṁ, bho gotama, gacchāma, bahukiccā mayaṁ bahukaraṇīyā”ti.
“Well, now, sir, I must go. I have many duties, and much to do.”

“Yassadāni tvaṁ, ambaṭṭha, kālaṁ maññasī”ti.
“Please, Ambaṭṭha, go at your convenience.”

Atha kho ambaṭṭho māṇavo vaḷavārathamāruyha pakkāmi.
Then Ambaṭṭha mounted his mare-drawn chariot and left.

Tena kho pana samayena brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti ukkaṭṭhāya nikkhamitvā mahatā brāhmaṇagaṇena saddhiṁ sake ārāme nisinno hoti ambaṭṭhaṁyeva māṇavaṁ paṭimānento.
Now at that time the brahmin Pokkharasāti had come out from Ukkaṭṭhā together with a large group of brahmins and was sitting in his own park just waiting for Ambaṭṭha.

Atha kho ambaṭṭho māṇavo yena sako ārāmo tena pāyāsi.
Then Ambaṭṭha entered the park.

Yāvatikā yānassa bhūmi, yānena gantvā yānā paccorohitvā pattikova yena brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā brāhmaṇaṁ pokkharasātiṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho ambaṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti etadavoca:
He went by carriage as far as the terrain allowed, then descended and approached the brahmin Pokkharasāti on foot. He bowed and sat down to one side, and Pokkharasāti said to him:

“kacci, tāta ambaṭṭha, addasa taṁ bhavantaṁ gotaman”ti?
“I hope, dear Ambaṭṭha, you saw the Master Gotama?”

“Addasāma kho mayaṁ, bho, taṁ bhavantaṁ gotaman”ti.
“I saw him, sir.”

“Kacci, tāta ambaṭṭha, taṁ bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ tathā santaṁyeva saddo abbhuggato no aññathā;
“Well, does he live up to his reputation or not?”

kacci pana so bhavaṁ gotamo tādiso no aññādiso”ti?

“Tathā santaṁyeva, bho, taṁ bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ saddo abbhuggato no aññathā, tādisova so bhavaṁ gotamo no aññādiso.
“He does, sir.

Samannāgato ca so bhavaṁ gotamo dvattiṁsamahāpurisalakkhaṇehi paripuṇṇehi no aparipuṇṇehī”ti.
Master Gotama possesses the thirty-two marks completely, lacking none.”

“Ahu pana te, tāta ambaṭṭha, samaṇena gotamena saddhiṁ kocideva kathāsallāpo”ti?
“And did you have some discussion with him?”

“Ahu kho me, bho, samaṇena gotamena saddhiṁ kocideva kathāsallāpo”ti.
“I did.”

“Yathā kathaṁ pana te, tāta ambaṭṭha, ahu samaṇena gotamena saddhiṁ kocideva kathāsallāpo”ti?
“And what kind of discussion did you have with him?”

Atha kho ambaṭṭho māṇavo yāvatako ahosi bhagavatā saddhiṁ kathāsallāpo, taṁ sabbaṁ brāhmaṇassa pokkharasātissa ārocesi.

Then Ambaṭṭha informed Pokkharasāti of all they had discussed.

Evaṁ vutte, brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti ambaṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ etadavoca:
Then Pokkharasāti said to Ambaṭṭha,

“aho vata re amhākaṁ, paṇḍitaka, aho vata re amhākaṁ, bahussutaka, aho vata re amhākaṁ, tevijjaka, evarūpena kira, bho, puriso atthacarakena kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā apāyaṁ duggatiṁ vinipātaṁ nirayaṁ upapajjeyya.
“Oh, our bloody fake scholar, our fake learned man, who pretends to be proficient in the three Vedas! A man who behaves like this ought, when their body breaks up, after death, to be reborn in a place of loss, a bad place, the underworld, hell.

Yadeva kho tvaṁ, ambaṭṭha, taṁ bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ evaṁ āsajja āsajja avacāsi, atha kho so bhavaṁ gotamo amhepi evaṁ upaneyya upaneyya avaca.
It’s only because you repeatedly attacked Master Gotama like that that he kept bringing up charges against us!”

Aho vata re amhākaṁ, paṇḍitaka, aho vata re amhākaṁ, bahussutaka, aho vata re amhākaṁ, tevijjaka, evarūpena kira, bho, puriso atthacarakena kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā apāyaṁ duggatiṁ vinipātaṁ nirayaṁ upapajjeyyā”ti, kupito anattamano ambaṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ padasāyeva pavattesi.
Angry and upset, he kicked Ambaṭṭha over,

Icchati ca tāvadeva bhagavantaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamituṁ.
and wanted to go and see the Buddha right away.

8. Pokkharasātibuddhūpasaṅkamana

8. Pokkharasāti Visits the Buddha

Atha kho te brāhmaṇā brāhmaṇaṁ pokkharasātiṁ etadavocuṁ:
Then those brahmins said to Pokkharasāti,

“ativikālo kho, bho, ajja samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamituṁ.
“It’s much too late to visit the ascetic Gotama today.

Svedāni bhavaṁ pokkharasāti samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamissatī”ti.
You can visit him tomorrow.”

Atha kho brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti sake nivesane paṇītaṁ khādanīyaṁ bhojanīyaṁ paṭiyādāpetvā yāne āropetvā ukkāsu dhāriyamānāsu ukkaṭṭhāya niyyāsi, yena icchānaṅgalavanasaṇḍo tena pāyāsi.
So Pokkharasāti had a variety of delicious foods prepared in his own home. Then he mounted a carriage and, with attendants carrying torches, set out from Ukkaṭṭhā for the forest near Icchānaṅgala.

Yāvatikā yānassa bhūmi yānena gantvā, yānā paccorohitvā pattikova yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami. upasaṅkamitvā bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodi, sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
He went by carriage as far as the terrain allowed, then descended and entered the monastery on foot. He went up to the Buddha and exchanged greetings with him. When the greetings and polite conversation were over, he sat down to one side and said to the Buddha, “āgamā nu khvidha, bho gotama, amhākaṁ antevāsī ambaṭṭho māṇavo”ti?

“Master Gotama, has my pupil, the student Ambaṭṭha, come here?”

“Āgamā kho te, brāhmaṇa, antevāsī ambaṭṭho māṇavo”ti.
“Yes he has, brahmin.”

“Ahu pana te, bho gotama, ambaṭṭhena māṇavena saddhiṁ kocideva kathāsallāpo”ti?

“Ahu kho me, brāhmaṇa, ambaṭṭhena māṇavena saddhiṁ kocideva kathāsallāpo”ti.
“I did.”

“Yathākathaṁ pana te, bho gotama, ahu ambaṭṭhena māṇavena saddhiṁ kocideva kathāsallāpo”ti?
“And what kind of discussion did you have with him?”

Atha kho bhagavā yāvatako ahosi ambaṭṭhena māṇavena saddhiṁ kathāsallāpo, taṁ sabbaṁ brāhmaṇassa pokkharasātissa ārocesi.
Then the Buddha informed Pokkharasāti of all they had discussed.

Evaṁ vutte, brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Pokkharasāti said to the Buddha,

“bālo, bho gotama, ambaṭṭho māṇavo, khamatu bhavaṁ gotamo ambaṭṭhassa māṇavassā”ti.
“Ambaṭṭha is a fool, Master Gotama. Please forgive him.”

“Sukhī hotu, brāhmaṇa, ambaṭṭho māṇavo”ti.
“May the student Ambaṭṭha be happy, brahmin.”

Atha kho brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti bhagavato kāye dvattiṁsamahāpurisalakkhaṇāni samannesi.
Then Pokkharasāti scrutinized the Buddha’s body for the thirty-two marks of a great man.

Addasā kho brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti bhagavato kāye dvattiṁsamahāpurisalakkhaṇāni yebhuyyena ṭhapetvā dve.
He saw all of them except for two,

Dvīsu mahāpurisalakkhaṇesu kaṅkhati vicikicchati nādhimuccati na sampasīdati—
which he had doubts about:

kosohite ca vatthaguyhe pahūtajivhatāya ca.
whether the private parts are retracted, and the largeness of the tongue.

Atha kho bhagavato etadahosi:
Then it occurred to the Buddha,

“passati kho me ayaṁ brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti dvattiṁsamahāpurisalakkhaṇāni yebhuyyena ṭhapetvā dve.
“Pokkharasāti sees all the marks except for two,

Dvīsu mahāpurisalakkhaṇesu kaṅkhati vicikicchati nādhimuccati na sampasīdati—
which he has doubts about:

kosohite ca vatthaguyhe pahūtajivhatāya cā”ti.
whether the private parts are retracted, and the largeness of the tongue.”

Atha kho bhagavā tathārūpaṁ iddhābhisaṅkhāraṁ abhisaṅkhāsi yathā addasa brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti bhagavato kosohitaṁ vatthaguyhaṁ.
Then the Buddha used his psychic power to will that Pokkharasāti would see his retracted private parts.

Atha kho bhagavā jivhaṁ ninnāmetvā ubhopi kaṇṇasotāni anumasi paṭimasi, ubhopi nāsikasotāni anumasi paṭimasi, kevalampi nalāṭamaṇḍalaṁ jivhāya chādesi.
And he stuck out his tongue and stroked back and forth on his ear holes and nostrils, and covered his entire forehead with his tongue.

Atha kho brāhmaṇassa pokkharasātissa etadahosi:
Pokkharasāti thought,

“samannāgato kho samaṇo gotamo dvattiṁsamahāpurisalakkhaṇehi paripuṇṇehi no aparipuṇṇehī”ti.
“The ascetic Gotama possesses the thirty-two marks completely, lacking none.”

Bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
He said to the Buddha,

“adhivāsetu me bhavaṁ gotamo ajjatanāya bhattaṁ saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghenā”ti.
“Would Master Gotama together with the mendicant Saṅgha please accept today’s meal from me?”

Adhivāsesi bhagavā tuṇhībhāvena.
The Buddha consented in silence.

Atha kho brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti bhagavato adhivāsanaṁ viditvā bhagavato kālaṁ ārocesi:
Then, knowing that the Buddha had consented, Pokkharasāti announced the time to him, “kālo, bho gotama, niṭṭhitaṁ bhattan”ti.

Atha kho bhagavā pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghena yena brāhmaṇassa pokkharasātissa nivesanaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā paññatte āsane nisīdi.
Then the Buddha robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, went to the home of Pokkharasāti together with the mendicant Saṅgha, where he sat on the seat spread out.

Atha kho brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti bhagavantaṁ paṇītena khādanīyena bhojanīyena sahatthā santappesi sampavāresi, māṇavakāpi bhikkhusaṅghaṁ.
Then Pokkharasāti served and satisfied the Buddha with his own hands with a variety of delicious foods, while his students served the Saṅgha.

Atha kho brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti bhagavantaṁ bhuttāviṁ onītapattapāṇiṁ aññataraṁ nīcaṁ āsanaṁ gahetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.

When the Buddha had eaten and washed his hand and bowl, Pokkharasāti took a low seat and sat to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinnassa kho brāhmaṇassa pokkharasātissa bhagavā anupubbiṁ kathaṁ kathesi, Then the Buddha taught him step by step, with seyyathidaṁ—dānakathaṁ sīlakathaṁ saggakathaṁ;

a talk on giving, ethical conduct, and heaven.

kāmānaṁ ādīnavaṁ okāraṁ saṅkilesaṁ, nekkhamme ānisaṁsaṁ pakāsesi.
He explained the drawbacks of sensual pleasures, so sordid and corrupt, and the benefit of renunciation.

Yadā bhagavā aññāsi brāhmaṇaṁ pokkharasātiṁ kallacittaṁ muducittaṁ vinīvaraṇacittaṁ udaggacittaṁ pasannacittaṁ, atha yā buddhānaṁ sāmukkaṁsikā dhammadesanā, taṁ pakāsesi—
And when the Buddha knew that Pokkharasāti’s mind was ready, pliable, rid of hindrances, joyful, and confident he explained the special teaching of the Buddhas:

dukkhaṁ samudayaṁ nirodhaṁ maggaṁ.
suffering, its origin, its cessation, and the path.

Seyyathāpi nāma suddhaṁ vatthaṁ apagatakāḷakaṁ sammadeva rajanaṁ paṭiggaṇheyya;
Just as a clean cloth rid of stains would properly absorb dye, evameva brāhmaṇassa pokkharasātissa tasmiññeva āsane virajaṁ vītamalaṁ dhammacakkhuṁ udapādi:

in that very seat the stainless, immaculate vision of the Dhamma arose in the brahmin Pokkharasāti:

“yaṁ kiñci samudayadhammaṁ sabbaṁ taṁ nirodhadhamman”ti.
“Everything that has a beginning has an end.”

9. Pokkharasātiupāsakattapaṭivedanā

9. Pokkharasāti Declares Himself a Lay Follower

Atha kho brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti diṭṭhadhammo pattadhammo viditadhammo pariyogāḷhadhammo tiṇṇavicikiccho vigatakathaṅkatho vesārajjappatto aparappaccayo satthusāsane bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Pokkharasāti saw, attained, understood, and fathomed the Dhamma. He went beyond doubt, got rid of indecision, and became self-assured and independent of others regarding the Teacher’s instructions. He said to the Buddha, “abhikkantaṁ, bho gotama, abhikkantaṁ, bho gotama.

“Excellent, Master Gotama! Excellent!

Seyyathāpi, bho gotama, nikkujjitaṁ vā ukkujjeyya, paṭicchannaṁ vā vivareyya, mūḷhassa vā maggaṁ ācikkheyya, andhakāre vā telapajjotaṁ dhāreyya: ‘cakkhumanto rūpāni dakkhantī’ti; evamevaṁ bhotā gotamena anekapariyāyena dhammo pakāsito.
As if he were righting the overturned, or revealing the hidden, or pointing out the path to the lost, or lighting a lamp in the dark so people with good eyes can see what’s there, just so has Master Gotama made the Teaching clear in many ways.

Esāhaṁ, bho gotama, saputto sabhariyo sapariso sāmacco bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ saraṇaṁ gacchāmi dhammañca bhikkhusaṅghañca.
Together with my children, wives, retinue, and ministers, I go for refuge to Master Gotama, to the teaching, and to the mendicant Saṅgha.

Upāsakaṁ maṁ bhavaṁ gotamo dhāretu ajjatagge pāṇupetaṁ saraṇaṁ gataṁ.
From this day forth, may Master Gotama remember me as a lay follower who has gone for refuge for life.

Yathā ca bhavaṁ gotamo ukkaṭṭhāya aññāni upāsakakulāni upasaṅkamati, evameva bhavaṁ gotamo pokkharasātikulaṁ upasaṅkamatu.
Just as Master Gotama visits other devoted families in Ukkaṭṭhā, may he visit mine.

Tattha ye te māṇavakā vā māṇavikā vā bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ abhivādessanti vā paccuṭṭhissanti vā āsanaṁ vā udakaṁ vā dassanti cittaṁ vā pasādessanti, tesaṁ taṁ bhavissati dīgharattaṁ hitāya sukhāyā”ti.
The brahmin boys and girls there will bow to you, rise in your presence, give you a seat and water, and gain confidence in their hearts. That will be for their lasting welfare and happiness.”

“Kalyāṇaṁ vuccati, brāhmaṇā”ti.
“That’s good of you to say, householder.”

Ambaṭṭhasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ tatiyaṁ.

4. Soṇadaṇḍasutta

With Soṇadaṇḍa

1. Campeyyakabrāhmaṇagahapatikā

1. The Brahmins and Householders of Campā

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā aṅgesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi yena campā tadavasari.
At one time the Buddha was wandering in the land of the Aṅgas together with a large Saṅgha of around five hundred mendicants when he arrived at Campā, Tatra sudaṁ bhagavā campāyaṁ viharati gaggarāya pokkharaṇiyā tīre.

where he stayed by the banks of the Gaggarā Lotus Pond.

Tena kho pana samayena soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo campaṁ ajjhāvasati sattussadaṁ satiṇakaṭṭhodakaṁ sadhaññaṁ rājabhoggaṁ raññā māgadhena seniyena bimbisārena dinnaṁ rājadāyaṁ brahmadeyyaṁ.
Now at that time the brahmin Soṇadaṇḍa was living in Campā. It was a crown property given by King Seniya Bimbisāra of Magadha, teeming with living creatures, full of hay, wood, water, and grain, a royal endowment of the highest quality.

Assosuṁ kho campeyyakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā:
The brahmins and householders of Campā heard:

“samaṇo khalu bho gotamo sakyaputto sakyakulā pabbajito aṅgesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi campaṁ anuppatto campāyaṁ viharati gaggarāya pokkharaṇiyā tīre.
“It seems the ascetic Gotama—a Sakyan, gone forth from a Sakyan family—has arrived at Campā and is staying on the banks of the Gaggarā Lotus Pond.

Taṁ kho pana bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:
He has this good reputation:

‘itipi so bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavā’.
‘That Blessed One is perfected, a fully awakened Buddha, accomplished in knowledge and conduct, holy, knower of the world, supreme guide for those who wish to train, teacher of gods and humans, awakened, blessed.’

So imaṁ lokaṁ sadevakaṁ samārakaṁ sabrahmakaṁ sassamaṇabrāhmaṇiṁ pajaṁ sadevamanussaṁ sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā pavedeti.
He has realized with his own insight this world—with its gods, Māras and Brahmās, this population with its ascetics and brahmins, gods and humans—and he makes it known to others.

So dhammaṁ deseti ādikalyāṇaṁ majjhekalyāṇaṁ pariyosānakalyāṇaṁ sātthaṁ sabyañjanaṁ kevalaparipuṇṇaṁ parisuddhaṁ brahmacariyaṁ pakāseti.
He teaches Dhamma that’s good in the beginning, good in the middle, and good in the end, meaningful and well-phrased. And he reveals a spiritual practice that’s entirely full and pure.

Sādhu kho pana tathārūpānaṁ arahataṁ dassanaṁ hotī”ti.
It’s good to see such perfected ones.”

Atha kho campeyyakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā campāya nikkhamitvā saṅghasaṅghī gaṇībhūtā yena gaggarā pokkharaṇī tenupasaṅkamanti.
Then, having departed Campā, they formed into companies and headed to the Gaggarā Lotus Pond.

Tena kho pana samayena soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo uparipāsāde divāseyyaṁ upagato hoti.
Now at that time the brahmin Soṇadaṇḍa had retired to the upper floor of his stilt longhouse for his midday nap.

Addasā kho soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo campeyyake brāhmaṇagahapatike campāya nikkhamitvā saṅghasaṅghī gaṇībhūte yena gaggarā pokkharaṇī tenupasaṅkamante.
He saw the brahmins and householders heading for the lotus pond,

Disvā khattaṁ āmantesi:
and addressed his steward,

“kiṁ nu kho, bho khatte, campeyyakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā campāya nikkhamitvā saṅghasaṅghī gaṇībhūtā yena gaggarā pokkharaṇī tenupasaṅkamantī”ti?
“My steward, why are the brahmins and householders headed for the Gaggarā Lotus Pond?”

“Atthi kho, bho, samaṇo gotamo sakyaputto sakyakulā pabbajito aṅgesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi campaṁ anuppatto campāyaṁ viharati gaggarāya pokkharaṇiyā tīre.
“The ascetic Gotama has arrived at Campā and is staying on the banks of the Gaggarā Lotus Pond.

Taṁ kho pana bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:
He has this good reputation:

‘itipi so bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavā’ti.

Tamete bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamantī”ti.
They’re going to see that Master Gotama.”

“Tena hi, bho khatte, yena campeyyakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā tenupasaṅkama, upasaṅkamitvā campeyyake brāhmaṇagahapatike evaṁ vadehi:
“Well then, go to the brahmins and householders and say to them:

‘soṇadaṇḍo, bho, brāhmaṇo evamāha—
‘Sirs, the brahmin Soṇadaṇḍa asks āgamentu kira bhavanto, soṇadaṇḍopi brāhmaṇo samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamissatī’”ti.

you to wait, as he will also go to see the ascetic Gotama.’”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho so khattā soṇadaṇḍassa brāhmaṇassa paṭissutvā yena campeyyakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā campeyyake brāhmaṇagahapatike etadavoca:
“Yes, sir,” replied the steward, and did as he was asked.

“soṇadaṇḍo bho brāhmaṇo evamāha:

‘āgamentu kira bhavanto, soṇadaṇḍopi brāhmaṇo samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamissatī’”ti.

2. Soṇadaṇḍaguṇakathā

2. The Qualities of Soṇadaṇḍa

Tena kho pana samayena nānāverajjakānaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ pañcamattāni brāhmaṇasatāni campāyaṁ paṭivasanti kenacideva karaṇīyena.
Now at that time around five hundred brahmins from abroad were residing in Campā on some business.

Assosuṁ kho te brāhmaṇā:
They heard that

“soṇadaṇḍo kira brāhmaṇo samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamissatī”ti.
the brahmin Soṇadaṇḍa was going to see the ascetic Gotama.

Atha kho te brāhmaṇā yena soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā soṇadaṇḍaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ etadavocuṁ:
They approached Soṇadaṇḍa and said to him,

“saccaṁ kira bhavaṁ soṇadaṇḍo samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamissatī”ti?
“Is it really true that you are going to see the ascetic Gotama?”

“Evaṁ kho me, bho, hoti:

"According to Soṇadaṇḍa's praises, if Master Gotama were staying within a hundred leagues, it'd be worthwhile for a faithful gentleman to go to see him, even if he had to carry his own provisions in a shoulder bag."

"Tena hi, bho, sabbeva mayaṁ samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamissāmā"ti.
"Well then, gentlemen, let's all go to see the ascetic Gotama."

4. Soṇadaṇḍaparivitakka

4. Soṇadaṇḍa's Second Thoughts

Atha kho soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo mahatā brāhmaṇagaṇena saddhiṁ yena gaggarā pokkharaṇī tenupasaṅkami.
Then Soṇadaṇḍa together with a large group of brahmins went to see the Buddha.

Atha kho soṇadaṇḍassa brāhmaṇassa tirovanasaṇḍagatassa evaṁ cetaso parivitakko udapādi:

But as he reached the far side of the forest, this thought came to mind,

“ahañceva kho pana samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ pañhaṁ puccheyyaṁ;
“Suppose I was to ask the ascetic Gotama a question.

tatra ce maṁ samaṇo gotamo evaṁ vadeyya:
He might say to me:

‘na kho esa, brāhmaṇa, pañho evaṁ pucchitabbo, evaṁ nāmesa, brāhmaṇa, pañho pucchitabbo’ti, tena maṁ ayaṁ parisā paribhaveyya:
‘Brahmin, you shouldn’t ask your question like that. This is how you should ask it.’ And the assembly might disparage me for that:

‘bālo soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo abyatto, nāsakkhi samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ yoniso pañhaṁ pucchitun’ti.
‘Soṇadaṇḍa is foolish and incompetent. He’s not able to properly ask the ascetic Gotama a question.’

Yaṁ kho panāyaṁ parisā paribhaveyya, yasopi tassa hāyetha.
And when you’re disparaged by the assembly, your reputation diminishes.

Yassa kho pana yaso hāyetha, bhogāpi tassa hāyeyyuṁ.
When your reputation diminishes, your wealth also diminishes.

Yasoladdhā kho panamhākaṁ bhogā.
But my wealth relies on my reputation.

Mamañceva kho pana samaṇo gotamo pañhaṁ puccheyya, tassa cāhaṁ pañhassa veyyākaraṇena cittaṁ na ārādheyyaṁ;
Or if the ascetic Gotama asks me a question, I might not satisfy him with my answer.

tatra ce maṁ samaṇo gotamo evaṁ vadeyya:
He might say to me:

‘na kho esa, brāhmaṇa, pañho evaṁ byākātabbo, evaṁ nāmesa, brāhmaṇa, pañho byākātabbo’ti, tena maṁ ayaṁ parisā paribhaveyya:

‘Brahmin, you shouldn’t answer the question like that. This is how you should answer it.’ And the assembly might disparage me for that:

‘bālo soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo abyatto, nāsakkhi samaṇassa gotamassa pañhassa veyyākaraṇena cittaṁ ārādhetun’ti.
‘Soṇadaṇḍa is foolish and incompetent. He’s not able to satisfy the ascetic Gotama’s mind with his answer.’

Yaṁ kho panāyaṁ parisā paribhaveyya, yasopi tassa hāyetha.
And when you’re disparaged by the assembly, your reputation diminishes.

Yassa kho pana yaso hāyetha, bhogāpi tassa hāyeyyuṁ.
When your reputation diminishes, your wealth also diminishes.

Yasoladdhā kho panamhākaṁ bhogā.
But my wealth relies on my reputation.

Ahañceva kho pana evaṁ samīpagato samāno adisvāva samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ nivatteyyaṁ, tena maṁ ayaṁ parisā paribhaveyya:
On the other hand, if I were to turn back after having come so far without having seen the ascetic Gotama, the assembly might disparage me for that:

‘bālo soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo abyatto mānathaddho bhīto ca, no visahati samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamituṁ, kathañhi nāma evaṁ samīpagato samāno adisvā samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ nivattissatī’ti.
‘Soṇadaṇḍa is foolish and incompetent. He’s stuck-up and scared. He doesn’t dare to go and see the ascetic Gotama. For how on earth can he turn back after having come so far without having seen the ascetic Gotama!’

Yaṁ kho panāyaṁ parisā paribhaveyya, yasopi tassa hāyetha.
And when you’re disparaged by the assembly, your reputation diminishes.

Yassa kho pana yaso hāyetha, bhogāpi tassa hāyeyyuṁ,
When your reputation diminishes, your wealth also diminishes.

yasoladdhā kho panamhākaṁ bhogā”ti.
But my wealth relies on my reputation.”

Atha kho soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodi.
Then Soṇadaṇḍa went up to the Buddha, and exchanged greetings with him.

Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
When the greetings and polite conversation were over, he sat down to one side.

Campeyyakāpi kho brāhmaṇagahapatikā appekacce bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu; appekacce bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodiṁsu; sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu; appekacce yena bhagavā tenañjaliṁ paṇāmetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu; appekacce nāmagottaṁ sāvetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu; appekacce tuṇhībhūtā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu.
Before sitting down to one side, some of the brahmins and householders of Campā bowed, some exchanged greetings and polite conversation, some held up their joined palms toward the Buddha, some announced their name and clan, while some kept silent.

Tatrapi sudaṁ soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo etadeva bahulamanuvitakkento nisinno hoti:
But while sitting there, Soṇadaṇḍa continued to be plagued by many second thoughts. He thought,

“ahañceva kho pana samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ pañhaṁ puccheyyaṁ;

tatra ce maṁ samaṇo gotamo evaṁ vadeyya:

‘na kho esa, brāhmaṇa, pañho evaṁ pucchitabbo, evaṁ nāmesa, brāhmaṇa, pañho pucchitabbo’ti, tena maṁ ayaṁ parisā paribhaveyya:

‘bālo soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo abyatto, nāsakkhi samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ yoniso pañhaṁ pucchitun’ti.

Yaṁ kho panāyaṁ parisā paribhaveyya, yasopi tassa hāyetha.

Yassa kho pana yaso hāyetha, bhogāpi tassa hāyeyyuṁ.

Yasoladdhā kho panamhākaṁ bhogā.

Mamañceva kho pana samaṇo gotamo pañhaṁ puccheyya, tassa cāhaṁ pañhassa veyyākaraṇena cittaṁ na ārādheyyaṁ;

tatra ce maṁ samaṇo gotamo evaṁ vadeyya:

‘na kho esa, brāhmaṇa, pañho evaṁ byākātabbo, evaṁ nāmesa, brāhmaṇa, pañho byākātabbo’ti, tena maṁ ayaṁ parisā paribhaveyya:

‘bālo soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo abyatto, nāsakkhi samaṇassa gotamassa pañhassa veyyākaraṇena cittaṁ ārādhetun’ti.

Yaṁ kho panāyaṁ parisā paribhaveyya, yasopi tassa hāyetha.

Yassa kho pana yaso hāyetha, bhogāpi tassa hāyeyyuṁ.

Yasoladdhā kho panamhākaṁ bhogā.

Aho vata maṁ samaṇo gotamo sake ācariyake tevijjake pañhaṁ puccheyya, addhā vatassāhaṁ cittaṁ ārādheyyaṁ pañhassa veyyākaraṇenā”ti.
“If only the ascetic Gotama would ask me about my own teacher’s scriptural heritage of the three Vedas! Then I could definitely satisfy his mind with my answer.”

5. Brāhmaṇapaññatti

5. What Makes a Brahmin

Atha kho bhagavato soṇadaṇḍassa brāhmaṇassa cetasā cetoparivitakkamaññāya etadahosi:
Then the Buddha, knowing what Soṇadaṇḍa was thinking, thought,

“vihaññati kho ayaṁ soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo sakena cittena.
“This brahmin Soṇadaṇḍa is worried by his own thoughts.

Yannūnāhaṁ soṇadaṇḍaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ sake ācariyake tevijjake pañhaṁ puccheyyan”ti.
Why don’t I ask him about his own teacher’s scriptural heritage of the three Vedas?”

Atha kho bhagavā soṇadaṇḍaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ etadavoca:
So he said to Soṇadaṇḍa,

“katihi pana, brāhmaṇa, aṅgehi samannāgataṁ brāhmaṇā brāhmaṇaṁ paññapenti;
“Brahmin, how many factors must a brahmin possess for the brahmins to describe him as a brahmin;

‘brāhmaṇosmī’ti ca vadamāno sammā vadeyya, na ca pana musāvādaṁ āpajjeyyā”ti?
and so that when he says ‘I am a brahmin’ he speaks rightly, without falling into falsehood?”

Atha kho soṇadaṇḍassa brāhmaṇassa etadahosi:
Then Soṇadaṇḍa thought,

“yaṁ vata no ahosi icchitaṁ, yaṁ ākaṅkhitaṁ, yaṁ adhippetaṁ, yaṁ abhipatthitaṁ:
“The ascetic Gotama has asked me about exactly what I wanted, what I wished for, what I desired, what I yearned for; that is, my own scriptural heritage.

‘aho vata maṁ samaṇo gotamo sake ācariyake tevijjake pañhaṁ puccheyya, addhā vatassāhaṁ cittaṁ ārādheyyaṁ pañhassa veyyākaraṇenā’ti, tatra maṁ samaṇo gotamo sake ācariyake tevijjake pañhaṁ pucchati.

Addhā vatassāhaṁ cittaṁ ārādhessāmi pañhassa veyyākaraṇenā”ti.
I can definitely satisfy his mind with my answer.”

Atha kho soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo abbhunnāmetvā kāyaṁ anuviloketvā parisaṁ bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Soṇadaṇḍa straightened his back, looked around the assembly, and said to the Buddha, “pañcahi, bho gotama, aṅgehi samannāgataṁ brāhmaṇā brāhmaṇaṁ paññapenti;

“Master Gotama, a brahmin must possess five factors for the brahmins to describe him as a brahmin;

‘brāhmaṇosmī’ti ca vadamāno sammā vadeyya, na ca pana musāvādaṁ āpajjeyya.
and so that when he says ‘I am a brahmin’ he speaks rightly, without falling into falsehood.

Katamehi pañcahi?
What five?

Idha, bho gotama, brāhmaṇo ubhato sujāto hoti mātito ca pitito ca, saṁsuddhagahaṇiko yāva sattamā pitāmahayugā akkhitto anupakkuṭṭho jātivādena;

He's astute and clever, being the first or second to hold the sacrificial ladle.

Imehi kho, bho gotama, pañcahi aṅgehi samannāgataṁ brāhmaṇā brāhmaṇaṁ paññapenti;
These are the five factors which a brahmin must possess for the brahmins to describe him as a brahmin;

'brāhmaṇosmī'ti ca vadamāno sammā vadeyya, na ca pana musāvādaṁ āpajjeyyā"ti.
and so that when he says 'I am a brahmin' he speaks rightly, without falling into falsehood."

"Imesaṁ pana, brāhmaṇa, pañcannaṁ aṅgānaṁ sakkā ekaṁ aṅgaṁ ṭhapayitvā catūhaṅgehi samannāgataṁ brāhmaṇā brāhmaṇaṁ paññapetuṁ; ‘brāhmaṇosmī’ti ca vadamāno sammā vadeyya, na ca pana musāvādaṁ āpajjeyyā”ti.

Evaṁ vutte, te brāhmaṇā soṇadaṇḍaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ etadavocuṁ:
When he had spoken, those brahmins said to him,

“mā bhavaṁ soṇadaṇḍo evaṁ avaca, mā bhavaṁ soṇadaṇḍo evaṁ avaca.
“Please don’t say that, Master Soṇadaṇḍa, please don’t say that!

You’re just condemning appearance, the hymns, and birth! You’re totally going over to the ascetic Gotama’s doctrine!”

Atha kho bhagavā te brāhmaṇe etadavoca:
So the Buddha said to them,

“sace kho tumhākaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ evaṁ hoti:
“Well, brahmins, if you think that he’s learned, a good speaker, astute, and capable of having a dialogue with me about this, then you should stand aside and let him have a dialogue with me.”

Evaṁ vutte, soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he said this, Soṇadaṇḍa said to the Buddha,

“tiṭṭhatu bhavaṁ gotamo, tuṇhī bhavaṁ gotamo hotu, ahameva tesaṁ sahadhammena paṭivacanaṁ karissāmī”ti.
“Let it be, Master Gotama, be silent. I myself will respond to them in a legitimate manner.”

Atha kho soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo te brāhmaṇe etadavoca:
Then he said to those brahmins,

“mā bhavanto evaṁ avacuttha, mā bhavanto evaṁ avacuttha:
“Don’t say this, gentlemen, don’t say this:

‘apavadateva bhavaṁ soṇadaṇḍo vaṇṇaṁ, apavadati mante, apavadati jātiṁ, ekaṁsena bhavaṁ soṇadaṇḍo samaṇasseva gotamassa vādaṁ anupakkhandatī’ti.
‘You’re just condemning appearance, the hymns, and birth! You’re totally going over to the ascetic Gotama’s doctrine!’

Nāhaṁ, bho, apavadāmi vaṇṇaṁ vā mante vā jātiṁ vā”ti.

I’m not condemning appearance, hymns, or birth.”

Tena kho pana samayena soṇadaṇḍassa brāhmaṇassa bhāgineyyo aṅgako nāma māṇavako tassaṁ parisāyaṁ nisinno hoti.
Now at that time Soṇadaṇḍa’s nephew, the student Aṅgaka was sitting in that assembly.

Atha kho soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo te brāhmaṇe etadavoca:
Then Soṇadaṇḍa said to those brahmins,

“passanti no bhonto imaṁ aṅgakaṁ māṇavakaṁ amhākaṁ bhāgineyyan”ti?
“Gentlemen, do you see my nephew, the student Aṅgaka?”

“Evaṁ, bho”.
“Yes, sir.”

“Aṅgako kho, bho, māṇavako abhirūpo dassanīyo pāsādiko paramāya vaṇṇapokkharatāya samannāgato brahmavaṇṇī brahmavacchasī akhuddāvakāso dassanāya, nāssa imissaṁ parisāyaṁ samasamo atthi vaṇṇena ṭhapetvā samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ.
“Aṅgaka is attractive, good-looking, lovely, of surpassing beauty. He is magnificent, splendid, remarkable to behold. There’s no-one in this assembly so good-looking, apart from the ascetic Gotama.

Aṅgako kho māṇavako ajjhāyako mantadharo, tiṇṇaṁ vedānaṁ pāragū sanighaṇḍukeṭubhānaṁ sākkharappabhedānaṁ itihāsapañcamānaṁ padako veyyākaraṇo lokāyatamahāpurisalakkhaṇesu anavayo.
Aṅgaka recites and remembers the hymns, and have mastered the three Vedas, together with their vocabularies, ritual, phonology and etymology, and the testament as fifth. He knows philology and grammar, and is well versed in cosmology and the marks of a great man.

Ahamassa mante vācetā.
And I am the one who teaches him the hymns.

Aṅgako kho māṇavako ubhato sujāto mātito ca pitito ca saṁsuddhagahaṇiko yāva sattamā pitāmahayugā akkhitto anupakkuṭṭho jātivādena.
Aṅgaka is well born on both his mother’s and father’s side, of pure descent, irrefutable and impeccable in questions of ancestry back to the seventh paternal generation.

Ahamassa mātāpitaro jānāmi.
And I know his mother and father.

Aṅgako kho māṇavako pāṇampi haneyya, adinnampi ādiyeyya, paradārampi gaccheyya, musāvādampi bhaṇeyya, majjampi piveyya, ettha dāni, bho, kiṁ vaṇṇo karissati, kiṁ mantā, kiṁ jāti?
But if Aṅgaka were to kill living creatures, steal, commit adultery, lie, and drink alcohol, then what’s the use of his appearance, his hymns, or his birth?

Yato kho, bho, brāhmaṇo sīlavā ca hoti vuddhasīlī vuddhasīlena samannāgato, It’s when a brahmin is ethical, mature in ethical conduct;

paṇḍito ca hoti medhāvī paṭhamo vā dutiyo vā sujaṁ paggaṇhantānaṁ.
and he’s astute and clever, being the first or second to hold the sacrificial ladle.

Imehi kho, bho, dvīhaṅgehi samannāgataṁ brāhmaṇā brāhmaṇaṁ paññapenti;
A brahmin must possess these two factors for the brahmins to rightly describe him as a brahmin.”

‘brāhmaṇosmī’ti ca vadamāno sammā vadeyya, na ca pana musāvādaṁ āpajjeyyā”ti.

“No hidaṁ, bho gotama.
“No, Master Gotama.

An ethical person is wise, and a wise person ethical.

Sīlapaññāṇañca pana lokasmiṁ aggamakkhāyati.
And ethics and wisdom are said to be the best things in the world.

Katamaṁ pana taṁ, brāhmaṇa, sīlaṁ?

But what, brahmin, is that ethical conduct?

Katamā sā paññā”ti?
And what is that wisdom?”

“Ettakaparamāva mayaṁ, bho gotama, etasmiṁ atthe.
“That’s all I know about this matter, Master Gotama.

May Master Gotama himself please clarify the meaning of this.”

“Tena hi, brāhmaṇa, suṇohi, sādhukaṁ manasikarohi, bhāsissāmī”ti.
“Well then, brahmin, listen and pay close attention, I will speak.”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes sir,” Soṇadaṇḍa replied.

Bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said this:

7. Soṇadaṇḍaupāsakattapaṭivedanā

7. Soṇadaṇḍa Declares Himself a Lay Follower

Evaṁ vutte, soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, Soṇadaṇḍa said to the Buddha,

"abhikkantaṁ, bho gotama, abhikkantaṁ, bho gotama.
"Excellent, Master Gotama! Excellent!

Seyyathāpi, bho gotama, nikkujjitaṁ vā ukkujjeyya, paṭicchannaṁ vā vivareyya, mūḷhassa vā maggaṁ ācikkheyya, andhakāre vā telapajjotaṁ dhāreyya: 'cakkhumanto rūpāni dakkhantī'ti; evamevaṁ bhotā gotamena anekapariyāyena dhammo pakāsito.
As if he were righting the overturned, or revealing the hidden, or pointing out the path to the lost, or lighting a lamp in the dark so people with good eyes can see what’s there, Master Gotama has made the Teaching clear in many ways.

Esāhaṁ bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ saraṇaṁ gacchāmi, dhammañca, bhikkhusaṅghañca.
I go for refuge to Master Gotama, to the teaching, and to the mendicant Saṅgha.

Upāsakaṁ maṁ bhavaṁ gotamo dhāretu ajjatagge pāṇupetaṁ saraṇaṁ gataṁ.
From this day forth, may Master Gotama remember me as a lay follower who has gone for refuge for life.

Adhivāsetu ca me bhavaṁ gotamo svātanāya bhattaṁ saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghenā”ti.
Would you and the Order of monks please accept a meal from me tomorrow?”

Adhivāsesi bhagavā tuṇhībhāvena.
The Buddha consented in silence.

Atha kho soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo bhagavato adhivāsanaṁ viditvā uṭṭhāyāsanā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā pakkāmi.
Then, knowing that the Buddha had consented, Soṇadaṇḍa got up from his seat, bowed, and respectfully circled the Buddha, keeping him on his right, before leaving.

Atha kho soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo tassā rattiyā accayena sake nivesane paṇītaṁ khādanīyaṁ bhojanīyaṁ paṭiyādāpetvā bhagavato kālaṁ ārocāpesi:
And when the night had passed Soṇadaṇḍa had a variety of delicious foods prepared in his own home. Then he had the Buddha informed of the time, saying,

“kālo, bho gotama, niṭṭhitaṁ bhattan”ti.

Atha kho bhagavā pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghena yena soṇadaṇḍassa brāhmaṇassa nivesanaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā paññatte āsane nisīdi.
Then the Buddha robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, went to the home of Soṇadaṇḍa together with the mendicant Saṅgha, where he sat on the seat spread out.

Atha kho soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo buddhappamukhaṁ bhikkhusaṅghaṁ paṇītena khādanīyena bhojanīyena sahatthā santappesi sampavāresi.
Then Soṇadaṇḍa served and satisfied the mendicant Saṅgha headed by the Buddha with his own hands with a variety of delicious foods.

Atha kho soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo bhagavantaṁ bhuttāviṁ onītapattapāṇiṁ aññataraṁ nīcaṁ āsanaṁ gahetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
When the Buddha had eaten and washed his hand and bowl, Soṇadaṇḍa took a low seat and sat to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho soṇadaṇḍo brāhmaṇo bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Seated to one side he said to the Buddha:

“ahañceva kho pana, bho gotama, parisagato samāno āsanā vuṭṭhahitvā bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ abhivādeyyaṁ, tena maṁ sā parisā paribhaveyya.
“Master Gotama, if, when I have gone to an assembly, I rise from my seat and bow to the Buddha, that assembly might disparage me for that.

Yaṁ kho pana sā parisā paribhaveyya, yasopi tassa hāyetha.
And when you’re disparaged by the assembly, your reputation diminishes.

Yassa kho pana yaso hāyetha, bhogāpi tassa hāyeyyuṁ.
When your reputation diminishes, your wealth also diminishes.

Yasoladdhā kho panamhākaṁ bhogā.
But my wealth relies on my reputation.

Ahañceva kho pana, bho gotama, parisagato samāno añjaliṁ paggaṇheyyaṁ, āsanā me taṁ bhavaṁ gotamo paccuṭṭhānaṁ dhāretu.
If, when I have gone to an assembly, I raise my joined palms, please take it that I have risen from my seat.

Ahañceva kho pana, bho gotama, parisagato samāno veṭhanaṁ omuñceyyaṁ, sirasā me taṁ bhavaṁ gotamo abhivādanaṁ dhāretu.
And if I undo my turban, please take it that I have bowed.

Ahañceva kho pana, bho gotama, yānagato samāno yānā paccorohitvā bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ abhivādeyyaṁ, tena maṁ sā parisā paribhaveyya.
And Master Gotama, if, when I am in a carriage, I rise from my seat and bow to the Buddha, that assembly might disparage me for that.

Yaṁ kho pana sā parisā paribhaveyya, yasopi tassa hāyetha, yassa kho pana yaso hāyetha, bhogāpi tassa hāyeyyuṁ.

Yasoladdhā kho panamhākaṁ bhogā.

Ahañceva kho pana, bho gotama, yānagato samāno patodalaṭṭhiṁ abbhunnāmeyyaṁ, yānā me taṁ bhavaṁ gotamo paccorohanaṁ dhāretu.
If, when I am in a carriage, I hold up my goad, please take it that I have got down from my carriage.

Ahañceva kho pana, bho gotama, yānagato samāno chattaṁ apanāmeyyaṁ, sirasā me taṁ bhavaṁ gotamo abhivādanaṁ dhāretū”ti.
And if I lower my sunshade, please take it that I have bowed.”

Atha kho bhagavā soṇadaṇḍaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ dhammiyā kathāya sandassetvā samādapetvā samuttejetvā sampahaṁsetvā uṭṭhāyāsanā pakkāmīti.

Then the Buddha educated, encouraged, fired up, and inspired the brahmin Soṇadaṇḍa with a Dhamma talk, after which he got up from his seat and left.

Soṇadaṇḍasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ catutthaṁ.

5. Kūṭadantasutta
With Kūṭadanta

1. Khāṇumatakabrāhmaṇagahapatikā
1. The Brahmins and Householders of Khāṇumata

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā magadhesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi yena khāṇumataṁ nāma magadhānaṁ brāhmaṇagāmo tadavasari.
At one time the Buddha was wandering in the land of the Magadhans together with a large Saṅgha of around five hundred mendicants when he arrived at a village of the Magadhan brahmins named Khāṇumata.

Tatra sudaṁ bhagavā khāṇumate viharati ambalaṭṭhikāyaṁ.
There he stayed nearby at Ambalaṭṭhikā.

Tena kho pana samayena kūṭadanto brāhmaṇo khāṇumataṁ ajjhāvasati sattussadaṁ satiṇakaṭṭhodakaṁ sadhaññaṁ rājabhoggaṁ raññā māgadhena seniyena bimbisārena dinnaṁ rājadāyaṁ brahmadeyyaṁ.
Now at that time the brahmin Kūṭadanta was living in Khāṇumata. It was a crown property given by King Seniya Bimbisāra of Magadha, teeming with living creatures, full of hay, wood, water, and grain, a royal endowment of the highest quality.

Tena kho pana samayena kūṭadantassa brāhmaṇassa mahāyañño upakkhaṭo hoti.

Now at that time Kūṭadanta had prepared a great sacrifice.

Satta ca usabhasatāni satta ca vacchatarasatāni satta ca vacchatarīsatāni satta ca ajasatāni satta ca urabbhasatāni thūṇūpanītāni honti yaññatthāya.
Bulls, bullocks, heifers, goats and rams—seven hundred of each—had been led to the post for the sacrifice.

Assosuṁ kho khāṇumatakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā:
The brahmins and householders of Khāṇumataka heard:

“samaṇo khalu, bho, gotamo sakyaputto sakyakulā pabbajito magadhesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi khāṇumataṁ anuppatto khāṇumate viharati ambalaṭṭhikāyaṁ.
“It seems the ascetic Gotama—a Sakyan, gone forth from a Sakyan family—has arrived at Khāṇumataka and is staying in a forest nearby.

Taṁ kho pana bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:
He has this good reputation:

‘itipi so bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavā’ti.
‘That Blessed One is perfected, a fully awakened Buddha, accomplished in knowledge and conduct, holy, knower of the world, supreme guide for those who wish to train, teacher of gods and humans, awakened, blessed.’

So imaṁ lokaṁ sadevakaṁ samārakaṁ sabrahmakaṁ sassamaṇabrāhmaṇiṁ pajaṁ sadevamanussaṁ sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā pavedeti.
He has realized with his own insight this world—with its gods, Māras and Brahmās, this population with its ascetics and brahmins, gods and humans—and he makes it known to others.

So dhammaṁ deseti ādikalyāṇaṁ majjhekalyāṇaṁ pariyosānakalyāṇaṁ sātthaṁ sabyañjanaṁ kevalaparipuṇṇaṁ parisuddhaṁ brahmacariyaṁ pakāseti.
He teaches Dhamma that's good in the beginning, good in the middle, and good in the end, meaningful and well-phrased. And he reveals a spiritual practice that's entirely full and pure.

Sādhu kho pana tathārūpānaṁ arahataṁ dassanaṁ hotī"ti.
It's good to see such perfected ones."

Atha kho khāṇumatakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā khāṇumatā nikkhamitvā saṅghasaṅghī gaṇībhūtā yena ambalaṭṭhikā tenupasaṅkamanti.
Then, having departed Khāṇumataka, they formed into companies and headed to Ambalaṭṭhikā.

Tena kho pana samayena kūṭadanto brāhmaṇo uparipāsāde divāseyyaṁ upagato hoti.
Now at that time the brahmin Kūṭadanta had retired to the upper floor of his stilt longhouse for his midday nap.

Addasā kho kūṭadanto brāhmaṇo khāṇumatake brāhmaṇagahapatike khāṇumatā nikkhamitvā saṅghasaṅghī gaṇībhūte yena ambalaṭṭhikā tenupasaṅkamante.
He saw the brahmins and householders heading for Ambalaṭṭhikā,

Disvā khattaṁ āmantesi:
and addressed his steward,

"kiṁ nu kho, bho khatte, khāṇumatakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā khāṇumatā nikkhamitvā saṅghasaṅghī gaṇībhūtā yena ambalaṭṭhikā tenupasaṅkamantī"ti?
"My steward, why are the brahmins and householders headed for Ambalaṭṭhikā?"

“Atthi kho, bho, samaṇo gotamo sakyaputto sakyakulā pabbajito magadhesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi khāṇumataṁ anuppatto, khāṇumate viharati ambalaṭṭhikāyaṁ.
“The ascetic Gotama has arrived at Khāṇumataka and is staying at Ambalaṭṭhikā.

4. Mahāvijitarājayaññakathā

4. The Story of King Mahāvijita’s Sacrifice

Atha kho kūṭadanto brāhmaṇo mahatā brāhmaṇagaṇena saddhiṁ yena ambalaṭṭhikā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami, upasaṅkamitvā bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodi.
Then Kūṭadanta together with a large group of brahmins went to see the Buddha and exchanged greetings with him.

Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.

When the greetings and polite conversation were over, he sat down to one side.

Khāṇumatakāpi kho brāhmaṇagahapatikā appekacce bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu; appekacce bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodiṁsu, sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu; appekacce yena bhagavā tenañjaliṁ paṇāmetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu; appekacce nāmagottaṁ sāvetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu; appekacce tuṇhībhūtā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu.
Before sitting down to one side, some of the brahmins and householders of Khāṇumataka bowed, some exchanged greetings and polite conversation, some held up their joined palms toward the Buddha, some announced their name and clan, while some kept silent.

Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho kūṭadanto brāhmaṇo bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Kūṭadanta said to the Buddha,

“sutaṁ metaṁ, bho gotama:
“Master Gotama, I’ve heard that ‘samaṇo gotamo tividhaṁ yaññasampadaṁ soḷasaparikkhāraṁ jānātī’ti.

you know how to accomplish the sacrifice with three modes and sixteen accessories.

Na kho panāhaṁ jānāmi tividhaṁ yaññasampadaṁ soḷasaparikkhāraṁ.
I don’t know about that,

Icchāmi cāhaṁ mahāyaññaṁ yajituṁ.
but I wish to perform a great sacrifice.

Sādhu me bhavaṁ gotamo tividhaṁ yaññasampadaṁ soḷasaparikkhāraṁ desetū”ti.
Please teach me how to accomplish the sacrifice with three modes and sixteen accessories.”

“Tena hi, brāhmaṇa, suṇāhi sādhukaṁ manasikarohi, bhāsissāmī”ti.
“Well then, brahmin, listen and pay close attention, I will speak.”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho kūṭadanto brāhmaṇo bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes sir,” Kūṭadanta replied.

Bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said this:

“bhūtapubbaṁ, brāhmaṇa, rājā mahāvijito nāma ahosi aḍḍho mahaddhano mahābhogo pahūtajātarūparajato pahūtavittūpakaraṇo pahūtadhanadhañño paripuṇṇakosakoṭṭhāgāro.
Once upon a time, brahmin, there was a king named Mahāvijita. He was rich, affluent, and wealthy, with lots of gold and silver, lots of property and assets, lots of money and grain, and a full treasury and storehouses.

Atha kho, brāhmaṇa, rañño mahāvijitassa rahogatassa paṭisallīnassa evaṁ cetaso parivitakko udapādi:
Then as King Mahāvijita was in private retreat this thought came to his mind:

‘adhigatā kho me vipulā mānusakā bhogā, mahantaṁ pathavimaṇḍalaṁ abhivijiya ajjhāvasāmi, yannūnāhaṁ mahāyaññaṁ yajeyyaṁ, yaṁ mama assa dīgharattaṁ hitāya sukhāyā’ti.
‘I have achieved human wealth, and reign after conquering this vast territory. Why don’t I hold a large sacrifice? That will be for my lasting welfare and happiness.’

Atha kho, brāhmaṇa, rājā mahāvijito purohitaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ āmantetvā etadavoca:
Then he summoned the brahmin high priest and said to him:

‘idha mayhaṁ, brāhmaṇa, rahogatassa paṭisallīnassa evaṁ cetaso parivitakko udapādi:
‘Just now, brahmin, as I was in private retreat this thought came to mind, “adhigatā kho me vipulā mānusakā bhogā, mahantaṁ pathavimaṇḍalaṁ abhivijiya ajjhāvasāmi. Yannūnāhaṁ mahāyaññaṁ yajeyyaṁ yaṁ mama assa dīgharattaṁ hitāya sukhāyā”ti.

“I have achieved human wealth, and reign after conquering this vast territory. Why don’t I perform a great sacrifice? That will be for my lasting welfare and happiness.”

Icchāmahaṁ, brāhmaṇa, mahāyaññaṁ yajituṁ.
Brahmin, I wish to perform a great sacrifice.

Anusāsatu maṁ bhavaṁ yaṁ mama assa dīgharattaṁ hitāya sukhāyā’ti.
Please instruct me. It will be for my lasting welfare and happiness.’

Evaṁ vutte, brāhmaṇa, purohito brāhmaṇo rājānaṁ mahāvijitaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, the brahmin high priest said to him:

‘bhoto kho rañño janapado sakaṇṭako sauppīḷo, gāmaghātāpi dissanti, nigamaghātāpi dissanti, nagaraghātāpi dissanti, panthaduhanāpi dissanti.
‘Sir, the king’s realm is harried and oppressed. Bandits have been seen raiding villages, towns, and cities, and infesting the highways.

Bhavaṁ kho pana rājā evaṁ sakaṇṭake janapade sauppīḷe balimuddhareyya, akiccakārī assa tena bhavaṁ rājā.
But if the king were to extract more taxes while his realm is thus harried and oppressed, he would not be doing his duty.

Siyā kho pana bhoto rañño evamassa:
Now the king might think,

“ahametaṁ dassukhīlaṁ vadhena vā bandhena vā jāniyā vā garahāya vā pabbājanāya vā samūhanissāmī”ti, na kho panetassa dassukhīlassa evaṁ sammā samugghāto hoti.
“I’ll eradicate this barbarian obstacle by execution or imprisonment or confiscation or condemnation or banishment!” But that’s not the right way to eradicate this barbarian obstacle.

Ye te hatāvasesakā bhavissanti, te pacchā rañño janapadaṁ viheṭhessanti.
Those who remain after the killing will return to harass the king’s realm.

Api ca kho idaṁ saṁvidhānaṁ āgamma evametassa dassukhīlassa sammā samugghāto hoti.
Rather, here is a plan, relying on which the barbarian obstacle will be properly uprooted.

Tena hi bhavaṁ rājā ye bhoto rañño janapade ussahanti kasigorakkhe, tesaṁ bhavaṁ rājā bījabhattaṁ anuppadetu.
So let the king provide seed and fodder for those in the realm who work in farming and raising cattle.

Ye bhoto rañño janapade ussahanti vāṇijjāya, tesaṁ bhavaṁ rājā pābhataṁ anuppadetu.
Let the king provide funding for those who work in trade.

Ye bhoto rañño janapade ussahanti rājaporise, tesaṁ bhavaṁ rājā bhattavetanaṁ pakappetu.
Let the king guarantee food and wages for those in government service.

Te ca manussā sakammapasutā rañño janapadaṁ na viheṭhessanti;
Then the people, occupied with their own work, will not harass the realm.

mahā ca rañño rāsiko bhavissati.
The king’s revenues will be great.

Khemaṭṭhitā janapadā akaṇṭakā anuppīḷā. Manussā mudā modamānā ure putte naccentā apārutagharā maññe viharissantī’ti.
When the country is secured as a sanctuary, free of being harried and oppressed, the happy people, with joy in their hearts, dancing with children at their breast, will dwell as if their houses were wide open.’

‘Evaṁ, bho’ti kho, brāhmaṇa, rājā mahāvijito purohitassa brāhmaṇassa paṭissutvā ye rañño janapade ussahiṁsu kasigorakkhe, tesaṁ rājā mahāvijito bījabhattaṁ anuppadāsi.
The king agreed with the high priest’s advice and followed his recommendation.

Ye ca rañño janapade ussahiṁsu vāṇijjāya, tesaṁ rājā mahāvijito pābhataṁ anuppadāsi.

Ye ca rañño janapade ussahiṁsu rājaporise, tesaṁ rājā mahāvijito bhattavetanaṁ pakappesi.

The king agreed with the high priest's advice and followed his recommendation.

'icchāmahaṁ, bho, mahāyaññaṁ yajituṁ, anujānantu me bhavanto yaṁ mama assa dīgharattaṁ hitāya sukhāyā'ti.

And all of the people who were thus informed responded by saying:

‘Yajataṁ bhavaṁ rājā yaññaṁ, yaññakālo, mahārājā’ti.
‘May the king perform a sacrifice! It is time for a sacrifice, great king.’

And so these four consenting factions became accessories to the sacrifice.

4.2. Aṭṭhaparikkhāra

4.2. The Eight Accessories

Rājā mahāvijito aṭṭhahaṅgehi samannāgato—
King Mahāvijita possessed eight factors.

ubhato sujāto mātito ca pitito ca saṁsuddhagahaṇiko yāva sattamā pitāmahayugā akkhitto anupakkuṭṭho jātivādena;
He was well born on both his mother’s and father’s side, of pure descent, irrefutable and impeccable in questions of ancestry back to the seventh paternal generation.

abhirūpo dassanīyo pāsādiko paramāya vaṇṇapokkharatāya samannāgato brahmavaṇṇī brahmavacchasī akhuddāvakāso dassanāya;
He was attractive, good-looking, lovely, of surpassing beauty. He was magnificent, splendid, remarkable to behold.

aḍḍho mahaddhano mahābhogo pahūtajātarūparajato pahūtavittūpakaraṇo pahūtadhanadhañño paripuṇṇakosakoṭṭhāgāro;
He was rich, affluent, and wealthy, with lots of gold and silver, lots of property and assets, lots of money and grain, and a full treasury and storehouses.

balavā caturaṅginiyā senāya samannāgato assavāya ovādapaṭikarāya sahati maññe paccatthike yasasā;
He was powerful, having an army of four divisions that was obedient and carried out instructions. He'd probably prevail over his enemies just with his reputation.

saddho dāyako dānapati anāvaṭadvāro samaṇabrāhmaṇakapaṇaddhikavaṇibbakayācakānaṁ opānabhūto puññāni karoti;
He was faithful, generous, a donor, his door always open. He was a well-spring of support, making merit with ascetics and brahmins, for paupers, vagrants, travelers, and beggars.

bahussuto tassa tassa sutajātassa, tassa tasseva kho pana bhāsitassa atthaṁ jānāti:
He was very learned in diverse fields of learning. He understood the meaning of diverse statements, saying:

‘ayaṁ imassa bhāsitassa attho ayaṁ imassa bhāsitassa attho’ti;
‘This is what that statement means; that is what this statement means.’

paṇḍito, viyatto, medhāvī, paṭibalo, atītānāgatapaccuppanne atthe cintetuṁ.
He was astute, competent, and intelligent, able to think issues through as they bear upon the past, future, and present.

Rājā mahāvijito imehi aṭṭhahaṅgehi samannāgato.
These are the eight factors that King Mahāvijita possessed.

Iti imānipi aṭṭhaṅgāni tasseva yaññassa parikkhārā bhavanti.
And so these eight factors also became accessories to the sacrifice.

4.3. Catuparikkhāra

4.3. Four More Accessories

Purohito brāhmaṇo catūhaṅgehi samannāgato,
And the brahmin high priest had four factors.

ubhato sujāto mātito ca pitito ca saṁsuddhagahaṇiko yāva sattamā pitāmahayugā akkhitto anupakkuṭṭho jātivādena;
He was well born on both his mother's and father's side, of pure descent, irrefutable and impeccable in questions of ancestry back to the seventh paternal generation.

ajjhāyako mantadharo tiṇṇaṁ vedānaṁ pāragū sanighaṇḍukeṭubhānaṁ sākkharappabhedānaṁ itihāsapañcamānaṁ padako veyyākaraṇo lokāyatamahāpurisalakkhaṇesu anavayo;
He recited and remembered the hymns, and had mastered the three Vedas, together with their vocabularies, ritual, phonology and etymology, and the testament as fifth. He knew philology and grammar, and was well versed in cosmology and the marks of a great man.

sīlavā vuddhasīlī vuddhasīlena samannāgato;
He was ethical, mature in ethical conduct.

paṇḍito viyatto medhāvī paṭhamo vā dutiyo vā sujaṁ paggaṇhantānaṁ.
He was astute and clever, being the first or second to hold the sacrificial ladle.

Purohito brāhmaṇo imehi catūhaṅgehi samannāgato.
These are the four factors that the brahmin high priest possessed.

Iti imānipi cattāri aṅgāni tasseva yaññassa parikkhārā bhavanti.
And so these four factors also became accessories to the sacrifice.

“mahā vata me bhogakkhandho vigato”ti, so bhotā raññā vippaṭisāro na karaṇīyo’ti.
“I have lost a great fortune.” But the king should not harbor such regrets.’

Imā kho, brāhmaṇa, purohito brāhmaṇo rañño mahāvijitassa pubbeva yaññā tisso vidhā desesi.
These are the three modes that the brahmin high priest taught to the king before the sacrifice.

4.5. Dasaākāra

4.5. The Ten Respects

Atha kho, brāhmaṇa, purohito brāhmaṇo rañño mahāvijitassa pubbeva yaññā dasahākārehi paṭiggāhakesu vippaṭisāraṁ paṭivinesi.
Next, before the sacrifice, the brahmin high priest dispelled the king’s regret regarding the recipients in ten respects:

‘Āgamissanti kho bhoto yaññaṁ pāṇātipātinopi pāṇātipātā paṭiviratāpi.
‘There will come to the sacrifice those who kill living creatures and those who refrain from killing living creatures.

Tassa mayhaṁ bho evaṁ hoti:
It occurs to me that ‘addhā samaṇo gotamo tena samayena rājā vā ahosi mahāvijito yaññassāmi purohito vā brāhmaṇo tassa yaññassa yājetā’ti.

the ascetic Gotama at that time must have been King Mahāvijita, the owner of the sacrifice, or else the brahmin high priest who facilitated the sacrifice for him.

Abhijānāti pana bhavaṁ gotamo evarūpaṁ yaññaṁ yajitvā vā yājetvā vā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajjitā”ti?
Does Master Gotama recall having performed such a sacrifice, or having facilitated it, and then, when his body broke up, after death, being reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm?”

“Abhijānāmahaṁ, brāhmaṇa, evarūpaṁ yaññaṁ yajitvā vā yājetvā vā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajjitā, ahaṁ tena samayena purohito brāhmaṇo ahosiṁ tassa yaññassa yājetā”ti.
“I do recall that, brahmin. For at that time I was the brahmin high priest who facilitated the sacrifice.”

6. Kūṭadantaupāsakattapaṭivedanā

6. Kūṭadanta Declares Himself a Lay Follower

Evaṁ vutte, kūṭadanto brāhmaṇo bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, Kūṭadanta said to the Buddha,

“abhikkantaṁ, bho gotama, abhikkantaṁ, bho gotama.
“Excellent, Master Gotama! Excellent!

Seyyathāpi, bho gotama, nikkujjitaṁ vā ukkujjeyya, paṭicchannaṁ vā vivareyya, mūḷhassa vā maggaṁ ācikkheyya, andhakāre vā telapajjotaṁ dhāreyya: ‘cakkhumanto rūpāni dakkhantī’ti; evamevaṁ bhotā gotamena anekapariyāyena dhammo pakāsito.
As if he were righting the overturned, or revealing the hidden, or pointing out the path to the lost, or lighting a lamp in the dark so people with good eyes can see what’s there, Master Gotama has made the Teaching clear in many ways.

Esāhaṁ bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ saraṇaṁ gacchāmi dhammañca bhikkhusaṅghañca.

And these bulls, bullocks, heifers, goats, and rams—seven hundred of each—I release them, I grant them life! Let them eat green grass and drink cool water, and may a cool breeze blow upon them!”

7. Sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyā

7. The Realization of the Fruit of Stream-Entry

Atha kho bhagavā kūṭadantassa brāhmaṇassa anupubbiṁ kathaṁ kathesi, Then the Buddha taught Kūṭadanta step by step, with seyyathidaṁ—dānakathaṁ sīlakathaṁ saggakathaṁ;

a talk on giving, ethical conduct, and heaven.

kāmānaṁ ādīnavaṁ okāraṁ saṅkilesaṁ nekkhamme ānisaṁsaṁ pakāsesi.
He explained the drawbacks of sensual pleasures, so sordid and corrupt, and the benefit of renunciation.

Yadā bhagavā aññāsi kūṭadantaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ kallacittaṁ muducittaṁ vinīvaraṇacittaṁ udaggacittaṁ pasannacittaṁ, atha yā buddhānaṁ sāmukkaṁsikā dhammadesanā, taṁ pakāsesi—
And when he knew that Kūṭadanta’s mind was ready, pliable, rid of hindrances, joyful, and confident he explained the special teaching of the Buddhas:

dukkhaṁ samudayaṁ nirodhaṁ maggaṁ.
suffering, its origin, its cessation, and the path.

Seyyathāpi nāma suddhaṁ vatthaṁ apagatakāḷakaṁ sammadeva rajanaṁ paṭiggaṇheyya;
Just as a clean cloth rid of stains would properly absorb dye, evameva kūṭadantassa brāhmaṇassa tasmiññeva āsane virajaṁ vītamalaṁ dhammacakkhuṁ udapādi:

in that very seat the stainless, immaculate vision of the Dhamma arose in the brahmin Kūṭadanta:

“yaṁ kiñci samudayadhammaṁ sabbaṁ taṁ nirodhadhamman”ti.
“Everything that has a beginning has an end.”

Atha kho kūṭadanto brāhmaṇo diṭṭhadhammo pattadhammo viditadhammo pariyogāḷhadhammo tiṇṇavicikiccho vigatakathaṅkatho vesārajjappatto aparappaccayo satthusāsane bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Kūṭadanta saw, attained, understood, and fathomed the Dhamma. He went beyond doubt, got rid of indecision, and became self-assured and independent of others regarding the Teacher's instructions. He said to the Buddha,

"adhivāsetu me bhavaṁ gotamo svātanāya bhattaṁ saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghenā"ti.
"Would Master Gotama together with the mendicant Saṅgha please accept tomorrow's meal from me?"

Adhivāsesi bhagavā tuṇhībhāvena.
The Buddha consented in silence.

Atha kho kūṭadanto brāhmaṇo bhagavato adhivāsanaṁ viditvā uṭṭhāyāsanā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā pakkāmi.
Then, knowing that the Buddha had consented, Kūṭadanta got up from his seat, bowed, and respectfully circled the Buddha, keeping him on his right, before leaving.

Atha kho kūṭadanto brāhmaṇo tassā rattiyā accayena sake yaññavāṭe paṇītaṁ khādanīyaṁ bhojanīyaṁ paṭiyādāpetvā bhagavato kālaṁ ārocāpesi:
And when the night had passed Kūṭadanta had a variety of delicious foods prepared in his own home. Then he had the Buddha informed of the time, saying,

"kālo, bho gotama; niṭṭhitaṁ bhattan"ti.
"It's time, Master Gotama, the meal is ready."

Atha kho bhagavā pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghena yena kūṭadantassa brāhmaṇassa yaññavāṭo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā paññatte āsane nisīdi.

Then the Buddha robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, went to the home of Kūṭadanta together with the mendicant Saṅgha, where he sat on the seat spread out.

Atha kho kūṭadanto brāhmaṇo buddhappamukhaṁ bhikkhusaṅghaṁ paṇītena khādanīyena bhojanīyena sahatthā santappesi sampavāresi.
Then Kūṭadanta served and satisfied the mendicant Saṅgha headed by the Buddha with his own hands with a variety of delicious foods.

Atha kho kūṭadanto brāhmaṇo bhagavantaṁ bhuttāviṁ onītapattapāṇiṁ aññataraṁ nīcaṁ āsanaṁ gahetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
When the Buddha had eaten and washed his hand and bowl, Kūṭadanta took a low seat and sat to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho kūṭadantaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ bhagavā dhammiyā kathāya sandassetvā samādapetvā samuttejetvā sampahaṁsetvā uṭṭhāyāsanā pakkāmīti.
Then the Buddha educated, encouraged, fired up, and inspired him with a Dhamma talk, after which he got up from his seat and left.

Kūṭadantasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ pañcamaṁ.

6. Mahālisutta

With Mahāli

1. Brāhmaṇadūtavatthu

1. On the Brahmin Emissaries

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā vesāliyaṁ viharati mahāvane kūṭāgārasālāyaṁ.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Vesālī, at the Great Wood, in the hall with the peaked roof.

Tena kho pana samayena sambahulā kosalakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā māgadhakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā vesāliyaṁ paṭivasanti kenacideva karaṇīyena.
Now at that time several brahmin emissaries from Kosala and Magadha were residing in Vesālī on some business.

Assosuṁ kho te kosalakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā māgadhakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā:
They heard:

“samaṇo khalu, bho, gotamo sakyaputto sakyakulā pabbajito vesāliyaṁ viharati mahāvane kūṭāgārasālāyaṁ.
“It seems the ascetic Gotama—a Sakyan, gone forth from a Sakyan family—is staying near Vesālī, at the Great Wood, in the hall with the peaked roof.

Taṁ kho pana bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:

He has this good reputation:

‘itipi so bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavā’.
‘That Blessed One is perfected, a fully awakened Buddha, accomplished in knowledge and conduct, holy, knower of the world, supreme guide for those who wish to train, teacher of gods and humans, awakened, blessed.’

So imaṁ lokaṁ sadevakaṁ samārakaṁ sabrahmakaṁ sassamaṇabrāhmaṇiṁ pajaṁ sadevamanussaṁ sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā pavedeti.
He has realized with his own insight this world—with its gods, Māras and Brahmās, this population with its ascetics and brahmins, gods and humans—and he makes it known to others.

So dhammaṁ deseti ādikalyāṇaṁ majjhekalyāṇaṁ pariyosānakalyāṇaṁ sātthaṁ sabyañjanaṁ kevalaparipuṇṇaṁ parisuddhaṁ brahmacariyaṁ pakāseti.
He teaches Dhamma that’s good in the beginning, good in the middle, and good in the end, meaningful and well-phrased. And he reveals a spiritual practice that’s entirely full and pure.

Sādhu kho pana tathārūpānaṁ arahataṁ dassanaṁ hotī”ti.
It’s good to see such perfected ones.”

Atha kho te kosalakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā māgadhakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā yena mahāvanaṁ kūṭāgārasālā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu.
Then they went to the hall with the peaked roof in the Great Wood to see the Buddha.

Tena kho pana samayena āyasmā nāgito bhagavato upaṭṭhāko hoti.
Now, at that time Venerable Nāgita was the Buddha’s attendant.

Atha kho te kosalakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā māgadhakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā yenāyasmā nāgito tenupasaṅkamiṁsu. upasaṅkamitvā āyasmantaṁ nāgitaṁ etadavocuṁ:
The brahmin emissaries went up to him and said,

“kahaṁ nu kho, bho nāgita, etarahi so bhavaṁ gotamo viharati?
“Master Nāgita, where is Master Gotama at present?

Dassanakāmā hi mayaṁ taṁ bhavantaṁ gotaman”ti.
For we want to see him.”

“Akālo kho, āvuso, bhagavantaṁ dassanāya, paṭisallīno bhagavā”ti.

Atha kho te kosalakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā māgadhakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā tattheva ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu:
So the brahmin emissaries sat down to one side, thinking, “disvāva mayaṁ taṁ bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ gamissāmā”ti.

“We’ll go only after we’ve seen Master Gotama.”

2. Oṭṭhaddhalicchavīvatthu

2. On Oṭṭhaddha the Licchavi

Oṭṭhaddhopi licchavī mahatiyā licchavīparisāya saddhiṁ yena mahāvanaṁ kūṭāgārasālā yenāyasmā nāgito tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā āyasmantaṁ nāgitaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi. Ekamantaṁ ṭhito kho oṭṭhaddhopi licchavī āyasmantaṁ nāgitaṁ etadavoca:
Oṭṭhaddha the Licchavi together with a large assembly of Licchavis also approached Nāgita at the hall with the peaked roof. He bowed, stood to one side, and said to Nāgita, “kahaṁ nu kho, bhante nāgita, etarahi so bhagavā viharati arahaṁ sammāsambuddho, “Master Nāgita, where is the Blessed One at present, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha?

dassanakāmā hi mayaṁ taṁ bhagavantaṁ arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhan”ti.
For we want to see him.”

“Akālo kho, mahāli, bhagavantaṁ dassanāya, paṭisallīno bhagavā”ti.

Oṭṭhaddhopi licchavī tattheva ekamantaṁ nisīdi:
So Oṭṭhaddha also sat down to one side, thinking,

“disvāva ahaṁ taṁ bhagavantaṁ gamissāmi arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhan”ti.
“I’ll go only after I’ve seen the Blessed One, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha.”

Atha kho sīho samaṇuddeso yenāyasmā nāgito tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā āyasmantaṁ nāgitaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi. Ekamantaṁ ṭhito kho sīho samaṇuddeso āyasmantaṁ nāgitaṁ etadavoca:
Then the novice Sīha approached Nāgita. He bowed, stood to one side, and said to Nāgita, “ete, bhante kassapa, sambahulā kosalakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā māgadhakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā idhūpasaṅkantā bhagavantaṁ dassanāya; oṭṭhaddhopi licchavī mahatiyā licchavīparisāya saddhiṁ idhūpasaṅkanto bhagavantaṁ dassanāya, sādhu, bhante kassapa, labhataṁ esā janatā bhagavantaṁ dassanāyā”ti.

“Sir, Kassapa, these several brahmin emissaries from Kosala and Magadha, and also Oṭṭhaddha the Licchavi together with a large assembly of Licchavis, have come here to see the Buddha. It’d be good if these people got to see the Buddha.”

“Tena hi, sīha, tvaññeva bhagavato ārocehī”ti.
“Well then, Sīha, tell the Buddha yourself.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho sīho samaṇuddeso āyasmato nāgitassa paṭissutvā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi. Ekamantaṁ ṭhito kho sīho samaṇuddeso bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
“Yes, sir,” replied Sīha. He went to the Buddha, bowed, stood to one side, and told him of the people waiting to see him, adding:

“ete, bhante, sambahulā kosalakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā māgadhakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā idhūpasaṅkantā bhagavantaṁ dassanāya, oṭṭhaddhopi licchavī mahatiyā licchavīparisāya saddhiṁ idhūpasaṅkanto bhagavantaṁ dassanāya.

Sādhu, bhante, labhataṁ esā janatā bhagavantaṁ dassanāyā”ti.
“Sir, it’d be good if these people got to see the Buddha.”

“Tena hi, sīha, vihārapacchāyāyaṁ āsanaṁ paññapehī”ti.
“Well then, Sīha, spread out a seat in the shade of the dwelling.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho sīho samaṇuddeso bhagavato paṭissutvā vihārapacchāyāyaṁ āsanaṁ paññapesi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Sīha, and he did so.

Atha kho bhagavā vihārā nikkhamma vihārapacchāyāyaṁ paññatte āsane nisīdi.
Then the Buddha came out of his dwelling and sat in the shade of the dwelling on the seat spread out.

Atha kho te kosalakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā māgadhakā ca brāhmaṇadūtā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodiṁsu.
Then the brahmin emissaries went up to the Buddha, and exchanged greetings with him.

Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu.
When the greetings and polite conversation were over, they sat down to one side.

2.2. The Four Noble Fruits

“Katame pana te, bhante, dhammā uttaritarā ca paṇītatarā ca, yesaṁ sacchikiriyāhetu bhikkhū bhagavati brahmacariyaṁ carantī”ti?
“But sir, what are those finer things?”

“Idha, mahāli, bhikkhu tiṇṇaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā sotāpanno hoti avinipātadhammo niyato sambodhiparāyaṇo.
“Firstly, Mahāli, with the ending of three fetters a mendicant is a stream-enterer, not liable to be reborn in the underworld, bound for awakening.

Ayampi kho, mahāli, dhammo uttaritaro ca paṇītataro ca, yassa sacchikiriyāhetu bhikkhū mayi brahmacariyaṁ caranti.
This is one of the finer things for the sake of which the mendicants live the spiritual life under me.

Furthermore, a mendicant—with the ending of three fetters, and the weakening of greed, hate, and delusion—is a once-returner. They come back to this world once only, then make an end of suffering.

Ayampi kho, mahāli, dhammo uttaritaro ca paṇītataro ca, yassa sacchikiriyāhetu bhikkhū mayi brahmacariyaṁ caranti.
This too is one of the finer things.

Puna caparaṁ, mahāli, bhikkhu pañcannaṁ orambhāgiyānaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā opapātiko hoti, tattha parinibbāyī, anāvattidhammo tasmā lokā.
Furthermore, with the ending of the five lower fetters, a mendicant is reborn spontaneously and will become extinguished there, not liable to return from that world.

Ayampi kho, mahāli, dhammo uttaritaro ca paṇītataro ca, yassa sacchikiriyāhetu bhikkhū mayi brahmacariyaṁ caranti.
This too is one of the finer things.

Puna caparaṁ, mahāli, bhikkhu āsavānaṁ khayā anāsavaṁ cetovimuttiṁ paññāvimuttiṁ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharati.
Furthermore, a mendicant has realized the undefiled freedom of heart and freedom by wisdom in this very life, and lives having realized it with their own insight due to the ending of defilements.

Ayampi kho, mahāli, dhammo uttaritaro ca paṇītataro ca, yassa sacchikiriyāhetu bhikkhū mayi brahmacariyaṁ caranti.
This too is one of the finer things.

Ime kho te, mahāli, dhammā uttaritarā ca paṇītatarā ca, yesaṁ sacchikiriyāhetu bhikkhū mayi brahmacariyaṁ carantī”ti.
These are the finer things, for the sake of which the mendicants live the spiritual life under me.”

2.3. Ariyaaṭṭhaṅgikamagga
2.3. The Noble Eightfold Path

“Atthi pana, bhante, maggo atthi paṭipadā etesaṁ dhammānaṁ sacchikiriyāyā”ti?
“But, sir, is there a path and a practice for realizing these things?”

“Atthi kho, mahāli, maggo atthi paṭipadā etesaṁ dhammānaṁ sacchikiriyāyā”ti.
“There is, Mahāli.”

“Katamo pana, bhante, maggo katamā paṭipadā etesaṁ dhammānaṁ sacchikiriyāyā”ti?
“Well, what is it?”

“Ayameva ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo.
“It is simply this noble eightfold path, that is:

Seyyathidaṁ—sammādiṭṭhi sammāsaṅkappo sammāvācā sammākammanto sammāājīvo sammāvāyāmo sammāsati sammāsamādhi.

Ayaṁ kho, mahāli, maggo ayaṁ paṭipadā etesaṁ dhammānaṁ sacchikiriyāya.
This is the path and the practice for realizing these things.

The Longer Discourse on the Lion’s Roar

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā uruññāyaṁ viharati kaṇṇakatthale migadāye.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Ujuñña, in the deer park at Kaṇṇakatthala.

Atha kho acelo kassapo yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodi.
Then the naked ascetic Kassapa went up to the Buddha and exchanged greetings with him.

Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi. Ekamantaṁ ṭhito kho acelo kassapo bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When the greetings and polite conversation were over, he stood to one side, and said to the Buddha:

“sutaṁ metaṁ, bho gotama:
“Master Gotama, I have heard the following:

‘samaṇo gotamo sabbaṁ tapaṁ garahati, sabbaṁ tapassiṁ lūkhājīviṁ ekaṁsena upakkosati upavadatī’ti.
‘The ascetic Gotama criticizes all forms of mortification. He categorically condemns and denounces those self-mortifiers who live rough.’

Ye te, bho gotama, evamāhaṁsu: ‘samaṇo gotamo sabbaṁ tapaṁ garahati, sabbaṁ tapassiṁ lūkhājīviṁ ekaṁsena upakkosati upavadatī’ti, kacci te bhoto gotamassa vuttavādino, na ca bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ abhūtena abbhācikkhanti, dhammassa cānudhammaṁ byākaronti, na ca koci sahadhammiko vādānuvādo gārayhaṁ ṭhānaṁ āgacchati?

Do those who say this repeat what the Buddha has said, and not misrepresent him with an untruth? Is their explanation in line with the teaching? Are there any legitimate grounds for rebuke and criticism?

Anabbhakkhātukāmā hi mayaṁ bhavantaṁ gotaman”ti.
For we don’t want to misrepresent Master Gotama.”

“Ye te, kassapa, evamāhaṁsu: ‘samaṇo gotamo sabbaṁ tapaṁ garahati, sabbaṁ tapassiṁ lūkhājīviṁ ekaṁsena upakkosati upavadatī’ti, na me te vuttavādino, abbhācikkhanti ca pana maṁ te asatā abhūtena.
“Kassapa, those who say this do not repeat what I have said. They misrepresent me with what is false, baseless, and untrue.

Idhāhaṁ, kassapa, ekaccaṁ tapassiṁ lūkhājīviṁ passāmi dibbena cakkhunā visuddhena atikkantamānusakena kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā apāyaṁ duggatiṁ vinipātaṁ nirayaṁ upapannaṁ.
With clairvoyance that is purified and superhuman, I see some self-mortifier who lives rough reborn in a place of loss, a bad place, the underworld, hell.

Idha panāhaṁ, kassapa, ekaccaṁ tapassiṁ lūkhājīviṁ passāmi dibbena cakkhunā visuddhena atikkantamānusakena kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapannaṁ.
But I see another self-mortifier who lives rough reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.

Idhāhaṁ, kassapa, ekaccaṁ tapassiṁ appadukkhavihāriṁ passāmi dibbena cakkhunā visuddhena atikkantamānusakena kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā apāyaṁ duggatiṁ vinipātaṁ nirayaṁ upapannaṁ.
I see some self-mortifier who takes it easy reborn in a place of loss.

Idha panāhaṁ, kassapa, ekaccaṁ tapassiṁ appadukkhavihāriṁ passāmi dibbena cakkhunā visuddhena atikkantamānusakena kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapannaṁ.
But I see another self-mortifier who takes it easy reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.

Yohaṁ, kassapa, imesaṁ tapassīnaṁ evaṁ āgatiñca gatiñca cutiñca upapattiñca yathābhūtaṁ pajānāmi, sohaṁ kiṁ sabbaṁ tapaṁ garahissāmi, sabbaṁ vā tapassiṁ lūkhājīviṁ ekaṁsena upakkosissāmi upavadissāmi?
Since I truly understand the coming and going, passing away and rebirth of these self-mortifiers in this way, how could I criticize all forms of mortification, or categorically condemn and denounce those self-mortifiers who live rough?

Santi, kassapa, eke samaṇabrāhmaṇā paṇḍitā nipuṇā kataparappavādā vālavedhirūpā. Te bhindantā maññe caranti paññāgatena diṭṭhigatāni.
There are some clever ascetics and brahmins who are subtle, accomplished in the doctrines of others, hair-splitters. You’d think they live to demolish convictions with their intellect.

Tehipi me saddhiṁ ekaccesu ṭhānesu sameti, ekaccesu ṭhānesu na sameti.
They agree with me in some matters and disagree in others.

Yaṁ te ekaccaṁ vadanti ‘sādhū’ti, mayampi taṁ ekaccaṁ vadema ‘sādhū’ti.
Some of the things that they applaud, I also applaud.

Yaṁ te ekaccaṁ vadanti ‘na sādhū’ti, mayampi taṁ ekaccaṁ vadema ‘na sādhū’ti.
Some of the things that they don’t applaud, I also don’t applaud.

Yaṁ te ekaccaṁ vadanti ‘sādhū’ti, mayaṁ taṁ ekaccaṁ vadema ‘na sādhū’ti.
But some of the things that they applaud, I don’t applaud.

Yaṁ te ekaccaṁ vadanti ‘na sādhū’ti, mayaṁ taṁ ekaccaṁ vadema ‘sādhū’ti.
And some of the things that they don’t applaud, I do applaud.

Yaṁ mayaṁ ekaccaṁ vadema ‘sādhū’ti, parepi taṁ ekaccaṁ vadanti ‘sādhū’ti.
Some of the things that I applaud, others also applaud.

Yaṁ mayaṁ ekaccaṁ vadema ‘na sādhū’ti, parepi taṁ ekaccaṁ vadanti ‘na sādhū’ti.
Some of the things that I don’t applaud, they also don’t applaud.

Yaṁ mayaṁ ekaccaṁ vadema ‘na sādhū’ti, pare taṁ ekaccaṁ vadanti ‘sādhū’ti.
But some of the things that I don’t applaud, others do applaud.

Yaṁ mayaṁ ekaccaṁ vadema ‘sādhū’ti, pare taṁ ekaccaṁ vadanti ‘na sādhū’ti.
And some of the things that I do applaud, others don’t applaud.

2. The Noble Eightfold Path

Atthi, kassapa, maggo atthi paṭipadā, yathāpaṭipanno sāmaññeva ñassati sāmaṁ dakkhati:

There is, Kassapa, a path, there is a practice, practicing in accordance with which you will know and see for yourself:

‘samaṇova gotamo kālavādī bhūtavādī atthavādī dhammavādī vinayavādī’ti.
‘Only the ascetic Gotama’s words are timely, true, and meaningful, in line with the teaching and training.’

Katamo ca, kassapa, maggo, katamā ca paṭipadā, yathāpaṭipanno sāmaññeva ñassati sāmaṁ dakkhati:
And what is that path?

‘samaṇova gotamo kālavādī bhūtavādī atthavādī dhammavādī vinayavādī’ti?

Ayameva ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo.
It is simply this noble eightfold path, that is:

Seyyathidaṁ—sammādiṭṭhi sammāsaṅkappo sammāvācā sammākammanto sammāājīvo sammāvāyāmo sammāsati sammāsamādhi.

Ayaṁ kho, kassapa, maggo, ayaṁ paṭipadā, yathāpaṭipanno sāmaññeva ñassati sāmaṁ dakkhati ‘samaṇova gotamo kālavādī bhūtavādī atthavādī dhammavādī vinayavādī’”ti.
This is the path, this is the practice, practicing in accordance with which you will know and see for yourself: ‘Only the ascetic Gotama’s words are timely, true, and meaningful, in line with the teaching and training.’”

3. Practicing Self-Mortification

Evaṁ vutte, acelo kassapo bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, Kassapa said to the Buddha:

“imepi kho, āvuso gotama, tapopakkamā etesaṁ samaṇabrāhmaṇānaṁ sāmaññasaṅkhātā ca brahmaññasaṅkhātā ca.
“Reverend Gotama, those ascetics and brahmins consider these practices of self-mortification to be what makes someone a true ascetic or brahmin.

Acelako hoti, muttācāro, hatthāpalekhano, naehibhaddantiko, natiṭṭhabhaddantiko, nābhihaṭaṁ, na uddissakataṁ, na nimantanaṁ sādiyati.
They go naked, ignoring conventions. They lick their hands, and don’t come or wait when asked. They don’t consent to food brought to them, or food prepared on purpose for them, or an invitation for a meal.

So na kumbhimukhā paṭiggaṇhāti, na kaḷopimukhā paṭiggaṇhāti, na eḷakamantaraṁ, na daṇḍamantaraṁ, na musalamantaraṁ, na dvinnaṁ bhuñjamānānaṁ, na gabbhiniyā, na pāyamānāya, na purisantaragatāya, na saṅkittīsu, na yattha sā upaṭṭhito hoti, na yattha makkhikā saṇḍasaṇḍacārinī, na macchaṁ, na maṁsaṁ, na suraṁ, na merayaṁ, na thusodakaṁ pivati.
They don’t receive anything from a pot or bowl; or from someone who keeps sheep, or who has a weapon or a shovel in their home; or where a couple is eating; or where there is a woman who is pregnant, breastfeeding, or who has a man in her home; or where there’s a dog waiting or flies buzzing. They accept no fish or meat or liquor or wine, and drink no beer.

So ekāgāriko vā hoti ekālopiko, dvāgāriko vā hoti dvālopiko … sattāgāriko vā hoti sattālopiko;
They go to just one house for alms, taking just one mouthful, or two houses and two mouthfuls, up to seven houses and seven mouthfuls.

ekissāpi dattiyā yāpeti, dvīhipi dattīhi yāpeti … sattahipi dattīhi yāpeti;

They feed on one saucer a day, two saucers a day, up to seven saucers a day.

ekāhikampi āhāraṁ āhāreti, dvīhikampi āhāraṁ āhāreti … sattāhikampi āhāraṁ āhāreti. Iti evarūpaṁ addhamāsikampi pariyāyabhattabhojanānuyogamanuyutto viharati.
They eat once a day, once every second day, up to once a week, and so on, even up to once a fortnight. They live committed to the practice of eating food at set intervals.

Imepi kho, āvuso gotama, tapopakkamā etesaṁ samaṇabrāhmaṇānaṁ sāmaññasaṅkhātā ca brahmaññasaṅkhātā ca.
Those ascetics and brahmins also consider these practices of self-mortification to be what makes someone a true ascetic or brahmin.

They eat herbs, millet, wild rice, poor rice, water lettuce, rice bran, scum from boiling rice, sesame flour, grass, or cow dung. They survive on forest roots and fruits, or eating fallen fruit.

Imepi kho, āvuso gotama, tapopakkamā etesaṁ samaṇabrāhmaṇānaṁ sāmaññasaṅkhātā ca brahmaññasaṅkhātā ca.
Those ascetics and brahmins also consider these practices of mortification to be what makes someone a true ascetic or brahmin.

Sāṇānipi dhāreti, masāṇānipi dhāreti, chavadussānipi dhāreti, paṁsukūlānipi dhāreti, tirīṭānipi dhāreti, ajinampi dhāreti, ajinakkhipampi dhāreti, kusacīrampi dhāreti, vākacīrampi dhāreti, phalakacīrampi dhāreti, kesakambalampi dhāreti, vāḷakambalampi dhāreti, ulūkapakkhikampi dhāreti,

They wear robes of sunn hemp, mixed hemp, corpse-wrapping cloth, rags, lodh tree bark, antelope hide (whole or in strips), kusa grass, bark, wood-chips, human hair, horse-tail hair, or owls’ wings.

kesamassulocakopi hoti kesamassulocanānuyogamanuyutto,
They tear out hair and beard, committed to this practice.

ubbhaṭṭhakopi hoti āsanapaṭikkhitto,
They constantly stand, refusing seats.

ukkuṭikopi hoti ukkuṭikappadhānamanuyutto,
They squat, committed to persisting in the squatting position.

kaṇṭakāpassayikopi hoti kaṇṭakāpassaye seyyaṁ kappeti,
They lie on a mat of thorns, making a mat of thorns their bed.

phalakaseyyampi kappeti, thaṇḍilaseyyampi kappeti,
They make their bed on a plank, or the bare ground.

ekapassayikopi hoti
They lie only on one side.

rajojalladharo,
They wear dust and dirt.

abbhokāsikopi hoti
They stay in the open air.

yathāsanthatiko,
They sleep wherever they lay their mat.

vekaṭikopi hoti vikaṭabhojanānuyogamanuyutto,
They eat unnatural things, committed to the practice of eating unnatural foods.

apānakopi hoti apānakattamanuyutto,
They don’t drink, committed to the practice of not drinking liquids.

sāyatatiyakampi udakorohanānuyogamanuyutto viharatī”ti.
They’re committed to the practice of immersion in water three times a day, including the evening.”

5. Sīlasamādhipaññāsampadā

5. The Accomplishment of Ethics, Immersion, and Wisdom

Evaṁ vutte, acelo kassapo bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, Kassapa said to the Buddha,

“katamā pana sā, bho gotama, sīlasampadā, katamā cittasampadā, katamā paññāsampadā”ti?
“But Master Gotama, what is that accomplishment in ethics, in mind, and in wisdom?”

“Idha, kassapa, tathāgato loke uppajjati arahaṁ, sammāsambuddho …pe…

parisuddhājīvo sīlasampanno indriyesu guttadvāro satisampajaññena samannāgato santuṭṭho.
Seeing danger in the slightest fault, a mendicant keeps the rules they've undertaken. They act skillfully by body and speech. They're purified in livelihood and accomplished in ethical conduct. They guard the sense doors, have mindfulness and situational awareness, and are content.

Kathañca, kassapa, bhikkhu sīlasampanno hoti?
And how is a mendicant accomplished in ethics?

Idha, kassapa, bhikkhu pāṇātipātaṁ pahāya pāṇātipātā paṭivirato hoti nihitadaṇḍo nihitasattho lajjī dayāpanno, sabbapāṇabhūtahitānukampī viharati.
It's when a mendicant gives up killing living creatures. They renounce the rod and the sword. They're scrupulous and kind, living full of compassion for all living beings.

This pertains to their accomplishment in ethics. …

Yathā vā paneke bhonto samaṇabrāhmaṇā saddhādeyyāni bhojanāni bhuñjitvā te evarūpāya tiracchānavijjāya micchājīvena jīvitaṁ kappenti.
There are some ascetics and brahmins who, while enjoying food given in faith, still earn a living by unworthy branches of knowledge, by wrong livelihood. …

Sa kho so, kassapa, bhikkhu evaṁ sīlasampanno na kutoci bhayaṁ samanupassati, yadidaṁ sīlasaṁvarato.
A mendicant thus accomplished in ethics sees no danger in any quarter in regards to their ethical restraint.

Seyyathāpi, kassapa, rājā khattiyo muddhāvasitto nihatapaccāmitto na kutoci bhayaṁ samanupassati, yadidaṁ paccatthikato;
It’s like a king who has defeated his enemies. He sees no danger from his foes in any quarter.

In the same way, a mendicant thus accomplished in ethics sees no danger in any quarter in regards to their ethical restraint.

So iminā ariyena sīlakkhandhena samannāgato ajjhattaṁ anavajjasukhaṁ paṭisaṁvedeti.
When they have this entire spectrum of noble ethics, they experience a blameless happiness inside themselves.

Evaṁ kho, kassapa, bhikkhu sīlasampanno hoti.
That’s how a mendicant is accomplished in ethics.

Ayaṁ kho, kassapa, sīlasampadā …pe…
This, Kassapa, is that accomplishment in ethics. …

paṭhamaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
They enter and remain in the first absorption …

fourth absorption.

Idampissa hoti cittasampadāya.
This pertains to their accomplishment in mind.

Ayaṁ kho, kassapa, cittasampadā.
This, Kassapa, is that accomplishment in mind.

So evaṁ samāhite citte …pe…
When their mind is immersed like this, ñāṇadassanāya cittaṁ abhinīharati abhininnāmeti …

they extend and project it toward knowledge and vision …

idampissa hoti paññāsampadāya …pe…
This pertains to their accomplishment in wisdom. …

nāparaṁ itthattāyāti pajānāti.
They understand: '… there is no return to any state of existence.'

Idampissa hoti paññāsampadāya.
This pertains to their accomplishment in wisdom.

Ayaṁ kho, kassapa, paññāsampadā.
This, Kassapa, is that accomplishment in wisdom.

Imāya ca, kassapa, sīlasampadāya cittasampadāya paññāsampadāya aññā sīlasampadā cittasampadā paññāsampadā uttaritarā vā paṇītatarā vā natthi.
And, Kassapa, there is no accomplishment in ethics, mind, and wisdom that is better or finer than this.

7. Titthiyaparivāsakathā

7. The Probation For One Previously Ordained

Ekamidāhaṁ, kassapa, samayaṁ rājagahe viharāmi gijjhakūṭe pabbate.
Kassapa, this one time I was staying near Rājagaha, on the Vulture’s Peak Mountain.

Tatra maṁ aññataro tapabrahmacārī nigrodho nāma adhijegucche pañhaṁ apucchi.
There a certain practitioner of self-mortification named Nigrodha asked me about the higher mortification in disgust of sin.

Tassāhaṁ adhijegucche pañhaṁ puṭṭho byākāsiṁ.

I answered his question.

Byākate ca pana me attamano ahosi paraṁ viya mattāyā”ti.
He was extremely happy with my answer.”

“Ko hi, bhante, bhagavato dhammaṁ sutvā na attamano assa paraṁ viya mattāya?
“Sir, who wouldn’t be extremely happy after hearing the Buddha’s teaching?

Ahampi hi, bhante, bhagavato dhammaṁ sutvā attamano paraṁ viya mattāya.
For I too am extremely happy after hearing the Buddha’s teaching!

Abhikkantaṁ, bhante, abhikkantaṁ, bhante.
Excellent, sir! Excellent!

Seyyathāpi, bhante, nikkujjitaṁ vā ukkujjeyya, paṭicchannaṁ vā vivareyya, mūḷhassa vā maggaṁ ācikkheyya, andhakāre vā telapajjotaṁ dhāreyya: ‘cakkhumanto rūpāni dakkhantī’ti; evamevaṁ bhagavatā anekapariyāyena dhammo pakāsito.
As if he were righting the overturned, or revealing the hidden, or pointing out the path to the lost, or lighting a lamp in the dark so people with good eyes can see what’s there, so too the Buddha has made the teaching clear in many ways.

Esāhaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ saraṇaṁ gacchāmi, dhammañca bhikkhusaṅghañca.
I go for refuge to the Buddha, to the teaching, and to the mendicant Saṅgha.

Labheyyāhaṁ, bhante, bhagavato santike pabbajjaṁ, labheyyaṁ upasampadan”ti.
Sir, may I receive the going forth, the ordination in the Buddha’s presence?”

“Yo kho, kassapa, aññatitthiyapubbo imasmiṁ dhammavinaye ākaṅkhati pabbajjaṁ, ākaṅkhati upasampadaṁ, so cattāro māse “Kassapa, if someone formerly ordained in another sect wishes to take the going forth, the ordination in this teaching and training, they must spend four months on probation. When four months have passed, if the mendicants are satisfied, they’ll give the going forth, the ordination into monkhood.

Api ca mettha puggalavemattatā viditā”ti.
However, I have recognized individual differences in this matter.”

“Sir, if four months probation are required in such a case, I’ll spend four years on probation. When four years have passed, if the mendicants are satisfied, let them give me the going forth, the ordination into monkhood.”

Alattha kho acelo kassapo bhagavato santike pabbajjaṁ, alattha upasampadaṁ.
And the naked ascetic Kassapa received the going forth, the ordination in the Buddha’s presence.

Acirūpasampanno kho panāyasmā kassapo eko vūpakaṭṭho appamatto ātāpī pahitatto viharanto na cirasseva—yassatthāya kulaputtā sammadeva agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajanti, tadanuttaraṁ—brahmacariyapariyosānaṁ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja vihāsi.
Not long after his ordination, Venerable Kassapa, living alone, withdrawn, diligent, keen, and resolute, soon realized the supreme end of the spiritual path in this very life. He lived having achieved with his own insight the goal for which gentlemen rightly go forth from the lay life to homelessness.

“Khīṇā jāti, vusitaṁ brahmacariyaṁ, kataṁ karaṇīyaṁ, nāparaṁ itthattāyā”ti abbhaññāsi.
He understood: “Rebirth is ended; the spiritual journey has been completed; what had to be done has been done; there is no return to any state of existence.”

Aññataro kho panāyasmā kassapo arahataṁ ahosīti.
And Venerable Kassapa became one of the perfected.

With Poṭṭhapāda

1. Poṭṭhapādaparibbājakavatthu

1. On the Wanderer Poṭṭhapāda

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā sāvatthiyaṁ viharati jetavane anāthapiṇḍikassa ārāme.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Sāvatthī in Jeta's Grove, Anāthapiṇḍika's monastery.

Tena kho pana samayena poṭṭhapādo paribbājako samayappavādake tindukācīre ekasālake mallikāya ārāme paṭivasati mahatiyā paribbājakaparisāya saddhiṁ tiṁsamattehi paribbājakasatehi.
Now at that time the wanderer Poṭṭhapāda was residing together with three hundred wanderers in Mallikā's single-halled monastery for group debates, set among the flaking pale-moon ebony trees.

Atha kho bhagavā pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya sāvatthiṁ piṇḍāya pāvisi.
Then the Buddha robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, entered Sāvatthī for alms.

Atha kho bhagavato etadahosi:
Then it occurred to him,

"atippago kho tāva sāvatthiyaṁ piṇḍāya carituṁ.

Yannūnāhaṁ yena samayappavādako tindukācīro ekasālako mallikāya ārāmo, yena poṭṭhapādo paribbājako tenupasaṅkameyyan”ti.
Why don’t I go to Mallikā’s monastery to visit the wanderer Poṭṭhapāda?”

Atha kho bhagavā yena samayappavādako tindukācīro ekasālako mallikāya ārāmo tenupasaṅkami.
So that’s what he did.

Tena kho pana samayena poṭṭhapādo paribbājako mahatiyā paribbājakaparisāya saddhiṁ nisinno hoti unnādiniyā uccāsaddamahāsaddāya anekavihitaṁ tiracchānakathaṁ kathentiyā.
Now at that time, Poṭṭhapāda was sitting together with a large assembly of wanderers making an uproar, a dreadful racket. They engaged in all kinds of unworthy talk, such as talk about kings, bandits, and ministers; talk about armies, threats, and wars; talk about food, drink, clothes, and beds; talk about garlands and fragrances; talk about family, vehicles, villages, towns, cities, and countries; talk about women and heroes; street talk and well talk; talk about the departed; motley talk; tales of land and sea; and talk about being reborn in this or that state of existence.

Addasā kho poṭṭhapādo paribbājako bhagavantaṁ dūratova āgacchantaṁ;

Poṭṭhapāda saw the Buddha coming off in the distance, disvāna sakaṁ parisaṁ saṇṭhapesi:

and hushed his own assembly,

“appasaddā bhonto hontu, mā bhonto saddamakattha.
“Be quiet, good sirs, don’t make a sound.

Ayaṁ samaṇo gotamo āgacchati.
Here comes the ascetic Gotama.

Appasaddakāmo kho so āyasmā appasaddassa vaṇṇavādī.
The venerable likes quiet and praises quiet.

Appeva nāma appasaddaṁ parisaṁ viditvā upasaṅkamitabbaṁ maññeyyā”ti.
Hopefully if he sees that our assembly is quiet he’ll see fit to approach.”

Evaṁ vutte, te paribbājakā tuṇhī ahesuṁ.
Then those wanderers fell silent.

Atha kho bhagavā yena poṭṭhapādo paribbājako tenupasaṅkami.
Then the Buddha approached Poṭṭhapāda,

Atha kho poṭṭhapādo paribbājako bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
who said to him,

“etu kho, bhante, bhagavā.
“Come, Blessed One!

Svāgataṁ, bhante, bhagavato.
Welcome, Blessed One!

Cirassaṁ kho, bhante, bhagavā imaṁ pariyāyamakāsi, yadidaṁ idhāgamanāya.
It’s been a long time since you took the opportunity to come here.

Nisīdatu, bhante, bhagavā, idaṁ āsanaṁ paññattan”ti.
Please, sir, sit down, this seat is ready.”

Nisīdi bhagavā paññatte āsane.
The Buddha sat on the seat spread out,

Poṭṭhapādopi kho paribbājako aññataraṁ nīcaṁ āsanaṁ gahetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
while Poṭṭhapāda took a low seat and sat to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho poṭṭhapādaṁ paribbājakaṁ bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said to him,

“kāya nuttha, poṭṭhapāda, etarahi kathāya sannisinnā, kā ca pana vo antarākathā vippakatā”ti?
“Poṭṭhapāda, what were you sitting talking about just now? What conversation was unfinished?”

1.1. Abhisaññānirodhakathā

1.1. On the Cessation of Perception

Evaṁ vutte, poṭṭhapādo paribbājako bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he said this, the wanderer Poṭṭhapāda said to the Buddha, “tiṭṭhatesā, bhante, kathā, yāya mayaṁ etarahi kathāya sannisinnā.

“Sir, leave aside what we were sitting talking about just now.

Nesā, bhante, kathā bhagavato dullabhā bhavissati pacchāpi savanāya.
It won’t be hard for you to hear about that later.

Purimāni, bhante, divasāni purimatarāni, nānātitthiyānaṁ samaṇabrāhmaṇānaṁ kotūhalasālāya sannisinnānaṁ sannipatitānaṁ abhisaññānirodhe kathā udapādi:
Sir, a few days ago several ascetics and brahmins who follow various other paths were sitting together at the debating hall, and this discussion came up among them:

‘kathaṁ nu kho, bho, abhisaññānirodho hotī’ti?

‘How does the cessation of perception happen?’

Tatrekacce evamāhaṁsu:
Some of them said:

‘ahetū appaccayā purisassa saññā uppajjantipi nirujjhantipi.
‘A person’s perceptions arise and cease without cause or reason.

Yasmiṁ samaye uppajjanti, saññī tasmiṁ samaye hoti.
When they arise, you become percipient.

Yasmiṁ samaye nirujjhanti, asaññī tasmiṁ samaye hotī’ti.
When they cease, you become non-percipient.’

Ittheke abhisaññānirodhaṁ paññapenti. (1)
That’s how some describe the cessation of perception.

Tamañño evamāha:
But someone else says:

‘na kho pana metaṁ, bho, evaṁ bhavissati.
‘That’s not how it is, gentlemen !

Saññā hi, bho, purisassa attā.
Perception is a person’s self,

Sā ca kho upetipi apetipi.

Yasmiṁ samaye upeti, saññī tasmiṁ samaye hoti.
When it enters, you become percipient.

Yasmiṁ samaye apeti, asaññī tasmiṁ samaye hotī’ti.
When it departs, you become non-percipient.’

Ittheke abhisaññānirodhaṁ paññapenti. (2)
That’s how some describe the cessation of perception.

Tamañño evamāha:
But someone else says:

‘na kho pana metaṁ, bho, evaṁ bhavissati.

‘That’s not how it is, gentlemen !

Santi hi, bho, samaṇabrāhmaṇā mahiddhikā mahānubhāvā.
There are ascetics and brahmins of great power and might.

Te imassa purisassa saññaṁ upakaḍḍhantipi apakaḍḍhantipi.
They insert and extract a person’s perception.

Yasmiṁ samaye upakaḍḍhanti, saññī tasmiṁ samaye hoti.
When they insert it, you become percipient.

Yasmiṁ samaye apakaḍḍhanti, asaññī tasmiṁ samaye hotī’ti.
When they extract it, you become non-percipient.’

Ittheke abhisaññānirodhaṁ paññapenti. (3)
That’s how some describe the cessation of perception.

Tamañño evamāha:
But someone else says:

‘na kho pana metaṁ, bho, evaṁ bhavissati.
‘That’s not how it is, gentlemen !

Santi hi, bho, devatā mahiddhikā mahānubhāvā.
There are deities of great power and might.

Tā imassa purisassa saññaṁ upakaḍḍhantipi apakaḍḍhantipi.
They insert and extract a person’s perception.

Yasmiṁ samaye upakaḍḍhanti, saññī tasmiṁ samaye hoti.
When they insert it, you become percipient.

Yasmiṁ samaye apakaḍḍhanti, asaññī tasmiṁ samaye hotī’ti.
When they extract it, you become non-percipient.’

Ittheke abhisaññānirodhaṁ paññapenti. (4)
That’s how some describe the cessation of perception.

Tassa mayhaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁyeva ārabbha sati udapādi:
That reminded me of the Buddha:

‘aho nūna bhagavā, aho nūna sugato, yo imesaṁ dhammānaṁ sukusalo’ti.
‘Surely it must be the Blessed One, the Holy One who is so skilled in such matters.’

Bhagavā, bhante, kusalo, bhagavā pakataññū abhisaññānirodhassa.
The Buddha is skilled and well-versed in the cessation of perception.

Kathaṁ nu kho, bhante, abhisaññānirodho hotī”ti?
How does the cessation of perception happen?”

1.2. Sahetukasaññuppādanirodhakathā
1.2. Perception Arises With a Cause

“Tatra, poṭṭhapāda, ye te samaṇabrāhmaṇā evamāhaṁsu:
“Regarding this, Poṭṭhapāda, those ascetics and brahmins who say that ‘ahetū appaccayā purisassa saññā uppajjantipi nirujjhantipī’ti, āditova tesaṁ aparaddhaṁ.

a person’s perceptions arise and cease without cause or reason are wrong from the start.

Taṁ kissa hetu?
Why is that?

Sahetū hi, poṭṭhapāda, sappaccayā purisassa saññā uppajjantipi nirujjhantipi.
Because a person’s perceptions arise and cease with cause and reason.

Sikkhā ekā saññā uppajjati, sikkhā ekā saññā nirujjhati.
With training, certain perceptions arise and certain perceptions cease.

Kā ca sikkhā”ti? Bhagavā avoca.
And what is that training?” said the Buddha.

“Idha, poṭṭhapāda, tathāgato loke uppajjati arahaṁ, sammāsambuddho …pe…

Evaṁ kho, poṭṭhapāda, bhikkhu sīlasampanno hoti …pe…
That’s how a mendicant is accomplished in ethics. …

tassime pañcanīvaraṇe pahīne attani samanupassato pāmojjaṁ jāyati, pamuditassa pīti jāyati, pītimanassa kāyo passambhati, passaddhakāyo sukhaṁ vedeti, sukhino cittaṁ samādhiyati.
Seeing that the hindrances have been given up in them, joy springs up. Being joyful, rapture springs up. When the mind is full of rapture, the body becomes tranquil. When the body is tranquil, they feel bliss. And when blissful, the mind becomes immersed.

So vivicceva kāmehi, vivicca akusalehi dhammehi, savitakkaṁ savicāraṁ vivekajaṁ pītisukhaṁ paṭhamaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
Quite secluded from sensual pleasures, secluded from unskillful qualities, they enter and remain in the first absorption, which has the rapture and bliss born of seclusion, while placing the mind and keeping it connected.

Tassa yā purimā kāmasaññā, sā nirujjhati.
The sensual perception that they had previously ceases.

Vivekajapītisukhasukhumasaccasaññā tasmiṁ samaye hoti, vivekajapītisukhasukhumasaccasaññīyeva tasmiṁ samaye hoti.
At that time they have a subtle and true perception of the rapture and bliss born of seclusion.

Evampi sikkhā ekā saññā uppajjati, sikkhā ekā saññā nirujjhati.
That’s how, with training, certain perceptions arise and certain perceptions cease.

Ayaṁ sikkhā”ti bhagavā avoca.
And this is that training,” said the Buddha.

“Puna caparaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, bhikkhu vitakkavicārānaṁ vūpasamā ajjhattaṁ sampasādanaṁ cetaso ekodibhāvaṁ avitakkaṁ avicāraṁ samādhijaṁ pītisukhaṁ dutiyaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
“Furthermore, as the placing of the mind and keeping it connected are stilled, a mendicant enters and remains in the second absorption, which has the rapture and bliss born of immersion, with internal clarity and confidence, and unified mind, without placing the mind and keeping it connected.

Tassa yā purimā vivekajapītisukhasukhumasaccasaññā, sā nirujjhati.
The subtle and true perception of the rapture and bliss born of seclusion that they had previously ceases.

Samādhijapītisukhasukhumasaccasaññā tasmiṁ samaye hoti, samādhijapītisukhasukhumasaccasaññīyeva tasmiṁ samaye hoti.
At that time they have a subtle and true perception of the rapture and bliss born of immersion.

Evampi sikkhā ekā saññā uppajjati, sikkhā ekā saññā nirujjhati.
That’s how, with training, certain perceptions arise and certain perceptions cease.

Ayampi sikkhā”ti bhagavā avoca.
And this is that training,” said the Buddha.

“Puna caparaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, bhikkhu pītiyā ca virāgā upekkhako ca viharati sato ca sampajāno, sukhañca kāyena paṭisaṁvedeti, yaṁ taṁ ariyā ācikkhanti: ‘upekkhako satimā sukhavihārī’ti, tatiyaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.

Tassa yā purimā samādhijapītisukhasukhumasaccasaññā, sā nirujjhati.
The subtle and true perception of the rapture and bliss born of immersion that they had previously ceases.

Upekkhāsukhasukhumasaccasaññā tasmiṁ samaye hoti, upekkhāsukhasukhumasaccasaññīyeva tasmiṁ samaye hoti.
At that time they have a subtle and true perception of equanimous bliss.

Evampi sikkhā ekā saññā uppajjati, sikkhā ekā saññā nirujjhati.
That's how, with training, certain perceptions arise and certain perceptions cease.

Ayampi sikkhā"ti bhagavā avoca.
And this is that training," said the Buddha.

"Puna caparaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, bhikkhu sukhassa ca pahānā dukkhassa ca pahānā pubbeva somanassadomanassānaṁ atthaṅgamā adukkhamasukhaṁ upekkhāsatipārisuddhiṁ catutthaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
"Furthermore, giving up pleasure and pain, and ending former happiness and sadness, a mendicant enters and remains in the fourth absorption, without pleasure or pain, with pure equanimity and mindfulness.

Tassa yā purimā upekkhāsukhasukhumasaccasaññā, sā nirujjhati.
The subtle and true perception of equanimous bliss that they had previously ceases.

Adukkhamasukhasukhumasaccasaññā tasmiṁ samaye hoti, adukkhamasukhasukhumasaccasaññīyeva tasmiṁ samaye hoti.
At that time they have a subtle and true perception of neutral feeling.

Evampi sikkhā ekā saññā uppajjati, sikkhā ekā saññā nirujjhati.
That's how, with training, certain perceptions arise and certain perceptions cease.

Ayampi sikkhā”ti bhagavā avoca.
And this is that training,” said the Buddha.

“Puna caparaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, bhikkhu sabbaso rūpasaññānaṁ samatikkamā paṭighasaññānaṁ atthaṅgamā nānattasaññānaṁ amanasikārā ‘ananto ākāso’ti ākāsānañcāyatanaṁ upasampajja viharati.
“Furthermore, a mendicant, going totally beyond perceptions of form, with the ending of perceptions of impingement, not focusing on perceptions of diversity, aware that ‘space is infinite’, enters and remains in the dimension of infinite space.

Tassa yā purimā rūpasaññā, sā nirujjhati.
The perception of luminous form that they had previously ceases.

Ākāsānañcāyatanasukhumasaccasaññā tasmiṁ samaye hoti, ākāsānañcāyatanasukhumasaccasaññīyeva tasmiṁ samaye hoti.
At that time they have a subtle and true perception of the dimension of infinite space.

Evampi sikkhā ekā saññā uppajjati, sikkhā ekā saññā nirujjhati.
That’s how, with training, certain perceptions arise and certain perceptions cease.

Ayampi sikkhā”ti bhagavā avoca.
And this is that training,” said the Buddha.

“Puna caparaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, bhikkhu sabbaso ākāsānañcāyatanaṁ samatikkamma ‘anantaṁ viññāṇan’ti viññāṇañcāyatanaṁ upasampajja viharati.
“Furthermore, a mendicant, going totally beyond the dimension of infinite space, aware that ‘consciousness is infinite’, enters and remains in the dimension of infinite consciousness.

Tassa yā purimā ākāsānañcāyatanasukhumasaccasaññā, sā nirujjhati.

The subtle and true perception of the dimension of infinite space that they had previously ceases.

Viññāṇañcāyatanasukhumasaccasaññā tasmiṁ samaye hoti, viññāṇañcāyatanasukhumasaccasaññīyeva tasmiṁ samaye hoti.
At that time they have a subtle and true perception of the dimension of infinite consciousness.

Evampi sikkhā ekā saññā uppajjati, sikkhā ekā saññā nirujjhati.
That's how, with training, certain perceptions arise and certain perceptions cease.

Ayampi sikkhā"ti bhagavā avoca.
And this is that training," said the Buddha.

"Puna caparaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, bhikkhu sabbaso viññāṇañcāyatanaṁ samatikkamma 'natthi kiñcī'ti ākiñcaññāyatanaṁ upasampajja viharati.
"Furthermore, a mendicant, going totally beyond the dimension of infinite consciousness, aware that 'there is nothing at all', enters and remains in the dimension of nothingness.

Tassa yā purimā viññāṇañcāyatanasukhumasaccasaññā, sā nirujjhati.
The subtle and true perception of the dimension of infinite consciousness that they had previously ceases.

Ākiñcaññāyatanasukhumasaccasaññā tasmiṁ samaye hoti, ākiñcaññāyatanasukhumasaccasaññīyeva tasmiṁ samaye hoti.
At that time they have a subtle and true perception of the dimension of nothingness.

Evampi sikkhā ekā saññā uppajjati, sikkhā ekā saññā nirujjhati.
That's how, with training, certain perceptions arise and certain perceptions cease.

Ayampi sikkhā"ti bhagavā avoca.
And this is that training," said the Buddha.

“Yato kho, poṭṭhapāda, bhikkhu idha sakasaññī hoti, so tato amutra tato amutra anupubbena saññaggaṁ phusati.
“Poṭṭhapāda, from the time a mendicant here takes responsibility for their own perception, they proceed from one stage to the next, gradually reaching the peak of perception.

Tassa saññagge ṭhitassa evaṁ hoti:
Standing on the peak of perception they think,

‘cetayamānassa me pāpiyo, acetayamānassa me seyyo.
‘Intentionality is bad for me, it’s better to be free of it.

Ahañceva kho pana ceteyyaṁ, abhisaṅkhareyyaṁ, imā ca me saññā nirujjheyyuṁ, aññā ca oḷārikā saññā uppajjeyyuṁ;
For if I were to intend and choose, these perceptions would cease in me, and other coarser perceptions would arise.

yannūnāhaṁ na ceva ceteyyaṁ na ca abhisaṅkhareyyan’ti.
Why don’t I neither make a choice nor form an intention?’

So na ceva ceteti, na ca abhisaṅkharoti.
They neither make a choice nor form an intention.

Tassa acetayato anabhisaṅkharoto tā ceva saññā nirujjhanti, aññā ca oḷārikā saññā na uppajjanti.
Those perceptions cease in them, and other coarser perceptions don’t arise.

So nirodhaṁ phusati.
They touch cessation.

Evaṁ kho, poṭṭhapāda, anupubbābhisaññānirodhasampajānasamāpatti hoti.
And that, Poṭṭhapāda, is how the gradual cessation of perception is attained with awareness.

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, poṭṭhapāda,
What do you think, Poṭṭhapāda?

api nu te ito pubbe evarūpā anupubbābhisaññānirodhasampajānasamāpatti sutapubbā”ti?

Have you ever heard of this before?”

“No hetaṁ, bhante.
“No, sir.

Evaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhante, bhagavato bhāsitaṁ ājānāmi:
This is how I understand what the Buddha said:

‘yato kho, poṭṭhapāda, bhikkhu idha sakasaññī hoti, so tato amutra tato amutra anupubbena saññaggaṁ phusati,
‘From the time a mendicant here takes responsibility for their own perception, they proceed from one stage to the next, gradually reaching the peak of perception.

tassa saññagge ṭhitassa evaṁ hoti:
Standing on the peak of perception they think,

“cetayamānassa me pāpiyo, acetayamānassa me seyyo.
“Intentionality is bad for me, it’s better to be free of it.

Ahañceva kho pana ceteyyaṁ abhisaṅkhareyyaṁ, imā ca me saññā nirujjheyyuṁ, aññā ca oḷārikā saññā uppajjeyyuṁ;
For if I were to intend and choose, these perceptions would cease in me, and other coarser perceptions would arise.

yannūnāhaṁ na ceva ceteyyaṁ, na ca abhisaṅkhareyyan”ti.
Why don’t I neither make a choice nor form an intention?”

So na ceva ceteti, na cābhisaṅkharoti, tassa acetayato anabhisaṅkharoto tā ceva saññā nirujjhanti, aññā ca oḷārikā saññā na uppajjanti.
Those perceptions cease in them, and other coarser perceptions don’t arise.

So nirodhaṁ phusati.
They touch cessation.

Evaṁ kho, poṭṭhapāda, anupubbābhisaññānirodhasampajānasamāpatti hotī’”ti.
And that is how the gradual cessation of perception is attained with awareness.’”

“Ekaññeva nu kho, bhante, bhagavā saññaggaṁ paññapeti, udāhu puthūpi saññagge paññapetī”ti?
“Does the Buddha describe just one peak of perception, or many?”

“Ekampi kho ahaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, saññaggaṁ paññapemi, puthūpi saññagge paññapemī”ti.
“I describe the peak of perception as both one and many.”

“Yathā kathaṁ pana, bhante, bhagavā ekampi saññaggaṁ paññapeti, puthūpi saññagge paññapetī”ti?
“But sir, how do you describe it as one peak and as many?”

“Yathā yathā kho, poṭṭhapāda, nirodhaṁ phusati tathā tathāhaṁ saññaggaṁ paññapemi.
“I describe the peak of perception according to the specific manner in which one touches cessation.

Evaṁ kho ahaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, ekampi saññaggaṁ paññapemi, puthūpi saññagge paññapemī”ti.
That’s how I describe the peak of perception as both one and many.”

“Saññā nu kho, bhante, paṭhamaṁ uppajjati, pacchā ñāṇaṁ, udāhu ñāṇaṁ paṭhamaṁ uppajjati, pacchā saññā, udāhu saññā ca ñāṇañca apubbaṁ acarimaṁ uppajjantī”ti?
“But sir, does perception arise first and knowledge afterwards? Or does knowledge arise first and perception afterwards? Or do they both arise at the same time?”

“Saññā kho, poṭṭhapāda, paṭhamaṁ uppajjati, pacchā ñāṇaṁ, saññuppādā ca pana ñāṇuppādo hoti.

“Perception arises first and knowledge afterwards. The arising of perception leads to the arising of knowledge.

So evaṁ pajānāti:
They understand,

‘idappaccayā kira me ñāṇaṁ udapādī’ti.
‘My knowledge arose from a specific condition.’

Iminā kho etaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, pariyāyena veditabbaṁ—
That is a way to understand how yathā saññā paṭhamaṁ uppajjati, pacchā ñāṇaṁ, saññuppādā ca pana ñāṇuppādo hotī”ti.

perception arises first and knowledge afterwards; that the arising of perception leads to the arising of knowledge.”

1.3. Saññāattakathā

1.3. Perception and the Self

“Saññā nu kho, bhante, purisassa attā, udāhu aññā saññā añño attā”ti?
“Sir, is perception a person’s self, or are perception and self different things?”

“Kaṁ pana tvaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, attānaṁ paccesī”ti?
“But Poṭṭhapāda, do you believe in a self?”

“Oḷārikaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhante, attānaṁ paccemi rūpiṁ cātumahābhūtikaṁ kabaḷīkārāhārabhakkhan”ti.
“I believe in a substantial self, sir, which is physical, made up of the four primary elements, and consumes solid food.”

“Oḷāriko ca hi te, poṭṭhapāda, attā abhavissa rūpī cātumahābhūtiko kabaḷīkārāhārabhakkho. Evaṁ santaṁ kho te, poṭṭhapāda, aññāva saññā bhavissati añño attā.

“Suppose there were such a substantial self, Poṭṭhapāda. In that case, perception would be one thing, the self another.

Tadamināpetaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, pariyāyena veditabbaṁ yathā aññāva saññā bhavissati añño attā.
Here is another way to understand how perception and self are different things.

Tiṭṭhateva sāyaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, oḷāriko attā rūpī cātumahābhūtiko kabaḷīkārāhārabhakkho, atha imassa purisassa aññā ca saññā uppajjanti, aññā ca saññā nirujjhanti.

That too is a way to understand how perception and self are different things.”

“Arūpiṁ kho ahaṁ, bhante, attānaṁ paccemi saññāmayan”ti.
“Sir, I believe in a non-physical self which is made of perception.”

Then after two or three days had passed, Citta Hatthisāriputta and Poṭṭhapāda went to see the Buddha. Citta Hatthisāriputta bowed and sat down to one side.

Poṭṭhapādo pana paribbājako bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodi. Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
But the wanderer Poṭṭhapāda exchanged greetings with the Buddha, and when the greetings and polite conversation were over, he sat down to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho poṭṭhapādo paribbājako bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:

Poṭṭhapāda told the Buddha what had happened after he left. The Buddha said:

2.2. Tayoattapaṭilābha

2.2. Three Kinds of Reincarnation

“Tayo kho me, poṭṭhapāda, attapaṭilābhā—“Poṭṭhapāda, there are these three kinds of reincarnation:

oḷāriko attapaṭilābho, manomayo attapaṭilābho, arūpo attapaṭilābho.
a substantial reincarnation, a mind-made reincarnation, and a non-physical reincarnation.

Katamo ca, poṭṭhapāda, oḷāriko attapaṭilābho?
And what is a substantial reincarnation?

Rūpī cātumahābhūtiko kabaḷīkārāhārabhakkho, ayaṁ oḷāriko attapaṭilābho.
It is physical, made up of the four primary elements, and consumes solid food.

Katamo manomayo attapaṭilābho?
What is a mind-made reincarnation?

Rūpī manomayo sabbaṅgapaccaṅgī ahīnindriyo, ayaṁ manomayo attapaṭilābho.
It is physical, mind-made, complete in all its various parts, not deficient in any faculty.

Katamo arūpo attapaṭilābho?
What is a non-physical reincarnation?

Arūpī saññāmayo, ayaṁ arūpo attapaṭilābho.

It is non-physical, made of perception.

Oḷārikassapi kho ahaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, attapaṭilābhassa pahānāya dhammaṁ desemi:
I teach the Dhamma for the giving up of these three kinds of reincarnation:

‘yathāpaṭipannānaṁ vo saṅkilesikā dhammā pahīyissanti, vodāniyā dhammā abhivaḍḍhissanti, paññāpāripūriṁ vepullattañca diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharissathā’ti.
‘When you practice accordingly, corrupting qualities will be given up in you and cleansing qualities will grow. You’ll enter and remain in the fullness and abundance of wisdom, having realized it with your own insight in this very life.’

Siyā kho pana te, poṭṭhapāda, evamassa:
Poṭṭhapāda, you might think:

‘saṅkilesikā dhammā pahīyissanti, vodāniyā dhammā abhivaḍḍhissanti, paññāpāripūriṁ vepullattañca diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharissati, dukkho ca kho vihāro’ti.
‘Corrupting qualities will be given up and cleansing qualities will grow. One will enter and remain in the fullness and abundance of wisdom, having realized it with one’s own insight in this very life. But such a life is suffering.’

Na kho panetaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, evaṁ daṭṭhabbaṁ.
But you should not see it like this.

Saṅkilesikā ceva dhammā pahīyissanti, vodāniyā ca dhammā abhivaḍḍhissanti, paññāpāripūriṁ vepullattañca diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharissati, pāmujjañceva bhavissati pīti ca passaddhi ca sati ca sampajaññañca sukho ca vihāro.
Corrupting qualities will be given up and cleansing qualities will grow. One will enter and remain in the fullness and abundance of wisdom, having realized it with one’s own insight in this very life. And there will be only joy and happiness, tranquility, mindfulness and awareness. Such a life is blissful.

Manomayassapi kho ahaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, attapaṭilābhassa pahānāya dhammaṁ desemi:

‘yathāpaṭipannānaṁ vo saṅkilesikā dhammā pahīyissanti, vodāniyā dhammā abhivaḍḍhissanti, paññāpāripūriṁ vepullattañca diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharissathā’ti.

Arūpassapi kho ahaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, attapaṭilābhassa pahānāya dhammaṁ desemi:

‘yathāpaṭipannānaṁ vo saṅkilesikā dhammā pahīyissanti, vodāniyā dhammā abhivaḍḍhissanti, paññāpāripūriṁ vepullattañca diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharissathā’ti.

Siyā kho pana te, poṭṭhapāda, evamassa:

‘saṅkilesikā dhammā pahīyissanti, vodāniyā dhammā abhivaḍḍhissanti, paññāpāripūriṁ vepullattañca diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharissati, dukkho ca kho vihāro’ti.

Na kho panetaṁ, poṭṭhapāda, evaṁ daṭṭhabbaṁ.

Saṅkilesikā ceva dhammā pahīyissanti, vodāniyā ca dhammā abhivaḍḍhissanti, paññāpāripūriṁ vepullattañca diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharissati, pāmujjañceva bhavissati pīti ca passaddhi ca sati ca sampajaññañca sukho ca vihāro.

Not long after his ordination, Venerable Citta Hatthisāriputta, living alone, withdrawn, diligent, keen, and resolute, soon realized the supreme end of the spiritual path in this very life. He lived having achieved with his own insight the goal for which gentlemen rightly go forth from the lay life to homelessness.

“khīṇā jāti, vusitaṁ brahmacariyaṁ, kataṁ karaṇīyaṁ, nāparaṁ itthAttāyā”ti abbhaññāsi.

10. Subhasutta

With Subha

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ āyasmā ānando sāvatthiyaṁ viharati jetavane anāthapiṇḍikassa ārāme aciraparinibbute bhagavati.
At one time Venerable Ānanda was staying near Sāvatthī in Jeta's Grove, Anāthapiṇḍika's monastery. It was not long after the Buddha had become fully extinguished.

Tena kho pana samayena subho māṇavo todeyyaputto sāvatthiyaṁ paṭivasati kenacideva karaṇīyena.
Now at that time the brahmin student Subha, Todeyya's son, was residing in Sāvatthī on some business.

Atha kho subho māṇavo todeyyaputto aññataraṁ māṇavakaṁ āmantesi:
Then he addressed a certain student,

"ehi tvaṁ, māṇavaka, yena samaṇo ānando tenupasaṅkama; upasaṅkamitvā mama vacanena samaṇaṁ ānandaṁ appābādhaṁ appātaṅkaṁ lahuṭṭhānaṁ balaṁ phāsuvihāraṁ puccha:
"Here, student, go to the ascetic Ānanda and in my name bow with your head to his feet. Ask him if he is healthy and well, nimble, strong, and living comfortably.

'subho māṇavo todeyyaputto bhavantaṁ ānandaṁ appābādhaṁ appātaṅkaṁ lahuṭṭhānaṁ balaṁ phāsuvihāraṁ pucchatī'ti.

Evañca vadehi:

And then say:

‘sādhu kira bhavaṁ ānando yena subhassa māṇavassa todeyyaputtassa nivesanaṁ tenupasaṅkamatu anukampaṁ upādāyā’”ti.
‘Sir, please visit the student Subha, Todeyya’s son, at his home out of compassion.’”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho so māṇavako subhassa māṇavassa todeyyaputtassa paṭissutvā yenāyasmā ānando tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā āyasmatā ānandena saddhiṁ sammodi.
“Yes, sir,” replied the student, and did as he was asked.

Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho so māṇavako āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ etadavoca:

“subho māṇavo todeyyaputto bhavantaṁ ānandaṁ appābādhaṁ appātaṅkaṁ lahuṭṭhānaṁ balaṁ phāsuvihāraṁ pucchati;

evañca vadeti:

‘sādhu kira bhavaṁ ānando yena subhassa māṇavassa todeyyaputtassa nivesanaṁ tenupasaṅkamatu anukampaṁ upādāyā’”ti.

Evaṁ vutte, āyasmā ānando taṁ māṇavakaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, Venerable Ānanda said to him,

I’ve drunk sufficient refreshments for today.

Appevanāma svepi upasaṅkameyyāma kālañca samayañca upādāyā”ti.
But hopefully tomorrow I’ll get a chance to visit him.”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho so māṇavako āyasmato ānandassa paṭissutvā uṭṭhāyāsanā yena subho māṇavo todeyyaputto tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā subhaṁ māṇavaṁ todeyyaputtaṁ etadavoca:
“Yes, sir,” replied the student. He went back to Subha, and told him what had happened, adding,

“avocumhā kho mayaṁ bhoto vacanena taṁ bhavantaṁ ānandaṁ:

‘subho māṇavo todeyyaputto bhavantaṁ ānandaṁ appābādhaṁ appātaṅkaṁ lahuṭṭhānaṁ balaṁ phāsuvihāraṁ pucchati, evañca vadeti:

Evaṁ vutte, bho, samaṇo ānando maṁ etadavoca:

‘akālo kho, māṇavaka.

Ettāvatāpi kho, bho, katameva etaṁ, yato kho so bhavaṁ ānando okāsamakāsi svātanāyapi upasaṅkamanāyā”ti.
“This much, sir, I managed to do. At least Master Ānanda will take the opportunity to visit tomorrow.”

Atha kho āyasmā ānando tassā rattiyā accayena pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya cetakena bhikkhunā pacchāsamaṇena yena subhassa māṇavassa todeyyaputtassa nivesanaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā paññatte āsane nisīdi. Atha kho subho māṇavo todeyyaputto yenāyasmā ānando tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā āyasmatā ānandena saddhiṁ sammodi.

Then when the night had passed, Ānanda robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, went with Venerable Cetaka as his second monk to Subha's home, where he sat on the seat spread out. Then Subha went up to Ānanda, and exchanged greetings with him.

Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho subho māṇavo todeyyaputto āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ etadavoca:
When the greetings and polite conversation were over, he sat down to one side and said to Ānanda:

"bhavañhi ānando tassa bhoto gotamassa dīgharattaṁ upaṭṭhāko santikāvacaro samīpacārī.
"Master Ānanda, you were Master Gotama's attendant. You were close to him, living in his presence.

Bhavametaṁ ānando jāneyya, yesaṁ so bhavaṁ gotamo dhammānaṁ vaṇṇavādī ahosi, yattha ca imaṁ janataṁ samādapesi nivesesi patiṭṭhāpesi.
You ought to know what things Master Gotama praised, and in which he encouraged, settled, and grounded all these people.

Katamesānaṁ kho, bho ānanda, dhammānaṁ so bhavaṁ gotamo vaṇṇavādī ahosi; kattha ca imaṁ janataṁ samādapesi nivesesi patiṭṭhāpesī"ti?
What were those things?"

"Tiṇṇaṁ kho, māṇava, khandhānaṁ so bhagavā vaṇṇavādī ahosi; ettha ca imaṁ janataṁ samādapesi nivesesi patiṭṭhāpesi.
"Student, the Buddha praised three sets of things, and that's what he encouraged, settled, and grounded all these people in.

Katamesaṁ tiṇṇaṁ?
What three?

Ariyassa sīlakkhandhassa, ariyassa samādhikkhandhassa, ariyassa paññākkhandhassa.
The entire spectrum of noble ethics, immersion, and wisdom.

Imesaṁ kho, māṇava, tiṇṇaṁ khandhānaṁ so bhagavā vaṇṇavādī ahosi; ettha ca imaṁ janataṁ samādapesi nivesesi patiṭṭhāpesī”ti.
These are the three sets of things that the Buddha praised.”

1. Sīlakkhandha

1. The Entire Spectrum of Ethics

“Katamo pana so, bho ānanda, ariyo sīlakkhandho, yassa so bhavaṁ gotamo vaṇṇavādī ahosi, yattha ca imaṁ janataṁ samādapesi nivesesi patiṭṭhāpesī”ti?
“But what was that noble spectrum of ethics that the Buddha praised?”

“Idha, māṇava, tathāgato loke uppajjati arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavā.
“Student, it’s when a Realized One arises in the world, perfected, a fully awakened Buddha, accomplished in knowledge and conduct, holy, knower of the world, supreme guide for those who wish to train, teacher of gods and humans, awakened, blessed.

So imaṁ lokaṁ sadevakaṁ samārakaṁ sabrahmakaṁ sassamaṇabrāhmaṇiṁ pajaṁ sadevamanussaṁ sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā pavedeti.
He has realized with his own insight this world—with its gods, Māras and Brahmās, this population with its ascetics and brahmins, gods and humans—and he makes it known to others.

So dhammaṁ deseti ādikalyāṇaṁ majjhekalyāṇaṁ pariyosānakalyāṇaṁ sātthaṁ sabyañjanaṁ kevalaparipuṇṇaṁ parisuddhaṁ brahmacariyaṁ pakāseti.
He teaches Dhamma that’s good in the beginning, good in the middle, and good in the end, meaningful and well-phrased. And he reveals a spiritual practice that’s entirely full and pure.

Taṁ dhammaṁ suṇāti gahapati vā gahapatiputto vā aññatarasmiṁ vā kule paccājāto.
A householder hears that teaching, or a householder’s child, or someone reborn in some clan.

So taṁ dhammaṁ sutvā tathāgate saddhaṁ paṭilabhati.
They gain faith in the Realized One,

So tena saddhāpaṭilābhena samannāgato iti paṭisañcikkhati:
and reflect:

‘sambādho gharāvāso rajopatho, abbhokāso pabbajjā,
‘Living in a house is cramped and dirty, but the life of one gone forth is wide open.

nayidaṁ sukaraṁ agāraṁ ajjhāvasatā ekantaparipuṇṇaṁ ekantaparisuddhaṁ saṅkhalikhitaṁ brahmacariyaṁ carituṁ.
It’s not easy for someone living at home to lead the spiritual life utterly full and pure, like a polished shell.

Yannūnāhaṁ kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajeyyan’ti.
Why don’t I shave off my hair and beard, dress in ocher robes, and go forth from the lay life to homelessness?’

So aparena samayena appaṁ vā bhogakkhandhaṁ pahāya mahantaṁ vā bhogakkhandhaṁ pahāya appaṁ vā ñātiparivaṭṭaṁ pahāya mahantaṁ vā ñātiparivaṭṭaṁ pahāya kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajati.
After some time they give up a large or small fortune, and a large or small family circle. They shave off hair and beard, dress in ocher robes, and go forth from the lay life to homelessness.

So evaṁ pabbajito samāno pātimokkhasaṁvarasaṁvuto viharati, ācāragocarasampanno, anumattesu vajjesu bhayadassāvī, samādāya sikkhati sikkhāpadesu, kāyakammavacīkammena samannāgato kusalena, parisuddhājīvo, sīlasampanno, indriyesu guttadvāro, satisampajaññena samannāgato, santuṭṭho.

Once they've gone forth, they live restrained in the monastic code, conducting themselves well and seeking alms in suitable places. Seeing danger in the slightest fault, they keep the rules they've undertaken. They act skillfully by body and speech. They're purified in livelihood and accomplished in ethical conduct. They guard the sense doors, have mindfulness and situational awareness, and are content.

Kathañca, māṇava, bhikkhu sīlasampanno hoti?
And how is a mendicant accomplished in ethics?

Sa kho so, māṇava, bhikkhu evaṁ sīlasampanno na kutoci bhayaṁ samanupassati, yadidaṁ sīlasaṁvarato.
A mendicant thus accomplished in ethics sees no danger in any quarter in regards to their ethical restraint.

Seyyathāpi, māṇava, rājā khattiyo muddhāvasitto nihatapaccāmitto na kutoci bhayaṁ samanupassati, yadidaṁ paccatthikato;
It’s like a king who has defeated his enemies. He sees no danger from his foes in any quarter.

evameva kho, māṇava, bhikkhu evaṁ sīlasampanno na kutoci bhayaṁ samanupassati, yadidaṁ sīlasaṁvarato.
A mendicant thus accomplished in ethics sees no danger in any quarter in regards to their ethical restraint.

So iminā ariyena sīlakkhandhena samannāgato ajjhattaṁ anavajjasukhaṁ paṭisaṁvedeti.
When they have this entire spectrum of noble ethics, they experience a blameless happiness inside themselves.

Evaṁ kho, māṇava, bhikkhu sīlasampanno hoti.
That's how a mendicant is accomplished in ethics.

Ayaṁ kho so, māṇava, ariyo sīlakkhandho yassa so bhagavā vaṇṇavādī ahosi, yattha ca imaṁ janataṁ samādapesi nivesesi patiṭṭhāpesi.
This is that noble spectrum of ethics that the Buddha praised.

Atthi cevettha uttarikaraṇīyan"ti.
But there is still more to be done."

"Acchariyaṁ, bho ānanda, abbhutaṁ, bho ānanda.
"It's incredible, Master Ānanda, it's amazing,

So cāyaṁ, bho ānanda, ariyo sīlakkhandho paripuṇṇo, no aparipuṇṇo.
This noble spectrum of ethics is complete, not lacking anything!

Evaṁ paripuṇṇañcāhaṁ, bho ānanda, ariyaṁ sīlakkhandhaṁ ito bahiddhā aññesu samaṇabrāhmaṇesu na samanupassāmi.
Such a complete spectrum of ethics cannot be seen among the other ascetics and brahmins.

Evaṁ paripuṇṇañca, bho ānanda, ariyaṁ sīlakkhandhaṁ ito bahiddhā aññe samaṇabrāhmaṇā attani samanupasseyyuṁ, te tāvatakeneva attamanā assu:
Were other ascetics and brahmins to see such a complete spectrum of noble ethics in themselves, they'd be delighted with just that much:

‘alamettāvatā, katamettāvatā, anuppatto no sāmaññattho, natthi no kiñci uttarikaraṇīyan’ti.
‘At this point it’s enough; at this point our work is done. We’ve reached the goal of our ascetic life. There is nothing more to be done.’

Atha ca pana bhavaṁ ānando evamāha:
And yet you say:

‘atthi cevettha uttarikaraṇīyan’”ti.
‘But there is still more to be done.’

2. Samādhikkhandha

2. The Spectrum of Immersion

“Katamo pana so, bho ānanda, ariyo samādhikkhandho, yassa so bhavaṁ gotamo vaṇṇavādī ahosi, yattha ca imaṁ janataṁ samādapesi nivesesi patiṭṭhāpesī”ti?
But what, Master Ānanda, was that noble spectrum of immersion that the Buddha praised?”

“Kathañca, māṇava, bhikkhu indriyesu guttadvāro hoti?
“And how, student, does a mendicant guard the sense doors?

Idha, māṇava, bhikkhu cakkhunā rūpaṁ disvā na nimittaggāhī hoti nānubyañjanaggāhī;
When a mendicant sees a sight with their eyes, they don’t get caught up in the features and details.

yatvādhikaraṇamenaṁ cakkhundriyaṁ asaṁvutaṁ viharantaṁ abhijjhādomanassā pāpakā akusalā dhammā anvāssaveyyuṁ; tassa saṁvarāya paṭipajjati, rakkhati cakkhundriyaṁ, cakkhundriye saṁvaraṁ āpajjati.
If the faculty of sight were left unrestrained, bad unskillful qualities of desire and aversion would become overwhelming. For this reason, they practice restraint, protecting the faculty of sight, and achieving its restraint.

Sotena saddaṁ sutvā …pe…
When they hear a sound with their ears …

ghānena gandhaṁ ghāyitvā …
When they smell an odor with their nose …

jivhāya rasaṁ sāyitvā …
When they taste a flavor with their tongue …

kāyena phoṭṭhabbaṁ phusitvā …
When they feel a touch with their body …

manasā dhammaṁ viññāya na nimittaggāhī hoti nānubyañjanaggāhī;
When they know a thought with their mind, they don't get caught up in the features and details.

yatvādhikaraṇamenaṁ manindriyaṁ asaṁvutaṁ viharantaṁ abhijjhādomanassā pāpakā akusalā dhammā anvāssaveyyuṁ; tassa saṁvarāya paṭipajjati, rakkhati manindriyaṁ, manindriye saṁvaraṁ āpajjati.
If the faculty of mind were left unrestrained, bad unskillful qualities of desire and aversion would become overwhelming. For this reason, they practice restraint, protecting the faculty of mind, and achieving its restraint.

So iminā ariyena indriyasaṁvarena samannāgato ajjhattaṁ abyāsekasukhaṁ paṭisaṁvedeti.
When they have this noble sense restraint, they experience an unsullied bliss inside themselves.

Evaṁ kho, māṇava, bhikkhu indriyesu guttadvāro hoti.
That's how a mendicant guards the sense doors.

Kathañca, māṇava, bhikkhu satisampajaññena samannāgato hoti?

And how does a mendicant have mindfulness and situational awareness?

Idha, māṇava, bhikkhu abhikkante paṭikkante sampajānakārī hoti, ālokite vilokite sampajānakārī hoti, samiñjite pasārite sampajānakārī hoti, saṅghāṭipattacīvaradhāraṇe sampajānakārī hoti, asite pīte khāyite sāyite sampajānakārī hoti, uccārapassāvakamme sampajānakārī hoti, gate ṭhite nisinne sutte jāgarite bhāsite tuṇhībhāve sampajānakārī hoti.
It's when a mendicant acts with situational awareness when going out and coming back; when looking ahead and aside; when bending and extending the limbs; when bearing the outer robe, bowl and robes; when eating, drinking, chewing, and tasting; when urinating and defecating; when walking, standing, sitting, sleeping, waking, speaking, and keeping silent.

Evaṁ kho, māṇava, bhikkhu satisampajaññena samannāgato hoti.
That's how a mendicant has mindfulness and situational awareness.

Kathañca, māṇava, bhikkhu santuṭṭho hoti?
And how is a mendicant content?

Idha, māṇava, bhikkhu santuṭṭho hoti kāyaparihārikena cīvarena kucchiparihārikena piṇḍapātena. So yena yeneva pakkamati, samādāyeva pakkamati.
It's when a mendicant is content with robes to look after the body and alms-food to look after the belly. Wherever they go, they set out taking only these things.

Seyyathāpi, māṇava, pakkhī sakuṇo yena yeneva ḍeti, sapattabhārova ḍeti;
They're like a bird: wherever it flies, wings are its only burden.

evameva kho, māṇava, bhikkhu santuṭṭho hoti kāyaparihārikena cīvarena kucchiparihārikena piṇḍapātena. So yena yeneva pakkamati, samādāyeva pakkamati.

In the same way, a mendicant is content with robes to look after the body and alms-food to look after the belly. Wherever they go, they set out taking only these things.

Evaṁ kho, māṇava, bhikkhu santuṭṭho hoti.
That’s how a mendicant is content.

So iminā ca ariyena sīlakkhandhena samannāgato, iminā ca ariyena indriyasaṁvarena samannāgato, iminā ca ariyena satisampajaññena samannāgato, imāya ca ariyāya santuṭṭhiyā samannāgato
When they have this noble spectrum of ethics, this noble sense restraint, this noble mindfulness and situational awareness, and this noble contentment, vivittaṁ senāsanaṁ bhajati araññaṁ rukkhamūlaṁ pabbataṁ kandaraṁ giriguhaṁ susānaṁ vanapatthaṁ abbhokāsaṁ palālapuñjaṁ.

they frequent a secluded lodging—a wilderness, the root of a tree, a hill, a ravine, a mountain cave, a charnel ground, a forest, the open air, a heap of straw.

So pacchābhattaṁ piṇḍapātapaṭikkanto nisīdati pallaṅkaṁ ābhujitvā, ujuṁ kāyaṁ paṇidhāya, parimukhaṁ satiṁ upaṭṭhapetvā.
After the meal, they return from alms-round, sit down cross-legged with their body straight, and establish mindfulness right there.

So abhijjhaṁ loke pahāya vigatābhijjhena cetasā viharati abhijjhāya cittaṁ parisodheti.
Giving up desire for the world, they meditate with a heart rid of desire, cleansing the mind of desire.

Byāpādapadosaṁ pahāya abyāpannacitto viharati sabbapāṇabhūtahitānukampī byāpādapadosā cittaṁ parisodheti.

Giving up ill will and malevolence, they meditate with a mind rid of ill will, full of compassion for all living beings, cleansing the mind of ill will.

Thinamiddhaṁ pahāya vigatathinamiddho viharati ālokasaññī sato sampajāno, thinamiddhā cittaṁ parisodheti.
Giving up dullness and drowsiness, they meditate with a mind rid of dullness and drowsiness, perceiving light, mindful and aware, cleansing the mind of dullness and drowsiness.

Uddhaccakukkuccaṁ pahāya anuddhato viharati ajjhattaṁ vūpasantacitto uddhaccakukkuccā cittaṁ parisodheti.
Giving up restlessness and remorse, they meditate without restlessness, their mind peaceful inside, cleansing the mind of restlessness and remorse.

Vicikicchaṁ pahāya tiṇṇavicikiccho viharati akathaṅkathī kusalesu dhammesu, vicikicchāya cittaṁ parisodheti.
Giving up doubt, they meditate having gone beyond doubt, not undecided about skillful qualities, cleansing the mind of doubt.

Seyyathāpi, māṇava, puriso iṇaṁ ādāya kammante payojeyya.
Suppose a man who has gotten into debt were to apply himself to work,

Tassa te kammantā samijjheyyuṁ.
and his efforts proved successful.

So yāni ca porāṇāni iṇamūlāni tāni ca byantiṁ kareyya, siyā cassa uttariṁ avasiṭṭhaṁ dārabharaṇāya.
He would pay off the original loan and have enough left over to support his partner.

Tassa evamassa:
Thinking about this,

‘ahaṁ kho pubbe iṇaṁ ādāya kammante payojesiṁ.

Tassa me te kammantā samijjhiṁsu.

Sohaṁ yāni ca porāṇāni iṇamūlāni tāni ca byantiṁ akāsiṁ, atthi ca me uttariṁ avasiṭṭhaṁ dārabharaṇāyā’ti.

So tatonidānaṁ labhetha pāmojjaṁ, adhigaccheyya somanassaṁ.
he’d be filled with joy and happiness.

Seyyathāpi, māṇava, puriso ābādhiko assa dukkhito bāḷhagilāno; bhattañcassa nacchādeyya, na cassa kāye balamattā.
Suppose there was a person who was sick, suffering, gravely ill. They’d lose their appetite and get physically weak.

So aparena samayena tamhā ābādhā mucceyya, bhattañcassa chādeyya, siyā cassa kāye balamattā.
But after some time they’d recover from that illness, and regain their appetite and their strength.

Tassa evamassa:
Thinking about this,

‘ahaṁ kho pubbe ābādhiko ahosiṁ dukkhito bāḷhagilāno, bhattañca me nacchādesi, na ca me āsi kāye balamattā.

Somhi etarahi tamhā ābādhā mutto bhattañca me chādeti, atthi ca me kāye balamattā’ti.

So tatonidānaṁ labhetha pāmojjaṁ, adhigaccheyya somanassaṁ.
they’d be filled with joy and happiness.

Seyyathāpi, māṇava, puriso bandhanāgāre baddho assa.
Suppose a person was imprisoned in a jail.

So aparena samayena tamhā bandhanāgārā mucceyya sotthinā abbhayena, na cassa kiñci bhogānaṁ vayo.
But after some time they were released from jail, safe and sound, with no loss of wealth.

Tassa evamassa:

Thinking about this,

‘ahaṁ kho pubbe bandhanāgāre baddho ahosiṁ.

Somhi etarahi tamhā bandhanāgārā mutto sotthinā abbhayena, natthi ca me kiñci bhogānaṁ vayo’ti.

So tatonidānaṁ labhetha pāmojjaṁ, adhigaccheyya somanassaṁ.
they’d be filled with joy and happiness.

Seyyathāpi, māṇava, puriso dāso assa anattādhīno parādhīno na yenakāmaṅgamo.
Suppose a person was a bondservant. They belonged to someone else and were unable to go where they wish.

So aparena samayena tamhā dāsabyā mucceyya, attādhīno aparādhīno bhujisso yenakāmaṅgamo.
But after some time they’d be freed from servitude and become their own master, an emancipated individual able to go where they wish.

Tassa evamassa:
Thinking about this,

‘ahaṁ kho pubbe dāso ahosiṁ anattādhīno parādhīno na yenakāmaṅgamo.

Somhi etarahi tamhā dāsabyā mutto attādhīno aparādhīno bhujisso yenakāmaṅgamo’ti.

So tatonidānaṁ labhetha pāmojjaṁ, adhigaccheyya somanassaṁ.
they’d be filled with joy and happiness.

Seyyathāpi, māṇava, puriso sadhano sabhogo kantāraddhānamaggaṁ paṭipajjeyya dubbhikkhaṁ sappaṭibhayaṁ.
Suppose there was a person with wealth and property who was traveling along a desert road, which was perilous, with nothing to eat.

So aparena samayena taṁ kantāraṁ nitthareyya, sotthinā gāmantaṁ anupāpuṇeyya khemaṁ appaṭibhayaṁ.
But after some time they crossed over the desert safely, reaching the neighborhood of a village, a sanctuary free of peril.

Tassa evamassa:
Thinking about this,

‘ahaṁ kho pubbe sadhano sabhogo kantāraddhānamaggaṁ paṭipajjiṁ dubbhikkhaṁ sappaṭibhayaṁ.

Somhi etarahi taṁ kantāraṁ nitthiṇṇo, sotthinā gāmantaṁ anuppatto khemaṁ appaṭibhayan’ti.

So tatonidānaṁ labhetha pāmojjaṁ, adhigaccheyya somanassaṁ.
they’d be filled with joy and happiness.

Evameva kho, māṇava, bhikkhu yathā iṇaṁ yathā rogaṁ yathā bandhanāgāraṁ yathā dāsabyaṁ yathā kantāraddhānamaggaṁ, evaṁ ime pañca nīvaraṇe appahīne attani samanupassati.
In the same way, as long as these five hindrances are not given up inside themselves, a mendicant regards them as a debt, a disease, a prison, slavery, and a desert crossing.

Seyyathāpi, māṇava, yathā āṇaṇyaṁ yathā ārogyaṁ yathā bandhanāmokkhaṁ yathā bhujissaṁ yathā khemantabhūmiṁ.
But when these five hindrances are given up inside themselves, a mendicant regards this as freedom from debt, good health, release from prison, emancipation, and sanctuary.

Evameva kho bhikkhu ime pañca nīvaraṇe pahīne attani samanupassati.

Tassime pañca nīvaraṇe pahīne attani samanupassato pāmojjaṁ jāyati, pamuditassa pīti jāyati, pītimanassa kāyo passambhati, passaddhakāyo sukhaṁ vedeti, sukhino cittaṁ samādhiyati.

Seeing that the hindrances have been given up in them, joy springs up. Being joyful, rapture springs up. When the mind is full of rapture, the body becomes tranquil. When the body is tranquil, they feel bliss. And when blissful, the mind becomes immersed.

So vivicceva kāmehi vivicca akusalehi dhammehi savitakkaṁ savicāraṁ vivekajaṁ pītisukhaṁ paṭhamaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
Quite secluded from sensual pleasures, secluded from unskillful qualities, they enter and remain in the first absorption, which has the rapture and bliss born of seclusion, while placing the mind and keeping it connected.

So imameva kāyaṁ vivekajena pītisukhena abhisandeti parisandeti paripūreti parippharati, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa vivekajena pītisukhena apphuṭaṁ hoti.
They drench, steep, fill, and spread their body with rapture and bliss born of seclusion. There’s no part of the body that’s not spread with rapture and bliss born of seclusion.

Seyyathāpi, māṇava, dakkho nhāpako vā nhāpakantevāsī vā kaṁsathāle nhānīyacuṇṇāni ākiritvā udakena paripphosakaṁ paripphosakaṁ sanneyya. Sāyaṁ nhānīyapiṇḍi snehānugatā snehaparetā santarabāhirā phuṭā snehena, na ca paggharaṇī.
It’s like when a deft bathroom attendant or their apprentice pours bath powder into a bronze dish, sprinkling it little by little with water. They knead it until the ball of bath powder is soaked and saturated with moisture, spread through inside and out; yet no moisture oozes out.

Evameva kho, māṇava, bhikkhu imameva kāyaṁ vivekajena pītisukhena abhisandeti parisandeti paripūreti parippharati, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa vivekajena pītisukhena apphuṭaṁ hoti.

In the same way, a mendicant drenches, steeps, fills, and spreads their body with rapture and bliss born of seclusion. There’s no part of the body that’s not spread with rapture and bliss born of seclusion.

Yampi, māṇava, bhikkhu vivicceva kāmehi vivicca akusalehi dhammehi savitakkaṁ savicāraṁ vivekajaṁ pītisukhaṁ paṭhamaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.

So imameva kāyaṁ vivekajena pītisukhena abhisandeti parisandeti paripūreti parippharati, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa vivekajena pītisukhena apphuṭaṁ hoti.

Idampissa hoti samādhismiṁ.
This pertains to their immersion.

Puna caparaṁ, māṇava, bhikkhu vitakkavicārānaṁ vūpasamā ajjhattaṁ sampasādanaṁ cetaso ekodibhāvaṁ avitakkaṁ avicāraṁ samādhijaṁ pītisukhaṁ dutiyaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
Furthermore, as the placing of the mind and keeping it connected are stilled, a mendicant enters and remains in the second absorption, which has the rapture and bliss born of immersion, with internal clarity and confidence, and unified mind, without placing the mind and keeping it connected.

With clairvoyance that is purified and superhuman, they see sentient beings passing away and being reborn—inferior and superior, beautiful and ugly, in a good place or a bad place. They understand how sentient beings are reborn according to their deeds. ‘These dear beings did bad things by way of body, speech, and mind. They spoke ill of the noble ones; they had wrong view; and they chose to act out of that wrong view. When their body breaks up, after death, they’re reborn in a place of loss, a bad place, the underworld, hell. These dear beings, however, did good things by way of body, speech, and mind. They never spoke ill of the noble ones; they had right view; and they chose to act out of that right view. When their body breaks up, after death, they’re reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.’ And so, with clairvoyance that is purified and superhuman, they see sentient beings passing away and being reborn—inferior and superior, beautiful and ugly, in a good place or a bad place. They understand how sentient beings are reborn according to their deeds.

11. Kevaṭṭasutta

With Kevaddha

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā nāḷandāyaṁ viharati pāvārikambavane.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Nālandā in Pāvārika’s mango grove.

Atha kho kevaṭṭo gahapatiputto yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho kevaṭṭo gahapatiputto bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then the householder Kevaddha went up to the Buddha, bowed, sat down to one side, and said to him, “ayaṁ, bhante, nāḷandā iddhā ceva phītā ca bahujanā ākiṇṇamanussā bhagavati abhippasannā.

“Sir, this Nāḷandā is successful and prosperous and full of people.

Sādhu, bhante, bhagavā ekaṁ bhikkhuṁ samādisatu, yo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissati;
Sir, please direct a mendicant to perform a demonstration of superhuman psychic power.

evāyaṁ nāḷandā bhiyyoso mattāya bhagavati abhippasīdissatī”ti.
Then Nāḷandā will become even more devoted to the Buddha!”

Evaṁ vutte, bhagavā kevaṭṭaṁ gahapatiputtaṁ etadavoca:
When he said this, The Buddha said,

“na kho ahaṁ, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhūnaṁ evaṁ dhammaṁ desemi:
“Kevaddha, I do not teach the mendicants like this:

‘etha tumhe, bhikkhave, gihīnaṁ odātavasanānaṁ uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karothā’”ti.
‘Come now, mendicants, perform a demonstration of superhuman psychic power for the white-clothed laypeople.’”

Dutiyampi kho kevaṭṭo gahapatiputto bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
For a second time, Kevaddha made the same request,

“nāhaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ dhaṁsemi;

api ca evaṁ vadāmi:

‘ayaṁ, bhante, nāḷandā iddhā ceva phītā ca bahujanā ākiṇṇamanussā bhagavati abhippasannā.

Sādhu, bhante, bhagavā ekaṁ bhikkhuṁ samādisatu, yo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissati;

evāyaṁ nāḷandā bhiyyoso mattāya bhagavati abhippasīdissatī’”ti.

Dutiyampi kho bhagavā kevaṭṭaṁ gahapatiputtaṁ etadavoca:
and the Buddha gave the same answer.

“na kho ahaṁ, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhūnaṁ evaṁ dhammaṁ desemi:

‘etha tumhe, bhikkhave, gihīnaṁ odātavasanānaṁ uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karothā’”ti.

Tatiyampi kho kevaṭṭo gahapatiputto bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
For a third time, Kevaddha made the same request,

“nāhaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ dhaṁsemi;

api ca evaṁ vadāmi:

‘ayaṁ, bhante, nāḷandā iddhā ceva phītā ca bahujanā ākiṇṇamanussā bhagavati abhippasannā.

Sādhu, bhante, bhagavā ekaṁ bhikkhuṁ samādisatu, yo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissati.

Evāyaṁ nāḷandā bhiyyoso mattāya bhagavati abhippasīdissatī’”ti.
and the Buddha said the following.

1. Iddhipāṭihāriya
1. The Demonstration of Psychic Power

“Tīṇi kho imāni, kevaṭṭa, pāṭihāriyāni mayā sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā paveditāni.
“Kevaddha, there are three kinds of demonstration, which I declare having realized them with my own insight.

Katamāni tīṇi?
What three?

Iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ, ādesanāpāṭihāriyaṁ, anusāsanīpāṭihāriyaṁ.
The demonstration of psychic power, the demonstration of revealing, and the demonstration of instruction.

Katamañca, kevaṭṭa, iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ?
And what is the demonstration of psychic power?

Idha, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu anekavihitaṁ iddhividhaṁ paccanubhoti —ekopi hutvā bahudhā hoti, bahudhāpi hutvā eko hoti; āvibhāvaṁ tirobhāvaṁ tirokuṭṭaṁ tiropākāraṁ tiropabbataṁ asajjamāno gacchati seyyathāpi ākāse; pathaviyāpi ummujjanimujjaṁ karoti seyyathāpi udake; udakepi abhijjamāne gacchati seyyathāpi pathaviyaṁ; ākāsepi pallaṅkena kamati seyyathāpi pakkhī sakuṇo; imepi candimasūriye evaṁ mahiddhike evaṁ mahānubhāve pāṇinā parāmasati parimajjati; yāva brahmalokāpi kāyena vasaṁ vatteti.

It’s a mendicant who wields the many kinds of psychic power: multiplying themselves and becoming one again; going unimpeded through a wall, a rampart, or a mountain as if through space; diving in and out of the earth as if it were water; walking on water as if it were earth; flying cross-legged through the sky like a bird; touching and stroking with the hand the sun and moon, so mighty and powerful; controlling the body as far as the Brahmā realm.

Tamenaṁ aññataro saddho pasanno passati taṁ bhikkhuṁ anekavihitaṁ iddhividhaṁ paccanubhontaṁ—ekopi hutvā bahudhā hontaṁ, bahudhāpi hutvā eko hontaṁ; āvibhāvaṁ tirobhāvaṁ; tirokuṭṭaṁ tiropākāraṁ tiropabbataṁ asajjamānaṁ gacchantaṁ seyyathāpi ākāse; pathaviyāpi ummujjanimujjaṁ karontaṁ seyyathāpi udake; udakepi abhijjamāne gacchantaṁ seyyathāpi pathaviyaṁ; ākāsepi pallaṅkena kamantaṁ seyyathāpi pakkhī sakuṇo; imepi candimasūriye evaṁ mahiddhike evaṁ mahānubhāve pāṇinā parāmasantaṁ parimajjantaṁ yāva brahmalokāpi kāyena vasaṁ vattentaṁ.
Then someone with faith and confidence sees that mendicant performing those superhuman feats.

Tamenaṁ so saddho pasanno aññatarassa assaddhassa appasannassa āroceti:
They tell someone else who lacks faith and confidence:

‘acchariyaṁ vata bho, abbhutaṁ vata bho, samaṇassa mahiddhikatā mahānubhāvatā.
‘It’s incredible, it’s amazing! The ascetic has such psychic power and might!

Amāhaṁ bhikkhuṁ addasaṁ anekavihitaṁ iddhividhaṁ paccanubhontaṁ—ekopi hutvā bahudhā hontaṁ, bahudhāpi hutvā eko hontaṁ …pe… yāva brahmalokāpi kāyena vasaṁ vattentan’ti.
I saw him myself, performing all these superhuman feats!’

Tamenaṁ so assaddho appasanno taṁ saddhaṁ pasannaṁ evaṁ vadeyya:
But the one lacking faith and confidence would say to them:

‘atthi kho, bho, gandhārī nāma vijjā.
‘There’s a spell named Gandhārī.

Tāya so bhikkhu anekavihitaṁ iddhividhaṁ paccanubhoti—ekopi hutvā bahudhā hoti, bahudhāpi hutvā eko hoti …pe… yāva brahmalokāpi kāyena vasaṁ vattetī’ti.
Using that a mendicant can perform such superhuman feats.’

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, kevaṭṭa,
What do you think, Kevaddha?

api nu so assaddho appasanno taṁ saddhaṁ pasannaṁ evaṁ vadeyyā”ti?
Wouldn’t someone lacking faith speak like that?”

“Vadeyya, bhante”ti.
“They would, sir.”

“Imaṁ kho ahaṁ, kevaṭṭa, iddhipāṭihāriye ādīnavaṁ sampassamāno iddhipāṭihāriyena aṭṭīyāmi harāyāmi jigucchāmi.
“Seeing this drawback in psychic power, I’m horrified, repelled, and disgusted by demonstrations of psychic power.

2. Ādesanāpāṭihāriya

2. The Demonstration of Revealing

Katamañca, kevaṭṭa, ādesanāpāṭihāriyaṁ?
And what is the demonstration of revealing?

Idha, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu parasattānaṁ parapuggalānaṁ cittampi ādisati, cetasikampi ādisati, vitakkitampi ādisati, vicāritampi ādisati:

In one case, someone reveals the mind, mentality, thoughts, and reflections of other beings and individuals:

‘evampi te mano, itthampi te mano, itipi te cittan’ti.
‘This is what you’re thinking, such is your thought, and thus is your state of mind.’

Tamenaṁ aññataro saddho pasanno passati taṁ bhikkhuṁ parasattānaṁ parapuggalānaṁ cittampi ādisantaṁ, cetasikampi ādisantaṁ, vitakkitampi ādisantaṁ, vicāritampi ādisantaṁ:
Then someone with faith and confidence sees that mendicant revealing another person’s thoughts.

‘evampi te mano, itthampi te mano, itipi te cittan’ti.

Tamenaṁ so saddho pasanno aññatarassa assaddhassa appasannassa āroceti:
They tell someone else who lacks faith and confidence:

‘acchariyaṁ vata bho, abbhutaṁ vata bho, samaṇassa mahiddhikatā mahānubhāvatā.

Amāhaṁ bhikkhuṁ addasaṁ parasattānaṁ parapuggalānaṁ cittampi ādisantaṁ, cetasikampi ādisantaṁ, vitakkitampi ādisantaṁ, vicāritampi ādisantaṁ:
I saw him myself, revealing the thoughts of another person!’

“evampi te mano, itthampi te mano, itipi te cittan”’ti.

Tamenaṁ so assaddho appasanno taṁ saddhaṁ pasannaṁ evaṁ vadeyya:
But the one lacking faith and confidence would say to them:

‘atthi kho, bho, maṇikā nāma vijjā;
‘There’s a spell named Māṇikā.

tāya so bhikkhu parasattānaṁ parapuggalānaṁ cittampi ādisati, cetasikampi ādisati, vitakkitampi ādisati, vicāritampi ādisati:
Using that a mendicant can reveal another person’s thoughts.’

“evampi te mano, itthampi te mano, itipi te cittan”’ti.

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, kevaṭṭa,
What do you think, Kevaddha?

api nu so assaddho appasanno taṁ saddhaṁ pasannaṁ evaṁ vadeyyā”ti?
Wouldn’t someone lacking faith speak like that?”

“Vadeyya, bhante”ti.
“They would, sir.”

“Imaṁ kho ahaṁ, kevaṭṭa, ādesanāpāṭihāriye ādīnavaṁ sampassamāno ādesanāpāṭihāriyena aṭṭīyāmi harāyāmi jigucchāmi.
“Seeing this drawback in psychic power, I’m horrified, repelled, and disgusted by demonstrations of psychic power.

3. Anusāsanīpāṭihāriya

3. The Demonstration of Instruction

Katamañca, kevaṭṭa, anusāsanīpāṭihāriyaṁ?
And what is the demonstration of instruction?

Idha, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu evamanusāsati:
It’s when a mendicant instructs others like this:

‘evaṁ vitakketha, mā evaṁ vitakkayittha, evaṁ manasikarotha, mā evaṁ manasākattha, idaṁ pajahatha, idaṁ upasampajja viharathā’ti.
‘Think like this, not like that. Focus your mind like this, not like that. Give up this, and live having achieved that.’

Idaṁ vuccati, kevaṭṭa, anusāsanīpāṭihāriyaṁ.
This is called the demonstration of instruction.

Puna caparaṁ, kevaṭṭa, idha tathāgato loke uppajjati arahaṁ sammāsambuddho …pe…
Furthermore, a Realized One arises in the world …

Evaṁ kho, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu sīlasampanno hoti …pe…
That’s how a mendicant is accomplished in ethics. …

Idampi vuccati, kevaṭṭa, anusāsanīpāṭihāriyaṁ …pe…
This too is called the demonstration of instruction.

ñāṇadassanāya cittaṁ abhinīharati abhininnāmeti …pe…
They extend and project the mind toward knowledge and vision …

idampi vuccati, kevaṭṭa, anusāsanīpāṭihāriyaṁ …pe…
This too is called the demonstration of instruction.

nāparaṁ itthattāyāti pajānāti …pe…
They understand: ‘… there is no return to any state of existence.’

idampi vuccati, kevaṭṭa, anusāsanīpāṭihāriyaṁ.
This too is called the demonstration of instruction.

Imāni kho, kevaṭṭa, tīṇi pāṭihāriyāni mayā sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā paveditāni.
These, Kevaddha, are the three kinds of demonstration, which I declare having realized them with my own insight.

4. Bhūtanirodhesakabhikkhuvatthu

4. On the Mendicant In Search of the Cessation of Being Bhūtapubbaṁ, kevaṭṭa, imasmiññeva bhikkhusaṅghe aññatarassa bhikkhuno evaṁ cetaso parivitakko udapādi:

Once it so happened, Kevaddha, that a mendicant in this very Saṅgha had the following thought, ‘kattha nu kho ime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū’ti?

‘Where do these four primary elements cease without anything left over, namely, the elements of earth, water, fire, and air?’

Atha kho so, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu tathārūpaṁ samādhiṁ samāpajji, yathāsamāhite citte devayāniyo maggo pāturahosi.
Then that mendicant attained a state of immersion such that a path to the gods appeared.

Atha kho so, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu yena cātumahārājikā devā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā cātumahārājike deve etadavoca:
Then he approached the Gods of the Four Great Kings and said,

‘kattha nu kho, āvuso, ime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū’ti?
‘Reverends, where do these four primary elements cease without anything left over, namely, the elements of earth, water, fire, and air?’

Evaṁ vutte, kevaṭṭa, cātumahārājikā devā taṁ bhikkhuṁ etadavocuṁ:
When he said this, those gods said to him,

‘mayampi kho, bhikkhu, na jānāma:
‘Mendicant, we too do not know this.

“yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”ti.

Atthi kho, bhikkhu, cattāro mahārājāno amhehi abhikkantatarā ca paṇītatarā ca.
But the Four Great Kings are our superiors.

Te kho etaṁ jāneyyuṁ:
They might know.’

“yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”’ti.

Atha kho so, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu yena cattāro mahārājāno tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā cattāro mahārāje etadavoca:
Then he approached the Four Great Kings and asked the same question.

‘kattha nu kho, āvuso, ime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū’ti?

Evaṁ vutte, kevaṭṭa, cattāro mahārājāno taṁ bhikkhuṁ etadavocuṁ:
But they also said to him,

‘mayampi kho, bhikkhu, na jānāma:
‘Mendicant, we too do not know this.

“yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu, āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”ti.

Atthi kho, bhikkhu, tāvatiṁsā nāma devā amhehi abhikkantatarā ca paṇītatarā ca.

“yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”’ti.

Atha kho so, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu yena tāvatiṁsā devā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā tāvatiṁse deve etadavoca:

‘kattha nu kho, āvuso, ime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū’ti?

Evaṁ vutte, kevaṭṭa, tāvatiṁsā devā taṁ bhikkhuṁ etadavocuṁ:

‘mayampi kho, bhikkhu, na jānāma:

“yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”ti.

Atthi kho, bhikkhu, sakko nāma devānamindo amhehi abhikkantataro ca paṇītataro ca.
Sakka, lord of gods …

So kho etaṁ jāneyya:

“yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”’ti.

‘kattha nu kho, āvuso, ime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū’ti?

Evaṁ vutte, kevaṭṭa, sakko devānamindo taṁ bhikkhuṁ etadavoca:

‘ahampi kho, bhikkhu, na jānāmi:

“yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”ti.

Atthi kho, bhikkhu, yāmā nāma devā …pe…
the gods of Yāmā …

So kho etaṁ jāneyya:

“yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”’ti.

Atha kho so, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu yena vasavattī devaputto tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā vasavattiṁ devaputtaṁ etadavoca:

‘kattha nu kho, āvuso, ime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū’ti?

Evaṁ vutte, kevaṭṭa, vasavattī devaputto taṁ bhikkhuṁ etadavoca:

‘ahampi kho, bhikkhu, na jānāmi:

“yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”ti.

Atthi kho, bhikkhu, brahmakāyikā nāma devā amhehi abhikkantatarā ca paṇītatarā ca.
the gods of Brahmā’s Host.

Te kho etaṁ jāneyyuṁ:
They might know.’

“yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”’ti.

Atha kho so, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu tathārūpaṁ samādhiṁ samāpajji, yathāsamāhite citte brahmayāniyo maggo pāturahosi.
Then that mendicant attained a state of immersion such that a path to Brahmā appeared.

Atha kho so, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu yena brahmakāyikā devā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā brahmakāyike deve etadavoca:
Then he approached those gods and said,

‘kattha nu kho, āvuso, ime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū’ti?
‘Reverends, where do these four primary elements cease without anything left over, namely, the elements of earth, water, fire, and air?’

Evaṁ vutte, kevaṭṭa, brahmakāyikā devā taṁ bhikkhuṁ etadavocuṁ:
But they also said to him,

‘mayampi kho, bhikkhu, na jānāma:
‘Mendicant, we too do not know this.

“yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”ti.

Atthi kho, bhikkhu, brahmā mahābrahmā abhibhū anabhibhūto aññadatthudaso vasavattī issaro kattā nimmātā seṭṭho sajitā vasī pitā bhūtabhabyānaṁ amhehi abhikkantataro ca paṇītataro ca.
But there is Brahmā, the Great Brahmā, the Undefeated, the Champion, the Universal Seer, the Wielder of Power, the Lord God, the Maker, the Author, the Best, the Begetter, the Controller, the Father of those who have been born and those yet to be born. He is our superior.

So kho etaṁ jāneyya:
He might know.'

"yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū"'ti.

'Kahaṁ panāvuso, etarahi so mahābrahmā'ti?
'But reverends, where is that Brahmā now?'

'Mayampi kho, bhikkhu, na jānāma, yattha vā brahmā yena vā brahmā yahiṁ vā brahmā;
'We also don't know where he is or what way he lies.

api ca, bhikkhu, yathā nimittā dissanti, āloko sañjāyati, obhāso pātubhavati, brahmā pātubhavissati, brahmuno hetaṁ pubbanimittaṁ pātubhāvāya, yadidaṁ āloko sañjāyati, obhāso pātubhavatī'ti.
But by the signs that are seen—light arising and radiance appearing—we know that Brahmā will appear. For this is the precursor for the appearance of Brahmā, namely light arising and radiance appearing.'

Atha kho so, kevaṭṭa, mahābrahmā nacirasseva pāturahosi.
Not long afterwards, the Great Brahmā appeared.

Atha kho so, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu yena so mahābrahmā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā taṁ mahābrahmānaṁ etadavoca:

Then that mendicant approached the Great Brahmā and said to him, ‘kattha nu kho, āvuso, ime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū’ti?

‘Reverend, where do these four primary elements cease without anything left over, namely, the elements of earth, water, fire, and air?’

Evaṁ vutte, kevaṭṭa, so mahābrahmā taṁ bhikkhuṁ etadavoca:
The Great Brahmā said to him,

‘ahamasmi, bhikkhu, brahmā mahābrahmā abhibhū anabhibhūto aññadatthudaso vasavattī issaro kattā nimmātā seṭṭho sajitā vasī pitā bhūtabhabyānan’ti.
‘I am Brahmā, the Great Brahmā, the Undefeated, the Champion, the Universal Seer, the Wielder of Power, the Lord God, the Maker, the Author, the Best, the Begetter, the Controller, the Father of those who have been born and those yet to be born.’

Dutiyampi kho so, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu taṁ mahābrahmānaṁ etadavoca:
For a second time, that mendicant said to the Great Brahmā,

‘na khohaṁ taṁ, āvuso, evaṁ pucchāmi:
‘Reverend, I am not asking you whether you are

“tvamasi brahmā mahābrahmā abhibhū anabhibhūto aññadatthudaso vasavattī issaro kattā nimmātā seṭṭho sajitā vasī pitā bhūtabhabyānan”ti.
Brahmā, the Great Brahmā, the Undefeated, the Champion, the Universal Seer, the Wielder of Power, the Lord God, the Maker, the Author, the Best, the Begetter, the Controller, the Father of those who have been born and those yet to be born.

Evañca kho ahaṁ taṁ, āvuso, pucchāmi:
I am asking

“kattha nu kho, āvuso, ime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”’ti?

where these four primary elements cease without anything left over.’

Dutiyampi kho so, kevaṭṭa, mahābrahmā taṁ bhikkhuṁ etadavoca:
For a second time, the Great Brahmā said to him,

‘ahamasmi, bhikkhu, brahmā mahābrahmā abhibhū anabhibhūto aññadatthudaso vasavattī issaro kattā nimmātā seṭṭho sajitā vasī pitā bhūtabhabyānan’ti.
‘I am Brahmā, the Great Brahmā, the Undefeated, the Champion, the Universal Seer, the Wielder of Power, the Lord God, the Maker, the Author, the Best, the Begetter, the Controller, the Father of those who have been born and those yet to be born.’

Tatiyampi kho so, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu taṁ mahābrahmānaṁ etadavoca:
For a third time, that mendicant said to the Great Brahmā,

‘na khohaṁ taṁ, āvuso, evaṁ pucchāmi:
‘Reverend, I am not asking you whether you are

“tvamasi brahmā mahābrahmā abhibhū anabhibhūto aññadatthudaso vasavattī issaro kattā nimmātā seṭṭho sajitā vasī pitā bhūtabhabyānan”ti.
Brahmā, the Great Brahmā, the Undefeated, the Champion, the Universal Seer, the Wielder of Power, the Lord God, the Maker, the Author, the Best, the Begetter, the Controller, the Father of those who have been born and those yet to be born.

Evañca kho ahaṁ taṁ, āvuso, pucchāmi:
I am asking

“kattha nu kho, āvuso, ime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū”’ti?

Atha kho so, kevaṭṭa, mahābrahmā taṁ bhikkhuṁ bāhāyaṁ gahetvā ekamantaṁ apanetvā taṁ bhikkhuṁ etadavoca:
Then the Great Brahmā took that mendicant by the arm, led him off to one side, and said to him, ‘ime kho maṁ, bhikkhu, brahmakāyikā devā evaṁ jānanti, “natthi kiñci brahmuno aññātaṁ, natthi kiñci brahmuno adiṭṭhaṁ, natthi kiñci brahmuno aviditaṁ, natthi kiñci brahmuno asacchikatan”ti.

‘Mendicant, these gods think that there is nothing at all that I don’t know and see and understand and realize.

Tasmāhaṁ tesaṁ sammukhā na byākāsiṁ.
That’s why I didn’t answer in front of them.

Ahampi kho, bhikkhu, na jānāmi yatthime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātūti.
But I too do not know where these four primary elements cease with nothing left over.

Tasmātiha, bhikkhu, tuyhevetaṁ dukkaṭaṁ, tuyhevetaṁ aparaddhaṁ, yaṁ tvaṁ taṁ bhagavantaṁ atidhāvitvā bahiddhā pariyeṭṭhiṁ āpajjasi imassa pañhassa veyyākaraṇāya.
Therefore, mendicant, the misdeed is yours alone, the mistake is yours alone, in that you passed over the Buddha and searched elsewhere for an answer to this question.

Gaccha tvaṁ, bhikkhu, tameva bhagavantaṁ upasaṅkamitvā imaṁ pañhaṁ puccha, yathā ca te bhagavā byākaroti, tathā naṁ dhāreyyāsī’ti.
Mendicant, go to the Buddha and ask him this question. You should remember it in line with his answer.’

Atha kho so, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu—seyyathāpi nāma balavā puriso samiñjitaṁ vā bāhaṁ pasāreyya, pasāritaṁ vā bāhaṁ samiñjeyya; evameva brahmaloke antarahito mama purato pāturahosi.

Then that mendicant, as easily as a strong person would extend or contract their arm, vanished from the Brahmā realm and reappeared in front of me.

Atha kho so, kevaṭṭa, bhikkhu maṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi, ekamantaṁ nisinno kho, kevaṭṭa, so bhikkhu maṁ etadavoca:
Then he bowed, sat down to one side, and said to me, ‘kattha nu kho, bhante, ime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū’ti?

‘Sir, where do these four primary elements cease without anything left over, namely, the elements of earth, water, fire, and air?’

4.1. Tīradassisakuṇupamā

4.1. The Simile of the Land-Spotting Bird

Evaṁ vutte, ahaṁ, kevaṭṭa, taṁ bhikkhuṁ etadavocaṁ—
When he said this, I said to him:

bhūtapubbaṁ, bhikkhu, sāmuddikā vāṇijā tīradassiṁ sakuṇaṁ gahetvā nāvāya samuddaṁ ajjhogāhanti.
‘Once upon a time, mendicant, some sea-merchants set sail for the ocean deeps, taking with them a land-spotting bird.

Te atīradakkhiniyā nāvāya tīradassiṁ sakuṇaṁ muñcanti.
When their ship was out of sight of land, they released the bird.

So gacchateva puratthimaṁ disaṁ, gacchati dakkhiṇaṁ disaṁ, gacchati pacchimaṁ disaṁ, gacchati uttaraṁ disaṁ, gacchati uddhaṁ disaṁ, gacchati anudisaṁ.
It flew right away to the east, the west, the north, the south, upwards, and in-between.

Sace so samantā tīraṁ passati, tathāgatakova hoti.
If it saw land on any side, it went there and stayed.

Sace pana so samantā tīraṁ na passati, tameva nāvaṁ paccāgacchati.
But if it saw no land on any side it returned to the ship.

Evameva kho tvaṁ, bhikkhu, yato yāva brahmalokā pariyesamāno imassa pañhassa veyyākaraṇaṁ nājjhagā, atha mamaññeva santike paccāgato.
In the same way, after failing to get an answer to this question even after searching as far as the Brahmā realm, you've returned to me.

Na kho eso, bhikkhu, pañho evaṁ pucchitabbo:
Mendicant, this is not how the question should be asked:

'kattha nu kho, bhante, ime cattāro mahābhūtā aparisesā nirujjhanti, seyyathidaṁ—pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū'ti?
"Sir, where do these four primary elements cease without anything left over, namely, the elements of earth, water, fire, and air?"

Evañca kho eso, bhikkhu, pañho pucchitabbo:
This is how the question should be asked:

'Kattha āpo ca pathavī,
"Where do water and earth,

tejo vāyo na gādhati;
fire and air find no footing;

Kattha dīghañca rassañca,
where do long and short,

aṇuṁ thūlaṁ subhāsubhaṁ;
fine and coarse, beautiful and ugly;

Kattha nāmañca rūpañca, where do name and form

asesaṁ uparujjhatī'ti.
cease with nothing left over?"

Tatra veyyākaraṇaṁ bhavati:
And the answer to that is:

‘Viññāṇaṁ anidassanaṁ, “Consciousness that’s invisible,

anantaṁ sabbatopabhaṁ;
infinite, entirely given up:

Ettha āpo ca pathavī, that’s where water and earth,

tejo vāyo na gādhati.
fire and air find no footing;

Ettha dīghañca rassañca, and that’s where long and short,

aṇuṁ thūlaṁ subhāsubhaṁ;
fine and coarse, beautiful and ugly,

Ettha nāmañca rūpañca, that’s where name and form

asesaṁ uparujjhati;
cease with nothing left over—

Viññāṇassa nirodhena, with the cessation of consciousness,

etthetaṁ uparujjhatī’”ti.
that’s where this ceases.’””

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Attamano kevaṭṭo gahapatiputto bhagavato bhāsitaṁ abhinandīti.

Satisfied, the householder Kevaddha was happy with what the Buddha said.

Kevaṭṭasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ ekādasamaṁ.

12. Lohiccasutta

With Lohicca

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā kosalesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi yena sālavatikā tadavasari.
At one time the Buddha was wandering in the land of the Kosalans together with a large Saṅgha of five hundred mendicants when he arrived at Sālavatikā.

Tena kho pana samayena lohicco brāhmaṇo sālavatikaṁ ajjhāvasati sattussadaṁ satiṇakaṭṭhodakaṁ sadhaññaṁ rājabhoggaṁ raññā pasenadinā kosalena dinnaṁ rājadāyaṁ brahmadeyyaṁ.
Now at that time the brahmin Lohicca was living in Sālavatikā. It was a crown property given by King Pasenadi of Kosala, teeming with living creatures, full of hay, wood, water, and grain, a royal endowment of the highest quality.

Tena kho pana samayena lohiccassa brāhmaṇassa evarūpaṁ pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ uppannaṁ hoti:
Now at that time Lohicca had the following harmful misconception:

“idha samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā kusalaṁ dhammaṁ adhigaccheyya, kusalaṁ dhammaṁ adhigantvā na parassa āroceyya, kiñhi paro parassa karissati.
“Should an ascetic or brahmin achieve some skillful quality, they ought not inform anyone else. For what can one person do for another?

Seyyathāpi nāma purāṇaṁ bandhanaṁ chinditvā aññaṁ navaṁ bandhanaṁ kareyya;
Suppose someone cut off an old bond, only to create another new bond.

evaṁ sampadamidaṁ pāpakaṁ lobhadhammaṁ vadāmi, kiñhi paro parassa karissatī"ti.
That's the consequence of such a wicked, greedy deed, I say. For what can one person do for another?"

Assosi kho lohicco brāhmaṇo:
Lohicca heard:

"samaṇo khalu, bho, gotamo sakyaputto sakyakulā pabbajito kosalesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi sālavatikaṁ anuppatto.
"It seems the ascetic Gotama—a Sakyan, gone forth from a Sakyan family—has arrived at Sālavatikā, together with a large Saṅgha of five hundred mendicants.

Taṁ kho pana bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:
He has this good reputation:

'itipi so bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavā'.
'That Blessed One is perfected, a fully awakened Buddha, accomplished in knowledge and conduct, holy, knower of the world, supreme guide for those who wish to train, teacher of gods and humans, awakened, blessed.'

So imaṁ lokaṁ sadevakaṁ samārakaṁ sabrahmakaṁ sassamaṇabrāhmaṇiṁ pajaṁ sadevamanussaṁ sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā pavedeti.

He has realized with his own insight this world—with its gods, Māras and Brahmās, this population with its ascetics and brahmins, gods and humans—and he makes it known to others.

So dhammaṁ deseti ādikalyāṇaṁ majjhekalyāṇaṁ pariyosānakalyāṇaṁ sātthaṁ sabyañjanaṁ kevalaparipuṇṇaṁ parisuddhaṁ brahmacariyaṁ pakāseti.
He teaches Dhamma that's good in the beginning, good in the middle, and good in the end, meaningful and well-phrased. And he reveals a spiritual practice that's entirely full and pure.

Sādhu kho pana tathārūpānaṁ arahataṁ dassanaṁ hotī"ti.
It's good to see such perfected ones."

Atha kho lohicco brāhmaṇo rosikaṁ nhāpitaṁ āmantesi:
Then Lohicca addressed his barber Rosika,

"ehi tvaṁ, samma rosike, yena samaṇo gotamo tenupasaṅkama; upasaṅkamitvā mama vacanena samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ appābādhaṁ appātaṅkaṁ lahuṭṭhānaṁ balaṁ phāsuvihāraṁ puccha:
"Here, dear Rosika, go to the ascetic Gotama and in my name bow with your head to his feet. Ask him if he is healthy and well, nimble, strong, and living comfortably.

'lohicco, bho gotama, brāhmaṇo bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ appābādhaṁ appātaṅkaṁ lahuṭṭhānaṁ balaṁ phāsuvihāraṁ pucchatī'ti;

evañca vadehi—
And then ask him whether he, adhivāsetu kira bhavaṁ gotamo lohiccassa brāhmaṇassa svātanāya bhattaṁ saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghenā"ti.

together with the mendicant Saṅgha, might accept tomorrow's meal from the brahmin Lohicca."

"Evaṁ, bho"ti kho rosikā nhāpito lohiccassa brāhmaṇassa paṭissutvā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho rosikā nhāpito bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:

“Yes, sir,” Rosika replied. He did as he was asked, and “lohicco, bhante, brāhmaṇo bhagavantaṁ appābādhaṁ appātaṅkaṁ lahuṭṭhānaṁ balaṁ phāsuvihāraṁ pucchati;

evañca vadeti—

adhivāsetu kira, bhante, bhagavā lohiccassa brāhmaṇassa svātanāya bhattaṁ saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghenā”ti.

Adhivāsesi bhagavā tuṇhībhāvena.
the Buddha consented in silence.

Atha kho rosikā nhāpito bhagavato adhivāsanaṁ viditvā uṭṭhāyāsanā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā yena lohicco brāhmaṇo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā lohiccaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ etadavoca:
Then, knowing that the Buddha had consented, Rosika got up from his seat, went to Lohicca, and said to him, “avocumhā kho mayaṁ bhoto vacanena taṁ bhagavantaṁ:

“I gave the Buddha your message,

‘lohicco, bhante, brāhmaṇo bhagavantaṁ appābādhaṁ appātaṅkaṁ lahuṭṭhānaṁ balaṁ phāsuvihāraṁ pucchati;

evañca vadeti—

adhivāsetu kira, bhante, bhagavā lohiccassa brāhmaṇassa svātanāya bhattaṁ saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghenā’ti.

Adhivutthañca pana tena bhagavatā”ti.
and he accepted.”

Atha kho lohicco brāhmaṇo tassā rattiyā accayena sake nivesane paṇītaṁ khādanīyaṁ bhojanīyaṁ paṭiyādāpetvā rosikaṁ nhāpitaṁ āmantesi:

And when the night had passed Lohicca had a variety of delicious foods prepared in his own home. Then he had the Buddha informed of the time, saying,

“ehi tvaṁ, samma rosike, yena samaṇo gotamo tenupasaṅkama; upasaṅkamitvā samaṇassa gotamassa kālaṁ ārocehi—“Here, dear Rosika, go to the ascetic Gotama and announce the time, saying:

kālo, bho gotama, niṭṭhitaṁ bhattan”ti.

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho rosikā nhāpito lohiccassa brāhmaṇassa paṭissutvā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi.
“Yes, sir,” Rosika replied. He did as he was asked.

Ekamantaṁ ṭhito kho rosikā nhāpito bhagavato kālaṁ ārocesi:

“kālo, bhante, niṭṭhitaṁ bhattan”ti.

Atha kho bhagavā pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghena yena sālavatikā tenupasaṅkami.
Then the Buddha robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, went to Sālavatikā together with the Saṅgha of mendicants.

Tena kho pana samayena rosikā nhāpito bhagavantaṁ piṭṭhito piṭṭhito anubandho hoti.
Now, Rosika was following behind the Buddha,

Atha kho rosikā nhāpito bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
and told him of Lohicca’s views, adding,

“lohiccassa, bhante, brāhmaṇassa evarūpaṁ pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ uppannaṁ:

‘idha samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā kusalaṁ dhammaṁ adhigaccheyya, kusalaṁ dhammaṁ adhigantvā na parassa

āroceyya—

kiñhi paro parassa karissati.

Seyyathāpi nāma purāṇaṁ bandhanaṁ chinditvā aññaṁ navaṁ bandhanaṁ kareyya;

evaṁ sampadamidaṁ pāpakaṁ lobhadhammaṁ vadāmi—

kiñhi paro parassa karissatī’ti.

Sādhu, bhante, bhagavā lohiccaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ etasmā pāpakā diṭṭhigatā vivecetū”ti.
“Sir, please dissuade him from that harmful misconception.”

“Appeva nāma siyā, rosike, appeva nāma siyā, rosike”ti.
“Hopefully that’ll happen, Rosika, hopefully that’ll happen.”

Atha kho bhagavā yena lohiccassa brāhmaṇassa nivesanaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā paññatte āsane nisīdi.
Then the Buddha approached Lohicca’s home, where he sat on the seat spread out.

Atha kho lohicco brāhmaṇo buddhappamukhaṁ bhikkhusaṅghaṁ paṇītena khādanīyena bhojanīyena sahatthā santappesi sampavāresi.
Then Lohicca served and satisfied the mendicant Saṅgha headed by the Buddha with his own hands with a variety of delicious foods.

1. Lohiccabrāhmaṇānuyoga

1. Questioning Lohicca

Atha kho lohicco brāhmaṇo bhagavantaṁ bhuttāviṁ onītapattapāṇiṁ aññataraṁ nīcaṁ āsanaṁ gahetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
When the Buddha had eaten and washed his hand and bowl, Lohicca took a low seat and sat to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho lohiccaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said to him,

“saccaṁ kira te, lohicca, evarūpaṁ pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ uppannaṁ:
“Is it really true, Lohicca, that you have such a harmful misconception:

‘idha samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā kusalaṁ dhammaṁ adhigaccheyya, kusalaṁ dhammaṁ adhigantvā na parassa āroceyya, kiñhi paro parassa karissati.
‘Should an ascetic or brahmin achieve some skillful quality, they ought not inform anyone else. For what can one person do for another?

evaṁ sampadamidaṁ pāpakaṁ lobhadhammaṁ vadāmi, kiñhi paro parassa karissatī’”ti?
That’s the consequence of such a wicked, greedy deed, I say. For what can one person do for another?’”

“Evaṁ, bho gotama”.
“Yes, Master Gotama.”

“Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, lohicca,
“What do you think, Lohicca?

nanu tvaṁ sālavatikaṁ ajjhāvasasī”ti?
Do you reside in Sālavatikā?”

“Evaṁ, bho gotama”.
“Yes, Master Gotama.”

“Yo nu kho, lohicca, evaṁ vadeyya:
“Lohicca, suppose someone were to say:

‘lohicco brāhmaṇo sālavatikaṁ ajjhāvasati.
‘The brahmin Lohicca reigns over Sālavatikā.

Yā sālavatikāya samudayasañjāti lohiccova taṁ brāhmaṇo ekako paribhuñjeyya, na aññesaṁ dadeyyā’ti.
He alone should enjoy the revenues produced in Sālavatikā and not share them with anyone else.’

Evaṁ vādī so ye taṁ upajīvanti, tesaṁ antarāyakaro vā hoti, no vā”ti?
Would the person who spoke like that make it difficult for those whose living depends on you or not?”

“Antarāyakaro, bho gotama”.
“They would, Master Gotama.”

“Antarāyakaro samāno hitānukampī vā tesaṁ hoti ahitānukampī vā”ti?
“But is someone who creates difficulties for others acting kindly or unkindly?”

“Ahitānukampī, bho gotama”.
“Unkindly, sir.”

“Ahitānukampissa mettaṁ vā tesu cittaṁ paccupaṭṭhitaṁ hoti sapattakaṁ vā”ti?
“But does an unkind person have love in their heart or hostility?”

“Sapattakaṁ, bho gotama”.
“Hostility, sir.”

“Sapattake citte paccupaṭṭhite micchādiṭṭhi vā hoti sammādiṭṭhi vā”ti?

“And when the heart is full of hostility, is there right view or wrong view?”

“Micchādiṭṭhi, bho gotama”.
“Wrong view, Master Gotama.”

“Micchādiṭṭhissa kho ahaṁ, lohicca, dvinnaṁ gatīnaṁ aññataraṁ gatiṁ vadāmi—
“An individual with wrong view is reborn in one of two places, I say:

nirayaṁ vā tiracchānayoniṁ vā.
hell or the animal realm.

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, lohicca,
What do you think, Lohicca?

nanu rājā pasenadi kosalo kāsikosalaṁ ajjhāvasatī”ti?
Does King Pasenadi reign over Kāsī and Kosala?”

“Evaṁ, bho gotama”.
“Yes, Master Gotama.”

“Yo nu kho, lohicca, evaṁ vadeyya:
“Lohicca, suppose someone were to say:

‘rājā pasenadi kosalo kāsikosalaṁ ajjhāvasati;
‘King Pasenadi reigns over Kāsī and Kosala.

yā kāsikosale samudayasañjāti, rājāva taṁ pasenadi kosalo ekako paribhuñjeyya, na aññesaṁ dadeyyā’ti.

Now, there are gentlemen who, relying on the teaching and training proclaimed by the Realized One, achieve a high distinction such as the following: they realize the fruit of stream-entry, the fruit of once-return, the fruit of non-return, or the fruit of perfection. And in addition, there are those who ripen the seeds for rebirth in a heavenly state. The person who spoke like that makes it difficult for them. 2. Tayocodanārahā

2. Three Teachers Who Deserve to Be Reprimanded

Tayo khome, lohicca, satthāro, ye loke codanārahā;
Lohicca, there are three kinds of teachers in the world who deserve to be reprimanded.

yo ca panevarūpe satthāro codeti, sā codanā bhūtā tacchā dhammikā anavajjā.
When someone reprimands such teachers, the reprimand is true, substantive, legitimate, and blameless.

Katame tayo?
What three?

Idha, lohicca, ekacco satthā yassatthāya agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajito hoti, svāssa sāmaññattho ananuppatto hoti.

Firstly, take a teacher who has not reached the goal of the ascetic life for which they went forth from the lay life to homelessness.

So taṁ sāmaññatthaṁ ananupāpuṇitvā sāvakānaṁ dhammaṁ deseti:
They teach their disciples:

‘idaṁ vo hitāya idaṁ vo sukhāyā’ti.
‘This is for your welfare. This is for your happiness.’

Tassa sāvakā na sussūsanti, na sotaṁ odahanti, na aññā cittaṁ upaṭṭhapenti, vokkamma ca satthusāsanā vattanti.
But their disciples don’t want to listen. They don’t pay attention or apply their minds to understand. They proceed having turned away from the teacher’s instruction.

So evamassa codetabbo:
That teacher deserves to be reprimanded:

‘āyasmā kho yassatthāya agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajito, so te sāmaññattho ananuppatto, taṁ tvaṁ sāmaññatthaṁ ananupāpuṇitvā sāvakānaṁ dhammaṁ desesi:
‘Venerable, you haven’t reached the goal of the ascetic life; and when you teach disciples

“idaṁ vo hitāya idaṁ vo sukhāyā”ti.

Tassa te sāvakā na sussūsanti, na sotaṁ odahanti, na aññā cittaṁ upaṭṭhapenti, vokkamma ca satthusāsanā vattanti.
they proceed having turned away from the teacher’s instruction.

Seyyathāpi nāma osakkantiyā vā ussakkeyya, parammukhiṁ vā āliṅgeyya;
It’s like a man who makes advances on a woman though she pulls away, or embraces her though she turns her back.

evaṁ sampadamidaṁ pāpakaṁ lobhadhammaṁ vadāmi—
That’s the consequence of such a wicked, greedy deed, I say. For what can one do for another?’

kiñhi paro parassa karissatī’ti.

Ayaṁ kho, lohicca, paṭhamo satthā, yo loke codanāraho;
This is the first kind of teacher who deserves to be reprimanded.

yo ca panevarūpaṁ satthāraṁ codeti, sā codanā bhūtā tacchā dhammikā anavajjā.

Puna caparaṁ, lohicca, idhekacco satthā yassatthāya agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajito hoti, svāssa sāmaññattho ananuppatto hoti.
Furthermore, take a teacher who has not reached the goal of the ascetic life for which they went forth from the lay life to homelessness.

So taṁ sāmaññatthaṁ ananupāpuṇitvā sāvakānaṁ dhammaṁ deseti:
They teach their disciples:

‘idaṁ vo hitāya, idaṁ vo sukhāyā’ti.
‘This is for your welfare. This is for your happiness.’

Tassa sāvakā sussūsanti, sotaṁ odahanti, aññā cittaṁ upaṭṭhapenti, na ca vokkamma satthusāsanā vattanti.
Their disciples do want to listen. They pay attention and apply their minds to understand. They don’t proceed having turned away from the teacher’s instruction.

So evamassa codetabbo:
That teacher deserves to be reprimanded:

‘āyasmā kho yassatthāya agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajito, so te sāmaññattho ananuppatto. Taṁ tvaṁ sāmaññatthaṁ ananupāpuṇitvā sāvakānaṁ dhammaṁ desesi:
‘Venerable, you haven’t reached the goal of the ascetic life; and when you teach disciples

“idaṁ vo hitāya, idaṁ vo sukhāyā”ti.

Tassa te sāvakā sussūsanti, sotaṁ odahanti, aññā cittaṁ upaṭṭhapenti, na ca vokkamma satthusāsanā vattanti.

they don’t proceed having turned away from the teacher’s instruction.

Seyyathāpi nāma sakaṁ khettaṁ ohāya paraṁ khettaṁ niddāyitabbaṁ maññeyya, evaṁ sampadamidaṁ pāpakaṁ lobhadhammaṁ vadāmi—kiñhi paro parassa karissatī’ti.
It’s like someone who abandons their own field and presumes to weed someone else’s field. That’s the consequence of such a wicked, greedy deed, I say. For what can one do for another?’

Ayaṁ kho, lohicca, dutiyo satthā, yo, loke codanāraho;
This is the second kind of teacher who deserves to be reprimanded.

yo ca panevarūpaṁ satthāraṁ codeti, sā codanā bhūtā tacchā dhammikā anavajjā.

Puna caparaṁ, lohicca, idhekacco satthā yassatthāya agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajito hoti, svāssa sāmaññattho anuppatto hoti.
Furthermore, take a teacher who has reached the goal of the ascetic life for which they went forth from the lay life to homelessness.

So taṁ sāmaññatthaṁ anupāpuṇitvā sāvakānaṁ dhammaṁ deseti:
They teach their disciples:

‘idaṁ vo hitāya, idaṁ vo sukhāyā’ti.
‘This is for your welfare. This is for your happiness.’

Tassa sāvakā na sussūsanti, na sotaṁ odahanti, na aññā cittaṁ upaṭṭhapenti, vokkamma ca satthusāsanā vattanti.
But their disciples don’t want to listen. They don’t pay attention or apply their minds to understand. They proceed having turned away from the teacher’s instruction.

So evamassa codetabbo:
That teacher deserves to be reprimanded:

‘āyasmā kho yassatthāya agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajito, so te sāmaññattho anuppatto.

‘Venerable, you have reached the goal of the ascetic life; yet when you teach disciples

Taṁ tvaṁ sāmaññatthaṁ anupāpuṇitvā sāvakānaṁ dhammaṁ desesi:

“idaṁ vo hitāya, idaṁ vo sukhāyā”ti.

Tassa te sāvakā na sussūsanti, na sotaṁ odahanti, na aññā cittaṁ upaṭṭhapenti, vokkamma ca satthusāsanā vattanti.
they proceed having turned away from the teacher’s instruction.

Seyyathāpi nāma purāṇaṁ bandhanaṁ chinditvā aññaṁ navaṁ bandhanaṁ kareyya;
Suppose someone cut off an old bond, only to create another new bond.

evaṁ sampadamidaṁ pāpakaṁ lobhadhammaṁ vadāmi, kiñhi paro parassa karissatī’ti.
That’s the consequence of such a wicked, greedy deed, I say. For what can one person do for another?’

Ayaṁ kho, lohicca, tatiyo satthā, yo loke codanāraho;
This is the third kind of teacher who deserves to be reprimanded.

yo ca panevarūpaṁ satthāraṁ codeti, sā codanā bhūtā tacchā dhammikā anavajjā.

Ime kho, lohicca, tayo satthāro, ye loke codanārahā,
These are the three kinds of teachers in the world who deserve to be reprimanded.

yo ca panevarūpe satthāro codeti, sā codanā bhūtā tacchā dhammikā anavajjā”ti.
When someone reprimands such teachers, the reprimand is true, substantive, legitimate, and blameless.”

3. A Teacher Who Does Not Deserve to Be Reprimanded

Evaṁ vutte, lohicco brāhmaṇo bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, Lohicca said to the Buddha,

“atthi pana, bho gotama, koci satthā, yo loke nacodanāraho”ti?
“But Master Gotama, is there a teacher in the world who does not deserve to be reprimanded?”

“Atthi kho, lohicca, satthā, yo loke nacodanāraho”ti.
“There is, Lohicca.”

“Katamo pana so, bho gotama, satthā, yo loke nacodanāraho”ti?
“But who is that teacher?”

“Idha, lohicca, tathāgato loke uppajjati arahaṁ, sammāsambuddho …pe…

Evaṁ vutte, lohicco brāhmaṇo bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, Lohicca said to the Buddha:

“seyyathāpi, bho gotama, puriso purisaṁ narakapapātaṁ patantaṁ kesesu gahetvā uddharitvā thale patiṭṭhapeyya; “Suppose, Master Gotama, a person was on the verge of falling off a cliff, and another person were to grab them by the hair, pull them up, and place them on firm ground.

evamevāhaṁ bhotā gotamena narakapapātaṁ papatanto uddharitvā thale patiṭṭhāpito.
In the same way, when I was falling off a cliff Master Gotama pulled me up and placed me on safe ground.

Abhikkantaṁ, bho gotama, abhikkantaṁ, bho gotama.
Excellent, Master Gotama! Excellent!

As if he were righting the overturned, or revealing the hidden, or pointing out the path to the lost, or lighting a lamp in the dark so people with good eyes can see what’s there, Master Gotama has made the Teaching clear in many ways.

Esāhaṁ bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ saraṇaṁ gacchāmi dhammañca bhikkhusaṅghañca.

From this day forth, may Master Gotama remember me as a lay follower who has gone for refuge for life.”

Lohiccasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ dvādasamaṁ.

13. Tevijjasutta

The Three Knowledges

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā kosalesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi yena manasākaṭaṁ nāma kosalānaṁ brāhmaṇagāmo tadavasari.
At one time the Buddha was wandering in the land of the Kosalans together with a large Saṅgha of five hundred mendicants when he arrived at a village of the Kosalan brahmins named Manasākaṭa.

Tatra sudaṁ bhagavā manasākaṭe viharati uttarena manasākaṭassa aciravatiyā nadiyā tīre ambavane.
He stayed in a mango grove on a bank of the river Aciravatī to the north of Manasākaṭa.

Tena kho pana samayena sambahulā abhiññātā abhiññātā brāhmaṇamahāsālā manasākaṭe paṭivasanti, seyyathidaṁ—
Now at that time several very well-known well-to-do brahmins were residing in Manasākaṭa. They included caṅkī brāhmaṇo tārukkho brāhmaṇo pokkharasāti brāhmaṇo jāṇusoṇi brāhmaṇo todeyyo brāhmaṇo aññe ca abhiññātā abhiññātā brāhmaṇamahāsālā.

the brahmins Caṅkī, Tārukkha, Pokkharasāti, Jāṇussoṇi, Todeyya, and others.

Atha kho vāseṭṭhabhāradvājānaṁ māṇavānaṁ jaṅghavihāraṁ anucaṅkamantānaṁ anuvicarantānaṁ maggāmagge kathā udapādi.

Then as the students Vāseṭṭha and Bhāradvāja were going for a walk they began a discussion regarding the variety of paths.

Atha kho vāseṭṭho māṇavo evamāha:
Vāseṭṭha said this:

“ayameva ujumaggo, ayamañjasāyano niyyāniko niyyāti takkarassa brahmasahabyatāya, yvāyaṁ akkhāto brāhmaṇena pokkharasātinā”ti.
“This is the only straight path, the direct route that leads someone who practices it to the company of Brahmā; namely, that explained by the brahmin Pokkharasāti.”

Bhāradvājopi māṇavo evamāha:
Bhāradvāja said this:

“ayameva ujumaggo, ayamañjasāyano niyyāniko, niyyāti takkarassa brahmasahabyatāya, yvāyaṁ akkhāto brāhmaṇena tārukkhenā”ti.
“This is the only straight path, the direct route that leads someone who practices it to the company of Brahmā; namely, that explained by the brahmin Tārukkha.”

Neva kho asakkhi vāseṭṭho māṇavo bhāradvājaṁ māṇavaṁ saññāpetuṁ, na pana asakkhi bhāradvājo māṇavo vāseṭṭhaṁ māṇavaṁ saññāpetuṁ.
But neither was able to persuade the other.

Atha kho vāseṭṭho māṇavo bhāradvājaṁ māṇavaṁ āmantesi:
So Vāseṭṭha said to Bhāradvāja,

“ayaṁ kho, bhāradvāja, samaṇo gotamo sakyaputto sakyakulā pabbajito manasākaṭe viharati uttarena manasākaṭassa aciravatiyā nadiyā tīre ambavane.
“Bhāradvāja, the ascetic Gotama—a Sakyan, gone forth from a Sakyan family—is staying in a mango grove on a bank of the river Aciravatī to the north of Manasākaṭa.

Taṁ kho pana bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:
He has this good reputation:

‘itipi so bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavā’ti.
‘That Blessed One is perfected, a fully awakened Buddha, accomplished in knowledge and conduct, holy, knower of the world, supreme guide for those who wish to train, teacher of gods and humans, awakened, blessed.’

Āyāma, bho bhāradvāja, yena samaṇo gotamo tenupasaṅkamissāma; upasaṅkamitvā etamatthaṁ samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ pucchissāma.
Come, let’s go to see him and ask him about this matter.

Yathā no samaṇo gotamo byākarissati, tathā naṁ dhāressāmā”ti.
As he answers, so we’ll remember it.”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho bhāradvājo māṇavo vāseṭṭhassa māṇavassa paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Bhāradvāja.

1. Maggāmaggakathā

1. The Variety of Paths

Atha kho vāseṭṭhabhāradvājā māṇavā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodiṁsu.
So they went to the Buddha, and exchanged greetings with him.

Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho vāseṭṭho māṇavo

bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When the greetings and polite conversation were over, they sat down to one side and Vāseṭṭha told him of their conversation, adding:

“idha, bho gotama, amhākaṁ jaṅghavihāraṁ anucaṅkamantānaṁ anuvicarantānaṁ maggāmagge kathā udapādi.

Ahaṁ evaṁ vadāmi:

‘ayameva ujumaggo, ayamañjasāyano niyyāniko niyyāti takkarassa brahmasahabyatāya, yvāyaṁ akkhāto brāhmaṇena pokkharasātinā’ti.

Bhāradvājo māṇavo evamāha:

‘ayameva ujumaggo ayamañjasāyano niyyāniko niyyāti takkarassa brahmasahabyatāya, yvāyaṁ akkhāto brāhmaṇena tārukkhenā’ti.

Ettha, bho gotama, attheva viggaho, atthi vivādo, atthi nānāvādo”ti.
“In this matter we have a dispute, a disagreement, a difference of opinion.”

“Iti kira, vāseṭṭha, tvaṁ evaṁ vadesi:
“So, Vāseṭṭha, it seems that you say that

‘ayameva ujumaggo, ayamañjasāyano niyyāniko niyyāti takkarassa brahmasahabyatāya, yvāyaṁ akkhāto brāhmaṇena pokkharasātinā’ti.
the straight path is that explained by Pokkharasāti,

Bhāradvājo māṇavo evamāha:
while Bhāradvāja says that

‘ayameva ujumaggo ayamañjasāyano niyyāniko niyyāti takkarassa brahmasahabyatāya, yvāyaṁ akkhāto brāhmaṇena tārukkhenā’ti.
the straight path is that explained by Tārukkha.

Atha kismiṁ pana vo, vāseṭṭha, viggaho, kismiṁ vivādo, kismiṁ nānāvādo"ti?
But what exactly is your disagreement about?"

"Maggāmagge, bho gotama.
"About the variety of paths, Master Gotama.

Kiñcāpi, bho gotama, brāhmaṇā nānāmagge paññāpenti, addhariyā brāhmaṇā tittiriyā brāhmaṇā chandokā brāhmaṇā bavhārijjhā brāhmaṇā, atha kho sabbāni tāni niyyānikā niyyanti takkarassa brahmasahabyatāya.
Even though brahmins describe different paths—the Addhariya brahmins, the Tittiriya brahmins, the Chandoka brahmins, and the Bavhadija brahmins—all of them lead someone who practices them to the company of Brahmā.

Seyyathāpi, bho gotama, gāmassa vā nigamassa vā avidūre bahūni cepi nānāmaggāni bhavanti, atha kho sabbāni tāni gāmasamosaraṇāni bhavanti;
It's like a village or town that has many different roads nearby, yet all of them meet at that village.

evameva kho, bho gotama, kiñcāpi brāhmaṇā nānāmagge paññāpenti, addhariyā brāhmaṇā tittiriyā brāhmaṇā chandokā brāhmaṇā bavhārijjhā brāhmaṇā, atha kho sabbāni tāni niyyānikā niyyanti takkarassa brahmasahabyatāyā"ti.
In the same way, even though brahmins describe different paths—the Addhariya brahmins, the Tittiriya brahmins, the Chandoka brahmins, and the Bavhadija brahmins—all of them lead someone who practices them to the company of Brahmā."

2. Vāseṭṭhamāṇavānuyoga

2. Questioning Vāseṭṭha

“Niyyantīti, vāseṭṭha vadesi”?
“Do you say, ‘they lead someone’, Vāseṭṭha?”

“Niyyantīti, bho gotama, vadāmi”.
“I do, Master Gotama.”

“Well, what of the ancient hermits of the brahmins, namely Aṭṭhaka, Vāmaka, Vāmadeva, Vessāmitta, Yamadaggi, Aṅgīrasa, Bhāradvāja, Vāseṭṭha, Kassapa, and Bhagu? They were the authors and propagators of the hymns. Their hymnal was sung and propagated and compiled in ancient times; and these days, brahmins continue to sing and chant it, chanting what was chanted and teaching what was taught.

3. Converging

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, vāseṭṭha,
What do you think, Vāseṭṭha?

kinti te sutaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ vuddhānaṁ mahallakānaṁ ācariyapācariyānaṁ bhāsamānānaṁ, sapariggaho vā brahmā apariggaho vā"ti?
Have you heard that the brahmins who are elderly and senior, the teachers of teachers, say whether Brahmā is possessive or not?"

"Apariggaho, bho gotama".
"That he is not, Master Gotama."

"Saveracitto vā averacitto vā"ti?
"Is his heart full of enmity or not?"

"Averacitto, bho gotama".
"It is not."

"Sabyāpajjacitto vā abyāpajjacitto vā"ti?
"Is his heart full of ill will or not?"

"Abyāpajjacitto, bho gotama".
"It is not."

“Saṅkiliṭṭhacitto vā asaṅkiliṭṭhacitto vā”ti?
“Is his heart corrupted or not?”

“Asaṅkiliṭṭhacitto, bho gotama”.
“It is not.”

“Vasavattī vā avasavattī vā”ti?
“Does he wield power or not?”

“Vasavattī, bho gotama”.
“He does.”

“Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, vāseṭṭha,
“What do you think, Vāseṭṭha?

sapariggahā vā tevijjā brāhmaṇā apariggahā vā”ti?
Are the brahmins proficient in the three Vedas possessive or not?”

“Sapariggahā, bho gotama”.
“They are.”

“Saveracittā vā averacittā vā”ti?
“Are their hearts full of enmity or not?”

“Saveracittā, bho gotama”.
“They are.”

“Sabyāpajjacittā vā abyāpajjacittā vā”ti?
“Are their hearts full of ill will or not?”

“Sabyāpajjacittā, bho gotama”.
“They are.”

“Saṅkiliṭṭhacittā vā asaṅkiliṭṭhacittā vā”ti?

“Are their hearts corrupted or not?”

“Saṅkiliṭṭhacittā, bho gotama”.
“They are.”

“Vasavattī vā avasavattī vā”ti?
“Do they wield power or not?”

“Avasavattī, bho gotama”.
“They do not.”

“Iti kira, vāseṭṭha, sapariggahā tevijjā brāhmaṇā apariggaho brahmā.
“So it seems that the brahmins proficient in the three Vedas are possessive, but Brahmā is not.

Api nu kho sapariggahānaṁ tevijjānaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ apariggahena brahmunā saddhiṁ saṁsandati sametī”ti?
But would brahmins who are possessive come together and converge with Brahmā, who isn’t possessive?”

“No hidaṁ, bho gotama”.
“No, Master Gotama.”

“Sādhu, vāseṭṭha, te vata, vāseṭṭha, sapariggahā tevijjā brāhmaṇā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā apariggahassa brahmuno sahabyūpagā bhavissantīti, netaṁ ṭhānaṁ vijjati.
“Good, Vāseṭṭha! It’s impossible that the brahmins who are possessive will, when the body breaks up, after death, be reborn in the company of Brahmā, who isn’t possessive.

Iti kira, vāseṭṭha, saveracittā tevijjā brāhmaṇā, averacitto brahmā …pe…
And it seems that the brahmins have enmity, sabyāpajjacittā tevijjā brāhmaṇā abyāpajjacitto brahmā …

ill will,

saṅkiliṭṭhacittā tevijjā brāhmaṇā asaṅkiliṭṭhacitto brahmā …
corruption,

avasavattī tevijjā brāhmaṇā vasavattī brahmā, api nu kho avasavattīnaṁ tevijjānaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ vasavattinā brahmunā saddhiṁ saṁsandati sametī”ti?
and do not wield power, while Brahmā is the opposite in all these things. But would brahmins who are opposite to Brahmā in all things come together and converge with him?”

“No hidaṁ, bho gotama”.
“No, Master Gotama.”

“Sādhu, vāseṭṭha, te vata, vāseṭṭha, avasavattī tevijjā brāhmaṇā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā vasavattissa brahmuno sahabyūpagā bhavissantīti, netaṁ ṭhānaṁ vijjati.
“Good, Vāseṭṭha! It’s impossible that such brahmins will, when the body breaks up, after death, be reborn in the company of Brahmā.

Idha kho pana te, vāseṭṭha, tevijjā brāhmaṇā āsīditvā saṁsīdanti, saṁsīditvā visāraṁ pāpuṇanti, sukkhataraṁ maññe taranti.
But here the brahmins proficient in the three Vedas sink down where they have sat, only to be torn apart; all the while imagining that they’re crossing over to drier ground.

Tasmā idaṁ tevijjānaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ tevijjāiriṇantipi vuccati, tevijjāvivanantipi vuccati, tevijjābyasanantipi vuccatī”ti.
That’s why the three Vedas of the brahmins are called a ‘salted land’ and a ‘barren land’ and a ‘disaster’.”

Evaṁ vutte, vāseṭṭho māṇavo bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he said this, Vāseṭṭha said to the Buddha,

“sutaṁ metaṁ, bho gotama, samaṇo gotamo brahmānaṁ sahabyatāya maggaṁ jānātī”ti.
“I have heard, Master Gotama, that you know the path to company with Brahmā.”

“Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, vāseṭṭha.
“What do you think, Vāseṭṭha?

Āsanne ito manasākaṭaṁ, na ito dūre manasākaṭan”ti?
Is the village of Manasākaṭa nearby?”

“Evaṁ, bho gotama, āsanne ito manasākaṭaṁ, na ito dūre manasākaṭan”ti.
“Yes it is.”

“Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, vāseṭṭha,
“What do you think, Vāseṭṭha?

idhassa puriso manasākaṭe jātasaṁvaddho.
Suppose a person was born and raised in Manasākaṭa.

Tamenaṁ manasākaṭato tāvadeva avasaṭaṁ manasākaṭassa maggaṁ puccheyyuṁ.
And as soon as they left the town some people asked them for the road to Manasākaṭa.

Siyā nu kho, vāseṭṭha, tassa purisassa manasākaṭe jātasaṁvaddhassa manasākaṭassa maggaṁ puṭṭhassa dandhāyitattaṁ vā vitthāyitattaṁ vā”ti?
Would they be slow or hesitant to answer?”

“No hidaṁ, bho gotama”.
“No, Master Gotama.

“Taṁ kissa hetu”?
Why is that?

“Amu hi, bho gotama, puriso manasākaṭe jātasaṁvaddho, tassa sabbāneva manasākaṭassa maggāni suviditānī”ti.
Because they were born and raised in Manasākaṭa. They’re well acquainted with all the roads to the village.”

“Siyā kho, vāseṭṭha, tassa purisassa manasākaṭe jātasaṁvaddhassa manasākaṭassa maggaṁ puṭṭhassa dandhāyitattaṁ vā vitthāyitattaṁ vā, na tveva tathāgatassa brahmaloke vā brahmalokagāminiyā vā paṭipadāya puṭṭhassa dandhāyitattaṁ vā vitthāyitattaṁ vā.
“Still, it’s possible they might be slow or hesitant to answer. But the Realized One is never slow or hesitant when questioned about the Brahmā realm or the practice that leads to the Brahmā realm.

Brahmānañcāhaṁ, vāseṭṭha, pajānāmi brahmalokañca brahmalokagāminiñca paṭipadaṁ, yathā paṭipanno ca brahmalokaṁ upapanno, tañca pajānāmī”ti.
I understand Brahmā, the Brahmā realm, and the practice that leads to the Brahmā realm, practicing in accordance with which one is reborn in the Brahmā realm.”

Evaṁ vutte, vāseṭṭho māṇavo bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he said this, Vāseṭṭha said to the Buddha,

“sutaṁ metaṁ, bho gotama, samaṇo gotamo brahmānaṁ sahabyatāya maggaṁ desetī”ti.
“I have heard, Master Gotama, that you teach the path to company with Brahmā.

“Sādhu no bhavaṁ gotamo brahmānaṁ sahabyatāya maggaṁ desetu ullumpatu bhavaṁ gotamo brāhmaṇiṁ pajan”ti.
Please teach us that path and elevate this generation of brahmins.”

“Tena hi, vāseṭṭha, suṇāhi; sādhukaṁ manasi karohi; bhāsissāmī”ti.
“Well then, Vāseṭṭha, listen and pay close attention, I will speak.”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho vāseṭṭho māṇavo bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Vāseṭṭha.

4. Brahmalokamaggadesanā

4. Teaching the Path to Brahmā

Bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said this:

“idha, vāseṭṭha, tathāgato loke uppajjati arahaṁ, sammāsambuddho …pe…

Evaṁ kho, vāseṭṭha, bhikkhu sīlasampanno hoti …pe…
That’s how a mendicant is accomplished in ethics. …

The Great Discourse on the Harvest of Deeds

1. Pubbenivāsapaṭisaṁyuttakathā

1. On Past Lives

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā sāvatthiyaṁ viharati jetavane anāthapiṇḍikassa ārāme karerikuṭikāyaṁ.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Sāvatthī in Jeta's Grove, Anāthapiṇḍika's monastery, in the hut by the kari tree.

Atha kho sambahulānaṁ bhikkhūnaṁ pacchābhattaṁ piṇḍapātapaṭikkantānaṁ karerimaṇḍalamāḷe sannisinnānaṁ sannipatitānaṁ pubbenivāsapaṭisaṁyuttā dhammī kathā udapādi:
Then after the meal, on return from alms-round, several senior mendicants sat together in the pavilion by the kari tree and this Dhamma talk on the subject of past lives came up among them,

"itipi pubbenivāso, itipi pubbenivāso"ti.
"So it was in a past life; such it was in a past life."

Assosi kho bhagavā dibbāya sotadhātuyā visuddhāya atikkantamānusikāya tesaṁ bhikkhūnaṁ imaṁ kathāsallāpaṁ.
With clairaudience that is purified and superhuman, the Buddha heard that discussion among the mendicants.

Atha kho bhagavā uṭṭhāyāsanā yena karerimaṇḍalamāḷo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā paññatte āsane nisīdi, nisajja kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
So he got up from his seat and went to the pavilion, where he sat on the seat spread out and addressed the mendicants, “kāya nuttha, bhikkhave, etarahi kathāya sannisinnā; kā ca pana vo antarākathā vippakatā”ti?

“Mendicants, what were you sitting talking about just now? What conversation was unfinished?”

Evaṁ vutte, te bhikkhū bhagavantaṁ etadavocuṁ:
The mendicants told him what had happened, adding,

“idha, bhante, amhākaṁ pacchābhattaṁ piṇḍapātapaṭikkantānaṁ karerimaṇḍalamāḷe sannisinnānaṁ sannipatitānaṁ pubbenivāsapaṭisaṁyuttā dhammī kathā udapādi:

‘itipi pubbenivāso itipi pubbenivāso’ti.

Ayaṁ kho no, bhante, antarākathā vippakatā. Atha bhagavā anuppatto”ti.
“This is the conversation that was unfinished when the Buddha arrived.”

“Iccheyyātha no tumhe, bhikkhave, pubbenivāsapaṭisaṁyuttaṁ dhammiṁ kathaṁ sotun”ti?
“Would you like to hear a Dhamma talk on the subject of past lives?”

“Etassa, bhagavā, kālo; etassa, sugata, kālo;
“Now is the time, Blessed One! Now is the time, Holy One!

yaṁ bhagavā pubbenivāsapaṭisaṁyuttaṁ dhammiṁ kathaṁ kareyya, bhagavato sutvā bhikkhū dhāressantī”ti.
Let the Buddha give a Dhamma talk on the subject of past lives. The mendicants will listen and remember it.”

“Tena hi, bhikkhave, suṇātha sādhukaṁ manasi karotha bhāsissāmī”ti.
“Well then, mendicants, listen and pay close attention, I will speak.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho te bhikkhū bhagavato paccassosuṁ.
“Yes, sir,” they replied.

Bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said this:

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Idaṁ vatvāna sugato uṭṭhāyāsanā vihāraṁ pāvisi.
When he had spoken, the Holy One got up from his seat and entered his dwelling.

Atha kho tesaṁ bhikkhūnaṁ acirapakkantassa bhagavato ayamantarākathā udapādi:
Soon after the Buddha left, those mendicants discussed among themselves:

“acchariyaṁ, āvuso, abbhutaṁ, āvuso, tathāgatassa mahiddhikatā mahānubhāvatā.
“It’s incredible, reverends, it’s amazing, the power and might of a Realized One!

Yatra hi nāma tathāgato atīte buddhe parinibbute chinnapapañce chinnavaṭume pariyādinnavaṭṭe sabbadukkhavītivatte jātitopi anussarissati, nāmatopi anussarissati, gottatopi anussarissati, āyuppamāṇatopi anussarissati, sāvakayugatopi anussarissati, sāvakasannipātatopi anussarissati:
For he is able to recollect the caste, names, clans, life-span, chief disciples, and gatherings of disciples of the Buddhas of the past who have become completely extinguished, cut off proliferation, cut off the track, finished off the cycle, and transcended suffering.

‘evaṁjaccā te bhagavanto ahesuṁ itipi, evaṁnāmā evaṅgottā evaṁsīlā evaṁdhammā evaṁpaññā evaṁvihārī evaṁvimuttā te bhagavanto ahesuṁ itipī’”ti.
He knows the caste they were born in, and also their names, clans, conduct, qualities, wisdom, meditation, and freedom.

“Kiṁ nu kho, āvuso, tathāgatasseva nu kho esā dhammadhātu suppaṭividdhā, yassā dhammadhātuyā suppaṭividdhattā tathāgato atīte buddhe parinibbute chinnapapañce chinnavaṭume pariyādinnavaṭṭe sabbadukkhavītivatte jātitopi anussarati, nāmatopi anussarati, gottatopi anussarati, āyuppamāṇatopi anussarati, sāvakayugatopi anussarati, sāvakasannipātatopi anussarati: ‘evaṁjaccā te bhagavanto ahesuṁ itipi, evaṁnāmā evaṅgottā evaṁsīlā evaṁdhammā evaṁpaññā evaṁvihārī evaṁvimuttā te bhagavanto ahesuṁ itipī’ti,

Is it because the Realized One has clearly comprehended the principle of the teachings that he can recollect all these things?

udāhu devatā tathāgatassa etamatthaṁ ārocesuṁ, yena tathāgato atīte buddhe parinibbute chinnapapañce chinnavaṭume pariyādinnavaṭṭe sabbadukkhavītivatte jātitopi anussarati, nāmatopi anussarati, gottatopi anussarati, āyuppamāṇatopi anussarati, sāvakayugatopi anussarati, sāvakasannipātatopi anussarati: ‘evaṁjaccā te bhagavanto ahesuṁ itipi, evaṁnāmā evaṅgottā evaṁsīlā evaṁdhammā evaṁpaññā evaṁvihārī evaṁvimuttā te bhagavanto ahesuṁ itipī’”ti.
Or did deities tell him?”

Ayañca hidaṁ tesaṁ bhikkhūnaṁ antarākathā vippakatā hoti.
But this conversation among those mendicants was left unfinished.

Atha kho bhagavā sāyanhasamayaṁ paṭisallānā vuṭṭhito yena karerimaṇḍalamāḷo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā paññatte āsane nisīdi.
Then in the late afternoon, the Buddha came out of retreat and went to the pavilion by the kari tree, where he sat on the seat spread out

Nisajja kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
and addressed the mendicants,

“kāya nuttha, bhikkhave, etarahi kathāya sannisinnā; kā ca pana vo antarākathā vippakatā”ti?
“Mendicants, what were you sitting talking about just now? What conversation was unfinished?”

Evaṁ vutte, te bhikkhū bhagavantaṁ etadavocuṁ:
The mendicants told him what had happened, adding,

Iccheyyātha no tumhe, bhikkhave, bhiyyoso mattāya pubbenivāsapaṭisaṁyuttaṁ dhammiṁ kathaṁ sotun”ti?
Would you like to hear a further Dhamma talk on the subject of past lives?”

“Etassa, bhagavā, kālo; etassa, sugata, kālo;
“Now is the time, Blessed One! Now is the time, Holy One!

yaṁ bhagavā bhiyyoso mattāya pubbenivāsapaṭisaṁyuttaṁ dhammiṁ kathaṁ kareyya, bhagavato sutvā bhikkhū dhāressantī”ti.
Let the Buddha give a further Dhamma talk on the subject of past lives. The mendicants will listen and remember it.”

“Tena hi, bhikkhave, suṇātha, sādhukaṁ manasi karotha, bhāsissāmī”ti.
“Well then, mendicants, listen and pay close attention, I will speak.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho te bhikkhū bhagavato paccassosuṁ.
“Yes, sir,” they replied.

Bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said this:

“Ito so, bhikkhave, ekanavutikappe yaṁ vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho loke udapādi.
“Ninety-one eons ago, the Buddha Vipassī arose in the world, perfected and fully awakened.

2. Bodhisattadhammatā

2. What’s Normal For One Intent on Awakening

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassī bodhisatto tusitā kāyā cavitvā sato sampajāno mātukucchiṁ okkami.
When Vipassī, the being intent on awakening, passed away from the host of Joyful Gods, he was conceived in his mother's womb, mindful and aware.

Ayamettha dhammatā. (1)
This is normal in such a case.

Dhammatā esā, bhikkhave, yadā bodhisatto tusitā kāyā cavitvā mātukucchiṁ okkamati.
It's normal that, when the being intent on awakening passes away from the host of Joyful Gods, he is conceived in his mother's womb.

Atha sadevake loke samārake sabrahmake sassamaṇabrāhmaṇiyā pajāya sadevamanussāya appamāṇo uḷāro obhāso pātubhavati atikkammeva devānaṁ devānubhāvaṁ.
And then—in this world with its gods, Māras and Brahmās, this population with its ascetics and brahmins, gods and humans—an immeasurable, magnificent light appears, surpassing the glory of the gods.

Yāpi tā lokantarikā aghā asaṁvutā andhakārā andhakāratimisā, yatthapime candimasūriyā evaṁmahiddhikā evaṁmahānubhāvā ābhāya nānubhonti, tatthapi appamāṇo uḷāro obhāso pātubhavati atikkammeva devānaṁ devānubhāvaṁ.
Even in the boundless desolation of interstellar space—so utterly dark that even the light of the moon and the sun, so mighty and powerful, makes no impression—an immeasurable, magnificent light appears, surpassing the glory of the gods.

Yepi tattha sattā upapannā, tepi tenobhāsena aññamaññaṁ sañjānanti: 'aññepi kira, bho, santi sattā idhūpapannā'ti.
And the sentient beings reborn there recognize each other by that light: 'So, it seems other sentient beings have been reborn here!'

Ayañca dasasahassī lokadhātu saṅkampati sampakampati sampavedhati. Appamāṇo ca uḷāro obhāso loke pātubhavati atikkammeva devānaṁ devānubhāvaṁ.
And this galaxy shakes and rocks and trembles. And an immeasurable, magnificent light appears in the world, surpassing the glory of the gods.

Ayamettha dhammatā. (2)
This is normal in such a case.

Dhammatā esā, bhikkhave, yadā bodhisatto mātukucchiṁ okkanto hoti, cattāro naṁ devaputtā catuddisaṁ rakkhāya upagacchanti: 'mā naṁ bodhisattaṁ vā bodhisattamātaraṁ vā manusso vā amanusso vā koci vā viheṭhesī'ti.
It's normal that, when the being intent on awakening is conceived in his mother's belly, four gods approach to guard the four directions, so that no human or non-human or anyone at all shall harm the being intent on awakening or his mother.

Ayamettha dhammatā. (3)
This is normal in such a case.

Dhammatā esā, bhikkhave, yadā bodhisatto mātukucchiṁ okkanto hoti, pakatiyā sīlavatī bodhisattamātā hoti, viratā pāṇātipātā, viratā adinnādānā, viratā kāmesumicchācārā, viratā musāvādā, viratā surāmerayamajjappamādaṭṭhānā.
It's normal that, when the being intent on awakening is conceived in his mother's belly, she becomes naturally ethical. She refrains from killing living creatures, stealing, sexual misconduct, lying, and alcoholic drinks that cause negligence.

Ayamettha dhammatā. (4)
This is normal in such a case.

Dhammatā esā, bhikkhave, yadā bodhisatto mātukucchiṁ okkanto hoti, na bodhisattamātu purisesu mānasaṁ uppajjati kāmaguṇūpasaṁhitaṁ, anatikkamanīyā ca bodhisattamātā hoti kenaci purisena rattacittena.

It’s normal that, when the being intent on awakening is conceived in his mother’s belly, she no longer feels sexual desire for men, and she cannot be violated by a man of lustful intent.

Ayamettha dhammatā. (5)
This is normal in such a case.

Dhammatā esā, bhikkhave, yadā bodhisatto mātukucchiṁ okkanto hoti, lābhinī bodhisattamātā hoti pañcannaṁ kāmaguṇānaṁ. Sā pañcahi kāmaguṇehi samappitā samaṅgībhūtā paricāreti.
It’s normal that, when the being intent on awakening is conceived in his mother’s belly, she obtains the five kinds of sensual stimulation and amuses herself, supplied and provided with them.

Ayamettha dhammatā. (6)
This is normal in such a case.

Dhammatā esā, bhikkhave, yadā bodhisatto mātukucchiṁ okkanto hoti, na bodhisattamātu kocideva ābādho uppajjati. Sukhinī bodhisattamātā hoti akilantakāyā, bodhisattañca bodhisattamātā tirokucchigataṁ passati sabbaṅgapaccaṅgiṁ ahīnindriyaṁ.
It’s normal that, when the being intent on awakening is conceived in his mother’s belly, no afflictions beset her. She’s happy and free of bodily fatigue. And she sees the being intent on awakening in her womb, complete with all his various parts, not deficient in any faculty.

Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, maṇi veḷuriyo subho jātimā aṭṭhaṁso suparikammakato accho vippasanno anāvilo sabbākārasampanno. Tatrāssa suttaṁ āvutaṁ nīlaṁ vā pītaṁ vā lohitaṁ vā odātaṁ vā paṇḍusuttaṁ vā.
Suppose there was a beryl gem that was naturally beautiful, eight-faceted, well-worked, transparent, clear, and unclouded, endowed with all good qualities. And it was strung with a thread of blue, yellow, red, white, or golden brown.

Tamenaṁ cakkhumā puriso hatthe karitvā paccavekkheyya: ‘ayaṁ kho maṇi veḷuriyo subho jātimā aṭṭhaṁso suparikammakato accho vippasanno anāvilo sabbākārasampanno. Tatridaṁ suttaṁ āvutaṁ nīlaṁ vā pītaṁ vā lohitaṁ vā odātaṁ vā paṇḍusuttaṁ vā’ti.
And someone with good eyesight were to take it in their hand and examine it: ‘This beryl gem is naturally beautiful, eight-faceted, well-worked, transparent, clear, and unclouded, endowed with all good qualities. And it’s strung with a thread of blue, yellow, red, white, or golden brown.’

Evameva kho, bhikkhave, yadā bodhisatto mātukucchiṁ okkanto hoti, na bodhisattamātu kocideva ābādho uppajjati, sukhinī bodhisattamātā hoti akilantakāyā, bodhisattañca bodhisattamātā tirokucchigataṁ passati sabbaṅgapaccaṅgiṁ ahīnindriyaṁ.
In the same way, when the being intent on awakening is conceived in his mother’s belly, no afflictions beset her. She’s happy and free of bodily fatigue. And she sees the being intent on awakening in her womb, complete with all his various parts, not deficient in any faculty.

Ayamettha dhammatā. (7)
This is normal in such a case.

Dhammatā esā, bhikkhave, sattāhajāte bodhisatte bodhisattamātā kālaṁ karoti tusitaṁ kāyaṁ upapajjati.
It’s normal that, seven days after the being intent on awakening is born, his mother passes away and is reborn in the host of Joyful Gods.

Ayamettha dhammatā. (8)
This is normal in such a case.

3. The Thirty-Two Marks of a Great Man

Jāte kho pana, bhikkhave, vipassimhi kumāre bandhumato rañño paṭivedesuṁ:
When Prince Vipassī was born, they announced it to King Bandhumata,

'putto te, deva, jāto, taṁ devo passatū'ti.
'Sire, your son is born! Let your majesty examine him!'

Addasā kho, bhikkhave, bandhumā rājā vipassiṁ kumāraṁ, disvā nemitte brāhmaṇe āmantāpetvā etadavoca:

When the king had examined the prince, he had the brahmin soothsayers summoned and said to them, ‘passantu bhonto nemittā brāhmaṇā kumāran’ti.

‘Gentlemen, please examine the prince.’

Addasaṁsu kho, bhikkhave, nemittā brāhmaṇā vipassiṁ kumāraṁ, disvā bandhumantaṁ rājānaṁ etadavocuṁ:
When they had examined him they said to the king,

‘attamano, deva, hohi, mahesakkho te putto uppanno, lābhā te, mahārāja, suladdhaṁ te, mahārāja, yassa te kule evarūpo putto uppanno.
‘Rejoice, O King! An illustrious son is born to you. You are fortunate, so very fortunate, to have a son such as this born in this family!’

Ayañhi, deva, kumāro dvattiṁsamahāpurisalakkhaṇehi samannāgato, yehi samannāgatassa mahāpurisassa dveva gatiyo bhavanti anaññā.
For the prince has the thirty-two marks of a great man. A great man who possesses these has only two possible destinies, no other.

Sace agāraṁ ajjhāvasati, rājā hoti cakkavattī dhammiko dhammarājā cāturanto vijitāvī janapadatthāvariyappatto sattaratanasamannāgato.
If he stays at home he becomes a king, a wheel-turning monarch, a just and principled king. His dominion extends to all four sides, he achieves stability in the country, and he possesses the seven treasures.

Tassimāni sattaratanāni bhavanti.
He has the following seven treasures:

Seyyathidaṁ—cakkaratanaṁ hatthiratanaṁ assaratanaṁ maṇiratanaṁ itthiratanaṁ gahapatiratanaṁ pariṇāyakaratanameva sattamaṁ.
the wheel, the elephant, the horse, the jewel, the woman, the treasurer, and the counselor as the seventh treasure.

4. Vipassīsamaññā

4. How He Came to be Known as Vipassī

Atha kho, bhikkhave, bandhumā rājā nemitte brāhmaṇe ahatehi vatthehi acchādāpetvā sabbakāmehi santappesi.
Then King Bandhuma had the brahmin soothsayers dressed in fresh clothes and satisfied all their needs.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, bandhumā rājā vipassissa kumārassa dhātiyo upaṭṭhāpesi.
Then the king appointed nurses for Prince Vipassī.

Aññā khīraṁ pāyenti, aññā nhāpenti, aññā dhārenti, aññā aṅkena pariharanti.
Some suckled him, some bathed him, some held him, and some carried him on their hip.

Jātassa kho pana, bhikkhave, vipassissa kumārassa setacchattaṁ dhārayittha divā ceva rattiñca:
From when he was born, a white parasol was held over him night and day, with the thought, ‘mā naṁ sītaṁ vā uṇhaṁ vā tiṇaṁ vā rajo vā ussāvo vā bādhayitthā’ti.

‘Don’t let cold, heat, grass, dust, or damp bother him.’

Jāto kho pana, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro bahuno janassa piyo ahosi manāpo.
He was dear and beloved by many people,

Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, uppalaṁ vā padumaṁ vā puṇḍarīkaṁ vā bahuno janassa piyaṁ manāpaṁ; like a blue water lily, or a pink or white lotus.

evameva kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro bahuno janassa piyo ahosi manāpo.

Svāssudaṁ aṅkeneva aṅkaṁ parihariyati.
He was always passed from hip to hip.

Jāto kho pana, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro mañjussaro ca ahosi vaggussaro ca madhurassaro ca pemaniyassaro ca.
From when he was born, his voice was charming, graceful, sweet, and lovely.

Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, himavante pabbate karavīkā nāma sakuṇajāti mañjussarā ca vaggussarā ca madhurassarā ca pemaniyassarā ca;
It was as sweet as the song of a cuckoo-bird found in the Himalayas.

evameva kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro mañjussaro ca ahosi vaggussaro ca madhurassaro ca pemaniyassaro ca.

Jātassa kho pana, bhikkhave, vipassissa kumārassa kammavipākajaṁ dibbacakkhu pāturahosi yena sudaṁ samantā yojanaṁ passati divā ceva rattiñca.
From when he was born, Prince Vipassī had the power of clairvoyance which manifested as a result of past deeds. He could see for a league all around both by day and by night.

Jāto kho pana, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro animisanto pekkhati seyyathāpi devā tāvatiṁsā.
And he was unblinkingly watchful, like the gods of the Thirty-Three.

‘Animisanto kumāro pekkhatī’ti kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa kumārassa ‘vipassī vipassī’ tveva samaññā udapādi.
And because it was said that he was unblinkingly watchful, he came to be known as ‘Vipassī’.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, bandhumā rājā atthakaraṇe nisinno vipassiṁ kumāraṁ aṅke nisīdāpetvā atthe anusāsati.
Then while King Bandhuma was sitting in judgment, he’d sit Prince Vipassī in his lap and explain the case to him.

Tatra sudaṁ, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro pituaṅke nisinno viceyya viceyya atthe panāyati ñāyena.
And sitting there in his father’s lap, Vipassī would thoroughly consider the case and draw a conclusion using a logical procedure.

Viceyya viceyya kumāro atthe panāyati ñāyenāti kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa kumārassa bhiyyoso mattāya ‘vipassī vipassī’ tveva samaññā udapādi.
So this was all the more reason for him to be known as ‘Vipassī’.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, bandhumā rājā vipassissa kumārassa tayo pāsāde kārāpesi, ekaṁ vassikaṁ ekaṁ hemantikaṁ ekaṁ gimhikaṁ;
Then King Bandhuma had three stilt longhouses built for him—one for the winter, one for the summer, and one for the rainy season, pañca kāmaguṇāni upaṭṭhāpesi.

and provided him with the five kinds of sensual stimulation.

Tatra sudaṁ, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro vassike pāsāde cattāro māse nippurisehi tūriyehi paricārayamāno na heṭṭhāpāsādaṁ orohatīti.
Prince Vipassī stayed in a stilt longhouse without coming downstairs for the four months of the rainy season, where he was entertained by musicians—none of them men.

Paṭhamabhāṇavāro.

5. Jiṇṇapurisa
5. The Old Man

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro bahūnaṁ vassānaṁ bahūnaṁ vassasatānaṁ bahūnaṁ vassasahassānaṁ accayena sārathiṁ āmantesi:
Then, after many thousand years had passed, Prince Vipassī addressed his charioteer,

‘yojehi, samma sārathi, bhaddāni bhaddāni yānāni uyyānabhūmiṁ gacchāma subhūmidassanāyā’ti.
‘My dear charioteer, harness the finest chariots. We will go to a park and see the scenery.’

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, bhikkhave, sārathi vipassissa kumārassa paṭissutvā bhaddāni bhaddāni yānāni yojetvā vipassissa kumārassa paṭivedesi:
‘Yes, sir,’ replied the charioteer. He harnessed the chariots and informed the prince,

‘yuttāni kho te, deva, bhaddāni bhaddāni yānāni,
‘Sire, the finest chariots are harnessed.

yassadāni kālaṁ maññasī’ti.
Please go at your convenience.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro bhaddaṁ bhaddaṁ yānaṁ abhiruhitvā bhaddehi bhaddehi yānehi uyyānabhūmiṁ niyyāsi.
Then Prince Vipassī mounted a fine carriage and, along with other fine carriages, set out for the park.

Addasā kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro uyyānabhūmiṁ niyyanto purisaṁ jiṇṇaṁ gopānasivaṅkaṁ bhoggaṁ daṇḍaparāyanaṁ pavedhamānaṁ gacchantaṁ āturaṁ gatayobbanaṁ.
Along the way he saw an elderly man, bent double, crooked, leaning on a staff, trembling as he walked, ailing, past his prime.

Disvā sārathiṁ āmantesi:
He addressed his charioteer,

‘ayaṁ pana, samma sārathi, puriso kiṅkato?
‘My dear charioteer, what has that man done?

Kesāpissa na yathā aññesaṁ, kāyopissa na yathā aññesan’ti.
For his hair and his body are unlike those of other men.’

‘Eso kho, deva, jiṇṇo nāmā’ti.
‘That, Your Majesty, is called an old man.’

‘Kiṁ paneso, samma sārathi, jiṇṇo nāmā’ti?
‘But why is he called an old man?’

‘Eso kho, deva, jiṇṇo nāma. Na dāni tena ciraṁ jīvitabbaṁ bhavissatī’ti.
‘He’s called an old man because now he has not long to live.’

‘Kiṁ pana, samma sārathi, ahampi jarādhammo, jaraṁ anatīto’ti?
‘But my dear charioteer, am I liable to grow old? Am I not exempt from old age?’

‘Tvañca, deva, mayañcamha sabbe jarādhammā, jaraṁ anatītā’ti.
‘Everyone is liable to grow old, Your Majesty, including you. No-one is exempt from old age.’

‘Tena hi, samma sārathi, alaṁ dānajja uyyānabhūmiyā. Itova antepuraṁ paccaniyyāhī’ti.
‘Well then, my dear charioteer, that’s enough of the park for today. Let’s return to the royal compound.’

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, bhikkhave, sārathi vipassissa kumārassa paṭissutvā tatova antepuraṁ paccaniyyāsi.
‘Yes, Your Majesty,’ replied the charioteer and did so.

Tatra sudaṁ, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro antepuraṁ gato dukkhī dummano pajjhāyati:
Back at the royal compound, the prince brooded, miserable and sad:

‘dhiratthu kira, bho, jāti nāma, yatra hi nāma jātassa jarā paññāyissatī’ti.
‘Damn this thing called rebirth, since old age will come to anyone who’s born.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, bandhumā rājā sārathiṁ āmantāpetvā etadavoca:
Then King Bandhuma summoned the charioteer and said,

‘kacci, samma sārathi, kumāro uyyānabhūmiyā abhiramittha? Kacci, samma sārathi, kumāro uyyānabhūmiyā attamano ahosī’ti?
‘My dear charioteer, I hope the prince enjoyed himself at the park? I hope he was happy there?’

‘Na kho, deva, kumāro uyyānabhūmiyā abhiramittha, na kho, deva, kumāro uyyānabhūmiyā attamano ahosī’ti.
‘No, Your Majesty, the prince didn’t enjoy himself at the park.’

‘Kiṁ pana, samma sārathi, addasa kumāro uyyānabhūmiṁ niyyanto’ti?
‘But what did he see on the way to the park?’

‘Addasā kho, deva, kumāro uyyānabhūmiṁ niyyanto purisaṁ jiṇṇaṁ gopānasivaṅkaṁ bhoggaṁ daṇḍaparāyanaṁ pavedhamānaṁ gacchantaṁ āturaṁ gatayobbanaṁ.
And the charioteer told the king about seeing the old man and the prince’s reaction.

Disvā maṁ etadavoca:

“ayaṁ pana, samma sārathi, puriso kiṅkato, kesāpissa na yathā aññesaṁ, kāyopissa na yathā aññesan”ti?

“Eso kho, deva, jiṇṇo nāmā”ti.

“Kiṁ paneso, samma sārathi, jiṇṇo nāmā”ti?

“Eso kho, deva, jiṇṇo nāma na dāni tena ciraṁ jīvitabbaṁ bhavissatī”ti.

“Kiṁ pana, samma sārathi, ahampi jarādhammo, jaraṁ anatīto”ti?

“Tvañca, deva, mayañcamha sabbe jarādhammā, jaraṁ anatītā”ti.

“Tena hi, samma sārathi, alaṁ dānajja uyyānabhūmiyā, itova antepuraṁ paccaniyyāhī”ti.

“Evaṁ, devā”ti kho ahaṁ, deva, vipassissa kumārassa paṭissutvā tatova antepuraṁ paccaniyyāsiṁ.

So kho, deva, kumāro antepuraṁ gato dukkhī dummano pajjhāyati:

“dhiratthu kira, bho, jāti nāma, yatra hi nāma jātassa jarā paññāyissatī”’ti.

6. Byādhitapurisa

6. The Sick Man

Atha kho, bhikkhave, bandhumassa rañño etadahosi:

Then King Bandhuma thought,

‘Mā heva kho vipassī kumāro na rajjaṁ kāresi, mā heva vipassī kumāro agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbaji, mā heva nemittānaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ saccaṁ assa vacanan’ti.
‘Prince Vipassī must not renounce the throne. He must not go forth from the lay life to homelessness. And the words of the brahmin soothsayers must not come true.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, bandhumā rājā vipassissa kumārassa bhiyyoso mattāya pañca kāmaguṇāni upaṭṭhāpesi:
To this end he provided the prince with even more of the five kinds of sensual stimulation, ‘yathā vipassī kumāro rajjaṁ kareyya, yathā vipassī kumāro na agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajeyya, yathā nemittānaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ micchā assa vacanan’ti.

Tatra sudaṁ, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro pañcahi kāmaguṇehi samappito samaṅgībhūto paricāreti.
with which the prince amused himself.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro bahūnaṁ vassānaṁ …pe…
Then, after many thousand years had passed, Prince Vipassī had his charioteer drive him to the park once more.

Addasā kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro uyyānabhūmiṁ niyyanto purisaṁ ābādhikaṁ dukkhitaṁ bāḷhagilānaṁ sake muttakarīse palipannaṁ semānaṁ aññehi vuṭṭhāpiyamānaṁ aññehi saṁvesiyamānaṁ.
Along the way he saw a man who was ill, suffering, gravely ill, collapsed in his own urine and feces, being picked up by some and put down by others.

Disvā sārathiṁ āmantesi:
He addressed his charioteer,

‘ayaṁ pana, samma sārathi, puriso kiṅkato?

‘My dear charioteer, what has that man done?

Akkhīnipissa na yathā aññesaṁ, saropissa na yathā aññesan’ti?
For his eyes and his voice are unlike those of other men.’

‘Eso kho, deva, byādhito nāmā’ti.
‘That, Your Majesty, is called a sick man.’

‘Kiṁ paneso, samma sārathi, byādhito nāmā’ti?
‘But why is he called a sick man?’

‘Eso kho, deva, byādhito nāma appeva nāma tamhā ābādhā vuṭṭhaheyyā’ti.
‘He’s called an sick man; hopefully he will recover from that illness.’

‘Kiṁ pana, samma sārathi, ahampi byādhidhammo, byādhiṁ anatīto’ti?
‘But my dear charioteer, am I liable to fall sick? Am I not exempt from sickness?’

‘Tvañca, deva, mayañcamha sabbe byādhidhammā, byādhiṁ anatītā’ti.
‘Everyone is liable to fall sick, Your Majesty, including you. No-one is exempt from sickness.’

‘Tena hi, samma sārathi, alaṁ dānajja uyyānabhūmiyā, itova antepuraṁ paccaniyyāhī’ti.
‘Well then, my dear charioteer, that’s enough of the park for today. Let’s return to the royal compound.’

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, bhikkhave, sārathi vipassissa kumārassa paṭissutvā tatova antepuraṁ paccaniyyāsi.
‘Yes, Your Majesty,’ replied the charioteer and did so.

Tatra sudaṁ, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro antepuraṁ gato dukkhī dummano pajjhāyati:
Back at the royal compound, the prince brooded, miserable and sad:

‘dhiratthu kira, bho, jāti nāma, yatra hi nāma jātassa jarā paññāyissati, byādhi paññāyissatī’ti.
‘Damn this thing called rebirth, since old age and sickness will come to anyone who’s born.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, bandhumā rājā sārathiṁ āmantāpetvā etadavoca:
Then King Bandhuma summoned the charioteer and said,

‘kacci, samma sārathi, kumāro uyyānabhūmiyā abhiramittha, kacci, samma sārathi, kumāro uyyānabhūmiyā attamano ahosī’ti?
‘My dear charioteer, I hope the prince enjoyed himself at the park? I hope he was happy there?’

‘Na kho, deva, kumāro uyyānabhūmiyā abhiramittha, na kho, deva, kumāro uyyānabhūmiyā attamano ahosī’ti.
‘No, Your Majesty, the prince didn’t enjoy himself at the park.’

‘Kiṁ pana, samma sārathi, addasa kumāro uyyānabhūmiṁ niyyanto’ti?
‘But what did he see on the way to the park?’

‘Addasā kho, deva, kumāro uyyānabhūmiṁ niyyanto purisaṁ ābādhikaṁ dukkhitaṁ bāḷhagilānaṁ sake muttakarīse palipannaṁ semānaṁ aññehi vuṭṭhāpiyamānaṁ aññehi saṁvesiyamānaṁ.
And the charioteer told the king about seeing the sick man and the prince’s reaction.

Disvā maṁ etadavoca:

“ayaṁ pana, samma sārathi, puriso kiṅkato, akkhīnipissa na yathā aññesaṁ, saropissa na yathā aññesan”ti?

“Eso kho, deva, byādhito nāmā”ti.

“Kiṁ paneso, samma sārathi, byādhito nāmā”ti?

“Eso kho, deva, byādhito nāma appeva nāma tamhā ābādhā vuṭṭhaheyyā”ti.

“Kiṁ pana, samma sārathi, ahampi byādhidhammo, byādhiṁ anatīto”ti?

“Tvañca, deva, mayañcamha sabbe byādhidhammā, byādhiṁ anatītā”ti.

“Tena hi, samma sārathi, alaṁ dānajja uyyānabhūmiyā, itova antepuraṁ paccaniyyāhī”ti.

“Evaṁ, devā”ti kho ahaṁ, deva, vipassissa kumārassa paṭissutvā tatova antepuraṁ paccaniyyāsiṁ.

So kho, deva, kumāro antepuraṁ gato dukkhī dummano pajjhāyati:

“dhiratthu kira, bho, jāti nāma, yatra hi nāma jātassa jarā paññāyissati, byādhi paññāyissatī”’ti.

7. Kālaṅkatapurisa

7. The Dead Man

Atha kho, bhikkhave, bandhumassa rañño etadahosi:
Then King Bandhuma thought,

‘mā heva kho vipassī kumāro na rajjaṁ kāresi, mā heva vipassī kumāro agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbaji, mā heva nemittānaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ saccaṁ assa vacanan’ti.
‘Prince Vipassī must not renounce the throne. He must not go forth from the lay life to homelessness. And the words of the brahmin soothsayers must not come true.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, bandhumā rājā vipassissa kumārassa bhiyyoso mattāya pañca kāmaguṇāni upaṭṭhāpesi:

To this end he provided the prince with even more of the five kinds of sensual stimulation,

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro bahūnaṁ vassānaṁ …pe…
Then, after many thousand years had passed, Prince Vipassī had his charioteer drive him to the park once more.

Addasā kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro uyyānabhūmiṁ niyyanto mahājanakāyaṁ sannipatitaṁ nānārattānañca dussānaṁ vilātaṁ kayiramānaṁ.
Along the way he saw a large crowd gathered making a bier out of garments of different colors.

Disvā sārathiṁ āmantesi:
He addressed his charioteer,

‘kiṁ nu kho so, samma sārathi, mahājanakāyo sannipatito nānārattānañca dussānaṁ vilātaṁ kayiratī’ti?
‘My dear charioteer, why is that crowd making a bier?’

‘Eso kho, deva, kālaṅkato nāmā’ti.
‘That, Your Majesty, is for someone who’s departed.’

‘Tena hi, samma sārathi, yena so kālaṅkato tena rathaṁ pesehī’ti.
‘Well then, drive the chariot up to the departed.’

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, bhikkhave, sārathi vipassissa kumārassa paṭissutvā yena so kālaṅkato tena rathaṁ pesesi.
‘Yes, Your Majesty,’ replied the charioteer, and did so.

Addasā kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro petaṁ kālaṅkataṁ, disvā sārathiṁ āmantesi:
When the prince saw the corpse of the departed, he addressed the charioteer,

‘kiṁ panāyaṁ, samma sārathi, kālaṅkato nāmā’ti?
‘But why is he called departed?’

‘Eso kho, deva, kālaṅkato nāma. Na dāni taṁ dakkhanti mātā vā pitā vā aññe vā ñātisālohitā, sopi na dakkhissati mātaraṁ vā pitaraṁ vā aññe vā ñātisālohite’ti.
‘He’s called departed because now his mother and father, his relatives and kin shall see him no more, and he shall never again see them.’

‘Kiṁ pana, samma sārathi, ahampi maraṇadhammo maraṇaṁ anatīto;
‘But my dear charioteer, am I liable to die? Am I not exempt from death?

mampi na dakkhanti devo vā devī vā aññe vā ñātisālohitā;
Will the king and queen and my other relatives and kin see me no more?

ahampi na dakkhissāmi devaṁ vā deviṁ vā aññe vā ñātisālohite’ti?
And shall I never again see them?’

‘Tvañca, deva, mayañcamha sabbe maraṇadhammā maraṇaṁ anatītā;
‘Everyone is liable to die, Your Majesty, including you. No-one is exempt from death.

tampi na dakkhanti devo vā devī vā aññe vā ñātisālohitā;
The king and queen and your other relatives and kin shall see you no more,

8. Pabbajita

8. The Renunciate

Atha kho, bhikkhave, bandhumassa rañño etadahosi:
Then King Bandhuma thought,

‘mā heva kho vipassī kumāro na rajjaṁ kāresi, mā heva vipassī kumāro agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbaji, mā heva nemittānaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ saccaṁ assa vacanan’ti.

To this end he provided the prince with even more of the five kinds of sensual stimulation, ‘yathā vipassī kumāro rajjaṁ kareyya, yathā vipassī kumāro na agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajeyya, yathā nemittānaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ micchā assa vacanan’ti.

Tatra sudaṁ, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro pañcahi kāmaguṇehi samappito samaṅgībhūto paricāreti.
with which the prince amused himself.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro bahūnaṁ vassānaṁ bahūnaṁ vassasatānaṁ bahūnaṁ vassasahassānaṁ accayena sārathiṁ āmantesi:
Then, after many thousand years had passed, Prince Vipassī had his charioteer drive him to the park once more.

‘yojehi, samma sārathi, bhaddāni bhaddāni yānāni, uyyānabhūmiṁ gacchāma subhūmidassanāyā’ti.

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, bhikkhave, sārathi vipassissa kumārassa paṭissutvā bhaddāni bhaddāni yānāni yojetvā vipassissa kumārassa paṭivedesi:

‘yuttāni kho te, deva, bhaddāni bhaddāni yānāni,

yassadāni kālaṁ maññasī’ti.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro bhaddaṁ bhaddaṁ yānaṁ abhiruhitvā bhaddehi bhaddehi yānehi uyyānabhūmiṁ niyyāsi.

Addasā kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro uyyānabhūmiṁ niyyanto purisaṁ bhaṇḍuṁ pabbajitaṁ kāsāyavasanaṁ.
Along the way he saw a man, a renunciate with shaven head, wearing an ocher robe.

Disvā sārathiṁ āmantesi:
He addressed his charioteer,

‘ayaṁ pana, samma sārathi, puriso kiṅkato?
‘My dear charioteer, what has that man done?

Sīsampissa na yathā aññesaṁ, vatthānipissa na yathā aññesan’ti?
For his head and his clothes are unlike those of other men.’

‘Eso kho, deva, pabbajito nāmā’ti.
‘That, Your Majesty, is called a renunciate.’

‘Kiṁ paneso, samma sārathi, pabbajito nāmā’ti?
‘But why is he called a renunciate?’

‘Eso kho, deva, pabbajito nāma sādhu dhammacariyā sādhu samacariyā sādhu kusalakiriyā sādhu puññakiriyā sādhu avihiṁsā sādhu bhūtānukampā’ti.
‘He is called a renunciate because he celebrates principled and fair conduct, skillful actions, good deeds, harmlessness, and compassion for living creatures.’

‘Sādhu kho so, samma sārathi, pabbajito nāma, sādhu dhammacariyā sādhu samacariyā sādhu kusalakiriyā sādhu puññakiriyā sādhu avihiṁsā sādhu bhūtānukampā.
‘Then I celebrate the one called a renunciate, who celebrates principled and fair conduct, skillful actions, good deeds, harmlessness, and compassion for living creatures!

Tena hi, samma sārathi, yena so pabbajito tena rathaṁ pesehī’ti.
Well then, drive the chariot up to that renunciate.’

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, bhikkhave, sārathi vipassissa kumārassa paṭissutvā yena so pabbajito tena rathaṁ pesesi.
‘Yes, Your Majesty,’ replied the charioteer, and did so.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro taṁ pabbajitaṁ etadavoca:
Then Prince Vipassī said to that renunciate,

‘tvaṁ pana, samma, kiṅkato,
‘My good man, what have you done?

sīsampi te na yathā aññesaṁ, vatthānipi te na yathā aññesan’ti?
For your head and your clothes are unlike those of other men.’

‘Ahaṁ kho, deva, pabbajito nāmā’ti.
‘Sire, I am what is called a renunciate.’

‘Kiṁ pana tvaṁ, samma, pabbajito nāmā’ti?
‘But why are you called a renunciate?’

‘Ahaṁ kho, deva, pabbajito nāma, sādhu dhammacariyā sādhu samacariyā sādhu kusalakiriyā sādhu puññakiriyā sādhu avihiṁsā sādhu bhūtānukampā’ti.
‘I am called a renunciate because I celebrate principled and fair conduct, skillful actions, good deeds, harmlessness, and compassion for living creatures.’

‘Sādhu kho tvaṁ, samma, pabbajito nāma sādhu dhammacariyā sādhu samacariyā sādhu kusalakiriyā sādhu puññakiriyā sādhu avihiṁsā sādhu bhūtānukampā’ti.
‘Then I celebrate the one called a renunciate, who celebrates principled and fair conduct, skillful actions, good deeds, harmlessness, and compassion for living creatures!’

9. Bodhisattapabbajjā

9. The Going Forth

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassī kumāro sārathiṁ āmantesi:
Then the prince addressed the charioteer,

‘tena hi, samma sārathi, rathaṁ ādāya itova antepuraṁ paccaniyyāhi.

‘Well then, my dear charioteer, take the chariot and return to the royal compound.

Ahaṁ pana idheva kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajissāmī’ti.
I shall shave off my hair and beard right here, dress in ocher robes, and go forth from the lay life to homelessness.’

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, bhikkhave, sārathi vipassissa kumārassa paṭissutvā rathaṁ ādāya tatova antepuraṁ paccaniyyāsi.
‘Yes, Your Majesty,’ replied the charioteer and did so.

Vipassī pana kumāro tattheva kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbaji.
Then Prince Vipassī shaved off his hair and beard, dressed in ocher robes, and went forth from the lay life to homelessness.

10. Mahājanakāyaanupabbajjā

10. A Great Crowd Goes Forth

Assosi kho, bhikkhave, bandhumatiyā rājadhāniyā mahājanakāyo caturāsītipāṇasahassāni:
A large crowd of 84,000 people in the capital of Bandhumatī heard ‘vipassī kira kumāro kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajito’ti.

that Vipassī had gone forth.

Sutvāna tesaṁ etadahosi:
It occurred to them,

‘na hi nūna so orako dhammavinayo, na sā orakā pabbajjā, yattha vipassī kumāro kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajito.
‘This must be no ordinary teaching and training, no ordinary going forth in which Prince Vipassī has gone forth.

Vipassīpi nāma kumāro kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajissati, kimaṅgaṁ pana mayan’ti.
If even the prince goes forth, why don’t we do the same?’

Atha kho, so bhikkhave, mahājanakāyo caturāsītipāṇasahassāni kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā vipassiṁ bodhisattaṁ agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajitaṁ anupabbajiṁsu.
Then that great crowd of 84,000 people shaved off their hair and beard, dressed in ocher robes, and followed the one intent on awakening, Vipassī, by going forth from the lay life to homelessness.

Tāya sudaṁ, bhikkhave, parisāya parivuto vipassī bodhisatto gāmanigamajanapadarājadhānīsu cārikaṁ carati.
Escorted by that assembly, Vipassī wandered on tour among the villages, towns, and capital cities.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa rahogatassa paṭisallīnassa evaṁ cetaso parivitakko udapādi:
Then as he was in private retreat this thought came to his mind, ‘na kho metaṁ patirūpaṁ yohaṁ ākiṇṇo viharāmi, yannūnāhaṁ eko gaṇamhā vūpakaṭṭho vihareyyan’ti.

‘It’s not appropriate for me to live in a crowd. Why don’t I live alone, withdrawn from the group?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassī bodhisatto aparena samayena eko gaṇamhā vūpakaṭṭho vihāsi, aññeneva tāni caturāsītipabbajitasahassāni agamaṁsu, aññena maggena vipassī bodhisatto.
After some time he withdrew from the group to live alone. The 84,000 went one way, but Vipassī went another.

11. Bodhisattaabhinivesa

11. Vipassī’s Reflections

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa vāsūpagatassa rahogatassa paṭisallīnassa evaṁ cetaso parivitakko udapādi:
Then as Vipassī, the one intent on awakening, was in private retreat this thought came to his mind,

‘kicchaṁ vatāyaṁ loko āpanno, jāyati ca jīyati ca mīyati ca cavati ca upapajjati ca, atha ca panimassa dukkhassa nissaraṇaṁ nappajānāti jarāmaraṇassa, ‘Alas, this world has fallen into trouble. It’s born, grows old, dies, passes away, and is reborn, yet it doesn’t understand how to escape from this suffering, from old age and death.

kudāssu nāma imassa dukkhassa nissaraṇaṁ paññāyissati jarāmaraṇassā’ti?
Oh, when will an escape be found from this suffering, from old age and death?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa etadahosi:
Then Vipassī thought,

‘kimhi nu kho sati jarāmaraṇaṁ hoti, kiṁpaccayā jarāmaraṇan’ti?
‘When what exists is there old age and death? What is a condition for old age and death?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa yoniso manasikārā ahu paññāya abhisamayo:
Then, through proper attention, Vipassī comprehended with wisdom,

‘jātiyā kho sati jarāmaraṇaṁ hoti, jātipaccayā jarāmaraṇan’ti.
‘When rebirth exists there’s old age and death. Rebirth is a condition for old age and death.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa etadahosi:
Then Vipassī thought,

‘kimhi nu kho sati jāti hoti, kiṁpaccayā jātī’ti?
‘When what exists is there rebirth? What is a condition for rebirth?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa yoniso manasikārā ahu paññāya abhisamayo:
Then, through proper attention, Vipassī comprehended with wisdom,

‘bhave kho sati jāti hoti, bhavapaccayā jātī’ti.
‘When continued existence exists there’s rebirth. Continued existence is a condition for rebirth.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa etadahosi:
Then Vipassī thought,

‘kimhi nu kho sati bhavo hoti, kiṁpaccayā bhavo’ti?
‘When what exists is there continued existence? What is a condition for continued existence?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa yoniso manasikārā ahu paññāya abhisamayo:
Then, through proper attention, Vipassī comprehended with wisdom,

‘upādāne kho sati bhavo hoti, upādānapaccayā bhavo’ti.
‘When grasping exists there’s continued existence. Grasping is a condition for continued existence.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa etadahosi:
Then Vipassī thought,

‘kimhi nu kho sati upādānaṁ hoti, kiṁpaccayā upādānan’ti?
‘When what exists is there grasping? What is a condition for grasping?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa yoniso manasikārā ahu paññāya abhisamayo:
Then, through proper attention, Vipassī comprehended with wisdom,

‘taṇhāya kho sati upādānaṁ hoti, taṇhāpaccayā upādānan’ti.
‘When craving exists there’s grasping. Craving is a condition for grasping.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa etadahosi:

Then Vipassī thought,

‘kimhi nu kho sati taṇhā hoti, kiṁpaccayā taṇhā’ti?
‘When what exists is there craving? What is a condition for craving?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa yoniso manasikārā ahu paññāya abhisamayo:
Then, through proper attention, Vipassī comprehended with wisdom,

‘vedanāya kho sati taṇhā hoti, vedanāpaccayā taṇhā’ti.
‘When feeling exists there’s craving. Feeling is a condition for craving.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa etadahosi:
Then Vipassī thought,

‘kimhi nu kho sati vedanā hoti, kiṁpaccayā vedanā’ti?
‘When what exists is there feeling? What is a condition for feeling?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa yoniso manasikārā ahu paññāya abhisamayo:
Then, through proper attention, Vipassī comprehended with wisdom,

‘phasse kho sati vedanā hoti, phassapaccayā vedanā’ti.
‘When contact exists there’s feeling. Contact is a condition for feeling.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa etadahosi:
Then Vipassī thought,

‘kimhi nu kho sati phasso hoti, kiṁpaccayā phasso’ti?
‘When what exists is there contact? What is a condition for contact?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa yoniso manasikārā ahu paññāya abhisamayo:
Then, through proper attention, Vipassī comprehended with wisdom,

‘saḷāyatane kho sati phasso hoti, saḷāyatanapaccayā phasso’ti.
‘When the six sense fields exist there’s contact. The six sense fields are a condition for contact.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa etadahosi:
Then Vipassī thought,

‘kimhi nu kho sati saḷāyatanaṁ hoti, kiṁpaccayā saḷāyatanan’ti?
‘When what exists are there the six sense fields? What is a condition for the six sense fields?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa yoniso manasikārā ahu paññāya abhisamayo:
Then, through proper attention, Vipassī comprehended with wisdom,

‘nāmarūpe kho sati saḷāyatanaṁ hoti, nāmarūpapaccayā saḷāyatanan’ti.
‘When name and form exist there are the six sense fields. Name and form are a condition for the six sense fields.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bodhisattassa etadahosi:
Then Vipassī thought,

Name and form are conditions for consciousness. Consciousness is a condition for name and form. Name and form are conditions for the six sense fields. The six sense fields are conditions for contact. Contact is a condition for feeling. Feeling is a condition for craving. Craving is a condition for grasping. Grasping is a condition for continued existence. Continued existence is a condition for rebirth. Rebirth is a condition for old age and death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, sadness, and distress to come to be.

12. Brahmayācanakathā

12. The Appeal of Brahmā

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa etadahosi:
Then the Blessed One Vipassī, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha, thought, ‘yannūnāhaṁ dhammaṁ deseyyan’ti.

‘Why don’t I teach the Dhamma?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa etadahosi:
Then he thought,

‘adhigato kho myāyaṁ dhammo gambhīro duddaso duranubodho santo paṇīto atakkāvacaro nipuṇo paṇḍitavedanīyo.
‘This principle I have discovered is deep, hard to see, hard to understand, peaceful, sublime, beyond the scope of reason, subtle, comprehensible to the astute.

Ālayarāmā kho panāyaṁ pajā ālayaratā ālayasammuditā.
But people like attachment, they love it and enjoy it.

Ālayarāmāya kho pana pajāya ālayaratāya ālayasammuditāya duddasaṁ idaṁ ṭhānaṁ yadidaṁ idappaccayatāpaṭiccasamuppādo.
It’s hard for them to see this thing; that is, specific conditionality, dependent origination.

Idampi kho ṭhānaṁ duddasaṁ yadidaṁ sabbasaṅkhārasamatho sabbūpadhipaṭinissaggo taṇhākkhayo virāgo nirodho nibbānaṁ.
It’s also hard for them to see this thing; that is, the stilling of all activities, the letting go of all attachments, the ending of craving, fading away, cessation, extinguishment.

Ahañceva kho pana dhammaṁ deseyyaṁ, pare ca me na ājāneyyuṁ; so mamassa kilamatho, sā mamassa vihesā’ti.
And if I were to teach the Dhamma, others might not understand me, which would be wearying and troublesome for me.’

Apissu, bhikkhave, vipassiṁ bhagavantaṁ arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhaṁ imā anacchariyā gāthāyo paṭibhaṁsu pubbe assutapubbā:
And then these verses, which were neither supernaturally inspired, nor learned before in the past, occurred to him:

‘Kicchena me adhigataṁ,
‘I’ve struggled hard to realize this,

halaṁ dāni pakāsituṁ;
enough with trying to explain it!

Rāgadosaparetehi,
This teaching is not easily understood nāyaṁ dhammo susambudho.

by those mired in greed and hate.

Paṭisotagāmiṁ nipuṇaṁ,
Those caught up in greed can’t see for they’re shrouded in a mass of darkness.’

Itiha, bhikkhave, vipassissa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa paṭisañcikkhato appossukkatāya cittaṁ nami, no dhammadesanāya.
So, as the Buddha Vipassī reflected like this, his mind inclined to remaining passive, not to teaching the Dhamma.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, aññatarassa mahābrahmuno vipassissa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa cetasā cetoparivitakkamaññāya etadahosi:

So, as I reflected like this, my mind inclined to remaining passive, not to teaching the Dhamma.'

Dutiyampi kho, bhikkhave, so mahābrahmā …pe…
For a second time,

tatiyampi kho, bhikkhave, so mahābrahmā vipassiṁ bhagavantaṁ arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhaṁ etadavoca:

and a third time that Great Brahmā begged the Buddha to teach.

‘desetu, bhante, bhagavā dhammaṁ, desetu sugato dhammaṁ, santi sattā apparajakkhajātikā, assavanatā dhammassa parihāyanti, bhavissanti dhammassa aññātāro’ti.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho brahmuno ca ajjhesanaṁ viditvā sattesu ca kāruññataṁ paṭicca buddhacakkhunā lokaṁ volokesi.
Then, understanding Brahmā’s invitation, the Buddha Vipassī surveyed the world with the eye of a Buddha, because of his compassion for sentient beings.

Addasā kho, bhikkhave, vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho buddhacakkhunā lokaṁ volokento satte apparajakkhe mahārajakkhe tikkhindriye mudindriye svākāre dvākāre suviññāpaye duviññāpaye appekacce paralokavajjabhayadassāvine viharante, appekacce na paralokavajjabhayadassāvine viharante.
And he saw sentient beings with little dust in their eyes, and some with much dust in their eyes; with keen faculties and with weak faculties, with good qualities and with bad qualities, easy to teach and hard to teach. And some of them lived seeing the danger in the fault to do with the next world, while others did not.

Appekaccāni uppalāni vā padumāni vā puṇḍarīkāni vā udake jātāni udake saṁvaḍḍhāni udakā accuggamma ṭhitāni anupalittāni udakena.
It’s like a pool with blue water lilies, or pink or white lotuses. Some of them sprout and grow in the water without rising above it, thriving underwater. Some of them sprout and grow in the water reaching the water’s surface. And some of them sprout and grow in the water but rise up above the water and stand with no water clinging to them.

Evameva kho, bhikkhave, vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho buddhacakkhunā lokaṁ volokento addasa satte apparajakkhe mahārajakkhe tikkhindriye mudindriye svākāre dvākāre suviññāpaye duviññāpaye appekacce paralokavajjabhayadassāvine viharante, appekacce na paralokavajjabhayadassāvine viharante.
In the same way, the Buddha Vipassī saw sentient beings with little dust in their eyes, and some with much dust in their eyes.

Atha kho so, bhikkhave, mahābrahmā vipassissa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa cetasā cetoparivitakkamaññāya vipassiṁ bhagavantaṁ arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhaṁ gāthāhi ajjhabhāsi:
Then that Great Brahmā, knowing what the Buddha Vipassī was thinking, addressed him in verse:

‘Sele yathā pabbatamuddhaniṭṭhito,
‘Standing high on a rocky mountain,

Yathāpi passe janataṁ samantato;
you can see the people all around.

Tathūpamaṁ dhammamayaṁ sumedha,
In just the same way, all-seer, wise one,

Pāsādamāruyha samantacakkhu;
having ascended the Temple of Truth,

Sokāvatiṇṇaṁ janatamapetasoko, rid of sorrow, look upon the people

Avekkhassu jātijarābhibhūtaṁ.
swamped with sorrow, oppressed by rebirth and old age.

Uṭṭhehi vīra vijitasaṅgāma, Rise, hero! Victor in battle, leader of the caravan,

Satthavāha aṇaṇa vicara loke;
wander the world without obligation.

Desassu bhagavā dhammaṁ,
Let the Blessed One teach the Dhamma!

Aññātāro bhavissantī'ti.
There will be those who understand!'

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho taṁ mahābrahmānaṁ gāthāya ajjhabhāsi:
Then the Buddha Vipassī addressed that Great Brahmā in verse:

'Apārutā tesaṁ amatassa dvārā,
'Flung open are the doors to the deathless!

Ye sotavanto pamuñcantu saddhaṁ;
Let those with ears to hear decide their faith.

Vihiṁsasaññī paguṇaṁ na bhāsiṁ,
Thinking it would be troublesome, Brahmā, I did not teach Dhammaṁ paṇītaṁ manujesu brahme'ti.

the sophisticated, sublime Dhamma among humans.'

Atha kho so, bhikkhave, mahābrahmā: 'katāvakāso khomhi vipassinā bhagavatā arahatā sammāsambuddhena dhammadesanāyā'ti vipassiṁ bhagavantaṁ arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā tattheva antaradhāyi.
Then the Great Brahmā, knowing that his request for the Buddha Vipassī to teach the Dhamma had been granted, bowed and respectfully circled him, keeping him on his right, before vanishing right there.

‘Yes, sir,’ replied the park keeper, and did as he was asked.

‘vipassī, bhante, bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho bandhumatiṁ rājadhāniṁ anuppatto kheme migadāye viharati; so tumhākaṁ dassanakāmo’ti.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, khaṇḍo ca rājaputto tisso ca purohitaputto bhaddāni bhaddāni yānāni yojāpetvā bhaddaṁ bhaddaṁ yānaṁ abhiruhitvā bhaddehi bhaddehi yānehi bandhumatiyā rājadhāniyā niyyiṁsu. Yena khemo migadāyo tena pāyiṁsu.
Then the king’s son Khaṇḍa and the high priest’s son Tissa had the finest carriages harnessed. Then they mounted a fine carriage and, along with other fine carriages, set out from Bandhumatī for the Sanctuary.

Yāvatikā yānassa bhūmi, yānena gantvā yānā paccorohitvā pattikāva yena vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho tenupasaṅkamiṁsu. upasaṅkamitvā vipassiṁ bhagavantaṁ arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu.
They went by carriage as far as the terrain allowed, then descended and approached the Buddha Vipassī on foot. They bowed and sat down to one side.

Tesaṁ vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho anupubbiṁ kathaṁ kathesi, seyyathidaṁ—
The Buddha Vipassī taught them step by step, with dānakathaṁ sīlakathaṁ saggakathaṁ kāmānaṁ ādīnavaṁ okāraṁ saṅkilesaṁ nekkhamme ānisaṁsaṁ pakāsesi.

a talk on giving, ethical conduct, and heaven. He explained the drawbacks of sensual pleasures, so sordid and corrupt, and the benefit of renunciation.

Yadā te bhagavā aññāsi kallacitte muducitte vinīvaraṇacitte udaggacitte pasannacitte, atha yā buddhānaṁ sāmukkaṁsikā dhammadesanā, taṁ pakāsesi—
And when he knew that their minds were ready, pliable, rid of hindrances, joyful, and confident he explained the special teaching of the Buddhas:

dukkhaṁ samudayaṁ nirodhaṁ maggaṁ.
suffering, its origin, its cessation, and the path.

Seyyathāpi nāma suddhaṁ vatthaṁ apagatakāḷakaṁ sammadeva rajanaṁ paṭiggaṇheyya;
Just as a clean cloth rid of stains would properly absorb dye, evameva khaṇḍassa ca rājaputtassa tissassa ca purohitaputtassa tasmiṁyeva āsane virajaṁ vītamalaṁ dhammacakkhuṁ udapādi:

in that very seat the stainless, immaculate vision of the Dhamma arose in the king’s son Khaṇḍa and the high priest’s son Tissa:

‘yaṁ kiñci samudayadhammaṁ sabbaṁ taṁ nirodhadhamman’ti.
‘Everything that has a beginning has an end.’

Te diṭṭhadhammā pattadhammā viditadhammā pariyogāḷhadhammā tiṇṇavicikicchā vigatakathaṅkathā vesārajjappattā aparappaccayā satthusāsane vipassiṁ bhagavantaṁ arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhaṁ etadavocuṁ:
They saw, attained, understood, and fathomed the Dhamma. They went beyond doubt, got rid of indecision, and became self-assured and independent of others regarding the Teacher’s instructions. They said to the Buddha Vipassī,

‘abhikkantaṁ, bhante, abhikkantaṁ, bhante.
‘Excellent, sir! Excellent!

Seyyathāpi, bhante, nikkujjitaṁ vā ukkujjeyya, paṭicchannaṁ vā vivareyya, mūḷhassa vā maggaṁ ācikkheyya, andhakāre vā telapajjotaṁ dhāreyya: “cakkhumanto rūpāni dakkhantī”ti; evamevaṁ bhagavatā anekapariyāyena dhammo pakāsito.
As if he were righting the overturned, or revealing the hidden, or pointing out the path to the lost, or lighting a lamp in the dark so people with good eyes can see what’s there, the Buddha has made the teaching clear in many ways.

Ete mayaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ saraṇaṁ gacchāma dhammañca.
We go for refuge to the Blessed One, to the teaching, and to the mendicant Saṅgha.

Labheyyāma mayaṁ, bhante, bhagavato santike pabbajjaṁ, labheyyāma upasampadan’ti.
Sir, may we receive the going forth and ordination in the Buddha’s presence?’

Alatthuṁ kho, bhikkhave, khaṇḍo ca rājaputto, tisso ca purohitaputto vipassissa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa santike pabbajjaṁ alatthuṁ upasampadaṁ.

And they received the going forth, the ordination in the Buddha Vipassī's presence.

Te vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho dhammiyā kathāya sandassesi samādapesi samuttejesi sampahaṁsesi;
Then the Buddha Vipassī educated, encouraged, fired up, and inspired them with a Dhamma talk.

saṅkhārānaṁ ādīnavaṁ okāraṁ saṅkilesaṁ nibbāne ānisaṁsaṁ pakāsesi.
He explained the drawbacks of conditioned phenomena, so sordid and corrupt, and the benefit of extinguishment.

Tesaṁ vipassinā bhagavatā arahatā sammāsambuddhena dhammiyā kathāya sandassiyamānānaṁ samādapiyamānānaṁ samuttejiyamānānaṁ sampahaṁsiyamānānaṁ nacirasseva anupādāya āsavehi cittāni vimucciṁsu.
Being taught like this their minds were soon freed from defilements by not grasping.

14. Mahājanakāyapabbajjā

14. The Going Forth of the Large Crowd

Assosi kho, bhikkhave, bandhumatiyā rājadhāniyā mahājanakāyo caturāsītipāṇasahassāni:
A large crowd of 84,000 people in the capital of Bandhumatī heard

'vipassī kira bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho bandhumatiṁ rājadhāniṁ anuppatto kheme migadāye viharati.
that the Blessed One Vipassī, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha, had arrived at Bandhumatī and was staying in the deer park named Sanctuary.

Khaṇḍo ca kira rājaputto tisso ca purohitaputto vipassissa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa santike kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajitā’ti.

And they heard that the king’s son Khaṇḍa and the high priest’s son Tissa had shaved off their hair and beard, dressed in ocher robes, and gone forth from the lay life to homelessness in the Buddha’s presence.

Sutvāna nesaṁ etadahosi:
It occurred to them,

‘na hi nūna so orako dhammavinayo, na sā orakā pabbajjā, yattha khaṇḍo ca rājaputto tisso ca purohitaputto kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajitā.
‘This must be no ordinary teaching and training, no ordinary going forth in which the king’s son Khaṇḍa and the high priest’s son Tissa have gone forth.

Khaṇḍo ca rājaputto tisso ca purohitaputto kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajissanti, kimaṅgaṁ pana mayan’ti.
If even they go forth, why don’t we do the same?’

Atha kho so, bhikkhave, mahājanakāyo caturāsītipāṇasahassāni bandhumatiyā rājadhāniyā nikkhamitvā yena khemo migadāyo yena vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā vipassiṁ bhagavantaṁ arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu.
Then those 84,000 people left Bandhumatī for the deer park named Sanctuary, where they approached the Buddha Vipassī, bowed and sat down to one side.

Tesaṁ vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho anupubbiṁ kathaṁ kathesi.
The Buddha Vipassī taught them step by step, with

And just like Khaṇḍa and Tissa they asked for and received ordination. Then the Buddha taught them further.

Ete mayaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ saraṇaṁ gacchāma dhammañca bhikkhusaṅghañca.

Labheyyāma mayaṁ, bhante, bhagavato santike pabbajjaṁ labheyyāma upasampadan’ti.

Assosuṁ kho, bhikkhave, tāni purimāni caturāsītipabbajitasahassāni:
The 84,000 people who had gone forth previously also heard:

‘vipassī kira bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho bandhumatiṁ rājadhāniṁ anuppatto kheme migadāye viharati, dhammañca kira desetī’ti.
‘It seems the Blessed One Vipassī, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha, has arrived at Bandhumatī and is staying in the deer park named Sanctuary. And he is teaching the Dhamma!’

Then they too went to see the Buddha Vipassī, realized the Dhamma, went forth, and became freed from defilements.

Tesaṁ vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho anupubbiṁ kathaṁ kathesi.

16. Cārikāanujānana

16. The Allowance to Wander

Tena kho pana, bhikkhave, samayena bandhumatiyā rājadhāniyā mahābhikkhusaṅgho paṭivasati aṭṭhasaṭṭhibhikkhusatasahassaṁ.

Now at that time a large Saṅgha of 6,800,000 mendicants were residing at Bandhumatī.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, vipassissa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa rahogatassa paṭisallīnassa evaṁ cetaso parivitakko udapādi:
As the Buddha Vipassī was in private retreat this thought came to his mind, ‘mahā kho etarahi bhikkhusaṅgho bandhumatiyā rājadhāniyā paṭivasati aṭṭhasaṭṭhibhikkhusatasahassaṁ, yannūnāhaṁ bhikkhū anujāneyyaṁ:

‘The Saṅgha residing at Bandhumatī now is large. What if I was to urge them:

“caratha, bhikkhave, cārikaṁ bahujanahitāya bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānaṁ; “Wander forth, mendicants, for the welfare and happiness of the people, out of compassion for the world, for the benefit, welfare, and happiness of gods and humans.

mā ekena dve agamittha;

desetha, bhikkhave, dhammaṁ ādikalyāṇaṁ majjhekalyāṇaṁ pariyosānakalyāṇaṁ sātthaṁ sabyañjanaṁ kevalaparipuṇṇaṁ parisuddhaṁ brahmacariyaṁ pakāsetha.
Teach the Dhamma that’s good in the beginning, good in the middle, and good in the end, meaningful and well-phrased. And reveal a spiritual practice that’s entirely full and pure.

Santi sattā apparajakkhajātikā, assavanatā dhammassa parihāyanti,
There are beings with little dust in their eyes. They’re in decline because they haven’t heard the teaching.

bhavissanti dhammassa aññātāro.
There will be those who understand the teaching!

But when six years have passed, you must all come to Bandhumatī to recite the monastic code.”’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, aññataro mahābrahmā vipassissa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa cetasā cetoparivitakkamaññāya seyyathāpi nāma balavā puriso samiñjitaṁ vā bāhaṁ pasāreyya, pasāritaṁ vā bāhaṁ samiñjeyya; evameva—brahmaloke antarahito vipassissa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa purato pāturahosi.
Then a certain Great Brahmā, knowing what the Buddha Vipassī was thinking, as easily as a strong person would extend or contract their arm, vanished from the Brahmā realm and reappeared in front of the Buddha Vipassī.

Atha kho so, bhikkhave, mahābrahmā ekaṁsaṁ uttarāsaṅgaṁ karitvā yena vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho tenañjaliṁ paṇāmetvā vipassiṁ bhagavantaṁ arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhaṁ etadavoca:

‘evametaṁ, bhagavā, evametaṁ, sugata.
‘That’s so true, Blessed One! That’s so true, Holy One!

Mahā kho, bhante, etarahi bhikkhusaṅgho bandhumatiyā rājadhāniyā paṭivasati aṭṭhasaṭṭhibhikkhusatasahassaṁ, anujānātu, bhante, bhagavā bhikkhū:
The Saṅgha residing at Bandhumatī now is large. Please urge them to wander, as you thought.

And sir, I’ll make sure that when six years have passed the mendicants will return to Bandhumatī to recite the monastic code.’

Idamavoca, bhikkhave, so mahābrahmā.
That’s what that Great Brahmā said.

Idaṁ vatvā vipassiṁ bhagavantaṁ arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā tattheva antaradhāyi.
Then he bowed and respectfully circled the Buddha Vipassī, keeping him on his right side, before vanishing right there.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhū yebhuyyena ekāheneva janapadacārikaṁ pakkamiṁsu.
Then most of the mendicants departed to wander the country that very day.

Tena kho pana samayena jambudīpe caturāsīti āvāsasahassāni honti.
Now at that time there were 84,000 monasteries in India.

Ekamhi hi vasse nikkhante devatā saddamanussāvesuṁ:
And when the first year came to an end the deities raised the cry:

‘nikkhantaṁ kho, mārisā, ekaṁ vassaṁ;
‘Good sirs, the first year has ended.

pañca dāni vassāni sesāni;
Now five years remain.

pañcannaṁ vassānaṁ accayena bandhumatī rājadhānī upasaṅkamitabbā pātimokkhuddesāyā’ti.
When five years have passed, you must all go to Bandhumatī to recite the monastic code.’

Dvīsu vassesu nikkhantesu …
And when the second year …

tīsu vassesu nikkhantesu …
the third year …

catūsu vassesu nikkhantesu …
the fourth year …

pañcasu vassesu nikkhantesu devatā saddamanussāvesuṁ:
the fifth year came to an end, the deities raised the cry:

‘nikkhantāni kho, mārisā, pañcavassāni;
‘Good sirs, the fifth year has ended.

ekaṁ dāni vassaṁ sesaṁ;
Now one year remains.

ekassa vassassa accayena bandhumatī rājadhānī upasaṅkamitabbā pātimokkhuddesāyā’ti.
When one year has passed, you must all go to Bandhumatī to recite the monastic code.’

Chasu vassesu nikkhantesu devatā saddamanussāvesuṁ:
And when the sixth year came to an end the deities raised the cry:

‘nikkhantāni kho, mārisā, chabbassāni,
‘Good sirs, the sixth year has ended.

samayo dāni bandhumatiṁ rājadhāniṁ upasaṅkamituṁ pātimokkhuddesāyā’ti.
Now is the time that you must go to Bandhumatī to recite the monastic code.’

Atha kho te, bhikkhave, bhikkhū appekacce sakena iddhānubhāvena appekacce devatānaṁ iddhānubhāvena ekāheneva bandhumatiṁ rājadhāniṁ upasaṅkamiṁsu pātimokkhuddesāyāti.
Then that very day the mendicants went to Bandhumatī to recite the monastic code. Some went by their own psychic power, and some by the psychic power of the deities.

Tatra sudaṁ, bhikkhave, vipassī bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho bhikkhusaṅghe evaṁ pātimokkhaṁ uddisati:
And there the Blessed One Vipassī, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha, recited the monastic code thus:

‘Khantī paramaṁ tapo titikkhā,
‘Patient acceptance is the highest austerity.

Nibbānaṁ paramaṁ vadanti buddhā;
Extinguishment is the highest, say the Buddhas.

Na hi pabbajito parūpaghātī,
No true renunciate injures another,

Na samaṇo hoti paraṁ viheṭhayanto.
nor does an ascetic hurt another.

Sabbapāpassa akaraṇaṁ,

Not to do any evil;

kusalassa upasampadā;
to embrace the good;

Sacittapariyodapanaṁ,
to purify one's mind:

etaṁ buddhānasāsanaṁ.
this is the instruction of the Buddhas.

Anūpavādo anūpaghāto,
Not speaking ill nor doing harm;

Pātimokkhe ca saṁvaro;
restraint in the monastic code;

Mattaññutā ca bhattasmiṁ,
moderation in eating;

Pantañca sayanāsanaṁ;
staying in remote lodgings;

Adhicitte ca āyogo, commitment to the higher mind—

Etaṁ buddhānasāsanan'ti.
this is the instruction of the Buddhas.'

17. Devatārocana

17. Being Informed by Deities

Ekamidāhaṁ, bhikkhave, samayaṁ ukkaṭṭhāyaṁ viharāmi subhagavane sālarājamūle.
At one time, mendicants, I was staying near Ukkaṭṭhā, in the Subhaga Forest at the root of a magnificent sal tree.

Tassa mayhaṁ, bhikkhave, rahogatassa paṭisallīnassa evaṁ cetaso parivitakko udapādi:

As I was in private retreat this thought came to mind, ‘na kho so sattāvāso sulabharūpo, yo mayā anāvutthapubbo iminā dīghena addhunā aññatra suddhāvāsehi devehi.

‘It’s not easy to find an abode of sentient beings where I haven’t previously abided in all this long time, except for the gods of the pure abodes.

Yannūnāhaṁ yena suddhāvāsā devā tenupasaṅkameyyan’ti.
Why don’t I go to see them?’

And that is how the Realized One is able to recollect the caste, names, clans, life-span, chief disciples, and gatherings of disciples of the Buddhas of the past who have become completely extinguished, cut off proliferation, cut off the track, finished off the cycle, and transcended suffering. It is both because I have clearly comprehended the principle of the teachings,

The Great Discourse on Causation

1. Paṭiccasamuppāda

1. Dependent Origination

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā kurūsu viharati kammāsadhammaṁ nāma kurūnaṁ nigamo.
At one time the Buddha was staying in the land of the Kurus, near the Kuru town named Kammāsadamma.

Atha kho āyasmā ānando yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami, upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Venerable Ānanda went up to the Buddha, bowed, sat down to one side, and said to him, “acchariyaṁ, bhante, abbhutaṁ, bhante.

“It’s incredible, sir, it’s amazing,

Yāva gambhīro cāyaṁ, bhante, paṭiccasamuppādo gambhīrāvabhāso ca, atha ca pana me uttānakuttānako viya khāyatī”ti.
in that this dependent origination is deep and appears deep, yet to me it seems as plain as can be.”

“Mā hevaṁ, ānanda, avaca, mā hevaṁ, ānanda, avaca.

“Don’t say that, Ānanda, don’t say that!

Gambhīro cāyaṁ, ānanda, paṭiccasamuppādo gambhīrāvabhāso ca.
This dependent origination is deep and appears deep.

Etassa, ānanda, dhammassa ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamayaṁ pajā tantākulakajātā kulagaṇṭhikajātā muñjapabbajabhūtā apāyaṁ duggatiṁ vinipātaṁ saṁsāraṁ nātivattati.
It is because of not understanding and not penetrating this teaching that this population has become tangled like string, knotted like a ball of thread, and matted like rushes and reeds, and it doesn’t escape the places of loss, the bad places, the underworld, transmigration.

So: name and form are conditions for consciousness. Consciousness is a condition for name and form. Name and form are conditions for contact. Contact is a condition for feeling. Feeling is a condition for craving. Craving is a condition for grasping. Grasping is a condition for continued existence. Continued existence is a condition for rebirth. Rebirth is a condition for old age and death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, sadness, and distress to come to be.

So it is, Ānanda, that feeling is a cause of craving. Craving is a cause of seeking. Seeking is a cause of gaining material possessions. Gaining material possessions is a cause of assessing. Assessing is a cause of desire and lust. Desire and lust is a cause of attachment. Attachment is a cause of possessiveness. Possessiveness is a cause of stinginess. Stinginess is a cause of safeguarding.

2. Describing the Self

Kittāvatā ca, ānanda, attānaṁ paññapento paññapeti?
How do those who describe the self describe it?

Rūpiṁ vā hi, ānanda, parittaṁ attānaṁ paññapento paññapeti:
They describe it as physical and limited:

‘rūpī me paritto attā’ti.
‘My self is physical and limited.’

Rūpiṁ vā hi, ānanda, anantaṁ attānaṁ paññapento paññapeti:
Or they describe it as physical and infinite:

‘rūpī me ananto attā’ti.
‘My self is physical and infinite.’

Arūpiṁ vā hi, ānanda, parittaṁ attānaṁ paññapento paññapeti:
Or they describe it as formless and limited:

‘arūpī me paritto attā’ti.
‘My self is formless and limited.’

Arūpiṁ vā hi, ānanda, anantaṁ attānaṁ paññapento paññapeti:
Or they describe it as formless and infinite:

‘arūpī me ananto attā’ti.
‘My self is formless and infinite.’

Tatrānanda, yo so rūpiṁ parittaṁ attānaṁ paññapento paññapeti.

That’s how those who describe the self describe it.

3. Naattapaññatti

3. Not Describing the Self

Kittāvatā ca, ānanda, attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti?
How do those who don’t describe the self not describe it?

Rūpiṁ vā hi, ānanda, parittaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti:
They don’t describe it as physical and limited …

‘rūpī me paritto attā’ti.

Rūpiṁ vā hi, ānanda, anantaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti:

‘arūpī me ananto attā’ti.
‘My self is formless and infinite.’

Tatrānanda, yo so rūpiṁ parittaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti.
Now, take those who don’t describe the self as physical and limited …

Etarahi vā so rūpiṁ parittaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti, tattha bhāviṁ vā so rūpiṁ parittaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti, ‘atathaṁ vā pana santaṁ tathattāya upakappessāmī’ti iti vā panassa na hoti.

Tatrānanda, yo so rūpiṁ anantaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti.
physical and infinite …

Etarahi vā so rūpiṁ anantaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti, tattha bhāviṁ vā so rūpiṁ anantaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti, ‘atathaṁ vā pana santaṁ tathattāya upakappessāmī’ti iti vā panassa na hoti.

Evaṁ santaṁ kho, ānanda, rūpiṁ anantattānudiṭṭhi nānusetīti iccālaṁ vacanāya.

Tatrānanda, yo so arūpiṁ parittaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti.
formless and limited …

Etarahi vā so arūpiṁ parittaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti, tattha bhāviṁ vā so arūpiṁ parittaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti, ‘atathaṁ vā pana santaṁ tathattāya upakappessāmī’ti iti vā panassa na hoti.

Evaṁ santaṁ kho, ānanda, arūpiṁ parittattānudiṭṭhi nānusetīti iccālaṁ vacanāya.

Tatrānanda, yo so arūpiṁ anantaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti.
formless and infinite.

Etarahi vā so arūpiṁ anantaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti, tattha bhāviṁ vā so arūpiṁ anantaṁ attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti, 'atathaṁ vā pana santaṁ tathattāya upakappessāmī'ti iti vā panassa na hoti.
They don't describe the self as formless and infinite in the present; or in some future life; and they don't think: 'Though it is not like that, I will ensure it is provided with what it needs to become like that.'

Evaṁ santaṁ kho, ānanda, arūpiṁ anantattānudiṭṭhi nānusetīti iccālaṁ vacanāya.
This being so, it's appropriate to say that a view of self as formless and infinite doesn't underlie them.

Ettāvatā kho, ānanda, attānaṁ na paññapento na paññapeti.
That's how those who don't describe the self don't describe it.

4. Attasamanupassanā

4. Regarding a Self

Kittāvatā ca, ānanda, attānaṁ samanupassamāno samanupassati?
How do those who regard the self regard it?

Vedanaṁ vā hi, ānanda, attānaṁ samanupassamāno samanupassati:

'Feeling is my self.'

‘Na heva kho me vedanā attā, appaṭisaṁvedano me attā’ti iti vā hi, ānanda, attānaṁ samanupassamāno samanupassati.
Or they regard it like this: ‘Feeling is definitely not my self. My self does not experience feeling.’

‘Na heva kho me vedanā attā, nopi appaṭisaṁvedano me attā, attā me vediyati, vedanādhammo hi me attā’ti iti vā hi, ānanda, attānaṁ samanupassamāno samanupassati.
Or they regard it like this: ‘Feeling is definitely not my self. But it’s not that my self does not experience feeling. My self feels, for my self is liable to feel.’

Tatrānanda, yo so evamāha:
Now, as to those who say:

‘vedanā me attā’ti,
‘Feeling is my self.’

so evamassa vacanīyo:
You should say this to them:

‘tisso kho imā, āvuso, vedanā—
‘Reverend, there are three feelings:

dukkhaṁyeva tasmiṁ samaye vedanaṁ vedeti.
you only feel a painful feeling.

Yasmiṁ, ānanda, samaye adukkhamasukhaṁ vedanaṁ vedeti, neva tasmiṁ samaye sukhaṁ vedanaṁ vedeti, na dukkhaṁ vedanaṁ vedeti;
At a time when you feel a neutral feeling, you don’t feel a pleasant or painful feeling;

adukkhamasukhaṁyeva tasmiṁ samaye vedanaṁ vedeti.
you only feel a neutral feeling.

Sukhāpi kho, ānanda, vedanā aniccā saṅkhatā paṭiccasamuppannā khayadhammā vayadhammā virāgadhammā nirodhadhammā.
Pleasant feelings, painful feelings, and neutral feelings are all impermanent, conditioned, dependently originated, liable to end, vanish, fade away, and cease.

Dukkhāpi kho, ānanda, vedanā aniccā saṅkhatā paṭiccasamuppannā khayadhammā vayadhammā virāgadhammā nirodhadhammā.

Adukkhamasukhāpi kho, ānanda, vedanā aniccā saṅkhatā paṭiccasamuppannā khayadhammā vayadhammā virāgadhammā nirodhadhammā.

Tassa sukhaṁ vedanaṁ vediyamānassa ‘eso me attā’ti hoti.
When feeling a pleasant feeling they think: ‘This is my self.’

Tassāyeva sukhāya vedanāya nirodhā ‘byagā me attā’ti hoti.
When their pleasant feeling ceases they think: ‘My self has disappeared.’

Dukkhaṁ vedanaṁ vediyamānassa ‘eso me attā’ti hoti.
When feeling a painful feeling they think: ‘This is my self.’

Tassāyeva dukkhāya vedanāya nirodhā ‘byagā me attā’ti hoti.
When their painful feeling ceases they think: ‘My self has disappeared.’

Adukkhamasukhaṁ vedanaṁ vediyamānassa ‘eso me attā’ti hoti.
When feeling a neutral feeling they think: ‘This is my self.’

Tassāyeva adukkhamasukhāya vedanāya nirodhā ‘byagā me attā’ti hoti.
When their neutral feeling ceases they think: ‘My self has disappeared.’

Iti so diṭṭheva dhamme aniccasukhadukkhavokiṇṇaṁ uppādavayadhammaṁ attānaṁ samanupassamāno samanupassati, yo so evamāha: ‘vedanā me attā’ti.
So those who say ‘feeling is my self’ regard as self that which is evidently impermanent, a mixture of pleasure and pain, and liable to rise and fall.

Tasmātihānanda, etena petaṁ nakkhamati: ‘vedanā me attā’ti samanupassituṁ.
That’s why it’s not acceptable to regard feeling as self.

Tatrānanda, yo so evamāha:
Now, as to those who say:

‘na heva kho me vedanā attā, appaṭisaṁvedano me attā’ti, so evamassa vacanīyo:
‘Feeling is definitely not my self. My self does not experience feeling.’ You should say this to them, ‘yattha panāvuso, sabbaso vedayitaṁ natthi api nu kho, tattha “ayamahamasmī”ti siyā’”ti?

‘But reverend, where there is nothing felt at all, would the thought “I am” occur there?’”

“No hetaṁ, bhante”.
“No, sir.”

“Tasmātihānanda, etena petaṁ nakkhamati: ‘na heva kho me vedanā attā, appaṭisaṁvedano me attā’ti samanupassituṁ.
“That’s why it’s not acceptable to regard self as that which does not experience feeling.

Tatrānanda, yo so evamāha:
Now, as to those who say:

‘na heva kho me vedanā attā, nopi appaṭisaṁvedano me attā, attā me vediyati, vedanādhammo hi me attā’ti.
‘Feeling is definitely not my self. But it’s not that my self does not experience feeling. My self feels, for my self is liable to feel.’

So evamassa vacanīyo—
You should say this to them,

vedanā ca hi, āvuso, sabbena sabbaṁ sabbathā sabbaṁ aparisesā nirujjheyyuṁ.
‘Suppose feelings were to totally and utterly cease without anything left over.

Sabbaso vedanāya asati vedanānirodhā api nu kho tattha ‘ayamahamasmī’ti siyā”ti?
When there’s no feeling at all, with the cessation of feeling, would the thought “I am this” occur there?’”

“No hetaṁ, bhante”.
“No, sir.”

“Tasmātihānanda, etena petaṁ nakkhamati: ‘na heva kho me vedanā attā, nopi appaṭisaṁvedano me attā, attā me vediyati, vedanādhammo hi me attā’ti samanupassituṁ.
“That’s why it’s not acceptable to regard self as that which is liable to feel.

Yato kho, ānanda, bhikkhu neva vedanaṁ attānaṁ samanupassati, nopi appaṭisaṁvedanaṁ attānaṁ samanupassati, nopi ‘attā me vediyati, vedanādhammo hi me attā’ti samanupassati.

So evaṁ na samanupassanto na ca kiñci loke upādiyati,
Not regarding anything in this way, they don’t grasp at anything in the world.

anupādiyaṁ na paritassati, aparitassaṁ paccattaññeva parinibbāyati,
Not grasping, they’re not anxious. Not being anxious, they personally become extinguished.

‘khīṇā jāti, vusitaṁ brahmacariyaṁ, kataṁ karaṇīyaṁ, nāparaṁ itthattāyā’ti pajānāti.
They understand: ‘Rebirth is ended, the spiritual journey has been completed, what had to be done has been done, there is no return to any state of existence.’

Evaṁ vimuttacittaṁ kho, ānanda, bhikkhuṁ yo evaṁ vadeyya:
It wouldn’t be appropriate to say that a mendicant whose mind is freed like this holds the following views:

‘hoti tathāgato paraṁ maraṇā itissa diṭṭhī’ti, tadakallaṁ.
‘A Realized One exists after death’;

‘Na hoti tathāgato paraṁ maraṇā itissa diṭṭhī’ti, tadakallaṁ.
‘A Realized One doesn’t exist after death’;

‘Hoti ca na ca hoti tathāgato paraṁ maraṇā itissa diṭṭhī’ti, tadakallaṁ.
‘A Realized One both exists and doesn’t exist after death’;

‘Neva hoti na na hoti tathāgato paraṁ maraṇā itissa diṭṭhī’ti, tadakallaṁ.
‘A Realized One neither exists nor doesn’t exist after death’.

Taṁ kissa hetu?
Why is that?

Yāvatā, ānanda, adhivacanaṁ yāvatā adhivacanapatho, yāvatā nirutti yāvatā niruttipatho, yāvatā paññatti yāvatā paññattipatho, yāvatā paññā yāvatā paññāvacaraṁ, yāvatā vaṭṭaṁ, yāvatā vaṭṭati, tadabhiññāvimutto bhikkhu, tadabhiññāvimuttaṁ bhikkhuṁ ‘na jānāti na passati itissa diṭṭhī’ti, tadakallaṁ.
A mendicant is freed by directly knowing this: how far language and the scope of language extend; how far terminology and the scope of terminology extend; how far description and the scope of description extend; how far wisdom and the sphere of wisdom extend; how far the cycle of rebirths and its continuation extend. It wouldn’t be appropriate to say that a mendicant freed by directly knowing this holds the view: ‘There is no such thing as knowing and seeing.’

5. Sattaviññāṇaṭṭhiti

5. Planes of Consciousness

Satta kho, ānanda, viññāṇaṭṭhitiyo, dve āyatanāni.
Ānanda, there are seven planes of consciousness and two dimensions.

Katamā satta?
What seven?

Santānanda, sattā nānattakāyā nānattasaññino, seyyathāpi manussā, ekacce ca devā, ekacce ca vinipātikā.
There are sentient beings that are diverse in body and diverse in perception, such as human beings, some gods, and some beings in the underworld.

Ayaṁ paṭhamā viññāṇaṭṭhiti.
This is the first plane of consciousness.

Santānanda, sattā nānattakāyā ekattasaññino, seyyathāpi devā brahmakāyikā paṭhamābhinibbattā.
There are sentient beings that are diverse in body and unified in perception, such as the gods reborn in Brahmā’s Host through the first absorption.

Ayaṁ dutiyā viññāṇaṭṭhiti.
This is the second plane of consciousness.

Santānanda, sattā ekattakāyā nānattasaññino, seyyathāpi devā ābhassarā.
There are sentient beings that are unified in body and diverse in perception, such as the gods of streaming radiance.

Ayaṁ tatiyā viññāṇaṭṭhiti.
This is the third plane of consciousness.

Santānanda, sattā ekattakāyā ekattasaññino, seyyathāpi devā subhakiṇhā.
There are sentient beings that are unified in body and unified in perception, such as the gods replete with glory.

Ayaṁ catutthī viññāṇaṭṭhiti.
This is the fourth plane of consciousness.

Santānanda, sattā sabbaso rūpasaññānaṁ samatikkamā paṭighasaññānaṁ atthaṅgamā nānattasaññānaṁ amanasikārā ‘ananto ākāso’ti ākāsānañcāyatanūpagā.
There are sentient beings that have gone totally beyond perceptions of form. With the ending of perceptions of impingement, not focusing on perceptions of diversity, aware that ‘space is infinite’, they have been reborn in the dimension of infinite space.

Ayaṁ pañcamī viññāṇaṭṭhiti.
This is the fifth plane of consciousness.

Santānanda, sattā sabbaso ākāsānañcāyatanaṁ samatikkamma ‘anantaṁ viññāṇan’ti viññāṇañcāyatanūpagā.
There are sentient beings that have gone totally beyond the dimension of infinite space. Aware that ‘consciousness is infinite’, they have been reborn in the dimension of infinite consciousness.

Ayaṁ chaṭṭhī viññāṇaṭṭhiti.
This is the sixth plane of consciousness.

Santānanda, sattā sabbaso viññāṇañcāyatanaṁ samatikkamma ‘natthi kiñcī’ti ākiñcaññāyatanūpagā.
There are sentient beings that have gone totally beyond the dimension of infinite consciousness. Aware that ‘there is nothing at all’, they have been reborn in the dimension of nothingness.

Ayaṁ sattamī viññāṇaṭṭhiti.
This is the seventh plane of consciousness.

Asaññasattāyatanaṁ nevasaññānāsaññāyatanameva dutiyaṁ.
Then there’s the dimension of non-percipient beings, and secondly, the dimension of neither perception nor non-perception.

Tatrānanda, yāyaṁ paṭhamā viññāṇaṭṭhiti nānattakāyā nānattasaññino, seyyathāpi manussā, ekacce ca devā, ekacce ca vinipātikā.
Now, regarding these seven planes of consciousness and two dimensions, Yo nu kho, ānanda, tañca pajānāti, tassā ca samudayaṁ pajānāti, tassā ca atthaṅgamaṁ pajānāti, tassā ca assādaṁ pajānāti, tassā ca ādīnavaṁ pajānāti, tassā ca nissaraṇaṁ pajānāti, kallaṁ nu tena tadabhinanditun”ti?

is it appropriate for someone who understands them—and their origin, ending, gratification, drawback, and escape—to take pleasure in them?”

“No hetaṁ, bhante” …pe…
“No, sir.”

“tatrānanda, yamidaṁ asaññasattāyatanaṁ.

Yo nu kho, ānanda, tañca pajānāti, tassa ca samudayaṁ pajānāti, tassa ca atthaṅgamaṁ pajānāti, tassa ca assādaṁ pajānāti, tassa ca ādīnavaṁ pajānāti, tassa ca nissaraṇaṁ pajānāti, kallaṁ nu tena tadabhinanditun”ti?

“No hetaṁ, bhante”.

“Tatrānanda, yamidaṁ nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṁ.

Yo nu kho, ānanda, tañca pajānāti, tassa ca samudayaṁ pajānāti, tassa ca atthaṅgamaṁ pajānāti, tassa ca assādaṁ pajānāti, tassa ca ādīnavaṁ pajānāti, tassa ca nissaraṇaṁ pajānāti, kallaṁ nu tena tadabhinanditun”ti?

“No hetaṁ, bhante”.

“Yato kho, ānanda, bhikkhu imāsañca sattannaṁ viññāṇaṭṭhitīnaṁ imesañca dvinnaṁ āyatanānaṁ samudayañca atthaṅgamañca assādañca ādīnavañca nissaraṇañca yathābhūtaṁ viditvā anupādā vimutto hoti, ayaṁ vuccatānanda, bhikkhu paññāvimutto.
“When a mendicant, having truly understood the origin, ending, gratification, drawback, and escape regarding these seven planes of consciousness and these two dimensions, is freed by not grasping, they’re called a mendicant who is freed by wisdom.

6. Aṭṭhavimokkha

6. The Eight Liberations

Aṭṭha kho ime, ānanda, vimokkhā.
Ānanda, there are these eight liberations.

Katame aṭṭha?
What eight?

Rūpī rūpāni passati
Having physical form, they see visions.

ayaṁ paṭhamo vimokkho.
This is the first liberation.

Ajjhattaṁ arūpasaññī bahiddhā rūpāni passati,
Not perceiving form internally, they see visions externally.

ayaṁ dutiyo vimokkho.
This is the second liberation.

Subhanteva adhimutto hoti,
They're focused only on beauty.

ayaṁ tatiyo vimokkho.
This is the third liberation.

Sabbaso rūpasaññānaṁ samatikkamā paṭighasaññānaṁ atthaṅgamā nānattasaññānaṁ amanasikārā 'ananto ākāso'ti ākāsānañcāyatanaṁ upasampajja viharati,
Going totally beyond perceptions of form, with the ending of perceptions of impingement, not focusing on perceptions of diversity, aware that 'space is infinite', they enter and remain in the dimension of infinite space.

ayaṁ catuttho vimokkho.
This is the fourth liberation.

Sabbaso ākāsānañcāyatanaṁ samatikkamma 'anantaṁ viññāṇan'ti viññāṇañcāyatanaṁ upasampajja viharati,
Going totally beyond the dimension of infinite space, aware that 'consciousness is infinite', they enter and remain in the dimension of infinite consciousness.

ayaṁ pañcamo vimokkho.
This is the fifth liberation.

Sabbaso viññāṇañcāyatanaṁ samatikkamma ‘natthi kiñcī’ti ākiñcaññāyatanaṁ upasampajja viharati,
Going totally beyond the dimension of infinite consciousness, aware that ‘there is nothing at all’, they enter and remain in the dimension of nothingness.

ayaṁ chaṭṭho vimokkho.
This is the sixth liberation.

Sabbaso ākiñcaññāyatanaṁ samatikkamma nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṁ upasampajja viharati,
Going totally beyond the dimension of nothingness, they enter and remain in the dimension of neither perception nor non-perception.

ayaṁ sattamo vimokkho.
This is the seventh liberation.

Sabbaso nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṁ samatikkamma saññāvedayitanirodhaṁ upasampajja viharati,
Going totally beyond the dimension of neither perception nor non-perception, they enter and remain in the cessation of perception and feeling.

ayaṁ aṭṭhamo vimokkho.
This is the eighth liberation.

Ime kho, ānanda, aṭṭha vimokkhā.
These are the eight liberations.

Yato kho, ānanda, bhikkhu ime aṭṭha vimokkhe anulomampi samāpajjati, paṭilomampi samāpajjati, anulomapaṭilomampi samāpajjati, yatthicchakaṁ yadicchakaṁ yāvaticchakaṁ samāpajjatipi vuṭṭhātipi.

When a mendicant enters into and withdraws from these eight liberations—in forward order, in reverse order, and in forward and reverse order—wherever they wish, whenever they wish, and for as long as they wish;

Āsavānañca khayā anāsavaṁ cetovimuttiṁ paññāvimuttiṁ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharati, ayaṁ vuccatānanda, bhikkhu ubhatobhāgavimutto.
and when they realize the undefiled freedom of heart and freedom by wisdom in this very life, and live having realized it with their own insight due to the ending of defilements, they're called a mendicant who is freed both ways.

Imāya ca, ānanda, ubhatobhāgavimuttiyā aññā ubhatobhāgavimutti uttaritarā vā paṇītatarā vā natthī"ti.
And, Ānanda, there is no other freedom both ways that is better or finer than this."

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Attamano āyasmā ānando bhagavato bhāsitaṁ abhinandīti.
Satisfied, Venerable Ānanda was happy with what the Buddha said.

Mahānidānasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ dutiyaṁ.

16. Mahāparinibbānasutta

The Great Discourse on the Buddha’s Extinguishment

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā rājagahe viharati gijjhakūṭe pabbate.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Rājagaha, on the Vulture’s Peak Mountain.

Tena kho pana samayena rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto vajjī abhiyātukāmo hoti.
Now at that time King Ajātasattu Vedehiputta of Māgadha wanted to invade the Vajjis.

So evamāha:
He declared:

“ahaṁ hime vajjī evaṁmahiddhike evaṁmahānubhāve ucchecchāmi vajjī, vināsessāmi vajjī, anayabyasanaṁ āpādessāmī”ti.
“I shall wipe out these Vajjis, so mighty and powerful! I shall destroy them, and lay ruin and devastation upon them!”

Atha kho rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto vassakāraṁ brāhmaṇaṁ magadhamahāmattaṁ āmantesi:
And then King Ajātasattu addressed Vassakāra the brahmin minister of Māgadha, “ehi tvaṁ, brāhmaṇa, yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkama; upasaṅkamitvā mama vacanena bhagavato pāde sirasā vandāhi, appābādhaṁ appātaṅkaṁ lahuṭṭhānaṁ balaṁ phāsuvihāraṁ puccha:

“Please, brahmin, go to the Buddha, and in my name bow with your head to his feet. Ask him if he is healthy and well, nimble, strong, and living comfortably.

‘rājā, bhante, māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto bhagavato pāde sirasā vandati, appābādhaṁ appātaṅkaṁ lahuṭṭhānaṁ balaṁ phāsuvihāraṁ pucchatī’ti.

Evañca vadehi:
And then say:

‘rājā, bhante, māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto vajjī abhiyātukāmo.
‘Sir, King Ajātasattu Vedehiputta of Māgadha wants to invade the Vajjis.

So evamāha:
He says,

“ahaṁ hime vajjī evaṁmahiddhike evaṁmahānubhāve ucchecchāmi vajjī, vināsessāmi vajjī, anayabyasanaṁ āpādessāmī”’ti.
“I shall wipe out these Vajjis, so mighty and powerful! I shall destroy them, and lay ruin and devastation upon them!”’

Yathā te bhagavā byākaroti, taṁ sādhukaṁ uggahetvā mama āroceyyāsi.
Remember well how the Buddha answers and tell it to me.

Na hi tathāgatā vitathaṁ bhaṇantī”ti.
For Realized Ones say nothing that is not so.”

1. Vassakārabrāhmaṇa

1. The Brahmin Vassakāra

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho vassakāro brāhmaṇo magadhamahāmatto rañño māgadhassa ajātasattussa vedehiputtassa paṭissutvā bhaddāni bhaddāni yānāni yojetvā bhaddaṁ bhaddaṁ yānaṁ abhiruhitvā bhaddehi bhaddehi yānehi rājagahamhā niyyāsi, yena gijjhakūṭo pabbato tena pāyāsi.

“Yes, sir,” Vassakāra replied. He had the finest carriages harnessed. Then he mounted a fine carriage and, along with other fine carriages, set out from Rājagaha for the Vulture’s Peak Mountain.

Yāvatikā yānassa bhūmi, yānena gantvā, yānā paccorohitvā pattikova yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodi.
He went by carriage as far as the terrain allowed, then descended and approached the Buddha on foot, and exchanged greetings with him.

Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho vassakāro brāhmaṇo magadhamahāmatto bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When the greetings and polite conversation were over, he sat down to one side and said to the Buddha, “rājā, bho gotama, māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto bhoto gotamassa pāde sirasā vandati, appābādhaṁ appātaṅkaṁ lahuṭṭhānaṁ balaṁ phāsuvihāraṁ pucchati.

“Master Gotama, King Ajātasattu Vedehiputta of Māgadha bows with his head to your feet. He asks if you are healthy and well, nimble, strong, and living comfortably.

Rājā, bho gotama, māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto vajjī abhiyātukāmo.
Master Gotama, King Ajātasattu wants to invade the Vajjis.

So evamāha:
He has declared:

‘ahaṁ hime vajjī evaṁmahiddhike evaṁmahānubhāve ucchecchāmi vajjī, vināsessāmi vajjī, anayabyasanaṁ āpādessāmī’”ti.
‘I shall wipe out these Vajjis, so mighty and powerful! I shall destroy them, and lay ruin and devastation upon them!’”

2. Rājaaparihāniyadhamma

2. Principles That Prevent Decline

Tena kho pana samayena āyasmā ānando bhagavato piṭṭhito ṭhito hoti bhagavantaṁ bījayamāno.
Now at that time Venerable Ānanda was standing behind the Buddha fanning him.

Atha kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to him,

“kinti te, ānanda, sutaṁ, ‘vajjī abhiṇhaṁ sannipātā sannipātabahulā’”ti?
“Ānanda, have you heard that the Vajjis meet frequently and have many meetings?”

“Sutaṁ metaṁ, bhante: ‘vajjī abhiṇhaṁ sannipātā sannipātabahulā’”ti.
“I have heard that, sir.”

“Yāvakīvañca, ānanda, vajjī abhiṇhaṁ sannipātā sannipātabahulā bhavissanti, vuddhiyeva, ānanda, vajjīnaṁ pāṭikaṅkhā, no parihāni. (1)
“As long as the Vajjis meet frequently and have many meetings, they can expect growth, not decline.

Kinti te, ānanda, sutaṁ, ‘vajjī samaggā sannipatanti, samaggā vuṭṭhahanti, samaggā vajjikaraṇīyāni karontī’”ti?
Ānanda, have you heard that the Vajjis meet in harmony, leave in harmony, and carry on their business in harmony?”

“Sutaṁ metaṁ, bhante: ‘vajjī samaggā sannipatanti, samaggā vuṭṭhahanti, samaggā vajjikaraṇīyāni karontī’”ti.
“I have heard that, sir.”

“Yāvakīvañca, ānanda, vajjī samaggā sannipatissanti, samaggā vuṭṭhahissanti, samaggā vajjikaraṇīyāni karissanti, vuddhiyeva, ānanda, vajjīnaṁ pāṭikaṅkhā, no parihāni. (2)
“As long as the Vajjis meet in harmony, leave in harmony, and carry on their business in harmony, they can expect growth, not decline.

Kinti te, ānanda, sutaṁ, ‘vajjī apaññattaṁ na paññapenti, paññattaṁ na samucchindanti, yathāpaññatte porāṇe vajjidhamme samādāya vattantī’”ti?
Ānanda, have you heard that the Vajjis don’t make new decrees or abolish existing decrees, but proceed having undertaken the traditional Vajjian principles as they have been decreed?”

“Sutaṁ metaṁ, bhante: ‘vajjī apaññattaṁ na paññapenti, paññattaṁ na samucchindanti, yathāpaññatte porāṇe vajjidhamme samādāya vattantī’”ti.

Ānanda, have you heard that the Vajjis arrange for proper protection, shelter, and security for perfected ones, so that more perfected ones might come to the realm and those already here may live in comfort?”

“Sutaṁ metaṁ, bhante ‘vajjīnaṁ arahantesu dhammikā rakkhāvaraṇagutti susaṁvihitā kinti anāgatā ca arahanto vijitaṁ āgaccheyyuṁ, āgatā ca arahanto vijite phāsu vihareyyun’”ti.
“I have heard that, sir.”

“Yāvakīvañca, ānanda, vajjīnaṁ arahantesu dhammikā rakkhāvaraṇagutti susaṁvihitā bhavissati, kinti anāgatā ca arahanto vijitaṁ āgaccheyyuṁ, āgatā ca arahanto vijite phāsu vihareyyunti. Vuddhiyeva, ānanda, vajjīnaṁ pāṭikaṅkhā, no parihānī”ti. (7)
“As long as the Vajjis arrange for proper protection, shelter, and security for perfected ones, so that more perfected ones might come to the realm and those already here may live in comfort, they can expect growth, not decline.”

Atha kho bhagavā vassakāraṁ brāhmaṇaṁ magadhamahāmattaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to Vassakāra,

“ekamidāhaṁ, brāhmaṇa, samayaṁ vesāliyaṁ viharāmi sārandade cetiye.
“Brahmin, this one time I was staying near Vesālī at the Sārandada woodland shrine.

Tatrāhaṁ vajjīnaṁ ime satta aparihāniye dhamme desesiṁ.
There I taught the Vajjis these seven principles that prevent decline.

Yāvakīvañca, brāhmaṇa, ime satta aparihāniyā dhammā vajjīsu ṭhassanti, imesu ca sattasu aparihāniyesu dhammesu vajjī sandississanti, vuddhiyeva, brāhmaṇa, vajjīnaṁ pāṭikaṅkhā, no parihānī”ti.

Evaṁ vutte, vassakāro brāhmaṇo magadhamahāmatto bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When the Buddha had spoken, Vassakāra said to him,

“ekamekenapi, bho gotama, aparihāniyena dhammena samannāgatānaṁ vajjīnaṁ vuddhiyeva pāṭikaṅkhā, no parihāni.

“Master Gotama, if the Vajjis follow even a single one of these principles they can expect growth, not decline.

Ko pana vādo sattahi aparihāniyehi dhammehi.
How much more so all seven!

Well, now, Master Gotama, I must go. I have many duties, and much to do.”

“Yassadāni tvaṁ, brāhmaṇa, kālaṁ maññasī”ti.
“Please, brahmin, go at your convenience.”

Atha kho vassakāro brāhmaṇo magadhamahāmatto bhagavato bhāsitaṁ abhinanditvā anumoditvā uṭṭhāyāsanā pakkāmi.
Then Vassakāra the brahmin, having approved and agreed with what the Buddha said, got up from his seat and left.

3. Principles That Prevent Decline Among the Mendicants

Atha kho bhagavā acirapakkante vassakāre brāhmaṇe magadhamahāmatte āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Soon after he had left, the Buddha said to Ānanda, “gaccha tvaṁ, ānanda, yāvatikā bhikkhū rājagahaṁ upanissāya viharanti, te sabbe upaṭṭhānasālāyaṁ sannipātehī”ti.

“Go, Ānanda, gather all the mendicants staying in the vicinity of Rājagaha together in the assembly hall.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paṭissutvā yāvatikā bhikkhū rājagahaṁ upanissāya viharanti, te sabbe upaṭṭhānasālāyaṁ sannipātetvā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi. Ekamantaṁ ṭhito kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
“Yes, sir,” replied Ānanda. He did what the Buddha asked. Then he went back, bowed, stood to one side, and said to him, “sannipatito, bhante, bhikkhusaṅgho, yassadāni, bhante, bhagavā kālaṁ maññatī”ti.

“Sir, the mendicant Saṅgha has assembled. Please, sir, go at your convenience.”

Atha kho bhagavā uṭṭhāyāsanā yena upaṭṭhānasālā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā paññatte āsane nisīdi.
Then the Buddha went to the assembly hall, where he sat on the seat spread out

Nisajja kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
and addressed the mendicants:

“satta vo, bhikkhave, aparihāniye dhamme desessāmi, “Mendicants, I will teach you these seven principles that prevent decline.

Listen and pay close attention, I will speak.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho te bhikkhū bhagavato paccassosuṁ.
“Yes, sir,” they replied.

Bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said this:

“Yāvakīvañca, bhikkhave, bhikkhū abhiṇhaṁ sannipātā sannipātabahulā bhavissanti, vuddhiyeva, bhikkhave, bhikkhūnaṁ pāṭikaṅkhā, no parihāni. (1)

“As long as the mendicants meet frequently and have many meetings, they can expect growth, not decline.

'Whatever sizable creatures enter or leave the citadel, all of them do so via this gate.'

Evameva kho me, bhante, dhammanvayo vidito:
In the same way, I understand this by inference from the teaching:

And while staying at Nāḷandā, too, the Buddha often gave this Dhamma talk to the mendicants:

“iti sīlaṁ, iti samādhi, iti paññā.
“Such is ethics, such is immersion, such is wisdom.

Sīlaparibhāvito samādhi mahapphalo hoti mahānisaṁso.
When immersion is imbued with ethics it’s very fruitful and beneficial.

Samādhiparibhāvitā paññā mahapphalā hoti mahānisaṁsā.
When wisdom is imbued with immersion it’s very fruitful and beneficial.

Paññāparibhāvitaṁ cittaṁ sammadeva āsavehi vimuccati, seyyathidaṁ—
When the mind is imbued with wisdom it is rightly freed from the defilements, namely,

the defilements of sensuality, desire to be reborn, and ignorance.”

5. Dussīlaādīnava

5. The Drawbacks of Unethical Conduct

Atha kho bhagavā nāḷandāyaṁ yathābhirantaṁ viharitvā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
When the Buddha had stayed in Nāḷandā as long as he wished, he addressed Venerable Ānanda, “āyāmānanda, yena pāṭaligāmo tenupasaṅkamissāmā”ti.

“Come, Ānanda, let’s go to Pāṭaligāma.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Ānanda replied.

Atha kho bhagavā mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ yena pāṭaligāmo tadavasari.
Then the Buddha together with a large Saṅgha of mendicants arrived at Pāṭaligāma.

Assosuṁ kho pāṭaligāmikā upāsakā: “bhagavā kira pāṭaligāmaṁ anuppatto”ti.
The lay followers of Pāṭaligāma heard that he had arrived.

Atha kho pāṭaligāmikā upāsakā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu. Ekamantaṁ nisinnā kho pāṭaligāmikā upāsakā bhagavantaṁ etadavocuṁ:
So they went to see him, bowed, sat down to one side, and said to him, “adhivāsetu no, bhante, bhagavā āvasathāgāran”ti.

“Sir, please consent to come to our guest house.”

Adhivāsesi bhagavā tuṇhībhāvena.
The Buddha consented in silence.

Atha kho pāṭaligāmikā upāsakā bhagavato adhivāsanaṁ viditvā uṭṭhāyāsanā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā yena āvasathāgāraṁ tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā sabbasanthariṁ āvasathāgāraṁ santharitvā āsanāni paññapetvā udakamaṇikaṁ patiṭṭhāpetvā telapadīpaṁ āropetvā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu, upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu. Ekamantaṁ ṭhitā kho pāṭaligāmikā upāsakā bhagavantaṁ etadavocuṁ:

Then, knowing that the Buddha had consented, the lay followers of Pāṭaligāma got up from their seat, bowed, and respectfully circled the Buddha, keeping him on their right. Then they went to the guest house, where they spread carpets all over, prepared seats, set up a water jar, and placed a lamp. Then they went back to the Buddha, bowed, stood to one side, and told him of their preparations, saying:

“sabbasantharisanthataṁ, bhante, āvasathāgāraṁ, āsanāni paññattāni, udakamaṇiko patiṭṭhāpito, telapadīpo āropito;

yassadāni, bhante, bhagavā kālaṁ maññatī”ti.
“Please, sir, come at your convenience.”

Atha kho bhagavā sāyanhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghena yena āvasathāgāraṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā pāde pakkhāletvā āvasathāgāraṁ pavisitvā majjhimaṁ thambhaṁ nissāya puratthābhimukho nisīdi.
In the morning, the Buddha robed up and, taking his bowl and robe, went to the guest house together with the Saṅgha of mendicants. Having washed his feet he entered the guest house and sat against the central column facing east.

Bhikkhusaṅghopi kho pāde pakkhāletvā āvasathāgāraṁ pavisitvā pacchimaṁ bhittiṁ nissāya puratthābhimukho nisīdi bhagavantameva purakkhatvā.
The Saṅgha of mendicants also washed their feet, entered the guest house, and sat against the west wall facing east, with the Buddha right in front of them.

Pāṭaligāmikāpi kho upāsakā pāde pakkhāletvā āvasathāgāraṁ pavisitvā puratthimaṁ bhittiṁ nissāya pacchimābhimukhā nisīdiṁsu bhagavantameva purakkhatvā.

The lay followers of Pāṭaligāma also washed their feet, entered the guest house, and sat against the east wall facing west, with the Buddha right in front of them.

(…)

Atha kho bhagavā pāṭaligāmike upāsake āmantesi:
Then the Buddha addressed them:

“pañcime, gahapatayo, ādīnavā dussīlassa sīlavipattiyā.
“Householders, there are these five drawbacks for an unethical person because of their failure in ethics.

These are the five benefits for an ethical person because of their accomplishment in ethics.”

Atha kho bhagavā pāṭaligāmike upāsake bahudeva rattiṁ dhammiyā kathāya sandassetvā samādapetvā samuttejetvā sampahaṁsetvā uyyojesi:
The Buddha spent most of the night educating, encouraging, firing up, and inspiring the lay followers of Pāṭaligāma with a Dhamma talk. Then he dismissed them, “abhikkantā kho, gahapatayo, ratti, yassadāni tumhe kālaṁ maññathā”ti.

“The night is getting late, householders. Please go at your convenience.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho pāṭaligāmikā upāsakā bhagavato paṭissutvā uṭṭhāyāsanā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā pakkamiṁsu.
“Yes, sir,” replied the lay followers of Pāṭaligāma. They got up from their seat, bowed, and respectfully circled the Buddha, keeping him on their right, before leaving.

Atha kho bhagavā acirapakkantesu pāṭaligāmikesu upāsakesu suññāgāraṁ pāvisi.
Soon after they left the Buddha entered a private cubicle.

Atha kho sunidhavassakārā magadhamahāmattā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodiṁsu, Then the Magadhan ministers Sunidha and Vassakāra approached the Buddha, and exchanged greetings with him.

sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu, ekamantaṁ ṭhitā kho sunidhavassakārā magadhamahāmattā bhagavantaṁ etadavocuṁ:
When the greetings and polite conversation were over, they stood to one side and said, “adhivāsetu no bhavaṁ gotamo ajjatanāya bhattaṁ saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghenā”ti.

“Would Master Gotama together with the mendicant Saṅgha please accept today’s meal from me?”

Adhivāsesi bhagavā tuṇhībhāvena.
The Buddha consented in silence.

Atha kho sunidhavassakārā magadhamahāmattā bhagavato adhivāsanaṁ viditvā yena sako āvasatho tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā sake āvasathe paṇītaṁ khādanīyaṁ bhojanīyaṁ paṭiyādāpetvā bhagavato kālaṁ ārocāpesuṁ:

Then, knowing that the Buddha had consented, they went to their own guest house, where they had a variety of delicious foods prepared. Then they had the Buddha informed of the time, saying,

Then the Buddha robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, went to their guest house together with the mendicant Saṅgha, where he sat on the seat spread out.

Atha kho sunidhavassakārā magadhamahāmattā buddhappamukhaṁ bhikkhusaṅghaṁ paṇītena khādanīyena bhojanīyena sahatthā santappesuṁ sampavāresuṁ.
Then Sunidha and Vassakāra served and satisfied the mendicant Saṅgha headed by the Buddha with their own hands with a variety of delicious foods.

Atha kho sunidhavassakārā magadhamahāmattā bhagavantaṁ bhuttāviṁ onītapattapāṇiṁ aññataraṁ nīcaṁ āsanaṁ gahetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu.
When the Buddha had eaten and washed his hand and bowl, Sunidha and Vassakāra took a low seat and sat to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinne kho sunidhavassakāre magadhamahāmatte bhagavā imāhi gāthāhi anumodi:
The Buddha expressed his appreciation with these verses:

“Yasmiṁ padese kappeti,
“In the place he makes his dwelling, vāsaṁ paṇḍitajātiyo;

having fed the astute

Sīlavantettha bhojetvā, and the virtuous here,

honored, they honor him.

Tato naṁ anukampanti,
After that they have compassion for him,

mātā puttaṁva orasaṁ;
like a mother for the child at her breast.

always sees nice things.”

Atha kho bhagavā sunidhavassakāre magadhamahāmatte imāhi gāthāhi anumoditvā uṭṭhāyāsanā pakkāmi.
When the Buddha had expressed his appreciation to Sunidha and Vassakāra with these verses, he got up from his seat and left.

Tena kho pana samayena sunidhavassakārā magadhamahāmattā bhagavantaṁ piṭṭhito piṭṭhito anubandhā honti:
Sunidha and Vassakāra followed behind the Buddha, thinking, “yenajja samaṇo gotamo dvārena nikkhamissati, taṁ gotamadvāraṁ nāma bhavissati.

“The gate through which the ascetic Gotama departs today shall be named the Gotama Gate.

Yena titthena gaṅgaṁ nadiṁ tarissati, taṁ gotamatitthaṁ nāma bhavissatī”ti.
The ford at which he crosses the Ganges River shall be named the Gotama Ford.”

Atha kho bhagavā yena dvārena nikkhami, taṁ gotamadvāraṁ nāma ahosi.
Then the gate through which the Buddha departed was named the Gotama Gate.

Atha kho bhagavā yena gaṅgā nadī tenupasaṅkami.
Then the Buddha came to the Ganges River.

Tena kho pana samayena gaṅgā nadī pūrā hoti samatittikā kākapeyyā.
Now at that time the Ganges was full to the brim so a crow could drink from it.

Appekacce manussā nāvaṁ pariyesanti, appekacce uḷumpaṁ pariyesanti, appekacce kullaṁ bandhanti apārā, pāraṁ gantukāmā.
Wanting to cross from the near to the far shore, some people were seeking a boat, some a dinghy, while some were tying up a raft.

Atha kho bhagavā—seyyathāpi nāma balavā puriso samiñjitaṁ vā bāhaṁ pasāreyya, pasāritaṁ vā bāhaṁ samiñjeyya; evameva—gaṅgāya nadiyā orimatīre antarahito pārimatīre paccuṭṭhāsi saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghena.
But, as easily as a strong person would extend or contract their arm, the Buddha, together with the mendicant Saṅgha, vanished from the near shore and landed on the far shore.

Addasā kho bhagavā te manusse appekacce nāvaṁ pariyesante appekacce uḷumpaṁ pariyesante appekacce kullaṁ bandhante apārā pāraṁ gantukāme.
He saw all those people wanting to cross over.

Atha kho bhagavā etamatthaṁ viditvā tāyaṁ velāyaṁ imaṁ udānaṁ udānesi:
Knowing the meaning of this, on that occasion the Buddha expressed this heartfelt sentiment:

> “Ye taranti aṇṇavaṁ saraṁ,
> “Those who cross a river or stream
>
> Setuṁ katvāna visajja pallalāni;
> have built a bridge and left the marshes behind.
>
> Kullañhi jano bandhati,
> While some people are still tying a raft,
>
> Tiṇṇā medhāvino janā”ti.
> intelligent people have crossed over.”

Paṭhamabhāṇavāro.

8. Ariyasaccakathā

8. Talk on the Noble Truths

Atha kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to Venerable Ānanda,

“āyāmānanda, yena koṭigāmo tenupasaṅkamissāmā”ti.
“Come, Ānanda, let’s go to Koṭigāma.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Ānanda replied.

Atha kho bhagavā mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ yena koṭigāmo tadavasari.
Then the Buddha together with a large Saṅgha of mendicants arrived at Koṭigāma, Tatra sudaṁ bhagavā koṭigāme viharati.

and stayed there.

Tatra kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
There he addressed the mendicants:

“Catunnaṁ, bhikkhave, ariyasaccānaṁ ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamidaṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ sandhāvitaṁ saṁsaritaṁ mamañceva tumhākañca.
“Mendicants, not understanding and not penetrating four noble truths, both you and I have wandered and transmigrated for such a very long time.

Katamesaṁ catunnaṁ?
What four?

Dukkhassa, bhikkhave, ariyasaccassa ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamidaṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ sandhāvitaṁ saṁsaritaṁ mamañceva tumhākañca.
The noble truths of suffering,

Dukkhasamudayassa, bhikkhave, ariyasaccassa ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamidaṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ sandhāvitaṁ saṁsaritaṁ mamañceva tumhākañca.
the origin of suffering,

Dukkhanirodhassa, bhikkhave, ariyasaccassa ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamidaṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ sandhāvitaṁ saṁsaritaṁ mamañceva tumhākañca.
the cessation of suffering,

Dukkhanirodhagāminiyā paṭipadāya, bhikkhave, ariyasaccassa ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamidaṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ sandhāvitaṁ saṁsaritaṁ mamañceva tumhākañca.

and the practice that leads to the cessation of suffering.

Tayidaṁ, bhikkhave, dukkhaṁ ariyasaccaṁ anubuddhaṁ paṭividdhaṁ, dukkhasamudayaṁ ariyasaccaṁ anubuddhaṁ paṭividdhaṁ, dukkhanirodhaṁ ariyasaccaṁ anubuddhaṁ paṭividdhaṁ, dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā ariyasaccaṁ anubuddhaṁ paṭividdhaṁ, ucchinnā bhavataṇhā, khīṇā bhavanetti, natthi dāni punabbhavo”ti.
These noble truths of suffering, origin, cessation, and the path have been understood and comprehended. Craving for continued existence has been cut off; the attachment to continued existence is ended; now there are no more future lives.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Idaṁ vatvāna sugato athāparaṁ etadavoca satthā:
Then the Holy One, the Teacher, went on to say:

“Catunnaṁ ariyasaccānaṁ, “Because of not truly seeing yathābhūtaṁ adassanā;

the four noble truths,

Saṁsitaṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ,
we have transmigrated for a long time tāsu tāsveva jātisu.

from one rebirth to the next.

Tāni etāni diṭṭhāni,
But now that these truths have been seen,

bhavanetti samūhatā;
the attachment to rebirth is eradicated.

Ucchinnaṁ mūlaṁ dukkhassa,
The root of suffering is cut off, natthi dāni punabbhavo”ti.

now there are no more future lives.”

Tatrapi sudaṁ bhagavā koṭigāme viharanto etadeva bahulaṁ bhikkhūnaṁ dhammiṁ kathaṁ karoti:
And while staying at Koṭigāma, too, the Buddha often gave this Dhamma talk to the mendicants:

“iti sīlaṁ, iti samādhi, iti paññā.
“Such is ethics, such is immersion, such is wisdom.

Sīlaparibhāvito samādhi mahapphalo hoti mahānisaṁso.
When immersion is imbued with ethics it’s very fruitful and beneficial.

Samādhiparibhāvitā paññā mahapphalā hoti mahānisaṁsā.
When wisdom is imbued with immersion it’s very fruitful and beneficial.

Paññāparibhāvitaṁ cittaṁ sammadeva āsavehi vimuccati, seyyathidaṁ—
When the mind is imbued with wisdom it is rightly freed from the defilements, namely,

kāmāsavā, bhavāsavā, avijjāsavā”ti.
the defilements of sensuality, desire to be reborn, and ignorance.”

9. Anāvattidhammasambodhiparāyaṇa

9. The Deaths in Nādika

Atha kho bhagavā koṭigāme yathābhirantaṁ viharitvā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
When the Buddha had stayed in Koṭigāma as long as he wished, he said to Ānanda, “āyāmānanda, yena nātikā tenupaṅkamissāmā”ti.

“Come, Ānanda, let’s go to Nādika.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Ānanda replied.

Atha kho bhagavā mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ yena nātikā tadavasari.
Then the Buddha together with a large Saṅgha of mendicants arrived at Nādika, Tatrapi sudaṁ bhagavā nātike viharati giñjakāvasathe.

where he stayed in the brick house.

Atha kho āyasmā ānando yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Venerable Ānanda went up to the Buddha, bowed, sat down to one side, and said to him, “sāḷho nāma, bhante, bhikkhu nātike kālaṅkato, tassa kā gati, ko abhisamparāyo?

“Sir, the monk named Sāḷha has passed away in Nādika. Where has he been reborn in his next life?

In excess of five hundred laymen in Nādika have passed away having ended three fetters. They’re stream-enterers, not liable to be reborn in the underworld, bound for awakening.

10. Dhammādāsadhammapariyāya

10. The Mirror of the Teaching

Anacchariyaṁ kho panetaṁ, ānanda, yaṁ manussabhūto kālaṁ kareyya.
It’s hardly surprising that a human being should pass away.

Tasmiṁyeva kālaṅkate tathāgataṁ upasaṅkamitvā etamatthaṁ pucchissatha, vihesā hesā, ānanda, tathāgatassa.
But if you should come and ask me about it each and every time someone passes away, that would be a bother for me.

Tasmātihānanda, dhammādāsaṁ nāma dhammapariyāyaṁ desessāmi, yena samannāgato ariyasāvako ākaṅkhamāno attanāva attānaṁ byākareyya:
So Ānanda, I will teach you the explanation of the Dhamma called ‘the mirror of the teaching’. A noble disciple who has this may declare of themselves:

‘khīṇanirayomhi khīṇatiracchānayoni khīṇapettivisayo khīṇāpāyaduggativinipāto, sotāpannohamasmi avinipātadhammo niyato sambodhiparāyaṇo’ti.
‘I’ve finished with rebirth in hell, the animal realm, and the ghost realm. I’ve finished with all places of loss, bad places, the underworld. I am a stream-enterer! I’m not liable to be reborn in the underworld, and am bound for awakening.’

Katamo ca so, ānanda, dhammādāso dhammapariyāyo, yena samannāgato ariyasāvako ākaṅkhamāno attanāva attānaṁ byākareyya:
And what is that mirror of the teaching?

‘khīṇanirayomhi khīṇatiracchānayoni khīṇapettivisayo khīṇāpāyaduggativinipāto, sotāpannohamasmi avinipātadhammo niyato sambodhiparāyaṇo’ti?

Idhānanda, ariyasāvako buddhe aveccappasādena samannāgato hoti:
It’s when a noble disciple has experiential confidence in the Buddha:

‘itipi so bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavā’ti.

‘That Blessed One is perfected, a fully awakened Buddha, accomplished in knowledge and conduct, holy, knower of the world, supreme guide for those who wish to train, teacher of gods and humans, awakened, blessed.’

Dhamme aveccappasādena samannāgato hoti:
They have experiential confidence in the teaching:

‘svākkhāto bhagavatā dhammo sandiṭṭhiko akāliko ehipassiko opaneyyiko paccattaṁ veditabbo viññūhī’ti.
‘The teaching is well explained by the Buddha—visible in this very life, immediately effective, inviting inspection, relevant, so that sensible people can know it for themselves.’

Saṅghe aveccappasādena samannāgato hoti:
They have experiential confidence in the Saṅgha:

‘suppaṭipanno bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho, ujuppaṭipanno bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho, ñāyappaṭipanno bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho, sāmīcippaṭipanno bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho yadidaṁ cattāri purisayugāni aṭṭha purisapuggalā, esa bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho āhuneyyo pāhuneyyo dakkhiṇeyyo añjalikaraṇīyo anuttaraṁ puññakkhettaṁ lokassā’ti.
‘The Saṅgha of the Buddha’s disciples is practicing the way that’s good, straightforward, methodical, and proper. It consists of the four pairs, the eight individuals. This is the Saṅgha of the Buddha’s disciples that is worthy of offerings dedicated to the gods, worthy of hospitality, worthy of a religious donation, worthy of greeting with joined palms, and is the supreme field of merit for the world.’

Ariyakantehi sīlehi samannāgato hoti akhaṇḍehi acchiddehi asabalehi akammāsehi bhujissehi viññūpasatthehi aparāmaṭṭhehi samādhisaṁvattanikehi.
And a noble disciple’s ethical conduct is loved by the noble ones, unbroken, impeccable, spotless, and unmarred, liberating, praised by sensible people, not mistaken, and leading to immersion.

Ayaṁ kho so, ānanda, dhammādāso dhammapariyāyo, yena samannāgato ariyasāvako ākaṅkhamāno attanāva attānaṁ byākareyya:
This is that mirror of the teaching.”

‘khīṇanirayomhi khīṇatiracchānayoni khīṇapettivisayo khīṇāpāyaduggativinipāto, sotāpannohamasmi avinipātadhammo niyato sambodhiparāyaṇo’”ti.

Tatrapi sudaṁ bhagavā nātike viharanto giñjakāvasathe etadeva bahulaṁ bhikkhūnaṁ dhammiṁ kathaṁ karoti:
And while staying there in Nādika the Buddha often gave this Dhamma talk to the mendicants:

“Iti sīlaṁ iti samādhi iti paññā.
“Such is ethics, such is immersion, such is wisdom.

Sīlaparibhāvito samādhi mahapphalo hoti mahānisaṁso.
When immersion is imbued with ethics it’s very fruitful and beneficial.

Samādhiparibhāvitā paññā mahapphalā hoti mahānisaṁsā.
When wisdom is imbued with immersion it’s very fruitful and beneficial.

Paññāparibhāvitaṁ cittaṁ sammadeva āsavehi vimuccati, seyyathidaṁ—
When the mind is imbued with wisdom it is rightly freed from the defilements, namely,

kāmāsavā, bhavāsavā, avijjāsavā”ti.
the defilements of sensuality, desire to be reborn, and ignorance.”

(…)

Atha kho bhagavā nātike yathābhirantaṁ viharitvā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:

When the Buddha had stayed in Nādika as long as he wished, he addressed Venerable Ānanda, “āyāmānanda, yena vesālī tenupasaṅkamissāmā”ti.

“Come, Ānanda, let’s go to Vesālī.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Ānanda replied.

Atha kho bhagavā mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ yena vesālī tadavasari.
Then the Buddha together with a large Saṅgha of mendicants arrived at Vesālī, Tatra sudaṁ bhagavā vesāliyaṁ viharati ambapālivane.

where he stayed in Ambapālī’s mango grove.

Tatra kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
There the Buddha addressed the mendicants:

“Sato, bhikkhave, bhikkhu vihareyya sampajāno, “Mendicants, a mendicant should live mindful and aware.

ayaṁ vo amhākaṁ anusāsanī.
This is my instruction to you.

Kathañca, bhikkhave, bhikkhu sato hoti?
And how is a mendicant mindful?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ.
It’s when a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body —keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

Vedanāsu vedanānupassī …pe…
They meditate observing an aspect of feelings …

citte cittānupassī …pe…

dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ.
principles—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

Evaṁ kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu sato hoti.
That’s how a mendicant is mindful.

Kathañca, bhikkhave, bhikkhu sampajāno hoti?
And how is a mendicant aware?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu abhikkante paṭikkante sampajānakārī hoti, ālokite vilokite sampajānakārī hoti, samiñjite pasārite sampajānakārī hoti, saṅghāṭipattacīvaradhāraṇe sampajānakārī hoti, asite pīte khāyite sāyite sampajānakārī hoti, uccārapassāvakamme sampajānakārī hoti, gate ṭhite nisinne sutte jāgarite bhāsite tuṇhībhāve sampajānakārī hoti.
It’s when a mendicant acts with situational awareness when going out and coming back; when looking ahead and aside; when bending and extending the limbs; when bearing the outer robe, bowl and robes; when eating, drinking, chewing, and tasting; when urinating and defecating; when walking, standing, sitting, sleeping, waking, speaking, and keeping silent.

Evaṁ kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu sampajāno hoti.
That’s how a mendicant is aware.

Sato, bhikkhave, bhikkhu vihareyya sampajāno,
A mendicant should live mindful and aware.

ayaṁ vo amhākaṁ anusāsanī”ti.
This is my instruction to you.”

11. Ambapālīgaṇikā

11. Ambapālī the Courtesan

Assosi kho ambapālī gaṇikā: “bhagavā kira vesāliṁ anuppatto vesāliyaṁ viharati mayhaṁ ambavane”ti.
Ambapālī the courtesan heard that the Buddha had arrived and was staying in her mango grove.

Atha kho ambapālī gaṇikā bhaddāni bhaddāni yānāni yojāpetvā bhaddaṁ bhaddaṁ yānaṁ abhiruhitvā bhaddehi bhaddehi yānehi vesāliyā niyyāsi. Yena sako ārāmo tena pāyāsi.
She had the finest carriages harnessed. Then she mounted a fine carriage and, along with other fine carriages, set out from Vesālī for her own park.

Yāvatikā yānassa bhūmi, yānena gantvā, yānā paccorohitvā pattikāva yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
She went by carriage as far as the terrain allowed, then descended and approached the Buddha on foot. She bowed and sat down to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho ambapāliṁ gaṇikaṁ bhagavā dhammiyā kathāya sandassesi samādapesi samuttejesi sampahaṁsesi.
The Buddha educated, encouraged, fired up, and inspired her with a Dhamma talk.

Atha kho ambapālī gaṇikā bhagavatā dhammiyā kathāya sandassitā samādapitā samuttejitā sampahaṁsitā bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then she said to the Buddha,

“adhivāsetu me, bhante, bhagavā svātanāya bhattaṁ saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghenā”ti.
“Sir, may the Buddha together with the mendicant Saṅgha please accept tomorrow’s meal from me.”

Adhivāsesi bhagavā tuṇhībhāvena.
The Buddha consented in silence.

Atha kho ambapālī gaṇikā bhagavato adhivāsanaṁ viditvā uṭṭhāyāsanā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā pakkāmi.
Then, knowing that the Buddha had consented, Ambapālī got up from her seat, bowed, and respectfully circled the Buddha, keeping him on her right, before leaving.

Assosuṁ kho vesālikā licchavī: “bhagavā kira vesāliṁ anuppatto vesāliyaṁ viharati ambapālivane”ti.
The Licchavis of Vesālī also heard that the Buddha had arrived and was staying in Ambapālī’s mango grove.

Atha kho te licchavī bhaddāni bhaddāni yānāni yojāpetvā bhaddaṁ bhaddaṁ yānaṁ abhiruhitvā bhaddehi bhaddehi yānehi vesāliyā niyyiṁsu.
They had the finest carriages harnessed. Then they mounted a fine carriage and, along with other fine carriages, set out from Vesālī.

Tatra ekacce licchavī nīlā honti nīlavaṇṇā nīlavatthā nīlālaṅkārā, ekacce licchavī pītā honti pītavaṇṇā pītavatthā pītālaṅkārā, ekacce licchavī lohitā honti lohitavaṇṇā lohitavatthā lohitālaṅkārā, ekacce licchavī odātā honti odātavaṇṇā odātavatthā odātālaṅkārā.
Some of the Licchavis were in blue, of blue color, clad in blue, adorned with blue. And some were similarly colored in yellow, red, or white.

Atha kho ambapālī gaṇikā daharānaṁ daharānaṁ licchavīnaṁ akkhena akkhaṁ cakkena cakkaṁ yugena yugaṁ paṭivaṭṭesi.
Then Ambapālī the courtesan collided with those Licchavi youths, axle to axle, wheel to wheel, yoke to yoke.

Atha kho te licchavī ambapāliṁ gaṇikaṁ etadavocuṁ:
The Licchavis said to her,

“kiṁ, je ambapāli, daharānaṁ daharānaṁ licchavīnaṁ akkhena akkhaṁ cakkena cakkaṁ yugena yugaṁ paṭivaṭṭesī”ti?

“What the hell, Ambapālī, are you doing colliding with us axle to axle, wheel to wheel, yoke to yoke?”

“Tathā hi pana me, ayyaputtā, bhagavā nimantito svātanāya bhattaṁ saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghenā”ti.
“Well, my lords, it’s because I’ve invited the Buddha for tomorrow’s meal together with the mendicant Saṅgha.”

“Dehi, je ambapāli, etaṁ bhattaṁ satasahassenā”ti.
“Girl, give us that meal for a hundred thousand!”

“Sacepi me, ayyaputtā, vesāliṁ sāhāraṁ dassatha, evamahaṁ taṁ bhattaṁ na dassāmī”ti.
“My lords, even if you were to give me Vesālī with her fiefdoms, I still wouldn’t give that meal to you.”

Atha kho te licchavī aṅguliṁ phoṭesuṁ:
Then the Licchavis snapped their fingers, saying,

“jitamha vata bho ambakāya, jitamha vata bho ambakāyā”ti.
“We’ve been beaten by the mango-matron! We’ve been beaten by the mango-matron!”

Atha kho te licchavī yena ambapālivanaṁ tena pāyiṁsu.
Then they continued on to Ambapālī’s grove.

Addasā kho bhagavā te licchavī dūratova āgacchante.
The Buddha saw them coming off in the distance,

Disvāna bhikkhū āmantesi:
and addressed the mendicants:

“yesaṁ, bhikkhave, bhikkhūnaṁ devā tāvatiṁsā adiṭṭhapubbā, oloketha, bhikkhave, licchaviparisaṁ;
“Any of the mendicants who’ve never seen the gods of the Thirty-Three, just have a look at the assembly of Licchavis.

apaloketha, bhikkhave, licchaviparisaṁ;
See the assembly of Licchavis, upasaṁharatha, bhikkhave, licchaviparisaṁ—check them out:

tāvatiṁsasadisan”ti.
they’re just like the Thirty-Three!”

Atha kho te licchavī yāvatikā yānassa bhūmi, yānena gantvā, yānā paccorohitvā pattikāva yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu.
The Licchavis went by carriage as far as the terrain allowed, then descended and approached the Buddha on foot. They bowed to the Buddha, sat down to one side, Ekamantaṁ nisinne kho te licchavī bhagavā dhammiyā kathāya sandassesi samādapesi samuttejesi sampahaṁsesi.

and the Buddha educated, encouraged, fired up, and inspired them with a Dhamma talk.

Atha kho te licchavī bhagavatā dhammiyā kathāya sandassitā samādapitā samuttejitā sampahaṁsitā bhagavantaṁ etadavocuṁ:
Then they said to the Buddha,

“adhivāsetu no, bhante, bhagavā svātanāya bhattaṁ saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghenā”ti.
“Sir, may the Buddha together with the mendicant Saṅgha please accept tomorrow’s meal from us.”

Atha kho bhagavā te licchavī etadavoca:
Then the Buddha said to the Licchavis,

“adhivutthaṁ kho me, licchavī, svātanāya ambapāliyā gaṇikāya bhattan”ti.

“I have already accepted tomorrow’s meal from Ambapālī the courtesan.”

Atha kho te licchavī aṅguliṁ phoṭesuṁ:
Then the Licchavis snapped their fingers, saying,

“jitamha vata bho ambakāya, jitamha vata bho ambakāyā”ti.
“We’ve been beaten by the mango-matron! We’ve been beaten by the mango-matron!”

Atha kho te licchavī bhagavato bhāsitaṁ abhinanditvā anumoditvā uṭṭhāyāsanā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā pakkamiṁsu.
And then those Licchavis approved and agreed with what the Buddha said. They got up from their seat, bowed, and respectfully circled the Buddha, keeping him on their right, before leaving.

Atha kho ambapālī gaṇikā tassā rattiyā accayena sake ārāme paṇītaṁ khādanīyaṁ bhojanīyaṁ paṭiyādāpetvā bhagavato kālaṁ ārocāpesi:
And when the night had passed Ambapālī had a variety of delicious foods prepared in her own park. Then she had the Buddha informed of the time, saying,

“kālo, bhante, niṭṭhitaṁ bhattan”ti.
“Sir, it’s time. The meal is ready.”

Atha kho bhagavā pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghena yena ambapāliyā gaṇikāya nivesanaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā paññatte āsane nisīdi.
Then the Buddha robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, went to the home of Ambapālī together with the mendicant Saṅgha, where he sat on the seat spread out.

Atha kho ambapālī gaṇikā buddhappamukhaṁ bhikkhusaṅghaṁ paṇītena khādanīyena bhojanīyena sahatthā santappesi sampavāresi.
Then Ambapālī served and satisfied the mendicant Saṅgha headed by the Buddha with her own hands with a variety of delicious foods.

Atha kho ambapālī gaṇikā bhagavantaṁ bhuttāviṁ onītapattapāṇiṁ aññataraṁ nīcaṁ āsanaṁ gahetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
When the Buddha had eaten and washed his hands and bowl, Ambapālī took a low seat, sat to one side,

Ekamantaṁ nisinnā kho ambapālī gaṇikā bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
and said to the Buddha,

“imāhaṁ, bhante, ārāmaṁ buddhappamukhassa bhikkhusaṅghassa dammī”ti.
“Sir, I present this park to the mendicant Saṅgha headed by the Buddha.”

Paṭiggahesi bhagavā ārāmaṁ.
The Buddha accepted the park.

Atha kho bhagavā ambapāliṁ gaṇikaṁ dhammiyā kathāya sandassetvā samādapetvā samuttejetvā sampahaṁsetvā uṭṭhāyāsanā pakkāmi.
Then the Buddha educated, encouraged, fired up, and inspired her with a Dhamma talk, after which he got up from his seat and left.

Tatrapi sudaṁ bhagavā vesāliyaṁ viharanto ambapālivane etadeva bahulaṁ bhikkhūnaṁ dhammiṁ kathaṁ karoti:
And while staying at Vesālī, too, the Buddha often gave this Dhamma talk to the mendicants:

“iti sīlaṁ, iti samādhi, iti paññā.
“Such is ethics, such is immersion, such is wisdom.

Sīlaparibhāvito samādhi mahapphalo hoti mahānisaṁso.
When immersion is imbued with ethics it’s very fruitful and beneficial.

Samādhiparibhāvitā paññā mahapphalā hoti mahānisaṁsā.
When wisdom is imbued with immersion it’s very fruitful and beneficial.

Paññāparibhāvitaṁ cittaṁ sammadeva āsavehi vimuccati, seyyathidaṁ—
When the mind is imbued with wisdom it is rightly freed from the defilements, namely,

the defilements of sensuality, desire to be reborn, and ignorance.”

12. Veḷuvagāmavassūpagamana

12. Commencing the Rains at Beluva

Atha kho bhagavā ambapālivane yathābhirantaṁ viharitvā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
When the Buddha had stayed in Ambapālī’s grove as long as he wished, he addressed Venerable Ānanda, “āyāmānanda, yena veḷuvagāmako tenupasaṅkamissāmā”ti.

“Come, Ānanda, let’s go to the little village of Beluva.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Ānanda replied.

Atha kho bhagavā mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ yena veḷuvagāmako tadavasari.
Then the Buddha together with a large Saṅgha of mendicants arrived at the little village of Beluva, Tatra sudaṁ bhagavā veḷuvagāmake viharati.

and stayed there.

Tatra kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
There the Buddha addressed the mendicants:

“etha tumhe, bhikkhave, samantā vesāliṁ yathāmittaṁ yathāsandiṭṭhaṁ yathāsambhattaṁ vassaṁ upetha.
“Mendicants, please enter the rainy season residence with whatever friends or acquaintances you have around Vesālī.

Ahaṁ pana idheva veḷuvagāmake vassaṁ upagacchāmī”ti.
I’ll commence the rainy season residence right here in the little village of Beluva.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho te bhikkhū bhagavato paṭissutvā samantā vesāliṁ yathāmittaṁ yathāsandiṭṭhaṁ yathāsambhattaṁ vassaṁ upagacchiṁsu.
“Yes, sir,” those mendicants replied. They did as the Buddha said, Bhagavā pana tattheva veḷuvagāmake vassaṁ upagacchi.

while the Buddha commenced the rainy season residence right there in the little village of Beluva.

Atha kho bhagavato vassūpagatassa kharo ābādho uppajji, bāḷhā vedanā vattanti māraṇantikā.
After the Buddha had commenced the rainy season residence, he fell severely ill, struck by dreadful pains, close to death.

Tā sudaṁ bhagavā sato sampajāno adhivāsesi avihaññamāno.
But he endured with mindfulness and situational awareness, without worrying.

Atha kho bhagavato etadahosi:
Then it occurred to the Buddha,

“na kho metaṁ patirūpaṁ, yvāhaṁ anāmantetvā upaṭṭhāke anapaloketvā bhikkhusaṅghaṁ parinibbāyeyyaṁ.

“It would not be appropriate for me to become fully extinguished before informing my attendants and taking leave of the mendicant Saṅgha.

Yannūnāhaṁ imaṁ ābādhaṁ vīriyena paṭipaṇāmetvā jīvitasaṅkhāraṁ adhiṭṭhāya vihareyyan”ti.
Why don’t I forcefully suppress this illness, stabilize the life force, and live on?”

Atha kho bhagavā taṁ ābādhaṁ vīriyena paṭipaṇāmetvā jīvitasaṅkhāraṁ adhiṭṭhāya vihāsi.
So that is what he did.

Atha kho bhagavato so ābādho paṭippassambhi.
Then the Buddha’s illness died down.

Atha kho bhagavā gilānā vuṭṭhito aciravuṭṭhito gelaññā vihārā nikkhamma vihārapacchāyāyaṁ paññatte āsane nisīdi.
Soon after the Buddha had recovered from that sickness, he came out from his dwelling and sat in the shade of the porch on the seat spread out.

Atha kho āyasmā ānando yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Venerable Ānanda went up to the Buddha, bowed, sat down to one side, and said to him, “diṭṭho me, bhante, bhagavato phāsu; diṭṭhaṁ me, bhante, bhagavato khamanīyaṁ, api ca me, bhante, madhurakajāto viya kāyo.

“Sir, it’s fantastic that the Buddha is comfortable and well.

Disāpi me na pakkhāyanti;
Because when the Buddha was sick, my body felt like it was drugged. I was disorientated, and the teachings weren’t clear to me.

dhammāpi maṁ na paṭibhanti bhagavato gelaññena, api ca me, bhante, ahosi kācideva assāsamattā:
Still, at least I was consoled by the thought that ‘na tāva bhagavā parinibbāyissati, na yāva bhagavā bhikkhusaṅghaṁ ārabbha kiñcideva udāharatī’”ti.

the Buddha won’t become fully extinguished without making some statement regarding the Saṅgha of mendicants.”

“Kiṁ panānanda, bhikkhusaṅgho mayi paccāsīsati?
“But what could the mendicant Saṅgha expect from me, Ānanda?

Desito, ānanda, mayā dhammo anantaraṁ abāhiraṁ karitvā.
I’ve taught the Dhamma without making any distinction between secret and public teachings.

Natthānanda, tathāgatassa dhammesu ācariyamuṭṭhi.
The Realized One doesn’t have the closed fist of a teacher when it comes to the teachings.

Yassa nūna, ānanda, evamassa:
If there’s anyone who thinks:

‘ahaṁ bhikkhusaṅghaṁ pariharissāmī’ti vā ‘mamuddesiko bhikkhusaṅgho’ti vā, so nūna, ānanda, bhikkhusaṅghaṁ ārabbha kiñcideva udāhareyya.
‘I’ll take charge of the Saṅgha of mendicants,’ or ‘the Saṅgha of mendicants is meant for me,’ let them make a statement regarding the Saṅgha.

Tathāgatassa kho, ānanda, na evaṁ hoti:
But the Realized One doesn’t think like this,

‘ahaṁ bhikkhusaṅghaṁ pariharissāmī’ti vā ‘mamuddesiko bhikkhusaṅgho’ti vā.

Sakiṁ, ānanda, tathāgato bhikkhusaṅghaṁ ārabbha kiñcideva udāharissati.
so why should he make some statement regarding the Saṅgha?

Ahaṁ kho panānanda, etarahi jiṇṇo vuddho mahallako addhagato vayo anuppatto.
I’m now old, elderly and senior. I’m advanced in years and have reached the final stage of life.

Āsītiko me vayo vattati.
I’m currently eighty years old.

Seyyathāpi, ānanda, jajjarasakaṭaṁ veṭhamissakena yāpeti;
Just as a decrepit cart keeps going by relying on straps, evameva kho, ānanda, veṭhamissakena maññe tathāgatassa kāyo yāpeti.

in the same way, the Realized One’s body keeps going by relying on straps, or so you’d think.

Yasmiṁ, ānanda, samaye tathāgato sabbanimittānaṁ amanasikārā ekaccānaṁ vedanānaṁ nirodhā animittaṁ cetosamādhiṁ upasampajja viharati, phāsutaro, ānanda, tasmiṁ samaye tathāgatassa kāyo hoti.
Sometimes the Realized One, not focusing on any signs, and with the cessation of certain feelings, enters and remains in the signless immersion of the heart. Only then does the Realized One’s body become more comfortable.

Tasmātihānanda, attadīpā viharatha attasaraṇā anaññasaraṇā, dhammadīpā dhammasaraṇā anaññasaraṇā.
So Ānanda, be your own island, your own refuge, with no other refuge. Let the teaching be your island and your refuge, with no other refuge.

Kathañcānanda, bhikkhu attadīpo viharati attasaraṇo anaññasaraṇo, dhammadīpo dhammasaraṇo anaññasaraṇo?
And how does a mendicant do this?

Idhānanda, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati atāpī sampajāno satimā, vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ.
It’s when a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body —keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

Vedanāsu …pe…
They meditate observing an aspect of feelings …

citte …pe…
mind …

dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā, vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ.
principles—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

Evaṁ kho, ānanda, bhikkhu attadīpo viharati attasaraṇo anaññasaraṇo, dhammadīpo dhammasaraṇo anaññasaraṇo.
That's how a mendicant is their own island, their own refuge, with no other refuge. That's how the teaching is their island and their refuge, with no other refuge.

Ye hi keci, ānanda, etarahi vā mama vā accayena attadīpā viharissanti attasaraṇā anaññasaraṇā, dhammadīpā dhammasaraṇā anaññasaraṇā, tamatagge me te, ānanda, bhikkhū bhavissanti ye keci sikkhākāmā"ti.
Whether now or after I have passed, any who shall live as their own island, their own refuge, with no other refuge; with the teaching as their island and their refuge, with no other refuge—those mendicants of mine who want to train shall be among the best of the best."

Dutiyabhāṇavāro.

13. Nimittobhāsakathā

13. An Obvious Hint

Atha kho bhagavā pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya vesāliṁ piṇḍāya pāvisi.
Then the Buddha robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, entered Vesālī for alms.

Vesāliyaṁ piṇḍāya caritvā pacchābhattaṁ piṇḍapātapaṭikkanto āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then, after the meal, on his return from alms-round, he addressed Venerable Ānanda:

“gaṇhāhi, ānanda, nisīdanaṁ, “Ānanda, get your sitting cloth.

yena cāpālaṁ cetiyaṁ tenupasaṅkamissāma divā vihārāyā”ti.
Let’s go to the Cāpāla shrine for the day’s meditation.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paṭissutvā nisīdanaṁ ādāya bhagavantaṁ piṭṭhito piṭṭhito anubandhi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Ānanda. Taking his sitting cloth he followed behind the Buddha.

Atha kho bhagavā yena cāpālaṁ cetiyaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā paññatte āsane nisīdi.
Then the Buddha went up to the Cāpāla shrine, where he sat on the seat spread out.

Āyasmāpi kho ānando bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
Ānanda bowed to the Buddha and sat down to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said to him:

“ramaṇīyā, ānanda, vesālī, ramaṇīyaṁ udenaṁ cetiyaṁ, ramaṇīyaṁ gotamakaṁ cetiyaṁ, ramaṇīyaṁ sattambaṁ cetiyaṁ, ramaṇīyaṁ bahuputtaṁ cetiyaṁ, ramaṇīyaṁ sārandadaṁ cetiyaṁ, ramaṇīyaṁ cāpālaṁ cetiyaṁ.
“Ānanda, Vesālī is lovely. And the Udena, Gotamaka, Sattamba, Bahuputta, Sārandada, and Cāpāla shrines are all lovely.

Yassa kassaci, ānanda, cattāro iddhipādā bhāvitā bahulīkatā yānīkatā vatthukatā anuṭṭhitā paricitā susamāraddhā, so ākaṅkhamāno kappaṁ vā tiṭṭheyya kappāvasesaṁ vā.
Whoever has developed and cultivated the four bases of psychic power—made them a vehicle and a basis, kept them up, consolidated them, and properly implemented them—may, if they wish, live on for the eon or what's left of the eon.

Tathāgatassa kho, ānanda, cattāro iddhipādā bhāvitā bahulīkatā yānīkatā vatthukatā anuṭṭhitā paricitā susamāraddhā, so ākaṅkhamāno, ānanda, tathāgato kappaṁ vā tiṭṭheyya kappāvasesaṁ vā"ti.
The Realized One has developed and cultivated the four bases of psychic power, made them a vehicle and a basis, kept them up, consolidated them, and properly implemented them. If he wished, the Realized One could live on for the eon or what's left of the eon."

Evampi kho āyasmā ānando bhagavatā oḷārike nimitte kayiramāne oḷārike obhāse kayiramāne nāsakkhi paṭivijjhituṁ;
But Ānanda didn't get it, even though the Buddha dropped such an obvious hint, such a clear sign.

na bhagavantaṁ yāci:
He didn't beg the Buddha:

"tiṭṭhatu, bhante, bhagavā kappaṁ, tiṭṭhatu sugato kappaṁ bahujanahitāya bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānan"ti, yathā taṁ mārena pariyuṭṭhitacitto.
"Sir, may the Blessed One please remain for the eon! May the Holy One please remain for the eon! That would be for the welfare and happiness of the people, for the benefit, welfare, and happiness of gods and humans." For his mind was as if possessed by Māra.

Dutiyampi kho bhagavā …pe…
For a second time …

tatiyampi kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
And for a third time, the Buddha said to Ānanda:

“ramaṇīyā, ānanda, vesālī, ramaṇīyaṁ udenaṁ cetiyaṁ, ramaṇīyaṁ gotamakaṁ cetiyaṁ, ramaṇīyaṁ sattambaṁ cetiyaṁ, ramaṇīyaṁ bahuputtaṁ cetiyaṁ, ramaṇīyaṁ sārandadaṁ cetiyaṁ, ramaṇīyaṁ cāpālaṁ cetiyaṁ.
“Ānanda, Vesālī is lovely. And the Udena, Gotamaka, Sattamba, Bahuputta, Sārandada, and Cāpāla shrines are all lovely.

The Realized One has developed and cultivated the four bases of psychic power, made them a vehicle and a basis, kept them up, consolidated them, and properly implemented them. If he wished, the Realized One could live on for the eon, or what’s left of it.”

Evampi kho āyasmā ānando bhagavatā oḷārike nimitte kayiramāne oḷārike obhāse kayiramāne nāsakkhi paṭivijjhituṁ;
But Ānanda didn’t get it, even though the Buddha dropped such an obvious hint, such a clear sign.

na bhagavantaṁ yāci:
He didn’t beg the Buddha:

“tiṭṭhatu, bhante, bhagavā kappaṁ, tiṭṭhatu sugato kappaṁ bahujanahitāya bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya

“Sir, may the Blessed One please remain for the eon! May the Holy One please remain for the eon! That would be for the welfare and happiness of the people, for the benefit, welfare, and happiness of gods and humans.” For his mind was as if possessed by Māra.

Atha kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha got up and said to Venerable Ānanda, “gaccha tvaṁ, ānanda,

“Go now, Ānanda,

yassadāni kālaṁ maññasī”ti.
at your convenience.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paṭissutvā uṭṭhāyāsanā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā avidūre aññatarasmiṁ rukkhamūle nisīdi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Ānanda. He rose from his seat, bowed, and respectfully circled the Buddha, keeping him on his right, before sitting at the root of a tree close by.

14. Mārayācanakathā

14. The Appeal of Māra

Atha kho māro pāpimā acirapakkante āyasmante ānande yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi. Ekamantaṁ ṭhito kho māro pāpimā bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
And then, not long after Ānanda had left, Māra the Wicked went up to the Buddha, stood to one side, and said to him:

“parinibbātu dāni, bhante, bhagavā, parinibbātu sugato, parinibbānakālo dāni, bhante, bhagavato.

“Sir, may the Blessed One now become fully extinguished! May the Holy One now become fully extinguished! Now is the time for the Buddha to become fully extinguished.

15. Āyusaṅkhāraossajjana

15. Surrendering the Life Force

Atha kho bhagavā cāpāle cetiye sato sampajāno āyusaṅkhāraṁ ossaji.
So at the Cāpāla tree shrine the Buddha, mindful and aware, surrendered the life force.

Ossaṭṭhe ca bhagavatā āyusaṅkhāre mahābhūmicālo ahosi bhiṁsanako salomahaṁso, devadundubhiyo ca phaliṁsu.
When he did so there was a great earthquake, awe-inspiring and hair-raising, and thunder cracked the sky.

Atha kho bhagavā etamatthaṁ viditvā tāyaṁ velāyaṁ imaṁ udānaṁ udānesi:
Then, knowing the meaning of this, on that occasion the Buddha expressed this heartfelt sentiment:

“Tulamatulañca sambhavaṁ,
“Weighing up the incomparable against an extension of life,

Bhavasaṅkhāramavassaji muni;
the sage surrendered the life force.

Ajjhattarato samāhito,
Happy inside, serene,

Abhindi kavacamivattasambhavan”ti.
he burst out of this self-made chain like a suit of armor.”

16. Mahābhūmicālahetu

16. The Causes of Earthquakes

Atha kho āyasmato ānandassa etadahosi:
Then Venerable Ānanda thought,

“acchariyaṁ vata bho, abbhutaṁ vata bho, mahā vatāyaṁ bhūmicālo;
“How incredible, how amazing! That was a really big earthquake!

sumahā vatāyaṁ bhūmicālo bhiṁsanako salomahaṁso; devadundubhiyo ca phaliṁsu.
That was really a very big earthquake; awe-inspiring and hair-raising, and thunder cracked the sky!

Ko nu kho hetu ko paccayo mahato bhūmicālassa pātubhāvāyā”ti?
What’s the cause, what’s the reason for a great earthquake?”

Atha kho āyasmā ānando yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami,
Then Venerable Ānanda went up to the Buddha, upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi, bowed, sat down to one side, ekamantaṁ nisinno kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:

and said to him,

“acchariyaṁ, bhante, abbhutaṁ, bhante.

“How incredible, sir, how amazing!

Mahā vatāyaṁ, bhante, bhūmicālo;
That was a really big earthquake!

sumahā vatāyaṁ, bhante, bhūmicālo bhiṁsanako salomahaṁso; devadundubhiyo ca phaliṁsu.
That was really a very big earthquake; awe-inspiring and hair-raising, and thunder cracked the sky!

Ko nu kho, bhante, hetu ko paccayo mahato bhūmicālassa pātubhāvāyā”ti?
What’s the cause, what’s the reason for a great earthquake?”

“Aṭṭha kho ime, ānanda, hetū, aṭṭha paccayā mahato bhūmicālassa pātubhāvāya.
“Ānanda, there are these eight causes and reasons for a great earthquake.

Katame aṭṭha?
What eight?

Ayaṁ, ānanda, mahāpathavī udake patiṭṭhitā, udakaṁ vāte patiṭṭhitaṁ, vāto ākāsaṭṭho. Hoti kho so, ānanda, samayo, yaṁ mahāvātā vāyanti. Mahāvātā vāyantā udakaṁ kampenti. Udakaṁ kampitaṁ pathaviṁ kampeti.
This great earth is grounded on water, the water is grounded on air, and the air stands in space. At a time when a great wind blows, it stirs the water, and the water stirs the earth.

Ayaṁ paṭhamo hetu paṭhamo paccayo mahato bhūmicālassa pātubhāvāya.
This is the first cause and reason for a great earthquake.

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, samaṇo vā hoti brāhmaṇo vā iddhimā cetovasippatto, devo vā mahiddhiko mahānubhāvo, tassa parittā pathavīsaññā bhāvitā hoti, appamāṇā āposaññā. So imaṁ pathaviṁ kampeti saṅkampeti sampakampeti sampavedheti.

Furthermore, there is an ascetic or brahmin with psychic power who has achieved mastery of the mind, or a god who is mighty and powerful. They’ve developed a limited perception of earth and a limitless perception of water. They make the earth shake and rock and tremble.

Ayaṁ dutiyo hetu dutiyo paccayo mahato bhūmicālassa pātubhāvāya.
This is the second cause and reason for a great earthquake.

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, yadā bodhisatto tusitakāyā cavitvā sato sampajāno mātukucchiṁ okkamati, tadāyaṁ pathavī kampati saṅkampati sampakampati sampavedhati.
Furthermore, when the being intent on awakening passes away from the host of Joyful Gods, he’s conceived in his mother’s belly, mindful and aware. Then the earth shakes and rocks and trembles.

Ayaṁ tatiyo hetu tatiyo paccayo mahato bhūmicālassa pātubhāvāya.
This is the third cause and reason for a great earthquake.

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, yadā bodhisatto sato sampajāno mātukucchismā nikkhamati, tadāyaṁ pathavī kampati saṅkampati sampakampati sampavedhati.
Furthermore, when the being intent on awakening comes out of his mother’s belly mindful and aware, the earth shakes and rocks and trembles.

Ayaṁ catuttho hetu catuttho paccayo mahato bhūmicālassa pātubhāvāya.
This is the fourth cause and reason for a great earthquake.

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, yadā tathāgato anuttaraṁ sammāsambodhiṁ abhisambujjhati, tadāyaṁ pathavī kampati saṅkampati sampakampati sampavedhati.

Furthermore, when the Realized One realizes the supreme perfect awakening, the earth shakes and rocks and trembles.

Ayaṁ pañcamo hetu pañcamo paccayo mahato bhūmicālassa pātubhāvāya.
This is the fifth cause and reason for a great earthquake.

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, yadā tathāgato anuttaraṁ dhammacakkaṁ pavatteti, tadāyaṁ pathavī kampati saṅkampati sampakampati sampavedhati.
Furthermore, when the Realized One rolls forth the supreme Wheel of Dhamma, the earth shakes and rocks and trembles.

Ayaṁ chaṭṭho hetu chaṭṭho paccayo mahato bhūmicālassa pātubhāvāya.
This is the sixth cause and reason for a great earthquake.

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, yadā tathāgato sato sampajāno āyusaṅkhāraṁ ossajjati, tadāyaṁ pathavī kampati saṅkampati sampakampati sampavedhati.
Furthermore, when the Realized One, mindful and aware, surrenders the life force, the earth shakes and rocks and trembles.

Ayaṁ sattamo hetu sattamo paccayo mahato bhūmicālassa pātubhāvāya.
This is the seventh cause and reason for a great earthquake.

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, yadā tathāgato anupādisesāya nibbānadhātuyā parinibbāyati, tadāyaṁ pathavī kampati saṅkampati sampakampati sampavedhati.
Furthermore, when the Realized One becomes fully extinguished through the natural principle of extinguishment, without anything left over, the earth shakes and rocks and trembles.

Ayaṁ aṭṭhamo hetu aṭṭhamo paccayo mahato bhūmicālassa pātubhāvāya.
This is the eighth cause and reason for a great earthquake.

Ime kho, ānanda, aṭṭha hetū, aṭṭha paccayā mahato bhūmicālassa pātubhāvāya.
These are the eight causes and reasons for a great earthquake.

17. Aṭṭhaparisā

17. Eight Assemblies

Aṭṭha kho imā, ānanda, parisā.
There are, Ānanda, these eight assemblies.

Katamā aṭṭha?
What eight?

Khattiyaparisā, brāhmaṇaparisā, gahapatiparisā, samaṇaparisā, cātumahārājikaparisā, tāvatiṁsaparisā, māraparisā, brahmaparisā.
The assemblies of aristocrats, brahmins, householders, and ascetics. An assembly of the gods of the Four Great Kings. An assembly of the gods of the Thirty-Three. An assembly of Māras. An assembly of Brahmās.

Abhijānāmi kho panāhaṁ, ānanda, anekasataṁ khattiyaparisaṁ upasaṅkamitā.
I recall having approached an assembly of hundreds of aristocrats.

Tatrapi mayā sannisinnapubbañceva sallapitapubbañca sākacchā ca samāpajjitapubbā.
There I used to sit with them, converse, and engage in discussion.

Tattha yādisako tesaṁ vaṇṇo hoti, tādisako mayhaṁ vaṇṇo hoti. Yādisako tesaṁ saro hoti, tādisako mayhaṁ saro hoti.
And my appearance and voice became just like theirs.

Dhammiyā kathāya sandassemi samādapemi samuttejemi sampahaṁsemi.
I educated, encouraged, fired up, and inspired them with a Dhamma talk.

Bhāsamānañca maṁ na jānanti:
But when I spoke they didn’t know:

‘ko nu kho ayaṁ bhāsati devo vā manusso vā’ti?
‘Who is this that speaks? Is it a god or a human?’

Dhammiyā kathāya sandassetvā samādapetvā samuttejetvā sampahaṁsetvā antaradhāyāmi.
And when my Dhamma talk was finished I vanished.

Antarahitañca maṁ na jānanti:
But when I vanished they didn’t know:

‘ko nu kho ayaṁ antarahito devo vā manusso vā’ti?
‘Who was that who vanished? Was it a god or a human?’

Imā kho, ānanda, aṭṭha parisā.
These are the eight assemblies.

18. Aṭṭhaabhibhāyatana

18. Eight Dimensions of Mastery

Aṭṭha kho imāni, ānanda, abhibhāyatanāni.
Ānanda, there are these eight dimensions of mastery.

Katamāni aṭṭha?
What eight?

Ajjhattaṁ rūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati parittāni suvaṇṇadubbaṇṇāni.
Perceiving form internally, someone sees visions externally, limited, both pretty and ugly.

‘Tāni abhibhuyya jānāmi passāmī’ti evaṁsaññī hoti.
Mastering them, they perceive: ‘I know and see.’

Idaṁ paṭhamaṁ abhibhāyatanaṁ.
This is the first dimension of mastery.

Ajjhattaṁ rūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati appamāṇāni suvaṇṇadubbaṇṇāni.
Perceiving form internally, someone sees visions externally, limitless, both pretty and ugly.

‘Tāni abhibhuyya jānāmi passāmī’ti evaṁsaññī hoti.
Mastering them, they perceive: ‘I know and see.’

Idaṁ dutiyaṁ abhibhāyatanaṁ.
This is the second dimension of mastery.

Ajjhattaṁ arūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati parittāni suvaṇṇadubbaṇṇāni.
Not perceiving form internally, someone sees visions externally, limited, both pretty and ugly.

‘Tāni abhibhuyya jānāmi passāmī’ti evaṁsaññī hoti.
Mastering them, they perceive: ‘I know and see.’

Idaṁ tatiyaṁ abhibhāyatanaṁ.
This is the third dimension of mastery.

Ajjhattaṁ arūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati appamāṇāni suvaṇṇadubbaṇṇāni.
Not perceiving form internally, someone sees visions externally, limitless, both pretty and ugly.

‘Tāni abhibhuyya jānāmi passāmī’ti evaṁsaññī hoti.

Mastering them, they perceive: ‘I know and see.’

Idaṁ catutthaṁ abhibhāyatanaṁ.
This is the fourth dimension of mastery.

Ajjhattaṁ arūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati nīlāni nīlavaṇṇāni nīlanidassanāni nīlanibhāsāni.
Not perceiving form internally, someone sees visions externally that are blue, with blue color, blue hue, and blue tint.

Seyyathāpi nāma umāpupphaṁ nīlaṁ nīlavaṇṇaṁ nīlanidassanaṁ nīlanibhāsaṁ. Seyyathā vā pana taṁ vatthaṁ bārāṇaseyyakaṁ ubhatobhāgavimaṭṭhaṁ nīlaṁ nīlavaṇṇaṁ nīlanidassanaṁ nīlanibhāsaṁ.
They’re like a flax flower that’s blue, with blue color, blue hue, and blue tint. Or a cloth from Bāraṇasī that’s smoothed on both sides, blue, with blue color, blue hue, and blue tint.

Evameva ajjhattaṁ arūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati nīlāni nīlavaṇṇāni nīlanidassanāni nīlanibhāsāni.
In the same way, not perceiving form internally, someone sees visions externally, blue, with blue color, blue hue, and blue tint.

‘Tāni abhibhuyya jānāmi passāmī’ti evaṁsaññī hoti.
Mastering them, they perceive: ‘I know and see.’

Idaṁ pañcamaṁ abhibhāyatanaṁ.
This is the fifth dimension of mastery.

Ajjhattaṁ arūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati pītāni pītavaṇṇāni pītanidassanāni pītanibhāsāni.
Not perceiving form internally, someone sees visions externally that are yellow, with yellow color, yellow hue, and yellow tint.

Seyyathāpi nāma kaṇikārapupphaṁ pītaṁ pītavaṇṇaṁ pītanidassanaṁ pītanibhāsaṁ. Seyyathā vā pana taṁ vatthaṁ bārāṇaseyyakaṁ ubhatobhāgavimaṭṭhaṁ pītaṁ pītavaṇṇaṁ pītanidassanaṁ pītanibhāsaṁ.

They’re like a champak flower that’s yellow, with yellow color, yellow hue, and yellow tint. Or a cloth from Bāraṇasī that’s smoothed on both sides, yellow, with yellow color, yellow hue, and yellow tint.

Evameva ajjhattaṁ arūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati pītāni pītavaṇṇāni pītanidassanāni pītanibhāsāni.
In the same way, not perceiving form internally, someone sees visions externally that are yellow, with yellow color, yellow hue, and yellow tint.

‘Tāni abhibhuyya jānāmi passāmī’ti evaṁsaññī hoti.
Mastering them, they perceive: ‘I know and see.’

Idaṁ chaṭṭhaṁ abhibhāyatanaṁ.
This is the sixth dimension of mastery.

Ajjhattaṁ arūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati lohitakāni lohitakavaṇṇāni lohitakanidassanāni lohitakanibhāsāni.
Not perceiving form internally, someone sees visions externally that are red, with red color, red hue, and red tint.

Seyyathāpi nāma bandhujīvakapupphaṁ lohitakaṁ lohitakavaṇṇaṁ lohitakanidassanaṁ lohitakanibhāsaṁ. Seyyathā vā pana taṁ vatthaṁ bārāṇaseyyakaṁ ubhatobhāgavimaṭṭhaṁ lohitakaṁ lohitakavaṇṇaṁ lohitakanidassanaṁ lohitakanibhāsaṁ.
They’re like a scarlet mallow flower that’s red, with red color, red hue, and red tint. Or a cloth from Bāraṇasī that’s smoothed on both sides, red, with red color, red hue, and red tint.

Evameva ajjhattaṁ arūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati lohitakāni lohitakavaṇṇāni lohitakanidassanāni lohitakanibhāsāni.
In the same way, not perceiving form internally, someone sees visions externally that are red, with red color, red hue, and red tint.

‘Tāni abhibhuyya jānāmi passāmī’ti evaṁsaññī hoti.
Mastering them, they perceive: ‘I know and see.’

Idaṁ sattamaṁ abhibhāyatanaṁ.
This is the seventh dimension of mastery.

Ajjhattaṁ arūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati odātāni odātavaṇṇāni odātanidassanāni odātanibhāsāni.
Not perceiving form internally, someone sees visions externally that are white, with white color, white hue, and white tint.

Seyyathāpi nāma osadhitārakā odātā odātavaṇṇā odātanidassanā odātanibhāsā. Seyyathā vā pana taṁ vatthaṁ bārāṇaseyyakaṁ ubhatobhāgavimaṭṭhaṁ odātaṁ odātavaṇṇaṁ odātanidassanaṁ odātanibhāsaṁ.
They're like the morning star that's white, with white color, white hue, and white tint. Or a cloth from Bāraṇasī that's smoothed on both sides, white, with white color, white hue, and white tint.

Evameva ajjhattaṁ arūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati odātāni odātavaṇṇāni odātanidassanāni odātanibhāsāni.
In the same way, not perceiving form internally, someone sees visions externally that are white, with white color, white hue, and white tint.

'Tāni abhibhuyya jānāmi passāmī'ti evaṁsaññī hoti.
Mastering them, they perceive: 'I know and see.'

Idaṁ aṭṭhamaṁ abhibhāyatanaṁ.
This is the eighth dimension of mastery.

Imāni kho, ānanda, aṭṭha abhibhāyatanāni.
These are the eight dimensions of mastery.

19. Aṭṭhavimokkha

19. The Eight Liberations

Aṭṭha kho ime, ānanda, vimokkhā.
Ānanda, there are these eight liberations.

Katame aṭṭha?
What eight?

Rūpī rūpāni passati,
Having physical form, they see visions.

ayaṁ paṭhamo vimokkho.
This is the first liberation.

Ajjhattaṁ arūpasaññī bahiddhā rūpāni passati,
Not perceiving form internally, they see visions externally.

ayaṁ dutiyo vimokkho.
This is the second liberation.

Subhanteva adhimutto hoti,
They’re focused only on beauty.

ayaṁ tatiyo vimokkho.
This is the third liberation.

Sabbaso rūpasaññānaṁ samatikkamā paṭighasaññānaṁ atthaṅgamā nānattasaññānaṁ amanasikārā ‘ananto ākāso’ti ākāsānañcāyatanaṁ upasampajja viharati,
Going totally beyond perceptions of form, with the ending of perceptions of impingement, not focusing on perceptions of diversity, aware that ‘space is infinite’, they enter and remain in the dimension of infinite space.

ayaṁ catuttho vimokkho.
This is the fourth liberation.

Sabbaso ākāsānañcāyatanaṁ samatikkamma ‘anantaṁ viññāṇan’ti viññāṇañcāyatanaṁ upasampajja viharati,
Going totally beyond the dimension of infinite space, aware that ‘consciousness is infinite’, they enter and remain in the dimension of infinite consciousness.

ayaṁ pañcamo vimokkho.
This is the fifth liberation.

Sabbaso viññāṇañcāyatanaṁ samatikkamma ‘natthi kiñcī’ti ākiñcaññāyatanaṁ upasampajja viharati,
Going totally beyond the dimension of infinite consciousness, aware that ‘there is nothing at all’, they enter and remain in the dimension of nothingness.

ayaṁ chaṭṭho vimokkho.
This is the sixth liberation.

Sabbaso ākiñcaññāyatanaṁ samatikkamma nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṁ upasampajja viharati,
Going totally beyond the dimension of nothingness, they enter and remain in the dimension of neither perception nor non-perception.

ayaṁ sattamo vimokkho.
This is the seventh liberation.

Sabbaso nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṁ samatikkamma saññāvedayitanirodhaṁ upasampajja viharati,
Going totally beyond the dimension of neither perception nor non-perception, they enter and remain in the cessation of perception and feeling.

ayaṁ aṭṭhamo vimokkho.
This is the eighth liberation.

Ime kho, ānanda, aṭṭha vimokkhā.
These are the eight liberations.

(…)

Ekamidāhaṁ, ānanda, samayaṁ uruvelāyaṁ viharāmi najjā nerañjarāya tīre ajapālanigrodhe paṭhamābhisambuddho.
Ānanda, this one time, when I was first awakened, I was staying near Uruvelā at the goatherd’s banyan tree on the bank of the Nerañjarā River.

Atha kho, ānanda, māro pāpimā yenāhaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi. Ekamantaṁ ṭhito kho, ānanda, māro pāpimā maṁ etadavoca:
Then Māra the wicked approached me, stood to one side, and said:

‘parinibbātu dāni, bhante, bhagavā; parinibbātu sugato, parinibbānakālo dāni, bhante, bhagavato’ti.
‘Sir, may the Blessed One now become fully extinguished! May the Holy One now become fully extinguished! Now is the time for the Buddha to become fully extinguished.’

Evaṁ vutte, ahaṁ, ānanda, māraṁ pāpimantaṁ etadavocaṁ:
When he had spoken, I said to Māra:

‘Na tāvāhaṁ, pāpima, parinibbāyissāmi, yāva me bhikkhū na sāvakā bhavissanti viyattā vinītā visāradā bahussutā dhammadharā dhammānudhammappaṭipannā sāmīcippaṭipannā anudhammacārino, sakaṁ ācariyakaṁ uggahetvā ācikkhissanti desessanti paññapessanti paṭṭhapessanti vivarissanti vibhajissanti uttānīkarissanti, uppannaṁ parappavādaṁ sahadhammena suniggahitaṁ niggahetvā sappāṭihāriyaṁ dhammaṁ desessanti.
‘Wicked One, I will not become fully extinguished until I have monk disciples …

Na tāvāhaṁ, pāpima, parinibbāyissāmi, yāva me bhikkhuniyo na sāvikā bhavissanti viyattā vinītā visāradā bahussutā dhammadharā dhammānudhammappaṭipannā sāmīcippaṭipannā anudhammacāriniyo, sakaṁ ācariyakaṁ uggahetvā ācikkhissanti desessanti paññapessanti paṭṭhapessanti vivarissanti vibhajissanti uttānīkarissanti, uppannaṁ parappavādaṁ sahadhammena suniggahitaṁ niggahetvā sappāṭihāriyaṁ dhammaṁ desessanti.

nun disciples …

Na tāvāhaṁ, pāpima, parinibbāyissāmi, yāva me upāsakā na sāvakā bhavissanti viyattā vinītā visāradā bahussutā dhammadharā dhammānudhammappaṭipannā sāmīcippaṭipannā anudhammacārino, sakaṁ ācariyakaṁ uggahetvā ācikkhissanti desessanti paññapessanti paṭṭhapessanti vivarissanti vibhajissanti uttānīkarissanti, uppannaṁ parappavādaṁ sahadhammena suniggahitaṁ niggahetvā sappāṭihāriyaṁ dhammaṁ desessanti.
layman disciples …

Na tāvāhaṁ, pāpima, parinibbāyissāmi, yāva me upāsikā na sāvikā bhavissanti viyattā vinītā visāradā bahussutā dhammadharā dhammānudhammappaṭipannā sāmīcippaṭipannā anudhammacāriniyo, sakaṁ ācariyakaṁ uggahetvā ācikkhissanti desessanti paññapessanti paṭṭhapessanti vivarissanti vibhajissanti uttānīkarissanti, uppannaṁ parappavādaṁ sahadhammena suniggahitaṁ niggahetvā sappāṭihāriyaṁ dhammaṁ desessanti.
laywoman disciples who are competent, educated, assured, learned.

Na tāvāhaṁ, pāpima, parinibbāyissāmi, yāva me idaṁ brahmacariyaṁ na iddhañceva bhavissati phītañca vitthārikaṁ bāhujaññaṁ puthubhūtaṁ yāva devamanussehi suppakāsitan’ti.
Not until my spiritual life is successful and prosperous, extensive, popular, widespread, and well proclaimed wherever there are gods and humans.’

Idāneva kho, ānanda, ajja cāpāle cetiye māro pāpimā yenāhaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi. Ekamantaṁ ṭhito kho, ānanda, māro pāpimā maṁ etadavoca:

Today, just now at the Cāpāla shrine Māra the Wicked approached me once more with the same request, reminding me of my former statement, and saying that those conditions had been fulfilled.

‘parinibbātu dāni, bhante, bhagavā, parinibbātu sugato, parinibbānakālo dāni, bhante, bhagavato.

Bhāsitā kho panesā, bhante, bhagavatā vācā:

“na tāvāhaṁ, pāpima, parinibbāyissāmi, yāva me bhikkhū na sāvakā bhavissanti …pe…

yāva me bhikkhuniyo na sāvikā bhavissanti …pe…

yāva me upāsakā na sāvakā bhavissanti …pe…

yāva me upāsikā na sāvikā bhavissanti …pe…

yāva me idaṁ brahmacariyaṁ na iddhañceva bhavissati phītañca vitthārikaṁ bāhujaññaṁ puthubhūtaṁ, yāva devamanussehi suppakāsitan”ti.

Etarahi kho pana, bhante, bhagavato brahmacariyaṁ iddhañceva phītañca vitthārikaṁ bāhujaññaṁ puthubhūtaṁ, yāva devamanussehi suppakāsitaṁ.

Parinibbātu dāni, bhante, bhagavā, parinibbātu sugato, parinibbānakālo dāni, bhante, bhagavato’ti.

Evaṁ vutte, ahaṁ, ānanda, māraṁ pāpimantaṁ etadavocaṁ:
When he had spoken, I said to Māra:

‘appossukko tvaṁ, pāpima, hohi, na ciraṁ tathāgatassa parinibbānaṁ bhavissati.
‘Relax, Wicked One. The final extinguishment of the Realized One will be soon.

Ito tiṇṇaṁ māsānaṁ accayena tathāgato parinibbāyissatī’ti.
Three months from now the Realized One will finally be extinguished.’

Idāneva kho, ānanda, ajja cāpāle cetiye tathāgatena satena sampajānena āyusaṅkhāro ossaṭṭho”ti.
So today, just now at the Cāpāla tree shrine, mindful and aware, I surrendered the life force.”

20. Ānandayācanakathā

20. The Appeal of Ānanda

Evaṁ vutte, āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he said this, Venerable Ānanda said to the Buddha,

“tiṭṭhatu, bhante, bhagavā kappaṁ, tiṭṭhatu sugato kappaṁ bahujanahitāya bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānan”ti.
“Sir, may the Blessed One please remain for the eon! May the Holy One please remain for the eon! That would be for the welfare and happiness of the people, for the benefit, welfare, and happiness of gods and humans.”

“Alaṁ dāni, ānanda.
“Enough now, Ānanda.

Mā tathāgataṁ yāci, akālo dāni, ānanda, tathāgataṁ yācanāyā”ti.
Do not beg the Realized One. Now is not the time to beg the Realized One.”

Dutiyampi kho āyasmā ānando …pe…
For a second time …

tatiyampi kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
For a third time, Ānanda said to the Buddha,

“tiṭṭhatu, bhante, bhagavā kappaṁ, tiṭṭhatu sugato kappaṁ bahujanahitāya bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānan”ti.

“Sir, may the Blessed One please remain for the eon! May the Holy One please remain for the eon! That would be for the welfare and happiness of the people, for the benefit, welfare, and happiness of gods and humans.”

“Saddahasi tvaṁ, ānanda, tathāgatassa bodhin”ti?
“Ānanda, do you have faith in the Realized One’s awakening?”

“Evaṁ, bhante”.
“Yes, sir.”

“Atha kiñcarahi tvaṁ, ānanda, tathāgataṁ yāvatatiyakaṁ abhinippīḷesī”ti?
“Then why do you keep pressing me up to the third time?”

“Sammukhā metaṁ, bhante, bhagavato sutaṁ sammukhā paṭiggahitaṁ:
“Sir, I have heard and learned this in the presence of the Buddha:

‘yassa kassaci, ānanda, cattāro iddhipādā bhāvitā bahulīkatā yānīkatā vatthukatā anuṭṭhitā paricitā susamāraddhā, so ākaṅkhamāno kappaṁ vā tiṭṭheyya kappāvasesaṁ vā.
‘Whoever has developed and cultivated the four bases of psychic power—made them a vehicle and a basis, kept them up, consolidated them, and properly implemented them—may, if they wish, live on for the eon or what’s left of the eon.

Tathāgatassa kho, ānanda, cattāro iddhipādā bhāvitā bahulīkatā yānīkatā vatthukatā anuṭṭhitā paricitā susamāraddhā. So ākaṅkhamāno, ānanda, tathāgato kappaṁ vā tiṭṭheyya kappāvasesaṁ vā’”ti.
The Realized One has developed and cultivated the four bases of psychic power, made them a vehicle and a basis, kept them up, consolidated them, and properly implemented them. If he wished, the Realized One could live on for the eon or what’s left of the eon.’”

“Saddahasi tvaṁ, ānandā”ti?
“Do you have faith, Ānanda?”

“Evaṁ, bhante”.
“Yes, sir.”

“Tasmātihānanda, tuyhevetaṁ dukkaṭaṁ, tuyhevetaṁ aparaddhaṁ, yaṁ tvaṁ tathāgatena evaṁ oḷārike nimitte kayiramāne oḷārike obhāse kayiramāne nāsakkhi paṭivijjhituṁ, na tathāgataṁ yāci:
“Therefore, Ānanda, the misdeed is yours alone, the mistake is yours alone. For even though the Realized One dropped such an obvious hint, such a clear sign, you didn’t beg me to remain for the eon, or what’s left of it.

‘tiṭṭhatu, bhante, bhagavā kappaṁ, tiṭṭhatu sugato kappaṁ bahujanahitāya bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānan’ti.

Sace tvaṁ, ānanda, tathāgataṁ yāceyyāsi, dveva te vācā tathāgato paṭikkhipeyya, atha tatiyakaṁ adhivāseyya.
If you had begged me, I would have refused you twice, but consented on the third time.

Tasmātihānanda, tuyhevetaṁ dukkaṭaṁ, tuyhevetaṁ aparaddhaṁ.
Therefore, Ānanda, the misdeed is yours alone, the mistake is yours alone.

Ekamidāhaṁ, ānanda, samayaṁ rājagahe viharāmi gijjhakūṭe pabbate.
Ānanda, this one time I was staying near Rājagaha, on the Vulture’s Peak Mountain.

Tatrāpi kho tāhaṁ, ānanda, āmantesiṁ:
There I said to you:

‘ramaṇīyaṁ, ānanda, rājagahaṁ, ramaṇīyo, ānanda, gijjhakūṭo pabbato.
‘Ānanda, Rājagaha is lovely, and so is the Vulture’s Peak.

Yassa kassaci, ānanda, cattāro iddhipādā bhāvitā bahulīkatā yānīkatā vatthukatā anuṭṭhitā paricitā susamāraddhā, so ākaṅkhamāno kappaṁ vā tiṭṭheyya kappāvasesaṁ vā.

“sannipatito, bhante, bhikkhusaṅgho, yassadāni, bhante, bhagavā kālaṁ maññatī”ti.
“Sir, the mendicant Saṅgha has assembled. Please, sir, go at your convenience.”

(…)

Atha kho bhagavā yenupaṭṭhānasālā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā paññatte āsane nisīdi.
Then the Buddha went to the assembly hall, where he sat on the seat spread out

Nisajja kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
and addressed the mendicants:

“tasmātiha, bhikkhave, ye te mayā dhammā abhiññā desitā, te vo sādhukaṁ uggahetvā āsevitabbā bhāvetabbā bahulīkātabbā, yathayidaṁ brahmacariyaṁ addhaniyaṁ assa ciraṭṭhitikaṁ, tadassa bahujanahitāya bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānaṁ.
“So, mendicants, having carefully memorized those things I have taught you from my direct knowledge, you should cultivate, develop, and make much of them so that this spiritual practice may last for a long time. That would be for the welfare and happiness of the people, for the benefit, welfare, and happiness of gods and humans.

Katame ca te, bhikkhave, dhammā mayā abhiññā desitā, ye vo sādhukaṁ uggahetvā āsevitabbā bhāvetabbā bahulīkātabbā, yathayidaṁ brahmacariyaṁ addhaniyaṁ assa ciraṭṭhitikaṁ, tadassa bahujanahitāya bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānaṁ.
And what are those things I have taught from my direct knowledge?

Seyyathidaṁ—cattāro satipaṭṭhānā, cattāro sammappadhānā, cattāro iddhipādā, pañcindriyāni, pañca balāni, satta bojjhaṅgā, ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo.
They are: the four kinds of mindfulness meditation, the four right efforts, the four bases of psychic power, the five faculties, the five powers, the seven awakening factors, and the noble eightfold path.

Ime kho te, bhikkhave, dhammā mayā abhiññā desitā, ye vo sādhukaṁ uggahetvā āsevitabbā bhāvetabbā bahulīkātabbā, yathayidaṁ brahmacariyaṁ addhaniyaṁ assa ciraṭṭhitikaṁ,

These are the things I have taught from my direct knowledge. Having carefully memorized them, you should cultivate, develop, and make much of them so that this spiritual practice may last for a long time. That would be for the welfare and happiness of the people, for the benefit, welfare, and happiness of gods and humans.”

Atha kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to the mendicants:

“handa dāni, bhikkhave, āmantayāmi vo,
“Come now, mendicants, I say to you all:

vayadhammā saṅkhārā, appamādena sampādetha.
‘Conditions fall apart. Persist with diligence.’

Naciraṁ tathāgatassa parinibbānaṁ bhavissati.
The final extinguishment of the Realized One will be soon.

Ito tiṇṇaṁ māsānaṁ accayena tathāgato parinibbāyissatī”ti.

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Idaṁ vatvāna sugato athāparaṁ etadavoca satthā:

21. Nāgāpalokita

21. The Elephant Look

Atha kho bhagavā pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya vesāliṁ piṇḍāya pāvisi.
Then the Buddha robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, entered Vesālī for alms.

Vesāliyaṁ piṇḍāya caritvā pacchābhattaṁ piṇḍapātapaṭikkanto nāgāpalokitaṁ vesāliṁ apaloketvā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then, after the meal, on his return from alms-round, he turned his whole body, the way that elephants do, to look back at Vesālī. He said to Venerable Ānanda:

“idaṁ pacchimakaṁ, ānanda, tathāgatassa vesāliyā dassanaṁ bhavissati.
“Ānanda, this will be the last time the Realized One sees Vesālī.

Āyāmānanda, yena bhaṇḍagāmo tenupasaṅkamissāmā”ti.
Come, Ānanda, let’s go to Bhaṇḍagāma.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Ānanda replied.

Atha kho bhagavā mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ yena bhaṇḍagāmo tadavasari.
Then the Buddha together with a large Saṅgha of mendicants arrived at Bhaṇḍagāma, Tatra sudaṁ bhagavā bhaṇḍagāme viharati.

and stayed there.

Tatra kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
There the Buddha addressed the mendicants:

“catunnaṁ, bhikkhave, dhammānaṁ ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamidaṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ sandhāvitaṁ saṁsaritaṁ mamañceva tumhākañca.
“Mendicants, not understanding and not penetrating four things, both you and I have wandered and transmigrated for such a very long time.

Katamesaṁ catunnaṁ?
What four?

Ariyassa, bhikkhave, sīlassa ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamidaṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ sandhāvitaṁ saṁsaritaṁ mamañceva tumhākañca.

Ariyassa, bhikkhave, samādhissa ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamidaṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ sandhāvitaṁ saṁsaritaṁ mamañceva tumhākañca.
immersion,

Ariyāya, bhikkhave, paññāya ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamidaṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ sandhāvitaṁ saṁsaritaṁ mamañceva tumhākañca.
wisdom,

Ariyāya, bhikkhave, vimuttiyā ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamidaṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ sandhāvitaṁ saṁsaritaṁ mamañceva tumhākañca.
and freedom.

Tayidaṁ, bhikkhave, ariyaṁ sīlaṁ anubuddhaṁ paṭividdhaṁ, ariyo samādhi anubuddho paṭividdho, ariyā paññā anubuddhā paṭividdhā, ariyā vimutti anubuddhā paṭividdhā, ucchinnā bhavataṇhā, khīṇā bhavanetti, natthi dāni punabbhavo”ti.
These noble ethics, immersion, wisdom, and freedom have been understood and comprehended. Craving for continued existence has been cut off; the attachment to continued existence is ended; now there are no more future lives.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Idaṁ vatvāna sugato athāparaṁ etadavoca satthā:
Then the Holy One, the Teacher, went on to say:

> “Sīlaṁ samādhi paññā ca,
> “Ethics, immersion, and wisdom, and the supreme freedom:

Anubuddhā ime dhammā,
these things have been understood gotamena yasassinā.

by Gotama the renowned.

Iti buddho abhiññāya,
And so the Buddha, having insight,

dhammamakkhāsi bhikkhunaṁ;
explained this teaching to the mendicants.

Dukkhassantakaro satthā,
The teacher made an end of suffering,

cakkhumā parinibbuto”ti.
seeing clearly, he is extinguished.”

Tatrāpi sudaṁ bhagavā bhaṇḍagāme viharanto etadeva bahulaṁ bhikkhūnaṁ dhammiṁ kathaṁ karoti:
And while staying there, too, he often gave this Dhamma talk to the mendicants:

“iti sīlaṁ, iti samādhi, iti paññā.
“Such is ethics, such is immersion, such is wisdom.

Sīlaparibhāvito samādhi mahapphalo hoti mahānisaṁso.
When immersion is imbued with ethics it’s very fruitful and beneficial.

Samādhiparibhāvitā paññā mahapphalā hoti mahānisaṁsā.
When wisdom is imbued with immersion it’s very fruitful and beneficial.

Paññāparibhāvitaṁ cittaṁ sammadeva āsavehi vimuccati, seyyathidaṁ—
When the mind is imbued with wisdom it is rightly freed from the defilements, namely,

kāmāsavā, bhavāsavā, avijjāsavā”ti.
the defilements of sensuality, desire to be reborn, and ignorance.”

22. The Four Great References

Atha kho bhagavā bhaṇḍagāme yathābhirantaṁ viharitvā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
When the Buddha had stayed in Bhaṇḍagāma as long as he wished, he addressed Ānanda, “āyāmānanda, yena hatthigāmo,

“Come, Ānanda, let’s go to Hatthigāma.”…

yena ambagāmo,
“Let’s go to Ambagāma.”…

“Let’s go to Bhoganagara.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Ānanda replied.

Atha kho bhagavā mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ yena bhoganagaraṁ tadavasari.
Then the Buddha together with a large Saṅgha of mendicants arrived at Bhoganagara, Tatra sudaṁ bhagavā bhoganagare viharati ānande cetiye.

where he stayed at the Ānanda shrine.

Tatra kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:

There the Buddha addressed the mendicants:

“cattārome, bhikkhave, mahāpadese desessāmi,
“Mendicants, I will teach you the four great references.

It has been correctly memorized by those senior mendicants.’

Idaṁ, bhikkhave, tatiyaṁ mahāpadesaṁ dhāreyyātha. (3)
You should remember it. This is the third great reference.

Idha pana, bhikkhave, bhikkhu evaṁ vadeyya:
Take another mendicant who says:

‘amukasmiṁ nāma āvāse eko thero bhikkhu viharati bahussuto āgatāgamo dhammadharo vinayadharo mātikādharo.
‘In such-and-such monastery there is a single senior mendicant who is very learned and knowledgeable in the scriptures, who has memorized the teachings, the texts on monastic training, and the outlines.

Tassa me therassa sammukhā sutaṁ sammukhā paṭiggahitaṁ —
I’ve heard and learned this in the presence of that senior mendicant:

ayaṁ dhammo ayaṁ vinayo idaṁ satthusāsanan’ti.
this is the teaching, this is the training, this is the Teacher’s instruction.’

Tassa, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno bhāsitaṁ neva abhinanditabbaṁ nappaṭikkositabbaṁ.
You should neither approve nor dismiss that mendicant’s statement.

Anabhinanditvā appaṭikkositvā tāni padabyañjanāni sādhukaṁ uggahetvā sutte osāretabbāni, vinaye sandassetabbāni.
Instead, you should carefully memorize those words and phrases, then check if they’re included in the discourses or found in the texts on monastic training.

Tāni ce sutte osāriyamānāni vinaye sandassiyamānāni na ceva sutte osaranti, na ca vinaye sandissanti, niṭṭhamettha gantabbaṁ:
If they're not included in the discourses or found in the texts on monastic training, you should draw the conclusion:

'addhā idaṁ na ceva tassa bhagavato vacanaṁ;
'Clearly this is not the word of the Buddha.

tassa ca therassa duggahitan'ti.
It has been incorrectly memorized by that senior mendicant.'

Itihetaṁ, bhikkhave, chaḍḍeyyātha.
And so you should reject it.

Tāni ca sutte osāriyamānāni vinaye sandassiyamānāni sutte ceva osaranti, vinaye ca sandissanti, niṭṭhamettha gantabbaṁ:
If they are included in the discourses and found in the texts on monastic training, you should draw the conclusion:

'addhā idaṁ tassa bhagavato vacanaṁ;
'Clearly this is the word of the Buddha.

tassa ca therassa suggahitan'ti.
It has been correctly memorized by that senior mendicant.'

Idaṁ, bhikkhave, catutthaṁ mahāpadesaṁ dhāreyyātha. (4)
You should remember it. This is the fourth great reference.

Ime kho, bhikkhave, cattāro mahāpadese dhāreyyāthā"ti.
These are the four great references. You should remember them."

Tatrapi sudaṁ bhagavā bhoganagare viharanto ānande cetiye etadeva bahulaṁ bhikkhūnaṁ dhammiṁ kathaṁ karoti:
And while staying at the Ānanda shrine, too, the Buddha often gave this Dhamma talk to the mendicants:

"iti sīlaṁ, iti samādhi, iti paññā.
"Such is ethics, such is immersion, such is wisdom.

Sīlaparibhāvito samādhi mahapphalo hoti mahānisaṁso.
When immersion is imbued with ethics it's very fruitful and beneficial.

Samādhiparibhāvitā paññā mahapphalā hoti mahānisaṁsā.
When wisdom is imbued with immersion it's very fruitful and beneficial.

Paññāparibhāvitaṁ cittaṁ sammadeva āsavehi vimuccati, seyyathidaṁ—
When the mind is imbued with wisdom it is rightly freed from the defilements, namely,

kāmāsavā, bhavāsavā, avijjāsavā"ti.
the defilements of sensuality, desire to be reborn, and ignorance."

23. On Cunda the Smith

Atha kho bhagavā bhoganagare yathābhirantaṁ viharitvā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
When the Buddha had stayed in Bhoganagara as long as he wished, he addressed Ānanda,

"āyāmānanda, yena pāvā tenupasaṅkamissāmā"ti.
"Come, Ānanda, let's go to Pāvā."

"Evaṁ, bhante"ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paccassosi.
"Yes, sir," Ānanda replied.

Atha kho bhagavā mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ yena pāvā tadavasari.
Then the Buddha together with a large Saṅgha of mendicants arrived at Pāvā,

Tatra sudaṁ bhagavā pāvāyaṁ viharati cundassa kammāraputtassa ambavane.
where he stayed in Cunda the smith's mango grove.

Assosi kho cundo kammāraputto: “bhagavā kira pāvaṁ anuppatto, pāvāyaṁ viharati mayhaṁ ambavane”ti.
Cunda heard that the Buddha had arrived and was staying in his mango grove.

Atha kho cundo kammāraputto yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
Then he went to the Buddha, bowed, and sat down to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho cundaṁ kammāraputtaṁ bhagavā dhammiyā kathāya sandassesi samādapesi samuttejesi sampahaṁsesi.
The Buddha educated, encouraged, fired up, and inspired him with a Dhamma talk.

Atha kho cundo kammāraputto bhagavatā dhammiyā kathāya sandassito samādapito samuttejito sampahaṁsito bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Cunda said to the Buddha,

“adhivāsetu me, bhante, bhagavā svātanāya bhattaṁ saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghenā”ti.
“Sir, may the Buddha together with the mendicant Saṅgha please accept tomorrow’s meal from me.”

Adhivāsesi bhagavā tuṇhībhāvena.
The Buddha consented in silence.

Atha kho cundo kammāraputto bhagavato adhivāsanaṁ viditvā uṭṭhāyāsanā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā pakkāmi.
Then, knowing that the Buddha had consented, Cunda got up from his seat, bowed, and respectfully circled the Buddha, keeping him on his right, before leaving.

Atha kho cundo kammāraputto tassā rattiyā accayena sake nivesane paṇītaṁ khādanīyaṁ bhojanīyaṁ paṭiyādāpetvā pahūtañca sūkaramaddavaṁ bhagavato kālaṁ ārocāpesi:

And when the night had passed Cunda had a variety of delicious foods prepared in his own home, and plenty of pork on the turn. Then he had the Buddha informed of the time, saying,

“kālo, bhante, niṭṭhitaṁ bhattan”ti.
“Sir, it’s time. The meal is ready.”

Atha kho bhagavā pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghena yena cundassa kammāraputtassa nivesanaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā paññatte āsane nisīdi.
Then the Buddha robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, went to the home of Cunda together with the mendicant Saṅgha, where he sat on the seat spread out

Nisajja kho bhagavā cundaṁ kammāraputtaṁ āmantesi:
and addressed Cunda,

“yaṁ te, cunda, sūkaramaddavaṁ paṭiyattaṁ, tena maṁ parivisa.
“Cunda, please serve me with the pork on the turn that you’ve prepared.

Yaṁ panaññaṁ khādanīyaṁ bhojanīyaṁ paṭiyattaṁ, tena bhikkhusaṅghaṁ parivisā”ti.
And serve the mendicant Saṅgha with the other foods.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho cundo kammāraputto bhagavato paṭissutvā yaṁ ahosi sūkaramaddavaṁ paṭiyattaṁ, tena bhagavantaṁ parivisi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Cunda, and did as he was asked.

Yaṁ panaññaṁ khādanīyaṁ bhojanīyaṁ paṭiyattaṁ, tena bhikkhusaṅghaṁ parivisi.

Atha kho bhagavā cundaṁ kammāraputtaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha addressed Cunda,

“yaṁ te, cunda, sūkaramaddavaṁ avasiṭṭhaṁ, taṁ sobbhe nikhaṇāhi.
“Cunda, any pork on the turn that’s left over, you should bury it in a pond.

Nāhaṁ taṁ, cunda, passāmi sadevake loke samārake sabrahmake sassamaṇabrāhmaṇiyā pajāya sadevamanussāya, yassa taṁ paribhuttaṁ sammā pariṇāmaṁ gaccheyya aññatra tathāgatassā”ti.
I don’t see anyone in this world—with its gods, Māras, and Brahmās, this population with its ascetics and brahmins, its gods and humans—who could properly digest it except for the Realized One.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho cundo kammāraputto bhagavato paṭissutvā yaṁ ahosi sūkaramaddavaṁ avasiṭṭhaṁ, taṁ sobbhe nikhaṇitvā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Cunda. He did as he was asked, then came back to the Buddha, bowed, and sat down to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho cundaṁ kammāraputtaṁ bhagavā dhammiyā kathāya sandassetvā samādapetvā samuttejetvā sampahaṁsetvā uṭṭhāyāsanā pakkāmi.
Then the Buddha educated, encouraged, fired up, and inspired him with a Dhamma talk, after which he got up from his seat and left.

(…)

Atha kho bhagavato cundassa kammāraputtassa bhattaṁ bhuttāvissa kharo ābādho uppajji, lohitapakkhandikā pabāḷhā vedanā vattanti māraṇantikā.
After the Buddha had eaten Cunda’s meal, he fell severely ill with bloody dysentery, struck by dreadful pains, close to death.

Tā sudaṁ bhagavā sato sampajāno adhivāsesi avihaññamāno.
But he endured with mindfulness and situational awareness, without worrying.

Atha kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then he addressed Ānanda,

“āyāmānanda, yena kusinārā tenupasaṅkamissāmā”ti.
“Come, Ānanda, let’s go to Kusinārā.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Ānanda replied.

Cundassa bhattaṁ bhuñjitvā,
I’ve heard that after eating kammārassāti me sutaṁ;

the meal of Cunda the smith,

Ābādhaṁ samphusī dhīro,
the wise one fell severely ill,

pabāḷhaṁ māraṇantikaṁ.
with pains, close to death.

Bhuttassa ca sūkaramaddavena,
A severe sickness attacked the Teacher

Byādhippabāḷho udapādi satthuno; who had eaten the pork on the turn.

Virecamāno bhagavā avoca,
While still purging the Buddha said:

“Gacchāmahaṁ kusināraṁ nagaran”ti.
“I’ll go to the citadel of Kusinārā.”

24. Pānīyāharaṇa

24. Bringing a Drink

Atha kho bhagavā maggā okkamma yena aññataraṁ rukkhamūlaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha left the road and went to the root of a tree, where he addressed Ānanda, “iṅgha me tvaṁ, ānanda, catugguṇaṁ saṅghāṭiṁ paññapehi, kilantosmi, ānanda, nisīdissāmī”ti.

“Please, Ānanda, fold my outer robe in four and spread it out for me. I am tired and will sit down.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paṭissutvā catugguṇaṁ saṅghāṭiṁ paññapesi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Ānanda, and did as he was asked.

Nisīdi bhagavā paññatte āsane.
The Buddha sat on the seat spread out.

Nisajja kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
When he was seated he said to Venerable Ānanda,

“iṅgha me tvaṁ, ānanda, pānīyaṁ āhara, pipāsitosmi, ānanda, pivissāmī”ti.
“Please, Ānanda, fetch me some water. I am thirsty and will drink.”

Evaṁ vutte, āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he said this, Venerable Ānanda said to the Buddha,

“idāni, bhante, pañcamattāni sakaṭasatāni atikkantāni, taṁ cakkacchinnaṁ udakaṁ parittaṁ luḷitaṁ āvilaṁ sandati.
“Sir, just now around five hundred carts have passed by. The shallow water has been churned up by their wheels, and it flows cloudy and murky.

Ayaṁ, bhante, kakudhā nadī avidūre acchodakā sātodakā sītodakā setodakā suppatitthā ramaṇīyā.
The Kakutthā river is not far away, with clear, sweet, cool water, clean, with smooth banks, delightful.

Ettha bhagavā pānīyañca pivissati, gattāni ca sītī karissatī”ti.
There the Buddha can drink and cool his limbs.”

Dutiyampi kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
For a second time, the Buddha asked Ānanda for a drink,

“iṅgha me tvaṁ, ānanda, pānīyaṁ āhara, pipāsitosmi, ānanda, pivissāmī”ti.

Dutiyampi kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
and for a second time Ānanda suggested going to the Kakutthā river.

“idāni, bhante, pañcamattāni sakaṭasatāni atikkantāni, taṁ cakkacchinnaṁ udakaṁ parittaṁ luḷitaṁ āvilaṁ sandati.

Ayaṁ, bhante, kakudhā nadī avidūre acchodakā sātodakā sītodakā setodakā suppatitthā ramaṇīyā.

Ettha bhagavā pānīyañca pivissati, gattāni ca sītīkarissatī”ti.

Tatiyampi kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
And for a third time, the Buddha said to Ānanda,

“iṅgha me tvaṁ, ānanda, pānīyaṁ āhara, pipāsitosmi, ānanda, pivissāmī”ti.
“Please, Ānanda, fetch me some water. I am thirsty and will drink.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paṭissutvā pattaṁ gahetvā yena sā nadikā tenupasaṅkami.
“Yes, sir,” replied Ānanda. Taking his bowl he went to the river.

Atha kho sā nadikā cakkacchinnā parittā luḷitā āvilā sandamānā, āyasmante ānande upasaṅkamante acchā vippasannā anāvilā sandittha.
Now, though the shallow water in that creek had been churned up by wheels, and flowed cloudy and murky, when Ānanda approached it flowed transparent, clear, and unclouded.

Atha kho āyasmato ānandassa etadahosi:
Then Ānanda thought,

“acchariyaṁ vata bho, abbhutaṁ vata bho, tathāgatassa mahiddhikatā mahānubhāvatā.
“It’s incredible, it’s amazing! The Realized One has such psychic power and might!

Ayañhi sā nadikā cakkacchinnā parittā luḷitā āvilā sandamānā mayi upasaṅkamante acchā vippasannā anāvilā sandatī”ti.
For though the shallow water in that creek had been churned up by wheels, and flowed cloudy and murky, when I approached it flowed transparent, clear, and unclouded.”

Pattena pānīyaṁ ādāya yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Gathering a bowl of drinking water he went back to the Buddha, and said to him, “acchariyaṁ, bhante, abbhutaṁ, bhante, tathāgatassa mahiddhikatā mahānubhāvatā.

“It’s incredible, sir, it’s amazing! The Realized One has such psychic power and might!

Idāni sā bhante nadikā cakkacchinnā parittā luḷitā āvilā sandamānā mayi upasaṅkamante acchā vippasannā anāvilā sandittha.
Just now, though the shallow water in that creek had been churned up by wheels, and flowed cloudy and murky, when I approached it flowed transparent, clear, and unclouded.

Pivatu bhagavā pānīyaṁ pivatu sugato pānīyan”ti.
Drink the water, Blessed One! Drink the water, Holy One!”

Atha kho bhagavā pānīyaṁ apāyi.
So the Buddha drank the water.

25. On Pukkusa the Malla

Tena kho pana samayena pukkuso mallaputto āḷārassa kālāmassa sāvako kusinārāya pāvaṁ addhānamaggappaṭipanno hoti.
Now at that time Pukkusa the Malla, a disciple of Āḷāra Kālāma, was traveling along the road from Kusinārā and Pāvā.

Addasā kho pukkuso mallaputto bhagavantaṁ aññatarasmiṁ rukkhamūle nisinnaṁ.
He saw the Buddha sitting at the root of a certain tree.

Disvā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho pukkuso mallaputto bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
He went up to him, bowed, sat down to one side, and said, “acchariyaṁ, bhante, abbhutaṁ, bhante, santena vata, bhante, pabbajitā vihārena viharanti.

“It’s incredible, sir, it’s amazing! Those who have gone forth remain in such peaceful meditations.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, bhante, āḷāro kālāmo addhānamaggappaṭipanno maggā okkamma avidūre aññatarasmiṁ rukkhamūle divāvihāraṁ nisīdi.
Once it so happened that Āḷāra Kālāma, while traveling along a road, left the road and sat at the root of a nearby tree for the day’s meditation.

Atha kho, bhante, pañcamattāni sakaṭasatāni āḷāraṁ kālāmaṁ nissāya nissāya atikkamiṁsu.
Then around five hundred carts passed by right next to Āḷāra Kālāma.

Atha kho, bhante, aññataro puriso tassa sakaṭasatthassa piṭṭhito piṭṭhito āgacchanto yena āḷāro kālāmo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā āḷāraṁ kālāmaṁ etadavoca:

Then a certain person coming behind those carts went up to Āḷāra Kālāma and said to him:

‘api, bhante, pañcamattāni sakaṭasatāni atikkantāni addasā’ti?
‘Sir, didn’t you see the five hundred carts pass by?’

‘Na kho ahaṁ, āvuso, addasan’ti.
‘No, friend, I didn’t see them.’

‘Kiṁ pana, bhante, saddaṁ assosī’ti?
‘But sir, didn’t you hear a sound?’

‘Na kho ahaṁ, āvuso, saddaṁ assosin’ti.
‘No, friend, I didn’t hear a sound.’

‘Kiṁ pana, bhante, sutto ahosī’ti?
‘But sir, were you asleep?’

‘Na kho ahaṁ, āvuso, sutto ahosin’ti.
‘No, friend, I wasn’t asleep.’

‘Kiṁ pana, bhante, saññī ahosī’ti?
‘But sir, were you conscious?’

‘Evamāvuso’ti.
‘Yes, friend.’

‘So tvaṁ, bhante, saññī samāno jāgaro pañcamattāni sakaṭasatāni nissāya nissāya atikkantāni neva addasa, na pana saddaṁ assosi;
‘So, sir, while conscious and awake you neither saw nor heard a sound as five hundred carts passed by right next to you?

apisu te, bhante, saṅghāṭi rajena okiṇṇā’ti?
Why sir, even your outer robe is covered with dust!’

‘Evamāvuso’ti.
‘Yes, friend.’

Atha kho, bhante, tassa purisassa etadahosi:
Then that person thought:

‘acchariyaṁ vata bho, abbhutaṁ vata bho, santena vata bho pabbajitā vihārena viharanti.
‘It’s incredible, it’s amazing! Those who have gone forth remain in such peaceful meditations, Yatra hi nāma saññī samāno jāgaro pañcamattāni sakaṭasatāni nissāya nissāya atikkantāni neva dakkhati, na pana saddaṁ sossatī’ti.

in that, while conscious and awake he neither saw nor heard a sound as five hundred carts passed by right next to him.’

Āḷāre kālāme uḷāraṁ pasādaṁ pavedetvā pakkāmī”ti.
And after declaring his lofty confidence in Āḷāra Kālāma, he left.”

“Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, pukkusa, “What do you think, Pukkusa?

katamaṁ nu kho dukkarataraṁ vā durabhisambhavataraṁ vā—
Which is harder and more challenging to do while conscious and awake:

yo vā saññī samāno jāgaro pañcamattāni sakaṭasatāni nissāya nissāya atikkantāni neva passeyya, na pana saddaṁ suṇeyya; to neither see nor hear a sound as five hundred carts pass by right next to you?

yo vā saññī samāno jāgaro deve vassante deve gaḷagaḷāyante vijjullatāsu niccharantīsu asaniyā phalantiyā neva passeyya, na pana saddaṁ suṇeyyā”ti?
Or to neither see nor hear a sound as it’s raining and pouring, lightning’s flashing, and thunder’s cracking?”

“Kiñhi, bhante, karissanti pañca vā sakaṭasatāni cha vā sakaṭasatāni satta vā sakaṭasatāni aṭṭha vā sakaṭasatāni nava vā sakaṭasatāni, sakaṭasahassaṁ vā sakaṭasatasahassaṁ vā.
“What do five hundred carts matter, or six hundred, or seven hundred, or eight hundred, or nine hundred, or a thousand, or even a hundred thousand carts?

Atha kho etadeva dukkaratarañceva durabhisambhavatarañca yo saññī samāno jāgaro deve vassante deve gaḷagaḷāyante vijjullatāsu niccharantīsu asaniyā phalantiyā neva passeyya, na pana saddaṁ suṇeyyā”ti.
It’s far harder and more challenging to neither see nor hear a sound as it’s raining and pouring, lightning’s flashing, and thunder’s cracking!”

“Ekamidāhaṁ, pukkusa, samayaṁ ātumāyaṁ viharāmi bhusāgāre.
“This one time, Pukkusa, I was staying near Ātumā in a threshing-hut.

Tena kho pana samayena deve vassante deve gaḷagaḷāyante vijjullatāsu niccharantīsu asaniyā phalantiyā avidūre bhusāgārassa dve kassakā bhātaro hatā cattāro ca balibaddā.
At that time it was raining and pouring, lightning was flashing, and thunder was cracking. And not far from the threshing-hut two farmers who were brothers were killed, as well as four oxen.

Atha kho, pukkusa, ātumāya mahājanakāyo nikkhamitvā yena te dve kassakā bhātaro hatā cattāro ca balibaddā tenupasaṅkami.
Then a large crowd came from Ātumā to the place where that happened.

Tena kho panāhaṁ, pukkusa, samayena bhusāgārā nikkhamitvā bhusāgāradvāre abbhokāse caṅkamāmi.
Now at that time I came out of the threshing-hut and was walking mindfully in the open near the door of the hut.

Atha kho, pukkusa, aññataro puriso tamhā mahājanakāyā yenāhaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā maṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi. Ekamantaṁ ṭhitaṁ kho ahaṁ, pukkusa, taṁ purisaṁ etadavocaṁ:
Then having left that crowd, a certain person approached me, bowed, and stood to one side. I said to them, ‘kiṁ nu kho eso, āvuso, mahājanakāyo sannipatito’ti?

‘Why, friend, has this crowd gathered?’

‘Idāni, bhante, deve vassante deve gaḷagaḷāyante vijjullatāsu niccharantīsu asaniyā phalantiyā dve kassakā bhātaro hatā cattāro ca balibaddā.
‘Just now, sir, it was raining and pouring, lightning was flashing, and thunder was cracking. And two farmers who were brothers were killed, as well as four oxen.

Ettheso mahājanakāyo sannipatito.
Then this crowd gathered here.

Tvaṁ pana, bhante, kva ahosī’ti?
But sir, where were you?’

‘Idheva kho ahaṁ, āvuso, ahosin’ti.
‘I was right here, friend.’

‘Kiṁ pana, bhante, addasā’ti?
‘But sir, did you see?’

‘Na kho ahaṁ, āvuso, addasan’ti.
‘No, friend, I didn’t see anything.’

‘Kiṁ pana, bhante, saddaṁ assosī’ti?
‘But sir, didn’t you hear a sound?’

‘Na kho ahaṁ, āvuso, saddaṁ assosin’ti.

‘No, friend, I didn’t hear a sound.’

‘Kiṁ pana, bhante, sutto ahosī’ti?
‘But sir, were you asleep?’

‘Na kho ahaṁ, āvuso, sutto ahosin’ti.
‘No, friend, I wasn’t asleep.’

‘Kiṁ pana, bhante, saññī ahosī’ti?
‘But sir, were you conscious?’

‘Evamāvuso’ti.
‘Yes, friend.’

‘So tvaṁ, bhante, saññī samāno jāgaro deve vassante deve gaḷagaḷāyante vijjullatāsu niccharantīsu asaniyā phalantiyā neva addasa, na pana saddaṁ assosī’ti?
‘So, sir, while conscious and awake you neither saw nor heard a sound as it was raining and pouring, lightning was flashing, and thunder was cracking?’

‘Evamāvuso’ti?
‘Yes, friend.’

Atha kho, pukkusa, tassa purisassa etadahosi:
Then that person thought:

‘acchariyaṁ vata bho, abbhutaṁ vata bho, santena vata bho pabbajitā vihārena viharanti.
‘It’s incredible, it’s amazing! Those who have gone forth remain in such peaceful meditations, in that, while conscious and awake he neither saw nor heard a sound as it was raining and pouring, lightning was flashing, and thunder was cracking.’

Mayi uḷāraṁ pasādaṁ pavedetvā maṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā pakkāmī”ti.
And after declaring their lofty confidence in me, they bowed and respectfully circled me, keeping me on their right, before leaving.”

Evaṁ vutte, pukkuso mallaputto bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he said this, Pukkusa said to him,

“esāhaṁ, bhante, yo me āḷāre kālāme pasādo taṁ mahāvāte vā ophuṇāmi sīghasotāya vā nadiyā pavāhemi.
“Any confidence I had in Āḷāra Kālāma I sweep away as in a strong wind, or float away as down a swift stream.

Abhikkantaṁ, bhante, abhikkantaṁ, bhante.
Excellent, sir! Excellent!

Seyyathāpi, bhante, nikkujjitaṁ vā ukkujjeyya, paṭicchannaṁ vā vivareyya, mūḷhassa vā maggaṁ ācikkheyya, andhakāre vā telapajjotaṁ dhāreyya: ‘cakkhumanto rūpāni dakkhantī’ti; evamevaṁ bhagavatā anekapariyāyena dhammo pakāsito.
As if he were righting the overturned, or revealing the hidden, or pointing out the path to the lost, or lighting a lamp in the dark so people with good eyes can see what’s there, the Buddha has made the teaching clear in many ways.

Esāhaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ saraṇaṁ gacchāmi dhammañca bhikkhusaṅghañca.
I go for refuge to the Buddha, to the teaching, and to the mendicant Saṅgha.

Upāsakaṁ maṁ bhagavā dhāretu ajjatagge pāṇupetaṁ saraṇaṁ gatan”ti.
From this day forth, may the Buddha remember me as a lay follower who has gone for refuge for life.”

Atha kho pukkuso mallaputto aññataraṁ purisaṁ āmantesi:
Then Pukkusa addressed a certain man,

“iṅgha me tvaṁ, bhaṇe, siṅgīvaṇṇaṁ yugamaṭṭhaṁ dhāraṇīyaṁ āharā”ti.
“Please, my man, fetch a pair of ready to wear polished golden garments.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho so puriso pukkusassa mallaputtassa paṭissutvā taṁ siṅgīvaṇṇaṁ yugamaṭṭhaṁ dhāraṇīyaṁ āhari.
“Yes, sir,” replied that man, and did as he was asked.

Atha kho pukkuso mallaputto taṁ siṅgīvaṇṇaṁ yugamaṭṭhaṁ dhāraṇīyaṁ bhagavato upanāmesi:
Then Pukkusa brought the garments to the Buddha,

“idaṁ, bhante, siṅgīvaṇṇaṁ yugamaṭṭhaṁ dhāraṇīyaṁ, taṁ me bhagavā paṭiggaṇhātu anukampaṁ upādāyā”ti.
“Sir, please accept this pair of ready to wear polished golden garments from me out of compassion.”

“Tena hi, pukkusa, ekena maṁ acchādehi, ekena ānandan”ti.
“Well then, Pukkusa, clothe me in one, and Ānanda in the other.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho pukkuso mallaputto bhagavato paṭissutvā ekena bhagavantaṁ acchādeti, ekena āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ.
“Yes, sir,” replied Pukkusa, and did so.

Atha kho bhagavā pukkusaṁ mallaputtaṁ dhammiyā kathāya sandassesi samādapesi samuttejesi sampahaṁsesi.
Then the Buddha educated, encouraged, fired up, and inspired Pukkusa the Malla with a Dhamma talk, Atha kho pukkuso mallaputto bhagavatā dhammiyā kathāya sandassito samādapito samuttejito sampahaṁsito uṭṭhāyāsanā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā pakkāmi.

after which he got up from his seat, bowed, and respectfully circled the Buddha before leaving.

Atha kho āyasmā ānando acirapakkante pukkuse mallaputte taṁ siṅgīvaṇṇaṁ yugamaṭṭhaṁ dhāraṇīyaṁ bhagavato kāyaṁ upanāmesi.
Then, not long after Pukkusa had left, Ānanda placed the pair of golden garments on the Buddha’s body.

Taṁ bhagavato kāyaṁ upanāmitaṁ hataccikaṁ viya khāyati.
But when placed on the Buddha’s body they seemed to lose their shine.

Atha kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Ānanda said to the Buddha,

“acchariyaṁ, bhante, abbhutaṁ, bhante, yāva parisuddho, bhante, tathāgatassa chavivaṇṇo pariyodāto.
“It’s incredible, sir, it’s amazing, how pure and bright is the color of the Realized One’s skin.

Idaṁ, bhante, siṅgīvaṇṇaṁ yugamaṭṭhaṁ dhāraṇīyaṁ bhagavato kāyaṁ upanāmitaṁ hataccikaṁ viya khāyatī”ti.
When this pair of ready to wear polished golden garments is placed on the Buddha’s body they seem to lose their shine.”

“Evametaṁ, ānanda, evametaṁ, ānanda, dvīsu kālesu ativiya tathāgatassa kāyo parisuddho hoti chavivaṇṇo pariyodāto.
“That’s so true, Ānanda, that’s so true! There are two times when the color of the Realized One’s skin becomes extra pure and bright.

Katamesu dvīsu?
What two?

Yañca, ānanda, rattiṁ tathāgato anuttaraṁ sammāsambodhiṁ abhisambujjhati, yañca rattiṁ anupādisesāya nibbānadhātuyā parinibbāyati.
The night when a Realized One understands the supreme perfect awakening; and the night he becomes fully extinguished through the natural principle of extinguishment, without anything left over.

Imesu kho, ānanda, dvīsu kālesu ativiya tathāgatassa kāyo parisuddho hoti chavivaṇṇo pariyodāto.
These are the are two times when the color of the Realized One’s skin becomes extra pure and bright.

Ajja kho panānanda, rattiyā pacchime yāme kusinārāyaṁ upavattane mallānaṁ sālavane antarena yamakasālānaṁ tathāgatassa parinibbānaṁ bhavissati.
Today, Ānanda, in the last watch of the night, between a pair of sal trees in the sal forest of the Mallas at Upavattana near Kusinārā, shall be the Realized One’s full extinguishment.

Āyāmānanda, yena kakudhā nadī tenupasaṅkamissāmā”ti.
Come, Ānanda, let’s go to the Kakutthā River.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Ānanda replied.

Siṅgīvaṇṇaṁ yugamaṭṭhaṁ,
A pair of golden polished garments pukkuso abhihārayi;

was presented by Pukkusa;

Tena acchādito satthā,
when the teacher was clothed with them,

hemavaṇṇo asobhathāti.
his golden skin glowed bright.

(…)

Atha kho bhagavā mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ yena kakudhā nadī tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā kakudhaṁ nadiṁ ajjhogāhetvā nhatvā ca pivitvā ca paccuttaritvā yena ambavanaṁ tenupasaṅkami.

Then the Buddha together with a large Saṅgha of mendicants went to the Kakutthā River. He plunged into the river and bathed and drank. And when he had emerged, he went to the mango grove,

Upasaṅkamitvā āyasmantaṁ cundakaṁ āmantesi:
where he addressed Venerable Cundaka,

“iṅgha me tvaṁ, cundaka, catugguṇaṁ saṅghāṭiṁ paññapehi, kilantosmi, cundaka, nipajjissāmī”ti.
“Please, Cundaka, fold my outer robe in four and spread it out for me. I am tired and will lie down.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā cundako bhagavato paṭissutvā catugguṇaṁ saṅghāṭiṁ paññapesi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Cundaka, and did as he was asked.

Atha kho bhagavā dakkhiṇena passena sīhaseyyaṁ kappesi pāde pādaṁ accādhāya sato sampajāno uṭṭhānasaññaṁ manasikaritvā.
And then the Buddha laid down in the lion’s posture—on the right side, placing one foot on top of the other—mindful and aware, and focused on the time of getting up.

Āyasmā pana cundako tattheva bhagavato purato nisīdi.
But Cundaka sat down right there in front of the Buddha.

Gantvāna buddho nadikaṁ kakudhaṁ,
Having gone to Kakutthā Creek,

Acchodakaṁ sātudakaṁ vippasannaṁ;
whose water was transparent, sweet, and clear,

Ogāhi satthā akilantarūpo, the Teacher, being tired, plunged in,

Tathāgato appaṭimo ca loke.
the Realized One, without compare in the world.

Nhatvā ca pivitvā cudatāri satthā,
And after bathing and drinking the Teacher emerged.

Purakkhato bhikkhugaṇassa majjhe;
Before the group of mendicants, in the middle, the Buddha,

Vattā pavattā bhagavā idha dhamme,
the Teacher who rolled forth the present dispensation,

Upāgami ambavanaṁ mahesi.
the great hermit went to the mango grove.

Āmantayi cundakaṁ nāma bhikkhuṁ,
He addressed the mendicant named Cundaka:

Catugguṇaṁ santhara me nipajjaṁ;
“Spread out my folded robe so I can lie down.”

So codito bhāvitattena cundo,
The self-developed one urged Cunda,

Catugguṇaṁ santhari khippameva;
who quickly spread the folded robe.

Nipajji satthā akilantarūpo,
Teacher, being tired, lay down,

Cundopi tattha pamukhe nisīdīti.
while Cunda sat there before him.

Atha kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to Venerable Ānanda:

“siyā kho panānanda, cundassa kammāraputtassa koci vippaṭisāraṁ uppādeyya:
“Now it may happen, Ānanda, that others may give rise to some regret for Cunda the smith:

‘tassa te, āvuso cunda, alābhā tassa te dulladdhaṁ, yassa te tathāgato pacchimaṁ piṇḍapātaṁ paribhuñjitvā parinibbuto’ti.

‘It’s your loss, friend Cunda, it’s your misfortune, in that the Realized One became fully extinguished after eating his last meal from you.’

Cundassa, ānanda, kammāraputtassa evaṁ vippaṭisāro paṭivinetabbo:
You should get rid of remorse in Cunda the smith like this:

‘tassa te, āvuso cunda, lābhā tassa te suladdhaṁ, ‘You’re fortunate, friend Cunda, you’re so very fortunate, yassa te tathāgato pacchimaṁ piṇḍapātaṁ paribhuñjitvā parinibbuto.

in that the Realized One became fully extinguished after eating his last meal from you.

Sammukhā metaṁ, āvuso cunda, bhagavato sutaṁ sammukhā paṭiggahitaṁ:
I have heard and learned this in the presence of the Buddha.

dveme piṇḍapātā samasamaphalā samavipākā, ativiya aññehi piṇḍapātehi mahapphalatarā ca mahānisaṁsatarā ca.
There are two meal offerings that have identical fruit and result, and are more fruitful and beneficial than other meal offerings.

Katame dve?
What two?

Yañca piṇḍapātaṁ paribhuñjitvā tathāgato anuttaraṁ sammāsambodhiṁ abhisambujjhati, yañca piṇḍapātaṁ paribhuñjitvā tathāgato anupādisesāya nibbānadhātuyā parinibbāyati.
The meal after eating which a Realized One understands the supreme perfect awakening; and the meal after eating which he becomes fully extinguished through the natural principle of extinguishment, without anything left over.

Ime dve piṇḍapātā samasamaphalā samavipākā, ativiya aññehi piṇḍapātehi mahapphalatarā ca mahānisaṁsatarā ca.

These two meal offerings have identical fruit and result, and are more fruitful and beneficial than other meal offerings.

Āyusaṁvattanikaṁ āyasmatā cundena kammāraputtena kammaṁ upacitaṁ, vaṇṇasaṁvattanikaṁ āyasmatā cundena kammāraputtena kammaṁ upacitaṁ, sukhasaṁvattanikaṁ āyasmatā cundena kammāraputtena kammaṁ upacitaṁ, yasasaṁvattanikaṁ āyasmatā cundena kammāraputtena kammaṁ upacitaṁ, saggasaṁvattanikaṁ āyasmatā cundena kammāraputtena kammaṁ upacitaṁ, ādhipateyyasaṁvattanikaṁ āyasmatā cundena kammāraputtena kammaṁ upacitan'ti.
You've accumulated a deed that leads to long life, beauty, happiness, fame, heaven, and sovereignty.'

Cundassa, ānanda, kammāraputtassa evaṁ vippaṭisāro paṭivinetabbo"ti.
That's how you should get rid of remorse in Cunda the smith."

Atha kho bhagavā etamatthaṁ viditvā tāyaṁ velāyaṁ imaṁ udānaṁ udānesi:
Then, knowing the meaning of this, on that occasion the Buddha expressed this heartfelt sentiment:

> "Dadato puññaṁ pavaḍḍhati,
> "A giver's merit grows;
>
> Saṁyamato veraṁ na cīyati;
> enmity doesn't build up when you have self-control.
>
> Kusalo ca jahāti pāpakaṁ,
> A skillful person gives up bad things—
>
> Rāgadosamohakkhayā sanibbuto"ti.
> with the end of greed, hate, and delusion, they're extinguished."

Catuttho bhāṇavāro.

26. Yamakasālā

26. The Pair of Sal Trees

Atha kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to Ānanda,

“āyāmānanda, yena hiraññavatiyā nadiyā pārimaṁ tīraṁ, yena kusinārā upavattanaṁ mallānaṁ sālavanaṁ tenupasaṅkamissāmā”ti.
“Come, Ānanda, let’s go to the far shore of the Golden River, and on to the sal forest of the Mallas at Upavattana near Kusinārā.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Ānanda replied.

Atha kho bhagavā mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ yena hiraññavatiyā nadiyā pārimaṁ tīraṁ, yena kusinārā upavattanaṁ mallānaṁ sālavanaṁ tenupasaṅkami. upasaṅkamitvā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
And that’s where they went. Then the Buddha addressed Ānanda, “iṅgha me tvaṁ, ānanda, antarena yamakasālānaṁ uttarasīsakaṁ mañcakaṁ paññapehi, kilantosmi, ānanda, nipajjissāmī”ti.

“Please, Ānanda, set up a cot for me between the twin sal trees, with my head to the north. I am tired and will lie down.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paṭissutvā antarena yamakasālānaṁ uttarasīsakaṁ mañcakaṁ paññapesi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Ānanda, and did as he was asked.

Atha kho bhagavā dakkhiṇena passena sīhaseyyaṁ kappesi pāde pādaṁ accādhāya sato sampajāno.
And then the Buddha laid down in the lion’s posture—on the right side, placing one foot on top of the other—mindful and aware.

Tena kho pana samayena yamakasālā sabbaphāliphullā honti akālapupphehi.
Now at that time the twin sal trees were in full blossom with flowers out of season.

Te tathāgatassa sarīraṁ okiranti ajjhokiranti abhippakiranti tathāgatassa pūjāya.
They sprinkled and bestrewed the Realized One’s body in honor of the Realized One.

Dibbānipi mandāravapupphāni antalikkhā papatanti, tāni tathāgatassa sarīraṁ okiranti ajjhokiranti abhippakiranti tathāgatassa pūjāya.
And the flowers of the heavenly Flame Tree fell from the sky, and they too sprinkled and bestrewed the Realized One’s body in honor of the Realized One.

Dibbānipi candanacuṇṇāni antalikkhā papatanti, tāni tathāgatassa sarīraṁ okiranti ajjhokiranti abhippakiranti tathāgatassa pūjāya.
And heavenly sandalwood powder fell from the sky, and it too sprinkled and bestrewed the Realized One’s body in honor of the Realized One.

Dibbānipi tūriyāni antalikkhe vajjanti tathāgatassa pūjāya.
And heavenly music played in the sky in honor of the Realized One.

Dibbānipi saṅgītāni antalikkhe vattanti tathāgatassa pūjāya.
And heavenly choirs sang in the sky in honor of the Realized One.

Atha kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha pointed out to Ānanda what was happening, adding:

“sabbaphāliphullā kho, ānanda, yamakasālā akālapupphehi.

Te tathāgatassa sarīraṁ okiranti ajjhokiranti abhippakiranti tathāgatassa pūjāya.

Dibbānipi mandāravapupphāni antalikkhā papatanti, tāni tathāgatassa sarīraṁ okiranti ajjhokiranti abhippakiranti tathāgatassa pūjāya.

Dibbānipi candanacuṇṇāni antalikkhā papatanti, tāni tathāgatassa sarīraṁ okiranti ajjhokiranti abhippakiranti tathāgatassa pūjāya.

Dibbānipi tūriyāni antalikkhe vajjanti tathāgatassa pūjāya.

Dibbānipi saṅgītāni antalikkhe vattanti tathāgatassa pūjāya.

Na kho, ānanda, ettāvatā tathāgato sakkato vā hoti garukato vā mānito vā pūjito vā apacito vā.
“That’s not how the Realized One is honored, respected, revered, venerated, and esteemed.

Yo kho, ānanda, bhikkhu vā bhikkhunī vā upāsako vā upāsikā vā dhammānudhammappaṭipanno viharati sāmīcippaṭipanno anudhammacārī, so tathāgataṁ sakkaroti garuṁ karoti māneti pūjeti apaciyati, paramāya pūjāya.
Any monk or nun or male or female lay follower who practices in line with the teachings, practicing properly, living in line with the teachings—they honor, respect, revere, venerate, and esteem the Realized One with the highest honor.

Tasmātihānanda, dhammānudhammappaṭipannā viharissāma sāmīcippaṭipannā anudhammacārinoti.
So Ānanda, you should train like this: ‘We shall practice in line with the teachings, practicing properly, living in line with the teaching.’

Evañhi vo, ānanda, sikkhitabban”ti.

27. Upavāṇatthera

27. The Monk Upavāṇa

Tena kho pana samayena āyasmā upavāṇo bhagavato purato ṭhito hoti bhagavantaṁ bījayamāno.

Now at that time Venerable Upavāṇa was standing in front of the Buddha fanning him.

Atha kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ upavāṇaṁ apasāresi:
Then the Buddha made him move,

“apehi, bhikkhu, mā me purato aṭṭhāsī”ti.
“Move over, mendicant, don’t stand in front of me.”

Atha kho āyasmato ānandassa etadahosi:
Ānanda thought,

“ayaṁ kho āyasmā upavāṇo dīgharattaṁ bhagavato upaṭṭhāko santikāvacaro samīpacārī.
“This Venerable Upavāṇa has been the Buddha’s attendant for a long time, close to him, living in his presence.

Atha ca pana bhagavā pacchime kāle āyasmantaṁ upavāṇaṁ apasāreti:
Yet in his final hour the Buddha makes him move, saying:

‘apehi, bhikkhu, mā me purato aṭṭhāsī’ti.
‘Move over, mendicant, don’t stand in front of me.’

Ko nu kho hetu, ko paccayo, yaṁ bhagavā āyasmantaṁ upavāṇaṁ apasāreti:
What is the cause, what is the reason for this?”

‘apehi, bhikkhu, mā me purato aṭṭhāsī’”ti?

Atha kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Ānanda said to the Buddha,

“ayaṁ, bhante, āyasmā upavāṇo dīgharattaṁ bhagavato upaṭṭhāko santikāvacaro samīpacārī.
“This Venerable Upavāṇa has been the Buddha’s attendant for a long time, close to him, living in his presence.

Atha ca pana bhagavā pacchime kāle āyasmantaṁ upavāṇaṁ apasāreti:

Yet in his final hour the Buddha makes him move, saying:

‘apehi, bhikkhu, mā me purato aṭṭhāsī’ti.
‘Move over, mendicant, don’t stand in front of me.’

Ko nu kho, bhante, hetu, ko paccayo, yaṁ bhagavā āyasmantaṁ upavāṇaṁ apasāreti:
What is the cause, sir, what is the reason for this?”

‘apehi, bhikkhu, mā me purato aṭṭhāsī’”ti?

“Yebhuyyena, ānanda, dasasu lokadhātūsu devatā sannipatitā tathāgataṁ dassanāya.
“Most of the deities from ten solar systems have gathered to see the Realized One.

Yāvatā, ānanda, kusinārā upavattanaṁ mallānaṁ sālavanaṁ samantato dvādasa yojanāni, natthi so padeso vālaggakoṭinittudanamattopi mahesakkhāhi devatāhi apphuṭo.
For twelve leagues all around this sal grove there’s no spot, not even a fraction of a hair’s tip, that’s not crowded full of illustrious deities.

Devatā, ānanda, ujjhāyanti:
The deities are complaining:

‘dūrā ca vatamha āgatā tathāgataṁ dassanāya.
‘We’ve come such a long way to see the Realized One!

Kadāci karahaci tathāgatā loke uppajjanti arahanto sammāsambuddhā.
Only rarely do Realized Ones arise in the world, perfected ones, fully awakened Buddhas.

Ajjeva rattiyā pacchime yāme tathāgatassa parinibbānaṁ bhavissati.
This very day, in the last watch of the night, the Realized One will become fully extinguished.

Ayañca mahesakkho bhikkhu bhagavato purato ṭhito ovārento, na mayaṁ labhāma pacchime kāle tathāgataṁ dassanāyā’”ti.

And this illustrious mendicant is standing in front of the Buddha blocking the view. We won’t get to see the Realized One in his final hour!’”

“Kathaṁbhūtā pana, bhante, bhagavā devatā manasikarotī”ti?
“But sir, what kind of deities are you thinking of?”

“Santānanda, devatā ākāse pathavīsaññiniyo kese pakiriya kandanti, bāhā paggayha kandanti, chinnapātaṁ papatanti, āvaṭṭanti, vivaṭṭanti:
“There are, Ānanda, deities—both in the sky and on the earth—who are percipient of the earth. With hair disheveled and arms raised, they fall down like their feet were chopped off, rolling back and forth, lamenting:

‘atikhippaṁ bhagavā parinibbāyissati, atikhippaṁ sugato parinibbāyissati, atikhippaṁ cakkhuṁ loke antaradhāyissatī’ti.
‘Too soon the Blessed One will become fully extinguished! Too soon the Holy One will become fully extinguished! Too soon the seer will vanish from the world!’

Santānanda, devatā pathaviyaṁ pathavīsaññiniyo kese pakiriya kandanti, bāhā paggayha kandanti, chinnapātaṁ papatanti, āvaṭṭanti, vivaṭṭanti:

‘atikhippaṁ bhagavā parinibbāyissati, atikhippaṁ sugato parinibbāyissati, atikhippaṁ cakkhuṁ loke antaradhāyissatī’ti.

Yā pana tā devatā vītarāgā, tā satā sampajānā adhivāsenti:
But the deities who are free of desire endure, mindful and aware, thinking:

‘aniccā saṅkhārā, taṁ kutettha labbhā’”ti.
‘Conditions are impermanent. How could it possibly be otherwise?’”

28. Catusaṁvejanīyaṭhāna

28. The Four Inspiring Places

“Pubbe, bhante, disāsu vassaṁvuṭṭhā bhikkhū āgacchanti tathāgataṁ dassanāya.
“Previously, sir, when mendicants had completed the rainy season residence in various districts they came to see the Realized One.

Te mayaṁ labhāma manobhāvanīye bhikkhū dassanāya, labhāma payirupāsanāya.
We got to see the esteemed mendicants, and to pay homage to them.

Bhagavato pana mayaṁ, bhante, accayena na labhissāma manobhāvanīye bhikkhū dassanāya, na labhissāma payirupāsanāyā”ti.
But when the Buddha has passed, we won’t get to see the esteemed mendicants or to pay homage to them.”

“Cattārimāni, ānanda, saddhassa kulaputtassa dassanīyāni saṁvejanīyāni ṭhānāni.
“Ānanda, a faithful gentleman should go to see these four inspiring places.

Katamāni cattāri?
What four?

‘Idha tathāgato jāto’ti, ānanda, saddhassa kulaputtassa dassanīyaṁ saṁvejanīyaṁ ṭhānaṁ.
Thinking: ‘Here the Realized One was born!’—that is an inspiring place.

‘Idha tathāgato anuttaraṁ sammāsambodhiṁ abhisambuddho’ti, ānanda, saddhassa kulaputtassa dassanīyaṁ saṁvejanīyaṁ ṭhānaṁ.
Thinking: ‘Here the Realized One became awakened as a supreme fully awakened Buddha!’—that is an inspiring place.

‘Idha tathāgatena anuttaraṁ dhammacakkaṁ pavattitan’ti, ānanda, saddhassa kulaputtassa dassanīyaṁ saṁvejanīyaṁ ṭhānaṁ.
Thinking: ‘Here the supreme Wheel of Dhamma was rolled forth by the Realized One!’—that is an inspiring place.

‘Idha tathāgato anupādisesāya nibbānadhātuyā parinibbuto’ti, ānanda, saddhassa kulaputtassa dassanīyaṁ saṁvejanīyaṁ ṭhānaṁ.
Thinking: ‘Here the Realized One became fully extinguished through the natural principle of extinguishment, without anything left over!’—that is an inspiring place.

Imāni kho, ānanda, cattāri saddhassa kulaputtassa dassanīyāni saṁvejanīyāni ṭhānāni.
These are the four inspiring places that a faithful gentleman should go to see.

Āgamissanti kho, ānanda, saddhā bhikkhū bhikkhuniyo upāsakā upāsikāyo:
Faithful monks, nuns, laymen, and laywomen will come, and think:

‘idha tathāgato jāto’tipi, ‘idha tathāgato anuttaraṁ sammāsambodhiṁ abhisambuddho’tipi, ‘idha tathāgatena anuttaraṁ dhammacakkaṁ pavattitan’tipi, ‘idha tathāgato anupādisesāya nibbānadhātuyā parinibbuto’tipi.
‘Here the Realized One was born!’ and ‘Here the Realized One became awakened as a supreme fully awakened Buddha!’ and ‘Here the supreme Wheel of Dhamma was rolled forth by the Realized One!’ and ‘Here the Realized One became fully extinguished through the natural principle of extinguishment, without anything left over!’

Ye hi keci, ānanda, cetiyacārikaṁ āhiṇḍantā pasannacittā kālaṁ karissanti, sabbe te kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajjissantī”ti.
Anyone who passes away while on pilgrimage to these shrines will, when their body breaks up, after death, be reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.”

29. Ānandapucchākathā

29. Ānanda’s Questions

“Kathaṁ mayaṁ, bhante, mātugāme paṭipajjāmā”ti?
“Sir, how do we proceed when it comes to females?”

“Adassanaṁ, ānandā”ti.
“Without seeing, Ānanda.”

“Dassane, bhagavā, sati kathaṁ paṭipajjitabban”ti?
“But when seeing, how to proceed?”

“Anālāpo, ānandā”ti.
“Without getting into conversation, Ānanda.”

“Ālapantena pana, bhante, kathaṁ paṭipajjitabban”ti?
“But when in a conversation, how to proceed?”

“Sati, ānanda, upaṭṭhāpetabbā”ti.
“Be mindful, Ānanda.”

“Kathaṁ mayaṁ, bhante, tathāgatassa sarīre paṭipajjāmā”ti?
“Sir, how do we proceed when it comes to the Realized One’s corpse?”

“Abyāvaṭā tumhe, ānanda, hotha tathāgatassa sarīrapūjāya.
“Don’t get involved in the rites for venerating the Realized One’s corpse, Ānanda.

Iṅgha tumhe, ānanda, sāratthe ghaṭatha anuyuñjatha, sāratthe appamattā ātāpino pahitattā viharatha.

Please, Ānanda, you must all strive and practice for your own goal! Meditate diligent, keen, and resolute for your own goal!

Santānanda, khattiyapaṇḍitāpi brāhmaṇapaṇḍitāpi gahapatipaṇḍitāpi tathāgate abhippasannā, te tathāgatassa sarīrapūjaṁ karissantī”ti.
There are astute aristocrats, brahmins, and householders who are devoted to the Realized One. They will perform the rites for venerating the Realized One’s corpse.”

“Kathaṁ pana, bhante, tathāgatassa sarīre paṭipajjitabban”ti?
“But sir, how to proceed when it comes to the Realized One’s corpse?”

“Yathā kho, ānanda, rañño cakkavattissa sarīre paṭipajjanti, evaṁ tathāgatassa sarīre paṭipajjitabban”ti.
“Proceed in the same way as they do for the corpse of a wheel-turning monarch.”

“Kathaṁ pana, bhante, rañño cakkavattissa sarīre paṭipajjantī”ti?
“But how do they proceed with a wheel-turning monarch’s corpse?”

“Rañño, ānanda, cakkavattissa sarīraṁ ahatena vatthena veṭhenti, ahatena vatthena veṭhetvā vihatena kappāsena veṭhenti, vihatena kappāsena veṭhetvā ahatena vatthena veṭhenti.
“They wrap a wheel-turning monarch’s corpse with unworn cloth, then with uncarded cotton, then again with unworn cloth.

Etenupāyena pañcahi yugasatehi rañño cakkavattissa sarīraṁ veṭhetvā āyasāya teladoṇiyā pakkhipitvā aññissā āyasāya doṇiyā paṭikujjitvā sabbagandhānaṁ citakaṁ karitvā rañño cakkavattissa sarīraṁ jhāpenti.
In this way they wrap the corpse with five hundred double-layers. Then they place it in an iron case filled with oil and close it up with another case. Then, having built a funeral pyre out of all kinds of fragrant substances, they cremate the corpse.

Cātumahāpathe rañño cakkavattissa thūpaṁ karonti.
They build a monument for the wheel-turning monarch at the crossroads.

Evaṁ kho, ānanda, rañño cakkavattissa sarīre paṭipajjanti.
That’s how they proceed with a wheel-turning monarch’s corpse.

Yathā kho, ānanda, rañño cakkavattissa sarīre paṭipajjanti, evaṁ tathāgatassa sarīre paṭipajjitabbaṁ.
Proceed in the same way with the Realized One’s corpse.

Cātumahāpathe tathāgatassa thūpo kātabbo.
A monument for the Realized One is to be built at the crossroads.

Tattha ye mālaṁ vā gandhaṁ vā cuṇṇakaṁ vā āropessanti vā abhivādessanti vā cittaṁ vā pasādessanti tesaṁ taṁ bhavissati dīgharattaṁ hitāya sukhāya.
When someone there lifts up garlands or fragrance or powder, or bows, or inspires confidence in their heart, that will be for their lasting welfare and happiness.

30. Thūpārahapuggala

30. Persons Worthy of Monument

Cattārome, ānanda, thūpārahā.
Ānanda, these four are worthy of a monument.

Katame cattāro?
What four?

Tathāgato arahaṁ sammāsambuddho thūpāraho, paccekasambuddho thūpāraho, tathāgatassa sāvako thūpāraho, rājā cakkavattī thūpārahoti.
A Realized One, a perfected one, a fully awakened Buddha; a Buddha awakened for themselves; a disciple of a Realized One; and a wheel-turning monarch.

Kiñcānanda, atthavasaṁ paṭicca tathāgato arahaṁ sammāsambuddho thūpāraho?
And for what reason is a Realized One worthy of a monument?

‘Ayaṁ tassa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa thūpo’ti, ānanda, bahujanā cittaṁ pasādenti.
So that many people will inspire confidence in their hearts, thinking: ‘This is the monument for that Blessed One, perfected and fully awakened!’

Te tattha cittaṁ pasādetvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajjanti.
And having done so, when their body breaks up, after death, they are reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.

Idaṁ kho, ānanda, atthavasaṁ paṭicca tathāgato arahaṁ sammāsambuddho thūpāraho.
It is for this reason that a Realized One is worthy of a monument.

Kiñcānanda, atthavasaṁ paṭicca paccekasambuddho thūpāraho?
And for what reason is a Buddha awakened for themselves worthy of a monument?

‘Ayaṁ tassa bhagavato paccekasambuddhassa thūpo’ti, ānanda, bahujanā cittaṁ pasādenti.
So that many people will inspire confidence in their hearts, thinking: ‘This is the monument for that Buddha awakened for himself!’

Te tattha cittaṁ pasādetvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajjanti.
And having done so, when their body breaks up, after death, they are reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.

Idaṁ kho, ānanda, atthavasaṁ paṭicca paccekasambuddho thūpāraho.

It is for this reason that a Buddha awakened for himself is worthy of a monument.

Kiñcānanda, atthavasaṁ paṭicca tathāgatassa sāvako thūpāraho?
And for what reason is a Realized One’s disciple worthy of a monument?

‘Ayaṁ tassa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa sāvakassa thūpo’ti, ānanda, bahujanā cittaṁ pasādenti.
So that many people will inspire confidence in their hearts, thinking: ‘This is the monument for that Blessed One’s disciple!’

Te tattha cittaṁ pasādetvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajjanti.
And having done so, when their body breaks up, after death, they are reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.

Idaṁ kho, ānanda, atthavasaṁ paṭicca tathāgatassa sāvako thūpāraho.
It is for this reason that a Realized One’s disciple is worthy of a monument.

Kiñcānanda, atthavasaṁ paṭicca rājā cakkavattī thūpāraho?
And for what reason is a wheel-turning monarch worthy of a monument?

‘Ayaṁ tassa dhammikassa dhammarañño thūpo’ti, ānanda, bahujanā cittaṁ pasādenti.
So that many people will inspire confidence in their hearts, thinking: ‘This is the monument for that just and principled king!’

Te tattha cittaṁ pasādetvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajjanti.
And having done so, when their body breaks up, after death, they are reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.

Idaṁ kho, ānanda, atthavasaṁ paṭicca rājā cakkavattī thūpāraho.

It is for this reason that a wheel-turning monarch is worthy of a monument.

Ime kho, ānanda, cattāro thūpārahā”ti.
These four are worthy of a monument.”

31. Ānandaacchariyadhamma

31. Ānanda’s Incredible Qualities

Atha kho āyasmā ānando vihāraṁ pavisitvā kapisīsaṁ ālambitvā rodamāno aṭṭhāsi:
Then Venerable Ānanda entered a dwelling, and stood there leaning against the door-jamb and crying, “ahañca vatamhi sekho sakaraṇīyo, satthu ca me parinibbānaṁ bhavissati, yo mama anukampako”ti.

“Oh! I’m still only a trainee with work left to do; and my Teacher’s about to become fully extinguished, he who is so kind to me!”

Atha kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to the mendicants,

“kahaṁ nu kho, bhikkhave, ānando”ti?
“Mendicants, where is Ānanda?”

“Eso, bhante, āyasmā ānando vihāraṁ pavisitvā kapisīsaṁ ālambitvā rodamāno ṭhito:
“Sir, Ānanda has entered a dwelling, and stands there leaning against the door-jamb and crying:

‘ahañca vatamhi sekho sakaraṇīyo, satthu ca me parinibbānaṁ bhavissati, yo mama anukampako’”ti.
‘Oh! I’m still only a trainee with work left to do; and my Teacher’s about to become fully extinguished, he who is so kind to me!’”

Atha kho bhagavā aññataraṁ bhikkhuṁ āmantesi:
So the Buddha said to a certain monk,

“ehi tvaṁ, bhikkhu, mama vacanena ānandaṁ āmantehi:
“Please, monk, in my name tell Ānanda that ‘satthā taṁ, āvuso ānanda, āmantetī’”ti.

the teacher summons him.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho so bhikkhu bhagavato paṭissutvā yenāyasmā ānando tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ etadavoca:
“Yes, sir,” that monk replied. He went to Ānanda and said to him,

“satthā taṁ, āvuso ānanda, āmantetī”ti.
“Reverend Ānanda, the teacher summons you.”

“Evamāvuso”ti kho āyasmā ānando tassa bhikkhuno paṭissutvā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ bhagavā etadavoca:
“Yes, reverend,” Ānanda replied. He went to the Buddha, bowed, and sat down to one side. The Buddha said to him:

“alaṁ, ānanda, mā soci mā paridevi, nanu etaṁ, ānanda, mayā paṭikacceva akkhātaṁ:
“Enough, Ānanda! Do not grieve, do not lament. Did I not prepare for this when I explained that

‘sabbeheva piyehi manāpehi nānābhāvo vinābhāvo aññathābhāvo’;
we must be parted and separated from all we hold dear and beloved?

taṁ kutettha, ānanda, labbhā. Yaṁ taṁ jātaṁ bhūtaṁ saṅkhataṁ palokadhammaṁ, ‘taṁ vata tathāgatassāpi sarīraṁ mā palujjī’ti netaṁ ṭhānaṁ vijjati.

How could it possibly be so that what is born, created, conditioned, and liable to fall apart should not fall apart, even the Realized One’s body?

Dīgharattaṁ kho te, ānanda, tathāgato paccupaṭṭhito mettena kāyakammena hitena sukhena advayena appamāṇena, mettena vacīkammena hitena sukhena advayena appamāṇena, mettena manokammena hitena sukhena advayena appamāṇena.
For a long time, Ānanda, you’ve treated the Realized One with deeds of body, speech, and mind that are loving, beneficial, pleasant, whole-hearted, and limitless.

Katapuññosi tvaṁ, ānanda, padhānamanuyuñja, khippaṁ hohisi anāsavo”ti.
You have done good deeds, Ānanda. Devote yourself to meditation, and you will soon be free of defilements.”

Atha kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to the mendicants:

“yepi te, bhikkhave, ahesuṁ atītamaddhānaṁ arahanto sammāsambuddhā, tesampi bhagavantānaṁ etapparamāyeva upaṭṭhākā ahesuṁ, seyyathāpi mayhaṁ ānando.
“The Buddhas of the past or the future have attendants who are no better than Ānanda is for me.

Yepi te, bhikkhave, bhavissanti anāgatamaddhānaṁ arahanto sammāsambuddhā, tesampi bhagavantānaṁ etapparamāyeva upaṭṭhākā bhavissanti, seyyathāpi mayhaṁ ānando.

32. Mahāsudassanasuttadesanā
32. Teaching the Discourse on Mahāsudassana

Evaṁ vutte, āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he said this, Venerable Ānanda said to the Buddha:

“mā, bhante, bhagavā imasmiṁ khuddakanagarake ujjaṅgalanagarake sākhānagarake parinibbāyi.
“Sir, please don’t become fully extinguished in this little hamlet, this jungle hamlet, this branch hamlet.

Santi, bhante, aññāni mahānagarāni, seyyathidaṁ—
There are other great cities such as campā rājagahaṁ sāvatthī sāketaṁ kosambī bārāṇasī;

Campā, Rājagaha, Sāvatthī, Sāketa, Kosambī, and Benares.

ettha bhagavā parinibbāyatu.
Let the Buddha become fully extinguished there.

Ettha bahū khattiyamahāsālā, brāhmaṇamahāsālā gahapatimahāsālā tathāgate abhippasannā.
There are many well-to-do aristocrats, brahmins, and householders there who are devoted to the Buddha.

Te tathāgatassa sarīrapūjaṁ karissantī”ti
They will perform the rites of venerating the Realized One’s corpse.”

“mā hevaṁ, ānanda, avaca, mā hevaṁ, ānanda, avaca:
“Don’t say that Ānanda! Don’t say that

‘khuddakanagarakaṁ ujjaṅgalanagarakaṁ sākhānagarakan’ti.
this is a little hamlet, a jungle hamlet, a branch hamlet.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano nāma ahosi cakkavattī dhammiko dhammarājā cāturanto vijitāvī janapadatthāvariyappatto sattaratanasamannāgato.
Once upon a time there was a king named Mahāsudassana who was a wheel-turning monarch, a just and principled king. His dominion extended to all four sides, he achieved stability in the country, and he possessed the seven treasures.

Rañño, ānanda, mahāsudassanassa ayaṁ kusinārā kusāvatī nāma rājadhānī ahosi.
His capital was this Kusinārā, which at the time was named Kusāvatī.

puratthimena ca pacchimena ca dvādasayojanāni āyāmena; uttarena ca dakkhiṇena ca sattayojanāni vitthārena.
It stretched for twelve leagues from east to west, and seven leagues from north to south.

Kusāvatī, ānanda, rājadhānī iddhā ceva ahosi phītā ca bahujanā ca ākiṇṇamanussā ca subhikkhā ca.
The royal capital of Kusāvatī was successful, prosperous, populous, full of people, with plenty of food.

Seyyathāpi, ānanda, devānaṁ āḷakamandā nāma rājadhānī iddhā ceva hoti phītā ca bahujanā ca ākiṇṇayakkhā ca subhikkhā ca;
It was just like Āḷakamandā, the royal capital of the gods, which is successful, prosperous, populous, full of spirits, with plenty of food.

evameva kho, ānanda, kusāvatī rājadhānī iddhā ceva ahosi phītā ca bahujanā ca ākiṇṇamanussā ca subhikkhā ca.

Kusāvatī, ānanda, rājadhānī dasahi saddehi avivittā ahosi divā ceva rattiñca, seyyathidaṁ—Kusāvatī was never free of ten sounds by day or night, namely:

hatthisaddena assasaddena rathasaddena bherisaddena mudiṅgasaddena vīṇāsaddena gītasaddena saṅkhasaddena sammasaddena pāṇitāḷasaddena ‘asnātha pivatha khādathā’ti dasamena saddena.

the sound of elephants, horses, chariots, drums, clay drums, arched harps, singing, horns, gongs, and handbells; and the cry: ‘Eat, drink, be merry!’ as the tenth.

Gaccha tvaṁ, ānanda, kusināraṁ pavisitvā kosinārakānaṁ mallānaṁ ārocehi:
Go, Ānanda, into Kusinārā and inform the Mallas:

‘ajja kho, vāseṭṭhā, rattiyā pacchime yāme tathāgatassa parinibbānaṁ bhavissati.
‘This very day, Vāseṭṭhas, in the last watch of the night, the Realized One will become fully extinguished.

Abhikkamatha, vāseṭṭhā, abhikkamatha, vāseṭṭhā.
Come forth, Vāseṭṭhas! Come forth, Vāseṭṭhas!

Mā pacchā vippaṭisārino ahuvattha—
Don’t regret it later, thinking:

amhākañca no gāmakkhette tathāgatassa parinibbānaṁ ahosi, na mayaṁ labhimhā pacchime kāle tathāgataṁ dassanāyā’”ti.
‘The Realized One became fully extinguished in our own village district, but we didn’t get a chance to see him in his final hour.’”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paṭissutvā nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya attadutiyo kusināraṁ pāvisi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Ānanda. Then he robed up and, taking his bowl and robe, entered Kusinārā with a companion.

33. Mallānaṁvandanā

33. The Mallas Pay Homage

Tena kho pana samayena kosinārakā mallā sandhāgāre sannipatitā honti kenacideva karaṇīyena.

Now at that time the Mallas of Kusinārā were sitting together at the meeting hall on some business.

Atha kho āyasmā ānando yena kosinārakānaṁ mallānaṁ sandhāgāraṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā kosinārakānaṁ mallānaṁ ārocesi:
Ānanda went up to them, and announced:

“ajja kho, vāseṭṭhā, rattiyā pacchime yāme tathāgatassa parinibbānaṁ bhavissati.
“This very day, Vāseṭṭhas, in the last watch of the night, the Realized One will become fully extinguished.

Abhikkamatha, vāseṭṭhā, abhikkamatha, vāseṭṭhā.
Come forth, Vāseṭṭhas! Come forth, Vāseṭṭhas!

Mā pacchā vippaṭisārino ahuvattha:
Don’t regret it later, thinking:

‘amhākañca no gāmakkhette tathāgatassa parinibbānaṁ ahosi, na mayaṁ labhimhā pacchime kāle tathāgataṁ dassanāyā’”ti.
‘The Realized One became fully extinguished in our own village district, but we didn’t get a chance to see him in his final hour.’”

Idamāyasmato ānandassa vacanaṁ sutvā mallā ca mallaputtā ca mallasuṇisā ca mallapajāpatiyo ca aghāvino dummanā cetodukkhasamappitā appekacce kese pakiriya kandanti, bāhā paggayha kandanti, chinnapātaṁ papatanti, āvaṭṭanti vivaṭṭanti:
When they heard what Ānanda had to say, the Mallas, their sons, daughters-in-law, and wives became distraught, saddened, and grief-stricken. And some, with hair disheveled and arms raised, falling down like their feet were chopped off, rolling back and forth, lamented, “atikhippaṁ bhagavā parinibbāyissati, atikhippaṁ sugato parinibbāyissati, atikhippaṁ cakkhuṁ loke antaradhāyissatī”ti.

“Too soon the Blessed One will become fully extinguished! Too soon the Holy One will become fully extinguished! Too soon the seer will vanish from the world!”

Atha kho mallā ca mallaputtā ca mallasuṇisā ca mallapajāpatiyo ca aghāvino dummanā cetodukkhasamappitā yena upavattanaṁ mallānaṁ sālavanaṁ yenāyasmā ānando tenupasaṅkamiṁsu.
Then the Mallas, their sons, daughters-in-law, and wives, distraught, saddened, and grief-stricken went to the Mallian sal grove at Upavattana and approached Ānanda.

Atha kho āyasmato ānandassa etadahosi:
Then Ānanda thought,

“sace kho ahaṁ kosinārake malle ekamekaṁ bhagavantaṁ vandāpessāmi, avandito bhagavā kosinārakehi mallehi bhavissati, athāyaṁ ratti vibhāyissati.
“If I have the Mallas pay homage to the Buddha one by one, they won’t be finished before first light.

Yannūnāhaṁ kosinārake malle kulaparivattaso kulaparivattaso ṭhapetvā bhagavantaṁ vandāpeyyaṁ:
I’d better separate them family by family and then have them pay homage, saying:

‘itthannāmo, bhante, mallo saputto sabhariyo sapariso sāmacco bhagavato pāde sirasā vandatī’”ti.
‘Sir, the Malla named so-and-so with children, wives, retinue, and ministers bows with his head at your feet.’”

Atha kho āyasmā ānando kosinārake malle kulaparivattaso kulaparivattaso ṭhapetvā bhagavantaṁ vandāpesi:
And so that’s what he did.

“itthannāmo, bhante, mallo saputto sabhariyo sapariso sāmacco bhagavato pāde sirasā vandatī”ti.

Atha kho āyasmā ānando etena upāyena paṭhameneva yāmena kosinārake malle bhagavantaṁ vandāpesi.
So by this means Ānanda got the Mallas to finish paying homage to the Buddha in the first watch of the night.

34. Subhaddaparibbājakavatthu

34. On Subhadda the Wanderer

Tena kho pana samayena subhaddo nāma paribbājako kusinārāyaṁ paṭivasati.
Now at that time a wanderer named Subhadda was residing near Kusinārā.

Assosi kho subhaddo paribbājako:
He heard that

“ajja kira rattiyā pacchime yāme samaṇassa gotamassa parinibbānaṁ bhavissatī”ti. on that very day, in the last watch of the night, the ascetic Gotama would become fully extinguished.

Atha kho subhaddassa paribbājakassa etadahosi:
He thought:

“sutaṁ kho pana metaṁ paribbājakānaṁ vuḍḍhānaṁ mahallakānaṁ ācariyapācariyānaṁ bhāsamānānaṁ:
“I have heard that brahmins of the past who were elderly and senior, the teachers of teachers, said:

‘kadāci karahaci tathāgatā loke uppajjanti arahanto sammāsambuddhā’ti.
‘Only rarely do Realized Ones arise in the world, perfected ones, fully awakened Buddhas.’

Ajjeva rattiyā pacchime yāme samaṇassa gotamassa parinibbānaṁ bhavissati.
And this very day, in the last watch of the night, the ascetic Gotama will become fully extinguished.

Atthi ca me ayaṁ kaṅkhādhammo uppanno,
This state of uncertainty has come up in me.

evaṁ pasanno ahaṁ samaṇe gotame, ‘pahoti me samaṇo gotamo tathā dhammaṁ desetuṁ, yathāhaṁ imaṁ kaṅkhādhammaṁ pajaheyyan’”ti.
I am quite confident that the Buddha is capable of teaching me so that I can give up this state of uncertainty.”

Atha kho subhaddo paribbājako yena upavattanaṁ mallānaṁ sālavanaṁ, yenāyasmā ānando tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ etadavoca:
Then Subhadda went to the Mallian sal grove at Upavattana, approached Ānanda, and said to him,

“sutaṁ metaṁ, bho ānanda, paribbājakānaṁ vuḍḍhānaṁ mahallakānaṁ ācariyapācariyānaṁ bhāsamānānaṁ:
“Master Ānanda, I have heard that brahmins of the past who were elderly and senior, the teachers of teachers, said:

‘kadāci karahaci tathāgatā loke uppajjanti arahanto sammāsambuddhā’ti.
‘Only rarely do Realized Ones arise in the world, perfected ones, fully awakened Buddhas.’

Ajjeva rattiyā pacchime yāme samaṇassa gotamassa parinibbānaṁ bhavissati.
And this very day, in the last watch of the night, the ascetic Gotama will become fully extinguished.

Atthi ca me ayaṁ kaṅkhādhammo uppanno—
This state of uncertainty has come up in me.

evaṁ pasanno ahaṁ samaṇe gotame ‘pahoti me samaṇo gotamo tathā dhammaṁ desetuṁ, yathāhaṁ imaṁ kaṅkhādhammaṁ pajaheyyan’ti.
I am quite confident that the Buddha is capable of teaching me so that I can give up this state of uncertainty.

Sādhāhaṁ, bho ānanda, labheyyaṁ samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ dassanāyā”ti.
Master Ānanda, please let me see the ascetic Gotama.”

Evaṁ vutte, āyasmā ānando subhaddaṁ paribbājakaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, Ānanda said,

“alaṁ, āvuso subhadda, mā tathāgataṁ viheṭhesi, kilanto bhagavā”ti.
“Enough, Reverend Subhadda, do not trouble the Realized One. He is tired.”

Dutiyampi kho subhaddo paribbājako …pe…
For a second time,

tatiyampi kho subhaddo paribbājako āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ etadavoca:
and a third time, Subhadda asked Ānanda, and a third time Ānanda refused.

“sutaṁ metaṁ, bho ānanda, paribbājakānaṁ vuḍḍhānaṁ mahallakānaṁ ācariyapācariyānaṁ bhāsamānānaṁ:

‘kadāci karahaci tathāgatā loke uppajjanti arahanto sammāsambuddhā’ti.

Ajjeva rattiyā pacchime yāme samaṇassa gotamassa parinibbānaṁ bhavissati.

Atthi ca me ayaṁ kaṅkhādhammo uppanno—

evaṁ pasanno ahaṁ samaṇe gotame, ‘pahoti me samaṇo gotamo tathā dhammaṁ desetuṁ, yathāhaṁ imaṁ kaṅkhādhammaṁ pajaheyyan’ti.

Sādhāhaṁ, bho ānanda, labheyyaṁ samaṇaṁ gotamaṁ dassanāyā”ti.

Tatiyampi kho āyasmā ānando subhaddaṁ paribbājakaṁ etadavoca:

“alaṁ, āvuso subhadda, mā tathāgataṁ viheṭhesi, kilanto bhagavā”ti.

Assosi kho bhagavā āyasmato ānandassa subhaddena paribbājakena saddhiṁ imaṁ kathāsallāpaṁ.
The Buddha heard that discussion between Ānanda and Subhadda.

Atha kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
He said to Ānanda,

“alaṁ, ānanda, mā subhaddaṁ vāresi, labhataṁ, ānanda, subhaddo tathāgataṁ dassanāya.
“Enough, Ānanda, don’t obstruct Subhadda; let him see the Realized One.

Yaṁ kiñci maṁ subhaddo pucchissati, sabbaṁ taṁ aññāpekkhova pucchissati, no vihesāpekkho.
For whatever he asks me, he will only be looking for understanding, not trouble.

Yañcassāhaṁ puṭṭho byākarissāmi, taṁ khippameva ājānissatī”ti.
And he will quickly understand any answer I give to his question.”

Atha kho āyasmā ānando subhaddaṁ paribbājakaṁ etadavoca:
So Ānanda said to the wanderer Subhadda,

“gacchāvuso subhadda, karoti te bhagavā okāsan”ti.
“Go, Reverend Subhadda, the Buddha is taking the time for you.”

Atha kho subhaddo paribbājako yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodi, sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho subhaddo paribbājako bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then the wanderer Subhadda went up to the Buddha, and exchanged greetings with him. When the greetings and polite conversation were over, he sat down to one side and said to the Buddha:

“yeme, bho gotama, samaṇabrāhmaṇā saṅghino gaṇino gaṇācariyā ñātā yasassino titthakarā sādhusammatā bahujanassa, “Master Gotama, there are those ascetics and brahmins who lead an order and a community, and teach a community. They’re well-known and famous religious founders, regarded as holy by many people.

seyyathidaṁ—pūraṇo kassapo, makkhali gosālo, ajito kesakambalo, pakudho kaccāyano, sañcayo belaṭṭhaputto, nigaṇṭho nāṭaputto, Namely: Pūraṇa Kassapa, Makkhali Gosāla, Nigaṇṭha Nāṭaputta, Sañjaya Belaṭṭhiputta, Pakudha Kaccāyana, and Ajita Kesakambala.

sabbete sakāya paṭiññāya abbhaññiṁsu, sabbeva na abbhaññiṁsu, udāhu ekacce abbhaññiṁsu, ekacce na abbhaññiṁsū”ti?
According to their own claims, did all of them have direct knowledge, or none of them, or only some?”

“Alaṁ, subhadda, tiṭṭhatetaṁ: “Enough, Subhadda, let that be.

‘sabbete sakāya paṭiññāya abbhaññiṁsu, sabbeva na abbhaññiṁsu, udāhu ekacce abbhaññiṁsu, ekacce na abbhaññiṁsū’ti.

Dhammaṁ te, subhadda, desessāmi;
I shall teach you the Dhamma.

taṁ suṇāhi sādhukaṁ manasikarohi, bhāsissāmī”ti.
Listen and pay close attention, I will speak.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho subhaddo paribbājako bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Subhadda replied.

Bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said this:

“Yasmiṁ kho, subhadda, dhammavinaye ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo na upalabbhati, samaṇopi tattha na upalabbhati. Dutiyopi tattha samaṇo na upalabbhati. Tatiyopi tattha samaṇo na upalabbhati. Catutthopi tattha samaṇo na upalabbhati.
“Subhadda, in whatever teaching and training the noble eightfold path is not found, there is no true ascetic found, no second ascetic, no third ascetic, and no fourth ascetic.

Yasmiñca kho, subhadda, dhammavinaye ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo upalabbhati, samaṇopi tattha upalabbhati, dutiyopi tattha samaṇo upalabbhati, tatiyopi tattha samaṇo upalabbhati, catutthopi tattha samaṇo upalabbhati.
In whatever teaching and training the noble eightfold path is found, there is a true ascetic found, a second ascetic, a third ascetic, and a fourth ascetic.

Imasmiṁ kho, subhadda, dhammavinaye ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo upalabbhati, idheva, subhadda, samaṇo, idha dutiyo samaṇo, idha tatiyo samaṇo, idha catuttho samaṇo, suññā parappavādā samaṇebhi aññehi.
In this teaching and training the noble eightfold path is found. Only here is there a true ascetic, here a second ascetic, here a third ascetic, and here a fourth ascetic. Other sects are empty of ascetics.

Ime ca, subhadda, bhikkhū sammā vihareyyuṁ, asuñño loko arahantehi assāti.
Were these mendicants to practice well, the world would not be empty of perfected ones.

Ekūnatiṁso vayasā subhadda,
I was twenty-nine years of age, Subaddha,

Yaṁ pabbajiṁ kiṅkusalānuesī;
when I went forth to discover what is skillful.

Vassāni paññāsa samādhikāni,
It’s been over fifty years

> Yato ahaṁ pabbajito subhadda;
> since I went forth.
>
> Ñāyassa dhammassa padesavattī,
> I am the one who points out the proper teaching:
>
> Ito bahiddhā samaṇopi natthi.
> Outside of here there is no true ascetic.

Dutiyopi samaṇo natthi.

Tatiyopi samaṇo natthi.

Catutthopi samaṇo natthi.

Suññā parappavādā samaṇebhi aññehi.

Ime ca, subhadda, bhikkhū sammā vihareyyuṁ, asuñño loko arahantehi assā”ti.
Were these mendicants to practice well, the world would not be empty of perfected ones.”

Evaṁ vutte, subhaddo paribbājako bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, Subhadda said to the Buddha,

“abhikkantaṁ, bhante, abhikkantaṁ, bhante.
“Excellent, sir! Excellent!

Seyyathāpi, bhante, nikkujjitaṁ vā ukkujjeyya, paṭicchannaṁ vā vivareyya, mūḷhassa vā maggaṁ ācikkheyya, andhakāre vā telapajjotaṁ dhāreyya: ‘cakkhumanto rūpāni dakkhantī’ti; evamevaṁ bhagavatā anekapariyāyena dhammo pakāsito.
As if he were righting the overturned, or revealing the hidden, or pointing out the path to the lost, or lighting a lamp in the dark so people with good eyes can see what’s there, the Buddha has made the teaching clear in many ways.

Esāhaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ saraṇaṁ gacchāmi dhammañca bhikkhusaṅghañca.

I go for refuge to the Buddha, to the teaching, and to the mendicant Saṅgha.

Labheyyāhaṁ, bhante, bhagavato santike pabbajjaṁ, labheyyaṁ upasampadan”ti.
Sir, may I receive the going forth, the ordination in the Buddha’s presence?”

“Yo kho, subhadda, aññatitthiyapubbo imasmiṁ dhammavinaye ākaṅkhati pabbajjaṁ, ākaṅkhati upasampadaṁ, so cattāro māse parivasati. Catunnaṁ māsānaṁ accayena āraddhacittā bhikkhū pabbājenti upasampādenti bhikkhubhāvāya.
“Subhadda, if someone formerly ordained in another sect wishes to take the going forth, the ordination in this teaching and training, they must spend four months on probation. When four months have passed, if the mendicants are satisfied, they’ll give the going forth, the ordination into monkhood.

Api ca mettha puggalavemattatā viditā”ti.
However, I have recognized individual differences in this matter.”

“Sace, bhante, aññatitthiyapubbā imasmiṁ dhammavinaye ākaṅkhantā pabbajjaṁ ākaṅkhantā upasampadaṁ cattāro māse parivasanti, catunnaṁ māsānaṁ accayena āraddhacittā bhikkhū pabbājenti upasampādenti bhikkhubhāvāya. Ahaṁ cattāri vassāni parivasissāmi, catunnaṁ vassānaṁ accayena āraddhacittā bhikkhū pabbājentu upasampādentu bhikkhubhāvāyā”ti.
“Sir, if four months probation are required in such a case, I’ll spend four years on probation. When four years have passed, if the mendicants are satisfied, let them give me the going forth, the ordination into monkhood.”

Atha kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to Ānanda,

“tenahānanda, subhaddaṁ pabbājehī”ti.

“Well then, Ānanda, give Subhadda the going forth.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Ānanda replied.

Atha kho subhaddo paribbājako āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ etadavoca:
Then Subhadda said to Ānanda,

“lābhā vo, āvuso ānanda; suladdhaṁ vo, āvuso ānanda, “You’re so fortunate, Reverend Ānanda, so very fortunate, ye ettha satthu sammukhā antevāsikābhisekena abhisittā”ti.

to be anointed here in the Teacher’s presence as his pupil!”

Alattha kho subhaddo paribbājako bhagavato santike pabbajjaṁ, alattha upasampadaṁ.
And the wanderer Subhadda received the going forth, the ordination in the Buddha’s presence.

Acirūpasampanno kho panāyasmā subhaddo eko vūpakaṭṭho appamatto ātāpī pahitatto viharanto nacirasseva—yassatthāya kulaputtā sammadeva agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajanti—tadanuttaraṁ brahmacariyapariyosānaṁ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja vihāsi.
Not long after his ordination, Venerable Subhadda, living alone, withdrawn, diligent, keen, and resolute, soon realized the supreme end of the spiritual path in this very life. He lived having achieved with his own insight the goal for which gentlemen rightly go forth from the lay life to homelessness.

“Khīṇā jāti, vusitaṁ brahmacariyaṁ, kataṁ karaṇīyaṁ, nāparaṁ itthattāyā”ti abbhaññāsi.
He understood: “Rebirth is ended; the spiritual journey has been completed; what had to be done has been done; there is no return to any state of existence.”

Aññataro kho panāyasmā subhaddo arahataṁ ahosi.

And Venerable Subhadda became one of the perfected.

So bhagavato pacchimo sakkhisāvako ahosīti.
He was the last personal disciple of the Buddha.

Pañcamo bhāṇavāro.

35. Tathāgatapacchimavācā

35. The Buddha’s Last Words

Atha kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha addressed Venerable Ānanda:

“siyā kho panānanda, tumhākaṁ evamassa:
“Now, Ānanda, some of you might think:

‘atītasatthukaṁ pāvacanaṁ, natthi no satthā’ti.
‘The teacher’s dispensation has passed. Now we have no Teacher.’

Na kho panetaṁ, ānanda, evaṁ daṭṭhabbaṁ.
But you should not see it like this.

Yo vo, ānanda, mayā dhammo ca vinayo ca desito paññatto, so vo mamaccayena satthā.
The teaching and training that I have taught and pointed out for you shall be your Teacher after my passing.

Yathā kho panānanda, etarahi bhikkhū aññamaññaṁ āvusovādena samudācaranti, na kho mamaccayena evaṁ samudācaritabbaṁ.
After my passing, mendicants ought not address each other as ‘reverend’, as they do today.

Theratarena, ānanda, bhikkhunā navakataro bhikkhu nāmena vā gottena vā āvusovādena vā samudācaritabbo.

A more senior mendicant ought to address a more junior mendicant by name or clan, or by saying ‘reverend’.

Navakatarena bhikkhunā therataro bhikkhu ‘bhante’ti vā ‘āyasmā’ti vā samudācaritabbo.
A more junior mendicant ought to address a more senior mendicant using ‘sir’ or ‘venerable’.

Ākaṅkhamāno, ānanda, saṅgho mamaccayena khuddānukhuddakāni sikkhāpadāni samūhanatu.
If it wishes, after my passing the Saṅgha may abolish the lesser and minor training rules.

Channassa, ānanda, bhikkhuno mamaccayena brahmadaṇḍo dātabbo”ti.
After my passing, give the prime punishment to the mendicant Channa.”

“Katamo pana, bhante, brahmadaṇḍo”ti?
“But sir, what is the prime punishment?”

“Channo, ānanda, bhikkhu yaṁ iccheyya, taṁ vadeyya.
“Channa may say what he likes,

So bhikkhūhi neva vattabbo, na ovaditabbo, na anusāsitabbo”ti.
but the mendicants should not advise or instruct him.”

Atha kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to the mendicants,

“siyā kho pana, bhikkhave, ekabhikkhussāpi kaṅkhā vā vimati vā buddhe vā dhamme vā saṅghe vā magge vā paṭipadāya vā, pucchatha, bhikkhave, mā pacchā vippaṭisārino ahuvattha:
“Perhaps even a single mendicant has doubt or uncertainty regarding the Buddha, the teaching, the Saṅgha, the path, or the practice. So ask, mendicants! Don’t regret it later, thinking:

‘sammukhībhūto no satthā ahosi, na mayaṁ sakkhimhā bhagavantaṁ sammukhā paṭipucchitun’”ti.
‘We were in the Teacher’s presence and we weren’t able to ask the Buddha a question.’”

Evaṁ vutte, te bhikkhū tuṇhī ahesuṁ.
When this was said, the mendicants kept silent.

Dutiyampi kho bhagavā …pe…
For a second time,

tatiyampi kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
and a third time the Buddha addressed the mendicants:

“siyā kho pana, bhikkhave, ekabhikkhussāpi kaṅkhā vā vimati vā buddhe vā dhamme vā saṅghe vā magge vā paṭipadāya vā, pucchatha, bhikkhave, mā pacchā vippaṭisārino ahuvattha:
“Perhaps even a single mendicant has doubt or uncertainty regarding the Buddha, the teaching, the Saṅgha, the path, or the practice. So ask, mendicants! Don’t regret it later, thinking:

‘sammukhībhūto no satthā ahosi, na mayaṁ sakkhimhā bhagavantaṁ sammukhā paṭipucchitun’”ti.
‘We were in the Teacher’s presence and we weren’t able to ask the Buddha a question.’”

Tatiyampi kho te bhikkhū tuṇhī ahesuṁ.
For a third time, the mendicants kept silent.

Atha kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to the mendicants,

“siyā kho pana, bhikkhave, satthugāravenapi na puccheyyātha. Sahāyakopi, bhikkhave, sahāyakassa ārocetū”ti.
“Mendicants, perhaps you don’t ask out of respect for the Teacher. So let a friend tell a friend.”

Evaṁ vutte, te bhikkhū tuṇhī ahesuṁ.
When this was said, the mendicants kept silent.

Atha kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Venerable Ānanda said to the Buddha,

“acchariyaṁ, bhante, abbhutaṁ, bhante, evaṁ pasanno ahaṁ, bhante, imasmiṁ bhikkhusaṅghe, ‘natthi ekabhikkhussāpi kaṅkhā vā vimati vā buddhe vā dhamme vā saṅghe vā magge vā paṭipadāya vā’”ti.
“It’s incredible, sir, it’s amazing! I am quite confident that there’s not even a single mendicant in this Saṅgha who has doubt or uncertainty regarding the Buddha, the teaching, the Saṅgha, the path, or the practice.”

“Pasādā kho tvaṁ, ānanda, vadesi, ñāṇameva hettha, ānanda, tathāgatassa. Natthi imasmiṁ bhikkhusaṅghe ekabhikkhussāpi kaṅkhā vā vimati vā buddhe vā dhamme vā saṅghe vā magge vā paṭipadāya vā.
“Ānanda, you speak from faith. But the Realized One knows that there’s not even a single mendicant in this Saṅgha who has doubt or uncertainty regarding the Buddha, the teaching, the Saṅgha, the path, or the practice.

Imesañhi, ānanda, pañcannaṁ bhikkhusatānaṁ yo pacchimako bhikkhu, so sotāpanno avinipātadhammo niyato sambodhiparāyaṇo”ti.
Even the last of these five hundred mendicants is a stream-enterer, not liable to be reborn in the underworld, bound for awakening.”

Atha kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to the mendicants:

“handa dāni, bhikkhave, āmantayāmi vo,
“Come now, mendicants, I say to you all:

vayadhammā saṅkhārā appamādena sampādethā”ti.

‘Conditions fall apart. Persist with diligence.’”

Ayaṁ tathāgatassa pacchimā vācā.
These were the Realized One’s last words.

36. Parinibbutakathā
36. The Full Extinguishment

Atha kho bhagavā paṭhamaṁ jhānaṁ samāpajji, paṭhamajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā dutiyaṁ jhānaṁ samāpajji, dutiyajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā tatiyaṁ jhānaṁ samāpajji, tatiyajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā catutthaṁ jhānaṁ samāpajji, catutthajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā ākāsānañcāyatanaṁ samāpajji, ākāsānañcāyatanasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahitvā viññāṇañcāyatanaṁ samāpajji, viññāṇañcāyatanasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahitvā ākiñcaññāyatanaṁ samāpajji, ākiñcaññāyatanasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahitvā nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṁ samāpajji, nevasaññānāsaññāyatanasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahitvā saññāvedayitanirodhaṁ samāpajji.
Then the Buddha entered the first absorption. Emerging from that, he entered the second absorption. Emerging from that, he successively entered into and emerged from the third absorption, the fourth absorption, the dimension of infinite space, the dimension of infinite consciousness, the dimension of nothingness, and the dimension of neither perception nor non-perception. Then he entered the cessation of perception and feeling.

Atha kho āyasmā ānando āyasmantaṁ anuruddhaṁ etadavoca:
Then Venerable Ānanda said to Venerable Anuruddha,

“parinibbuto, bhante anuruddha, bhagavā”ti.
“Venerable Anuruddha, has the Buddha become fully extinguished?”

“Nāvuso ānanda, bhagavā parinibbuto, saññāvedayitanirodhaṁ samāpanno”ti.
“No, Reverend Ānanda. He has entered the cessation of perception and feeling.”

Atha kho bhagavā saññāvedayitanirodhasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahitvā nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṁ samāpajji, nevasaññānāsaññāyatanasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahitvā ākiñcaññāyatanaṁ samāpajji, ākiñcaññāyatanasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahitvā viññāṇañcāyatanaṁ samāpajji, viññāṇañcāyatanasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahitvā ākāsānañcāyatanaṁ samāpajji, ākāsānañcāyatanasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahitvā catutthaṁ jhānaṁ samāpajji, catutthajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā tatiyaṁ jhānaṁ samāpajji, tatiyajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā dutiyaṁ jhānaṁ samāpajji, dutiyajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā paṭhamaṁ jhānaṁ samāpajji, paṭhamajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā dutiyaṁ jhānaṁ samāpajji, dutiyajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā tatiyaṁ jhānaṁ samāpajji, tatiyajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā catutthaṁ jhānaṁ samāpajji, catutthajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā samanantarā bhagavā parinibbāyi.
Then the Buddha emerged from the cessation of perception and feeling and entered the dimension of neither perception nor non-perception. Emerging from that, he successively entered into and emerged from the dimension of nothingness, the dimension of infinite consciousness, the dimension of infinite space, the fourth absorption, the third absorption, the second absorption, and the first absorption. Emerging from that, he successively entered into and emerged from the second absorption and the third absorption. Then he entered the fourth absorption. Emerging from that the Buddha immediately became fully extinguished.

Parinibbute bhagavati saha parinibbānā mahābhūmicālo ahosi bhiṁsanako salomahaṁso. Devadundubhiyo ca phaliṁsu.
When the Buddha became fully extinguished, along with the full extinguishment there was a great earthquake, awe-inspiring and hair-raising, and thunder cracked the sky.

Parinibbute bhagavati saha parinibbānā brahmāsahampati imaṁ gāthaṁ abhāsi:
When the Buddha became fully extinguished, Brahmā Sahampati recited this verse:

“Sabbeva nikkhipissanti,
“All creatures in this world

bhūtā loke samussayaṁ;
must lay down this bag of bones.

Yattha etādiso satthā,
For even a Teacher such as this,

loke appaṭipuggalo;
unrivaled in the world,

Tathāgato balappatto,
the Realized One, attained to power,

sambuddho parinibbuto”ti.
the Buddha became fully extinguished.”

Parinibbute bhagavati saha parinibbānā sakko devānamindo imaṁ gāthaṁ abhāsi:
When the Buddha became fully extinguished, Sakka, lord of gods, recited this verse:

“Aniccā vata saṅkhārā,
“Oh! Conditions are impermanent,

uppādavayadhammino;
their nature is to rise and fall;

Uppajjitvā nirujjhanti,
having arisen, they cease;

tesaṁ vūpasamo sukho”ti.
their stilling is true bliss.”

Parinibbute bhagavati saha parinibbānā āyasmā anuruddho imā gāthāyo abhāsi:
When the Buddha became fully extinguished, Venerable Anuruddha recited this verse:

“Nāhu assāsapassāso,
“There was no more breathing

ṭhitacittassa tādino;
for the poised one of steady heart.

Anejo santimārabbha, Imperturbable, committed to peace,

yaṁ kālamakarī muni.
the sage has done his time.

Asallīnena cittena,
He put up with painful feelings

vedanaṁ ajjhavāsayi;
without flinching.

Pajjotasseva nibbānaṁ,
The liberation of his heart vimokkho cetaso ahū”ti.

was like the extinguishing of a lamp.”

Parinibbute bhagavati saha parinibbānā āyasmā ānando imaṁ gāthaṁ abhāsi:
When the Buddha became fully extinguished, Venerable Ānanda recited this verse:

“Tadāsi yaṁ bhiṁsanakaṁ, “Then there was terror!

tadāsi lomahaṁsanaṁ;
Then they had goosebumps!

> Sabbākāravarūpete,
> When the Buddha, endowed with all fine qualities,
>
> sambuddhe parinibbute”ti.
> became fully extinguished.”

Parinibbute bhagavati ye te tattha bhikkhū avītarāgā appekacce bāhā paggayha kandanti, chinnapātaṁ papatanti, āvaṭṭanti vivaṭṭanti, “atikhippaṁ bhagavā parinibbuto, atikhippaṁ sugato parinibbuto, atikhippaṁ cakkhuṁ loke antarahito”ti.
When the Buddha became fully extinguished, some of the mendicants there, with arms raised, falling down like their feet were chopped off, rolling back and forth, lamented: “Too soon the Blessed One has become fully extinguished! Too soon the Holy One has become fully extinguished! Too soon the seer has vanished from the world!”

Ye pana te bhikkhū vītarāgā, te satā sampajānā adhivāsenti:
But the mendicants who were free of desire endured, mindful and aware, thinking,

“aniccā saṅkhārā, taṁ kutettha labbhā”ti.
“Conditions are impermanent. How could it possibly be otherwise?”

Atha kho āyasmā anuruddho bhikkhū āmantesi:
Then Anuruddha addressed the mendicants:

“alaṁ, āvuso, mā socittha mā paridevittha.
“Enough, reverends, do not grieve or lament.

Nanu etaṁ, āvuso, bhagavatā paṭikacceva akkhātaṁ:
Did the Buddha not prepare us for this when he explained that ‘sabbeheva piyehi manāpehi nānābhāvo vinābhāvo aññathābhāvo’.

we must be parted and separated from all we hold dear and beloved?

Taṁ kutettha, āvuso, labbhā. ‘Yaṁ taṁ jātaṁ bhūtaṁ saṅkhataṁ palokadhammaṁ, taṁ vata mā palujjī’ti, netaṁ ṭhānaṁ vijjati.

Devatā, āvuso, ujjhāyantī”ti.
The deities are complaining.”

“Kathaṁbhūtā pana, bhante, āyasmā anuruddho devatā manasi karotī”ti?
“But sir, what kind of deities are you thinking of?”

“Santāvuso ānanda, devatā ākāse pathavīsaññiniyo kese pakiriya kandanti, bāhā paggayha kandanti, chinnapātaṁ papatanti, āvaṭṭanti, vivaṭṭanti:
“There are, Ānanda, deities—both in the sky and on the earth—who are percipient of the earth. With hair disheveled and arms raised, they fall down like their feet were chopped off, rolling back and forth, lamenting:

‘atikhippaṁ bhagavā parinibbuto, atikhippaṁ sugato parinibbuto, atikhippaṁ cakkhuṁ loke antarahito’ti.
‘Too soon the Blessed One has become fully extinguished! Too soon the Holy One has become fully extinguished! Too soon the seer has vanished from the world!’

Atha kho āyasmā ca anuruddho āyasmā ca ānando taṁ rattāvasesaṁ dhammiyā kathāya vītināmesuṁ.
Ānanda and Anuruddha spent the rest of the night talking about Dhamma.

Atha kho āyasmā anuruddho āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ āmantesi:
Then Anuruddha said to Ānanda,

“gacchāvuso ānanda, kusināraṁ pavisitvā kosinārakānaṁ mallānaṁ ārocehi:
“Go, Ānanda, into Kusinārā and inform the Mallas:

‘parinibbuto, vāseṭṭhā, bhagavā,
‘Vāseṭṭhas, the Buddha has become fully extinguished.

yassadāni kālaṁ maññathā’”ti.

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā ānando āyasmato anuruddhassa paṭissutvā pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya attadutiyo kusināraṁ pāvisi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Ānanda. Then, in the morning, he robed up and, taking his bowl and robe, entered Kusinārā with a companion.

Tena kho pana samayena kosinārakā mallā sandhāgāre sannipatitā honti teneva karaṇīyena.
Now at that time the Mallas of Kusinārā were sitting together at the meeting hall on some business.

Atha kho āyasmā ānando yena kosinārakānaṁ mallānaṁ sandhāgāraṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā kosinārakānaṁ mallānaṁ ārocesi:
Ānanda went up to them, and announced,

“parinibbuto, vāseṭṭhā, bhagavā,

When they heard what Ānanda had to say, the Mallas, their sons, daughters-in-law, and wives became distraught, saddened, and grief-stricken. And some, with hair disheveled and arms raised, falling down like their feet were chopped off, rolling back and forth, lamented, “atikhippaṁ bhagavā parinibbuto, atikhippaṁ sugato parinibbuto, atikhippaṁ cakkhuṁ loke antarahito”ti.

“Too soon the Blessed One has become fully extinguished! Too soon the Holy One has become fully extinguished! Too soon the seer has vanished from the world!”

37. Buddhasarīrapūjā

37. The Rites of Venerating the Buddha’s Corpse

Atha kho kosinārakā mallā purise āṇāpesuṁ:
Then the Mallas ordered their men,

“tena hi, bhaṇe, kusinārāyaṁ gandhamālañca sabbañca tāḷāvacaraṁ sannipātethā”ti.
“So then, my men, collect fragrances and garlands, and all the musical instruments in Kusinārā.”

Atha kho kosinārakā mallā gandhamālañca sabbañca tāḷāvacaraṁ pañca ca dussayugasatāni ādāya yena upavattanaṁ mallānaṁ sālavanaṁ, yena bhagavato sarīraṁ tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavato sarīraṁ naccehi gītehi vāditehi mālehi gandhehi sakkarontā garuṁ karontā mānentā pūjentā celavitānāni karontā maṇḍalamāḷe paṭiyādentā ekadivasaṁ vītināmesuṁ.

Then—taking those fragrances and garlands, all the musical instruments, and five hundred pairs of garments—they went to the Mallian sal grove at Upavattana and approached the Buddha's corpse. They spent the day honoring, respecting, revering, and venerating the Buddha's corpse with dance and song and music and garlands and fragrances, and making awnings and setting up pavilions.

Atha kho kosinārakānaṁ mallānaṁ etadahosi:
Then they thought,

"ativikālo kho ajja bhagavato sarīraṁ jhāpetuṁ, sve dāni mayaṁ bhagavato sarīraṁ jhāpessāmā"ti.
"It's too late to cremate the Buddha's corpse today. Let's do it tomorrow."

Atha kho kosinārakā mallā bhagavato sarīraṁ naccehi gītehi vāditehi mālehi gandhehi sakkarontā garuṁ karontā mānentā pūjentā celavitānāni karontā maṇḍalamāḷe paṭiyādentā dutiyampi divasaṁ vītināmesuṁ, tatiyampi divasaṁ vītināmesuṁ, catutthampi divasaṁ vītināmesuṁ, pañcamampi divasaṁ vītināmesuṁ, chaṭṭhampi divasaṁ vītināmesuṁ.
But they spent the next day the same way, and so too the third, fourth, fifth, and sixth days.

Atha kho sattamaṁ divasaṁ kosinārakānaṁ mallānaṁ etadahosi:
Then on the seventh day they thought,

"mayaṁ bhagavato sarīraṁ naccehi gītehi vāditehi mālehi gandhehi sakkarontā garuṁ karontā mānentā pūjentā dakkhiṇena dakkhiṇaṁ nagarassa haritvā bāhirena bāhiraṁ dakkhiṇato nagarassa bhagavato sarīraṁ jhāpessāmā"ti.

“Honoring, respecting, revering, and venerating the Buddha’s corpse with dance and song and music and garlands and fragrances, let us carry it to the south of the town, and cremate it there outside the town.”

Tena kho pana samayena aṭṭha mallapāmokkhā sīsaṁnhātā ahatāni vatthāni nivatthā:
Now at that time eight of the leading Mallas, having bathed their heads and dressed in unworn clothes, said, “mayaṁ bhagavato sarīraṁ uccāressāmā”ti na sakkonti uccāretuṁ.

“We shall lift the Buddha’s corpse.” But they were unable to do so.

Atha kho kosinārakā mallā āyasmantaṁ anuruddhaṁ etadavocuṁ:
The Mallas said to Anuruddha,

“ko nu kho, bhante anuruddha, hetu ko paccayo, yenime aṭṭha mallapāmokkhā sīsaṁnhātā ahatāni vatthāni nivatthā:
“What is the cause, Venerable Anuruddha, what is the reason why these eight Mallian leaders are unable to lift the Buddha’s corpse?”

‘mayaṁ bhagavato sarīraṁ uccāressāmā’ti na sakkonti uccāretun”ti?

“Aññathā kho, vāseṭṭhā, tumhākaṁ adhippāyo, aññathā devatānaṁ adhippāyo”ti.
“Vāseṭṭhas, you have one plan, but the deities have a different one.”

“Kathaṁ pana, bhante, devatānaṁ adhippāyo”ti?
“But sir, what is the deities’ plan?”

“Tumhākaṁ kho, vāseṭṭhā, adhippāyo:

carry the Buddha’s corpse to the north of the town while venerating it with heavenly dance and song and music and garlands and fragrances. Then they plan to enter the town by the northern gate, carry it through the center of the town, leave by the eastern gate, and cremate it there at the Mallian shrine named Makuṭabandhana.”

“Yathā, bhante, devatānaṁ adhippāyo, tathā hotū”ti.
“Sir, let it be as the deities plan.”

Tena kho pana samayena kusinārā yāva sandhisamalasaṅkaṭīrā jaṇṇumattena odhinā mandāravapupphehi santhatā hoti.
Now at that time the whole of Kusinārā was covered knee-deep with the flowers of the Flame Tree, without gaps even on the filth and rubbish heaps.

Atha kho devatā ca kosinārakā ca mallā bhagavato sarīraṁ dibbehi ca mānusakehi ca naccehi gītehi vāditehi mālehi gandhehi sakkarontā garuṁ karontā mānentā pūjentā uttarena uttaraṁ nagarassa haritvā uttarena dvārena nagaraṁ pavesetvā

Then the deities and the Mallas of Kusinārā carried the Buddha's corpse to the north of the town while venerating it with heavenly and human dance and song and music and garlands and fragrances. Then they entered the town by the northern gate, carried it through the center of the town, left by the eastern gate, and deposited the corpse there at the Mallian shrine named Makuṭabandhana.

Atha kho kosinārakā mallā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ etadavocuṁ:
Then the Mallas said to Anuruddha,

"kathaṁ mayaṁ, bhante ānanda, tathāgatassa sarīre paṭipajjāmā"ti?
"Sir, how do we proceed when it comes to the Realized One's corpse?"

"Yathā kho, vāseṭṭhā, rañño cakkavattissa sarīre paṭipajjanti, evaṁ tathāgatassa sarīre paṭipajjitabban"ti.
"Proceed in the same way as they do for the corpse of a wheel-turning monarch."

"Kathaṁ pana, bhante ānanda, rañño cakkavattissa sarīre paṭipajjantī"ti?
"But how do they proceed with a wheel-turning monarch's corpse?"

"Rañño, vāseṭṭhā, cakkavattissa sarīraṁ ahatena vatthena veṭhenti, ahatena vatthena veṭhetvā vihatena kappāsena veṭhenti, vihatena kappāsena veṭhetvā ahatena vatthena veṭhenti.
"They wrap a wheel-turning monarch's corpse with unworn cloth, then with uncarded cotton, then again with unworn cloth.

doṇiyā paṭikujjitvā sabbagandhānaṁ citakaṁ karitvā rañño cakkavattissa sarīraṁ jhāpenti.
In this way they wrap the corpse with five hundred double-layers. Then they place it in an iron case filled with oil and close it up with another case. Then, having built a funeral pyre out of all kinds of fragrant substances, they cremate the corpse.

Cātumahāpathe rañño cakkavattissa thūpaṁ karonti.
They build a monument for the wheel-turning monarch at the crossroads.

Evaṁ kho, vāseṭṭhā, rañño cakkavattissa sarīre paṭipajjanti.
That's how they proceed with a wheel-turning monarch's corpse.

Yathā kho, vāseṭṭhā, rañño cakkavattissa sarīre paṭipajjanti, evaṁ tathāgatassa sarīre paṭipajjitabbaṁ.
Proceed in the same way with the Realized One's corpse.

Cātumahāpathe tathāgatassa thūpo kātabbo.
A monument for the Realized One is to be built at the crossroads.

Tattha ye mālaṁ vā gandhaṁ vā cuṇṇakaṁ vā āropessanti vā abhivādessanti vā cittaṁ vā pasādessanti, tesaṁ taṁ bhavissati dīgharattaṁ hitāya sukhāyā"ti.
When someone there lifts up garlands or fragrance or powder, or bows, or inspires confidence in their heart, that will be for their lasting welfare and happiness."

Atha kho kosinārakā mallā purise āṇāpesuṁ:
Then the Mallas ordered their men,

"tena hi, bhaṇe, mallānaṁ vihataṁ kappāsaṁ sannipātethā"ti.
"So then, my men, collect uncarded cotton."

Atha kho kosinārakā mallā bhagavato sarīraṁ ahatena vatthena veṭhetvā vihatena kappāsena veṭhesuṁ, vihatena kappāsena veṭhetvā ahatena vatthena veṭhesuṁ.
So the Mallas wrapped the Buddha's corpse,

Etena upāyena pañcahi yugasatehi bhagavato sarīraṁ veṭhetvā āyasāya teladoṇiyā pakkhipitvā aññissā āyasāya doṇiyā paṭikujjitvā sabbagandhānaṁ citakaṁ karitvā bhagavato sarīraṁ citakaṁ āropesuṁ.
and placed it in an iron case filled with oil. Then, having built a funeral pyre out of all kinds of fragrant substances, they lifted the corpse on to the pyre.

38. Mahākassapattheravatthu

38. Mahākassapa's Arrival

Tena kho pana samayena āyasmā mahākassapo pāvāya kusināraṁ addhānamaggappaṭipanno hoti mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi.
Now at that time Venerable Mahākassapa was traveling along the road from Pāvā to Kusinārā together with a large Saṅgha of around five hundred mendicants.

Atha kho āyasmā mahākassapo maggā okkamma aññatarasmiṁ rukkhamūle nisīdi.
Then he left the road and sat at the root of a tree.

Tena kho pana samayena aññataro ājīvako kusinārāya mandāravapupphaṁ gahetvā pāvaṁ addhānamaggappaṭipanno hoti.
Now at that time a certain Ājīvaka ascetic had picked up a Flame Tree flower in Kusinārā and was traveling along the road to Pāvā.

Addasā kho āyasmā mahākassapo taṁ ājīvakaṁ dūratova āgacchantaṁ, disvā taṁ ājīvakaṁ etadavoca:
Mahākassapa saw him coming off in the distance and said to him,

"apāvuso, amhākaṁ satthāraṁ jānāsī"ti?
"Reverend, might you know about our Teacher?"

“Āmāvuso, jānāmi, ajja sattāhaparinibbuto samaṇo gotamo.
“Yes, reverend. Seven days ago the ascetic Gotama became fully extinguished.

Tato me idaṁ mandāravapupphaṁ gahitan”ti.
From there I picked up this Flame Tree flower.”

Tattha ye te bhikkhū avītarāgā appekacce bāhā paggayha kandanti, chinnapātaṁ papatanti, āvaṭṭanti, vivaṭṭanti:
Some of the mendicants there, with arms raised, falling down like their feet were chopped off, rolling back and forth, lamented, “atikhippaṁ bhagavā parinibbuto, atikhippaṁ sugato parinibbuto, atikhippaṁ cakkhuṁ loke antarahito”ti.

“Too soon the Blessed One has become fully extinguished! Too soon the Holy One has become fully extinguished! Too soon the seer has vanished from the world!”

Ye pana te bhikkhū vītarāgā, te satā sampajānā adhivāsenti:
But the mendicants who were free of desire endured, mindful and aware, thinking,

“aniccā saṅkhārā, taṁ kutettha labbhā”ti.
“Conditions are impermanent. How could it possibly be otherwise?”

Tena kho pana samayena subhaddo nāma vuddhapabbajito tassaṁ parisāyaṁ nisinno hoti.
Now at that time a monk named Subhadda, who had gone forth when old, was sitting in that assembly.

Atha kho subhaddo vuddhapabbajito te bhikkhū etadavoca:
He said to those mendicants,

“alaṁ, āvuso, mā socittha, mā paridevittha, sumuttā mayaṁ tena mahāsamaṇena. Upaddutā ca homa:
“Enough, reverends, do not grieve or lament. We’re well rid of that Great Ascetic harassing us:

‘idaṁ vo kappati, idaṁ vo na kappatī’ti.
‘This is allowable for you; this is not allowable for you.’

Idāni pana mayaṁ yaṁ icchissāma, taṁ karissāma, yaṁ na icchissāma, na taṁ karissāmā”ti.
Well, now we shall do what we want and not do what we don’t want.”

Atha kho āyasmā mahākassapo bhikkhū āmantesi:
Then Venerable Mahākassapa addressed the mendicants,

“alaṁ, āvuso, mā socittha, mā paridevittha.
“Enough, reverends, do not grieve or lament.

Nanu etaṁ, āvuso, bhagavatā paṭikacceva akkhātaṁ:
Did the Buddha not prepare us for this when he explained that ‘sabbeheva piyehi manāpehi nānābhāvo vinābhāvo aññathābhāvo’.

we must be parted and separated from all we hold dear and beloved?

Taṁ kutettha, āvuso, labbhā. ‘Yaṁ taṁ jātaṁ bhūtaṁ saṅkhataṁ palokadhammaṁ, taṁ tathāgatassāpi sarīraṁ mā palujjī’ti, netaṁ ṭhānaṁ vijjatī”ti.
How could it possibly be so that what is born, created, conditioned, and liable to fall apart should not fall apart, even the Realized One’s body?”

Tena kho pana samayena cattāro mallapāmokkhā sīsaṁnhātā ahatāni vatthāni nivatthā:
Now at that time four of the leading Mallas, having bathed their heads and dressed in unworn clothes, said, “mayaṁ bhagavato citakaṁ āḷimpessāmā”ti na sakkonti āḷimpetuṁ.

“We shall light the Buddha’s funeral pyre.” But they were unable to do so.

Atha kho kosinārakā mallā āyasmantaṁ anuruddhaṁ etadavocuṁ:
The Mallas said to Anuruddha,

“ko nu kho, bhante anuruddha, hetu ko paccayo, yenime cattāro mallapāmokkhā sīsaṁnhātā ahatāni vatthāni nivatthā:
“What is the cause, Venerable Anuruddha, what is the reason why these four Mallian leaders are unable to light the Buddha’s funeral pyre?”

‘mayaṁ bhagavato citakaṁ āḷimpessāmā’ti na sakkonti āḷimpetun”ti?

“Aññathā kho, vāseṭṭhā, devatānaṁ adhippāyo”ti.
“Vāseṭṭhas, the deities have a different plan.”

“Kathaṁ pana, bhante, devatānaṁ adhippāyo”ti?
“But sir, what is the deities’ plan?”

“Devatānaṁ kho, vāseṭṭhā, adhippāyo:
“The deities’ plan is this:

‘ayaṁ āyasmā mahākassapo pāvāya kusināraṁ addhānamaggappaṭipanno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi.
Venerable Mahākassapa is traveling along the road from Pāvā to Kusinārā together with a large Saṅgha of around five hundred mendicants.

Na tāva bhagavato citako pajjalissati, yāvāyasmā mahākassapo bhagavato pāde sirasā na vandissatī’”ti.
The Buddha’s funeral pyre shall not burn until he bows with his head at the Buddha’s feet.”

“Yathā, bhante, devatānaṁ adhippāyo, tathā hotū”ti.
“Sir, let it be as the deities plan.”

Atha kho āyasmā mahākassapo yena kusinārā makuṭabandhanaṁ nāma mallānaṁ cetiyaṁ, yena bhagavato citako tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā ekaṁsaṁ cīvaraṁ katvā añjaliṁ paṇāmetvā tikkhattuṁ citakaṁ padakkhiṇaṁ katvā bhagavato pāde sirasā vandi.

Then Venerable Mahākassapa came to the Mallian shrine named Makuṭabandhana at Kusinārā and approached the Buddha’s funeral pyre. Arranging his robe over one shoulder and raising his joined palms, he respectfully circled the Buddha three times, keeping him on his right, and bowed with his head to the Buddha’s feet.

Tānipi kho pañcabhikkhusatāni ekaṁsaṁ cīvaraṁ katvā añjaliṁ paṇāmetvā tikkhattuṁ citakaṁ padakkhiṇaṁ katvā bhagavato pāde sirasā vandiṁsu.
And the five hundred mendicants did likewise.

Vandite ca panāyasmatā mahākassapena tehi ca pañcahi bhikkhusatehi sayameva bhagavato citako pajjali.
And when Mahākassapa and the five hundred mendicants bowed the Buddha’s funeral pyre burst into flames all by itself.

Jhāyamānassa kho pana bhagavato sarīrassa yaṁ ahosi chavīti vā cammanti vā maṁsanti vā nhārūti vā lasikāti vā, tassa neva chārikā paññāyittha, na masi;
And when the Buddha’s corpse was cremated no ash or soot was found from outer or inner skin, flesh, sinews, or synovial fluid.

sarīrāneva avasissiṁsu.
Only the relics remained.

Seyyathāpi nāma sappissa vā telassa vā jhāyamānassa neva chārikā paññāyati, na masi;
It’s like when ghee or oil blaze and burn, and neither ashes nor soot are found.

evameva bhagavato sarīrassa jhāyamānassa yaṁ ahosi chavīti vā cammanti vā maṁsanti vā nhārūti vā lasikāti vā, tassa neva chārikā paññāyittha, na masi;
In the same way, when the Buddha’s corpse was cremated no ash or soot was found from outer or inner skin, flesh, sinews, or synovial fluid.

Only the relics remained.

Tesañca pañcannaṁ dussayugasatānaṁ dveva dussāni na ḍayhiṁsu yañca sabbaabbhantarimaṁ yañca bāhiraṁ.
And of those five hundred pairs of garments only two were not burnt: the innermost and the outermost.

Daḍḍhe ca kho pana bhagavato sarīre antalikkhā udakadhārā pātubhavitvā bhagavato citakaṁ nibbāpesi.
But when the Buddha’s corpse was consumed the funeral pyre was extinguished by a stream of water that appeared in the sky, Udakasālatopi abbhunnamitvā bhagavato citakaṁ nibbāpesi.

by water dripping from the sal trees,

Kosinārakāpi mallā sabbagandhodakena bhagavato citakaṁ nibbāpesuṁ.
and by the Mallas’ fragrant water.

Atha kho kosinārakā mallā bhagavato sarīrāni sattāhaṁ sandhāgāre sattipañjaraṁ karitvā dhanupākāraṁ parikkhipāpetvā naccehi gītehi vāditehi mālehi gandhehi sakkariṁsu garuṁ kariṁsu mānesuṁ pūjesuṁ.
Then the Mallas made a cage of spears for the Buddha’s relics in the meeting hall and surrounded it with a buttress of bows. For seven days they honored, respected, revered, and venerated them with dance and song and music and garlands and fragrances.

39. Sarīradhātuvibhajana

39. Distributing the Relics

“The Buddha was an aristocrat, and so are we. We too deserve a share of the Buddha’s relics. We will build a monument for them and conduct a memorial service.”

Assosi kho veṭṭhadīpako brāhmaṇo:
The brahmin of Veṭhadīpa also heard

“bhagavā kira kusinārāyaṁ parinibbuto”ti.
that the Buddha had become fully extinguished at Kusinārā.

Atha kho veṭṭhadīpako brāhmaṇo kosinārakānaṁ mallānaṁ dūtaṁ pāhesi:
He sent an envoy to the Mallas of Kusinārā:

“bhagavāpi khattiyo ahampismi brāhmaṇo, ahampi arahāmi bhagavato sarīrānaṁ bhāgaṁ, ahampi bhagavato sarīrānaṁ thūpañca mahañca karissāmī”ti.
“The Buddha was an aristocrat, and I am a brahmin. I too deserve a share of the Buddha’s relics. I will build a monument for them and conduct a memorial service.”

Assosuṁ kho pāveyyakā mallā:
The Mallas of Pāvā also heard

“bhagavā kira kusinārāyaṁ parinibbuto”ti.
that the Buddha had become fully extinguished at Kusinārā.

Atha kho pāveyyakā mallā kosinārakānaṁ mallānaṁ dūtaṁ pāhesuṁ:
They sent an envoy to the Mallas of Kusinārā:

“bhagavāpi khattiyo mayampi khattiyā, mayampi arahāma bhagavato sarīrānaṁ bhāgaṁ, mayampi bhagavato sarīrānaṁ thūpañca mahañca karissāmā”ti.
“The Buddha was an aristocrat, and so are we. We too deserve a share of the Buddha’s relics. We will build a monument for them and conduct a memorial service.”

Evaṁ vutte, kosinārakā mallā te saṅghe gaṇe etadavocuṁ:

When they had spoken, the Mallas of Kusinārā said to those various groups:

“bhagavā amhākaṁ gāmakkhette parinibbuto, na mayaṁ dassāma bhagavato sarīrānaṁ bhāgan”ti.
“The Buddha became fully extinguished in our village district. We will not give away a share of his relics.”

Evaṁ vutte, doṇo brāhmaṇo te saṅghe gaṇe etadavoca:
Then Doṇa the brahmin said to those various groups:

“Suṇantu bhonto mama ekavācaṁ,
“Hear, sirs, a single word from me.

Amhāka buddho ahu khantivādo;
Our Buddha’s teaching was acceptance.

Na hi sādhu yaṁ uttamapuggalassa,
It would not be good to fight over

Sarīrabhāge siyā sampahāro.
a share of the supreme person’s relics.

Sabbeva bhonto sahitā samaggā,
Let us make eight portions, good sirs,

Sammodamānā karomaṭṭhabhāge; rejoicing in unity and harmony.

Vitthārikā hontu disāsu thūpā,
Let there be monuments far and wide,

Bahū janā cakkhumato pasannā”ti.
so many folk may gain faith in the Seer!”

“Tena hi, brāhmaṇa, tvaññeva bhagavato sarīrāni aṭṭhadhā samaṁ savibhattaṁ vibhajāhī”ti.
“Well then, brahmin, you yourself should fairly divide the Buddha’s relics in eight portions.”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho doṇo brāhmaṇo tesaṁ saṅghānaṁ gaṇānaṁ paṭissutvā bhagavato sarīrāni aṭṭhadhā samaṁ suvibhattaṁ vibhajitvā te saṅghe gaṇe etadavoca:
“Yes, sirs,” replied Doṇa to those various groups. He divided the relics as asked and said to them, “imaṁ me bhonto tumbaṁ dadantu ahampi tumbassa thūpañca mahañca karissāmī”ti.

“Sirs, please give me the urn, and I shall build a monument for it and conduct a memorial service.”

Adaṁsu kho te doṇassa brāhmaṇassa tumbaṁ.
So they gave Doṇa the urn.

Assosuṁ kho pippalivaniyā moriyā:
The Moras of Pippalivana heard

“bhagavā kira kusinārāyaṁ parinibbuto”ti.
that the Buddha had become fully extinguished at Kusinārā.

Atha kho pippalivaniyā moriyā kosinārakānaṁ mallānaṁ dūtaṁ pāhesuṁ:
They sent an envoy to the Mallas of Kusinārā:

“bhagavāpi khattiyo mayampi khattiyā, mayampi arahāma bhagavato sarīrānaṁ bhāgaṁ, mayampi bhagavato sarīrānaṁ thūpañca mahañca karissāmā”ti.
“The Buddha was an aristocrat, and so are we. We too deserve a share of the Buddha’s relics. We will build a monument for them and conduct a memorial service.”

“Natthi bhagavato sarīrānaṁ bhāgo, vibhattāni bhagavato sarīrāni.
“There is no portion of the Buddha’s relics left, they have already been portioned out.

Ito aṅgāraṁ harathā”ti.

Here, take the embers.”

Te tato aṅgāraṁ hariṁsu.
So they took the embers.

40. Dhātuthūpapūjā
40. Venerating the Relics

Atha kho rājā māgadho ajātasattu vedehiputto rājagahe bhagavato sarīrānaṁ thūpañca mahañca akāsi.
Then King Ajātasattu of Magadha,

Vesālikāpi licchavī vesāliyaṁ bhagavato sarīrānaṁ thūpañca mahañca akaṁsu.
the Licchavis of Vesālī,

Kapilavatthuvāsīpi sakyā kapilavatthusmiṁ bhagavato sarīrānaṁ thūpañca mahañca akaṁsu.
the Sakyans of Kapilavatthu,

Allakappakāpi bulayo allakappe bhagavato sarīrānaṁ thūpañca mahañca akaṁsu.
the Bulas of Allakappa,

Rāmagāmakāpi koḷiyā rāmagāme bhagavato sarīrānaṁ thūpañca mahañca akaṁsu.
the Koḷiyans of Rāmagāma,

Veṭṭhadīpakopi brāhmaṇo veṭṭhadīpe bhagavato sarīrānaṁ thūpañca mahañca akāsi.
the brahmin of Veṭhadīpa,

Pāveyyakāpi mallā pāvāyaṁ bhagavato sarīrānaṁ thūpañca mahañca akaṁsu.
the Mallas of Pāvā,

Kosinārakāpi mallā kusinārāyaṁ bhagavato sarīrānaṁ thūpañca mahañca akaṁsu.
the Mallas of Kusinārā,

Doṇopi brāhmaṇo tumbassa thūpañca mahañca akāsi.
the brahmin Doṇa,

Pippalivaniyāpi moriyā pippalivane aṅgārānaṁ thūpañca mahañca akaṁsu.
and the Moriyas of Pippalivana built monuments for them and conducted memorial services.

Iti aṭṭha sarīrathūpā navamo tumbathūpo dasamo aṅgārathūpo.
Thus there were eight monuments for the relics, a ninth for the urn, and a tenth for the embers.

Evametaṁ bhūtapubbanti.
That is how it was in those days.

Aṭṭhadoṇaṁ cakkhumato sarīraṁ,
There were eight shares of the Seer’s relics.

Sattadoṇaṁ jambudīpe mahenti;
Seven were worshipped throughout India.

Ekañca doṇaṁ purisavaruttamassa,
But one share of the most excellent of men

Rāmagāme nāgarājā maheti.
was worshipped in Rāmagāma by a dragon king.

Ekāhi dāṭhā tidivehi pūjitā,
One tooth is venerated by the gods of the Three and Thirty,

Ekā pana gandhārapure mahīyati;
and one is worshipped in the city of Gandhāra;

Kāliṅgarañño vijite punekaṁ,
another one in the realm of the Kaliṅga King,

Ekaṁ pana nāgarājā maheti.
and one is worshipped by a dragon king.

Tasseva tejena ayaṁ vasundharā,

Through their glory this rich earth

Āyāgaseṭṭhehi mahī alaṅkatā; is adorned with the best of offerings.

Evaṁ imaṁ cakkhumato sarīraṁ,
Thus the Seer’s corpse

Susakkataṁ sakkatasakkatehi.
is well honored by the honorable.

Devindanāgindanarindapūjito,
It’s venerated by lords of gods, dragons, and spirits;

Manussindaseṭṭhehi tatheva pūjito;
and likewise venerated by the finest lords of men.

Taṁ vandatha pañjalikā labhitvā,
Honor it with joined palms when you get the chance,

Buddho have kappasatehi dullabhoti.
for a Buddha is rare even in a hundred eons.

Cattālīsa samā dantā,
Altogether forty even teeth,

kesā lomā ca sabbaso;
and the body hair and head hair,

Devā hariṁsu ekekaṁ, were carried off individually by gods cakkavāḷaparamparāti.

across the universe.

Mahāparinibbānasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ tatiyaṁ.

17. Mahāsudassanasutta

King Mahāsudassana

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā kusinārāyaṁ viharati upavattane mallānaṁ sālavane antarena yamakasālānaṁ parinibbānasamaye.
At one time the Buddha was staying between a pair of sal trees in the sal forest of the Mallas at Upavattana near Kusinārā at the time of his final extinguishment.

Atha kho āyasmā ānando yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Venerable Ānanda went up to the Buddha, bowed, sat down to one side, and said to him, “mā, bhante, bhagavā imasmiṁ khuddakanagarake ujjaṅgalanagarake sākhānagarake parinibbāyi.

“Sir, please don’t become fully extinguished in this little hamlet, this jungle hamlet, this branch hamlet.

Santi, bhante, aññāni mahānagarāni.
There are other great cities such as

Seyyathidaṁ—campā, rājagahaṁ, sāvatthi, sāketaṁ, kosambī, bārāṇasī;
Campā, Rājagaha, Sāvatthī, Sāketa, Kosambī, and Benares.

ettha bhagavā parinibbāyatu.
Let the Buddha become fully extinguished there.

Ettha bahū khattiyamahāsālā brāhmaṇamahāsālā gahapatimahāsālā tathāgate abhippasannā, te tathāgatassa sarīrapūjaṁ karissantī”ti.
There are many well-to-do aristocrats, brahmins, and householders there who are devoted to the Buddha. They will perform the rites of venerating the Realized One’s corpse.”

“Mā hevaṁ, ānanda, avaca; mā hevaṁ, ānanda, avaca:
“Don’t say that, Ānanda! Don’t say that

‘khuddakanagarakaṁ ujjaṅgalanagarakaṁ sākhānagarakan’ti.
this is a little hamlet, a jungle hamlet, a branch hamlet.

1. Kusāvatīrājadhānī

1. The Capital City of Kusāvatī

Bhūtapubbaṁ, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano nāma ahosi khattiyo muddhāvasitto cāturanto vijitāvī janapadatthāvariyappatto.
Once upon a time there was a king named Mahāsudassana whose dominion extended to all four sides, and who achieved stability in the country.

Rañño, ānanda, mahāsudassanassa ayaṁ kusinārā kusāvatī nāma rājadhānī ahosi.
His capital was this Kusinārā, which at the time was named Kusāvatī.

Puratthimena ca pacchimena ca dvādasayojanāni āyāmena, uttarena ca dakkhiṇena ca sattayojanāni vitthārena.
It stretched for twelve leagues from east to west, and seven leagues from north to south.

Kusāvatī, ānanda, rājadhānī iddhā ceva ahosi phītā ca bahujanā ca ākiṇṇamanussā ca subhikkhā ca.

The royal capital of Kusāvatī was successful, prosperous, populous, full of people, with plenty of food.

Seyyathāpi, ānanda, devānaṁ āḷakamandā nāma rājadhānī iddhā ceva hoti phītā ca bahujanā ca ākiṇṇayakkhā ca subhikkhā ca;
It was just like Āḷakamandā, the royal capital of the gods, which is successful, prosperous, populous, full of spirits, with plenty of food.

evameva kho, ānanda, kusāvatī rājadhānī iddhā ceva ahosi phītā ca bahujanā ca ākiṇṇamanussā ca subhikkhā ca.

Kusāvatī, ānanda, rājadhānī dasahi saddehi avivittā ahosi divā ceva rattiñca, seyyathidaṁ—Kusāvatī was never free of ten sounds by day or night, namely:

hatthisaddena assasaddena rathasaddena bherisaddena mudiṅgasaddena vīṇāsaddena gītasaddena saṅkhasaddena sammasaddena pāṇitāḷasaddena 'asnātha pivatha khādathā'ti dasamena saddena.
the sound of elephants, horses, chariots, drums, clay drums, arched harps, singing, horns, gongs, and handbells; and the cry, 'Eat, drink, be merry!' as the tenth.

Kusāvatī, ānanda, rājadhānī sattahi pākārehi parikkhittā ahosi.
Kusāvatī was encircled by seven ramparts:

Eko pākāro sovaṇṇamayo, eko rūpiyamayo, eko veḷuriyamayo, eko phalikamayo, eko lohitaṅkamayo, eko masāragallamayo, eko sabbaratanamayo.
one made of gold, one made of silver, one made of beryl, one made of crystal, one made of ruby, one made of emerald, and one made of all precious things.

Kusāvatiyā, ānanda, rājadhāniyā catunnaṁ vaṇṇānaṁ dvārāni ahesuṁ.
It had four gates,

Ekaṁ dvāraṁ sovaṇṇamayaṁ, ekaṁ rūpiyamayaṁ, ekaṁ veḷuriyamayaṁ, ekaṁ phalikamayaṁ.
made of gold, silver, beryl, and crystal.

Ekekasmiṁ dvāre satta satta esikā nikhātā ahesuṁ tiporisaṅgā tiporisanikhātā dvādasaporisā ubbedhena.
At each gate there were seven pillars, three fathoms deep and four fathoms high,

Ekā esikā sovaṇṇamayā, ekā rūpiyamayā, ekā veḷuriyamayā, ekā phalikamayā, ekā lohitaṅkamayā, ekā masāragallamayā, ekā sabbaratanamayā.
made of gold, silver, beryl, crystal, ruby, emerald, and all precious things.

Kusāvatī, ānanda, rājadhānī sattahi tālapantīhi parikkhittā ahosi.
It was surrounded by seven rows of palm trees,

Ekā tālapanti sovaṇṇamayā, ekā rūpiyamayā, ekā veḷuriyamayā, ekā phalikamayā, ekā lohitaṅkamayā, ekā masāragallamayā, ekā sabbaratanamayā.
made of gold, silver, beryl, crystal, ruby, emerald, and all precious things.

Sovaṇṇamayassa tālassa sovaṇṇamayo khandho ahosi, rūpiyamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
The golden palms had trunks of gold, and leaves and fruits of silver.

Rūpiyamayassa tālassa rūpiyamayo khandho ahosi, sovaṇṇamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
The silver palms had trunks of silver, and leaves and fruits of gold.

Veḷuriyamayassa tālassa veḷuriyamayo khandho ahosi, phalikamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
The beryl palms had trunks of beryl, and leaves and fruits of crystal.

Phalikamayassa tālassa phalikamayo khandho ahosi, veḷuriyamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.

The crystal palms had trunks of crystal, and leaves and fruits of beryl.

Lohitaṅkamayassa tālassa lohitaṅkamayo khandho ahosi, masāragallamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
The ruby palms had trunks of ruby, and leaves and fruits of emerald.

Masāragallamayassa tālassa masāragallamayo khandho ahosi, lohitaṅkamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
The emerald palms had trunks of emerald, and leaves and fruits of ruby.

Sabbaratanamayassa tālassa sabbaratanamayo khandho ahosi, sabbaratanamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
The palms of all precious things had trunks of all precious things, and leaves and fruits of all precious things.

Tāsaṁ kho panānanda, tālapantīnaṁ vāteritānaṁ saddo ahosi vaggu ca rajanīyo ca khamanīyo ca madanīyo ca.
When those rows of palm trees were blown by the wind they sounded graceful, tantalizing, sensuous, lovely, and intoxicating,

Seyyathāpi, ānanda, pañcaṅgikassa tūriyassa suvinītassa suppaṭitāḷitassa sukusalehi samannāhatassa saddo hoti vaggu ca rajanīyo ca khamanīyo ca madanīyo ca;
like a quintet made up of skilled musicians who had practiced well and kept excellent rhythm.

evameva kho, ānanda, tāsaṁ tālapantīnaṁ vāteritānaṁ saddo ahosi vaggu ca rajanīyo ca khamanīyo ca madanīyo ca.

Ye kho panānanda, tena samayena kusāvatiyā rājadhāniyā dhuttā ahesuṁ soṇḍā pipāsā, te tāsaṁ tālapantīnaṁ vāteritānaṁ saddena paricāresuṁ.
And any addicts, libertines, or drunkards in Kusāvatī at that time were entertained by that sound.

2. Sattaratanasamannāgata

2. The Seven Treasures

2.1. Cakkaratana

2.1. The Wheel Treasure

Rājā, ānanda, mahāsudassano sattahi ratanehi samannāgato ahosi catūhi ca iddhīhi.
King Mahāsudassana possessed seven treasures and four blessings.

Katamehi sattahi?
What seven?

Idhānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa tadahuposathe pannarase sīsaṁnhātassa uposathikassa uparipāsādavaragatassa
On a fifteenth day sabbath, King Mahāsudassana had bathed his head and gone upstairs in the stilt longhouse to observe the sabbath.

dibbaṁ cakkaratanaṁ pāturahosi sahassāraṁ sanemikaṁ sanābhikaṁ sabbākāraparipūraṁ.
And the heavenly wheel-treasure appeared to him, with a thousand spokes, with rim and hub, complete in every detail.

Disvā rañño mahāsudassanassa etadahosi:
Seeing this, the king thought,

‘sutaṁ kho pana metaṁ: “yassa rañño khattiyassa muddhāvasittassa tadahuposathe pannarase sīsaṁnhātassa uposathikassa uparipāsādavaragatassa dibbaṁ cakkaratanaṁ pātubhavati sahassāraṁ sanemikaṁ sanābhikaṁ sabbākāraparipūraṁ, so hoti rājā cakkavattī”ti.
‘I have heard that when the heavenly wheel-treasure appears to a king in this way, he becomes a wheel-turning monarch.

Assaṁ nu kho ahaṁ rājā cakkavattī’ti.
Am I then a wheel-turning monarch?’

Atha kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano uṭṭhāyāsanā ekaṁsaṁ uttarāsaṅgaṁ karitvā vāmena hatthena suvaṇṇabhiṅkāraṁ gahetvā dakkhiṇena hatthena cakkaratanaṁ abbhukkiri:
Then King Mahāsudassana, rising from his seat and arranging his robe over one shoulder, took a ceremonial vase in his left hand and besprinkled the wheel-treasure with his right hand, saying:

‘pavattatu bhavaṁ cakkaratanaṁ, abhivijinātu bhavaṁ cakkaratanan’ti.
‘Roll forth, O wheel-treasure! Triumph, O wheel-treasure!’

Atha kho taṁ, ānanda, cakkaratanaṁ puratthimaṁ disaṁ pavatti, anvadeva rājā mahāsudassano saddhiṁ caturaṅginiyā senāya, yasmiṁ kho panānanda, padese cakkaratanaṁ patiṭṭhāsi, tattha rājā mahāsudassano vāsaṁ upagacchi saddhiṁ caturaṅginiyā senāya.
Then the wheel-treasure rolled towards the east. And the king followed it together with his army of four divisions. In whatever place the wheel-treasure stood still, there the king came to stay together with his army.

Ye kho panānanda, puratthimāya disāya paṭirājāno, te rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ upasaṅkamitvā evamāhaṁsu:
And any opposing rulers of the eastern quarter came to him and said, ‘ehi kho, mahārāja, svāgataṁ te, mahārāja, sakaṁ te, mahārāja, anusāsa, mahārājā’ti.

‘Come, great king! Welcome, great king! We are yours, great king, instruct us.’

Rājā mahāsudassano evamāha:
The king said,

‘pāṇo na hantabbo, adinnaṁ na ādātabbaṁ, kāmesu micchā na caritabbā, musā na bhaṇitabbā, majjaṁ na pātabbaṁ, yathābhuttañca bhuñjathā’ti.

‘Do not kill living creatures. Do not steal. Do not commit sexual misconduct. Do not lie. Do not drink alcohol. Maintain the current level of taxation.’

Ye kho panānanda, puratthimāya disāya paṭirājāno, te rañño mahāsudassanassa anuyantā ahesuṁ.
And so the opposing rulers of the eastern quarter became his vassals.

Atha kho taṁ, ānanda, cakkaratanaṁ puratthimaṁ samuddaṁ ajjhogāhetvā paccuttaritvā dakkhiṇaṁ disaṁ pavatti …pe…
Then the wheel-treasure, having plunged into the eastern ocean and emerged again, rolled towards the south. …

dakkhiṇaṁ samuddaṁ ajjhogāhetvā paccuttaritvā pacchimaṁ disaṁ pavatti …pe…
Having plunged into the southern ocean and emerged again, it rolled towards the west. …

pacchimaṁ samuddaṁ ajjhogāhetvā paccuttaritvā uttaraṁ disaṁ pavatti, anvadeva rājā mahāsudassano saddhiṁ caturaṅginiyā senāya.
Having plunged into the western ocean and emerged again, it rolled towards the north, followed by the king together with his army of four divisions.

Yasmiṁ kho panānanda, padese cakkaratanaṁ patiṭṭhāsi, tattha rājā mahāsudassano vāsaṁ upagacchi saddhiṁ caturaṅginiyā senāya.
In whatever place the wheel-treasure stood still, there the king came to stay together with his army.

Ye kho panānanda, uttarāya disāya paṭirājāno, te rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ upasaṅkamitvā evamāhaṁsu:
And any opposing rulers of the northern quarter came to him and said, ‘ehi kho, mahārāja, svāgataṁ te, mahārāja, sakaṁ te, mahārāja, anusāsa, mahārājā’ti.

‘Come, great king! Welcome, great king! We are yours, great king, instruct us.’

Rājā mahāsudassano evamāha:
The king said,

‘pāṇo na hantabbo, adinnaṁ na ādātabbaṁ, kāmesu micchā na caritabbā, musā na bhaṇitabbā, majjaṁ na pātabbaṁ, yathābhuttañca bhuñjathā’ti.
‘Do not kill living creatures. Do not steal. Do not commit sexual misconduct. Do not lie. Do not drink alcohol. Maintain the current level of taxation.’

Ye kho panānanda, uttarāya disāya paṭirājāno, te rañño mahāsudassanassa anuyantā ahesuṁ.
And so the opposing rulers of the northern quarter became his vassals.

Atha kho taṁ, ānanda, cakkaratanaṁ samuddapariyantaṁ pathaviṁ abhivijinitvā kusāvatiṁ rājadhāniṁ paccāgantvā rañño mahāsudassanassa antepuradvāre atthakaraṇapamukhe akkhāhataṁ maññe aṭṭhāsi rañño mahāsudassanassa antepuraṁ upasobhayamānaṁ.
And then the wheel-treasure, having triumphed over this land surrounded by ocean, returned to the royal capital of Kusāvatī. There it stood still by the gate to Mahāsudassana’s royal compound at the High Court as if fixed to an axle, illuminating the royal compound.

Rañño, ānanda, mahāsudassanassa evarūpaṁ cakkaratanaṁ pāturahosi.
Such is the wheel-treasure that appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

2.2. Hatthiratana

2.2. The Elephant Treasure

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa hatthiratanaṁ pāturahosi Next, the elephant-treasure appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

sabbaseto sattappatiṭṭho iddhimā vehāsaṅgamo uposatho nāma nāgarājā.
It was an all-white sky-walker with psychic power, touching the ground in seven places, a king of elephants named Sabbath.

Taṁ disvā rañño mahāsudassanassa cittaṁ pasīdi:
Seeing him, the king was impressed,

‘bhaddakaṁ vata bho hatthiyānaṁ, sace damathaṁ upeyyā’ti.
‘This would truly be a fine elephant vehicle, if he would submit to taming.’

Atha kho taṁ, ānanda, hatthiratanaṁ—seyyathāpi nāma gandhahatthājāniyo dīgharattaṁ suparidanto; evameva damathaṁ upagacchi.
Then the elephant-treasure submitted to taming, as if he was a fine thoroughbred elephant that had been tamed for a long time.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano tameva hatthiratanaṁ vīmaṁsamāno pubbaṇhasamayaṁ abhiruhitvā samuddapariyantaṁ pathaviṁ anuyāyitvā kusāvatiṁ rājadhāniṁ paccāgantvā pātarāsamakāsi.
Once it so happened that King Mahāsudassana, testing that same elephant-treasure, mounted him in the morning and traversed the land surrounded by ocean before returning to the royal capital in time for breakfast.

Rañño, ānanda, mahāsudassanassa evarūpaṁ hatthiratanaṁ pāturahosi.
Such is the elephant-treasure that appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

2.3. Assaratana

2.3. The Horse-Treasure

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa assaratanaṁ pāturahosi Next, the horse-treasure appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

sabbaseto kāḷasīso muñjakeso iddhimā vehāsaṅgamo valāhako nāma assarājā.
It was an all-white sky-walker with psychic power, with head of black and mane like woven reeds, a royal steed named Thundercloud.

Taṁ disvā rañño mahāsudassanassa cittaṁ pasīdi:
Seeing him, the king was impressed,

‘bhaddakaṁ vata bho assayānaṁ sace damathaṁ upeyyā’ti.
‘This would truly be a fine horse vehicle, if he would submit to taming.’

Atha kho taṁ, ānanda, assaratanaṁ seyyathāpi nāma bhaddo assājāniyo dīgharattaṁ suparidanto; evameva damathaṁ upagacchi.
Then the horse-treasure submitted to taming, as if he was a fine thoroughbred horse that had been tamed for a long time.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano tameva assaratanaṁ vīmaṁsamāno pubbaṇhasamayaṁ abhiruhitvā samuddapariyantaṁ pathaviṁ anuyāyitvā kusāvatiṁ rājadhāniṁ paccāgantvā pātarāsamakāsi.
Once it so happened that King Mahāsudassana, testing that same horse-treasure, mounted him in the morning and traversed the land surrounded by ocean before returning to the royal capital in time for breakfast.

Rañño, ānanda, mahāsudassanassa evarūpaṁ assaratanaṁ pāturahosi.
Such is the horse-treasure that appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

2.4. Maṇiratana

2.4. The Jewel Treasure

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa maṇiratanaṁ pāturahosi.
Next, the jewel-treasure appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

So ahosi maṇi veḷuriyo subho jātimā aṭṭhaṁso suparikammakato accho vippasanno anāvilo sabbākārasampanno.
It was a beryl gem that was naturally beautiful, eight-faceted, well-worked, transparent, clear, and unclouded, endowed with all good qualities.

Tassa kho panānanda, maṇiratanassa ābhā samantā yojanaṁ phuṭā ahosi.
And the radiance of that jewel spread all-round for a league.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano tameva maṇiratanaṁ vīmaṁsamāno caturaṅginiṁ senaṁ sannayhitvā maṇiṁ dhajaggaṁ āropetvā rattandhakāratimisāya pāyāsi.
Once it so happened that King Mahāsudassana, testing that same jewel-treasure, mobilized his army of four divisions and, with the jewel hoisted on his banner, set out in the dark of the night.

Ye kho panānanda, samantā gāmā ahesuṁ, te tenobhāsena kammante payojesuṁ divāti maññamānā.
Then the villagers around them set off to work, thinking that it was day.

Rañño, ānanda, mahāsudassanassa evarūpaṁ maṇiratanaṁ pāturahosi.
Such is the jewel-treasure that appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

2.5. Itthiratana

2.5. The Woman Treasure

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa itthiratanaṁ pāturahosi Next, the woman-treasure appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

abhirūpā dassanīyā pāsādikā paramāya vaṇṇapokkharatāya samannāgatā nātidīghā nātirassā nātikisā nātithūlā nātikāḷikā nāccodātā atikkantā mānusivaṇṇaṁ appattā dibbavaṇṇaṁ.
She was attractive, good-looking, lovely, of surpassing beauty. She was neither too tall nor too short; neither too thin nor too fat; neither too dark nor too light. She outdid human beauty without reaching divine beauty.

Tassa kho panānanda, itthiratanassa evarūpo kāyasamphasso hoti, seyyathāpi nāma tūlapicuno vā kappāsapicuno vā.
And her touch was like a tuft of cotton-wool or kapok.

Tassa kho panānanda, itthiratanassa sīte uṇhāni gattāni honti, uṇhe sītāni.
When it was cool her limbs were warm, and when it was warm her limbs were cool.

Tassa kho panānanda, itthiratanassa kāyato candanagandho vāyati, mukhato uppalagandho.
The fragrance of sandal floated from her body, and lotus from her mouth.

Taṁ kho panānanda, itthiratanaṁ rañño mahāsudassanassa pubbuṭṭhāyinī ahosi pacchānipātinī kiṅkārapaṭissāvinī manāpacārinī piyavādinī.
She got up before the king and went to bed after him, and was obliging, behaving nicely and speaking politely.

Taṁ kho panānanda, itthiratanaṁ rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ manasāpi no aticari, kuto pana kāyena.
The woman-treasure did not betray the wheel-turning monarch even in thought, still less in deed.

Rañño, ānanda, mahāsudassanassa evarūpaṁ itthiratanaṁ pāturahosi.
Such is the woman-treasure that appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

2.6. Gahapatiratana

2.6. The Householder Treasure

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa gahapatiratanaṁ pāturahosi.
Next, the householder-treasure appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

Tassa kammavipākajaṁ dibbacakkhu pāturahosi yena nidhiṁ passati sassāmikampi assāmikampi.
The power of clairvoyance manifested in him as a result of past deeds, by which he sees hidden treasure, both owned and ownerless.

So rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ upasaṅkamitvā evamāha:
He approached the king and said,

‘appossukko tvaṁ, deva, hohi, ahaṁ te dhanena dhanakaraṇīyaṁ karissāmī’ti.
‘Relax, sire. I will take care of the treasury.’

Bhūtapubbaṁ, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano tameva gahapatiratanaṁ vīmaṁsamāno nāvaṁ abhiruhitvā majjhe gaṅgāya nadiyā sotaṁ ogāhitvā gahapatiratanaṁ etadavoca:
Once it so happened that the wheel-turning monarch, testing that same householder-treasure, boarded a boat and sailed to the middle of the Ganges river. Then he said to the householder-treasure, ‘attho me, gahapati, hiraññasuvaṇṇenā’ti.

‘Householder, I need gold coins and bullion.’

‘Tena hi, mahārāja, ekaṁ tīraṁ nāvā upetū’ti.
‘Well then, great king, draw the boat up to one shore.’

‘Idheva me, gahapati, attho hiraññasuvaṇṇenā’ti.
‘It’s right here, householder, that I need gold coins and bullion.’

Atha kho taṁ, ānanda, gahapatiratanaṁ ubhohi hatthehi udakaṁ omasitvā pūraṁ hiraññasuvaṇṇassa kumbhiṁ uddharitvā rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ etadavoca:
Then that householder-treasure, immersing both hands in the water, pulled up a pot full of gold coin and bullion, and said to the king, ‘alamettāvatā, mahārāja, katamettāvatā, mahārāja, pūjitamettāvatā, mahārājā’ti?

‘Is this sufficient, great king? Has enough been done, great king, enough offered?’

Rājā mahāsudassano evamāha:
The king said,

‘alamettāvatā, gahapati, katamettāvatā, gahapati, pūjitamettāvatā, gahapatī’ti.
‘That is sufficient, householder. Enough has been done, enough offered.’

Rañño, ānanda, mahāsudassanassa evarūpaṁ gahapatiratanaṁ pāturahosi.
Such is the householder-treasure that appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

2.7. Pariṇāyakaratana

2.7. The Counselor Treasure

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa pariṇāyakaratanaṁ pāturahosi Next, the counselor-treasure appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

paṇḍito viyatto medhāvī paṭibalo rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ upayāpetabbaṁ upayāpetuṁ, apayāpetabbaṁ apayāpetuṁ, ṭhapetabbaṁ ṭhapetuṁ.
He was astute, competent, intelligent, and capable of getting the king to appoint who should be appointed, dismiss who should be dismissed, and retain who should be retained.

So rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ upasaṅkamitvā evamāha:
He approached the king and said,

‘appossukko tvaṁ, deva, hohi, ahamanusāsissāmī’ti.
‘Relax, sire. I shall issue instructions.’

Rañño, ānanda, mahāsudassanassa evarūpaṁ pariṇāyakaratanaṁ pāturahosi.
Such is the counselor-treasure that appeared to King Mahāsudassana.

Rājā, ānanda, mahāsudassano imehi sattahi ratanehi samannāgato ahosi.
These are the seven treasures possessed by King Mahāsudassana.

3. Catuiddhisamannāgata

3. The Four Blessings

Rājā, ānanda, mahāsudassano catūhi iddhīhi samannāgato ahosi.
King Mahāsudassana possessed four blessings.

Katamāhi catūhi iddhīhi?
And what are the four blessings?

Idhānanda, rājā mahāsudassano abhirūpo ahosi dassanīyo pāsādiko paramāya vaṇṇapokkharatāya samannāgato ativiya aññehi manussehi.
He was attractive, good-looking, lovely, of surpassing beauty, more so than other people.

Rājā, ānanda, mahāsudassano imāya paṭhamāya iddhiyā samannāgato ahosi.

This is the first blessing.

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano dīghāyuko ahosi ciraṭṭhitiko ativiya aññehi manussehi.
Furthermore, he was long-lived, more so than other people.

Rājā, ānanda, mahāsudassano imāya dutiyāya iddhiyā samannāgato ahosi.
This is the second blessing.

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano appābādho ahosi appātaṅko samavepākiniyā gahaṇiyā samannāgato nātisītāya nāccuṇhāya ativiya aññehi manussehi.
Furthermore, he was rarely ill or unwell, and his stomach digested well, being neither too hot nor too cold, more so than other people.

Rājā, ānanda, mahāsudassano imāya tatiyāya iddhiyā samannāgato ahosi.
This is the third blessing.

Puna caparaṁ, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano brāhmaṇagahapatikānaṁ piyo ahosi manāpo.
Furthermore, he was as dear and beloved to the brahmins and householders

Seyyathāpi, ānanda, pitā puttānaṁ piyo hoti manāpo;
as a father is to his children.

evameva kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano brāhmaṇagahapatikānaṁ piyo ahosi manāpo.

Raññopi, ānanda, mahāsudassanassa brāhmaṇagahapatikā piyā ahesuṁ manāpā.
And the brahmins and householders were as dear to the king

Seyyathāpi, ānanda, pitu puttā piyā honti manāpā;
as children are to their father.

evameva kho, ānanda, raññopi mahāsudassanassa brāhmaṇagahapatikā piyā ahesuṁ manāpā.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano caturaṅginiyā senāya uyyānabhūmiṁ niyyāsi.
Once it so happened that King Mahāsudassana went with his army of four divisions to visit a park.

Atha kho, ānanda, brāhmaṇagahapatikā rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ upasaṅkamitvā evamāhaṁsu:
Then the brahmins and householders went up to him and said, ‘ataramāno, deva, yāhi, yathā taṁ mayaṁ cirataraṁ passeyyāmā’ti.

‘Slow down, Your Majesty, so we may see you longer!’

Rājāpi, ānanda, mahāsudassano sārathiṁ āmantesi:
And the king addressed his charioteer,

‘ataramāno, sārathi, rathaṁ pesehi, yathā ahaṁ brāhmaṇagahapatike cirataraṁ passeyyan’ti.
‘Drive slowly, charioteer, so I can see the brahmins and householders longer!’

Rājā, ānanda, mahāsudassano imāya catutthiyā iddhiyā samannāgato ahosi.
This is the fourth blessing.

Rājā, ānanda, mahāsudassano imāhi catūhi iddhīhi samannāgato ahosi.
These are the four blessings possessed by King Mahāsudassana.

4. Dhammapāsādapokkharaṇī

4. Lotus Ponds in the Palace of Principle

Atha kho, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa etadahosi:
Then King Mahāsudassana thought,

‘yannūnāhaṁ imāsu tālantarikāsu dhanusate dhanusate pokkharaṇiyo māpeyyan’ti.
‘Why don’t I have lotus ponds built between the palms, at intervals of a hundred bow lengths?’

Māpesi kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano tāsu tālantarikāsu dhanusate dhanusate pokkharaṇiyo.
So that’s what he did.

Tā kho panānanda, pokkharaṇiyo catunnaṁ vaṇṇānaṁ iṭṭhakāhi citā ahesuṁ—
The lotus ponds were lined with tiles of four colors,

ekā iṭṭhakā sovaṇṇamayā, ekā rūpiyamayā, ekā veḷuriyamayā, ekā phalikamayā.
made of gold, silver, beryl, and crystal.

Tāsu kho panānanda, pokkharaṇīsu cattāri cattāri sopānāni ahesuṁ catunnaṁ vaṇṇānaṁ,
And four flights of stairs of four colors descended into each lotus pond, ekaṁ sopānaṁ sovaṇṇamayaṁ ekaṁ rūpiyamayaṁ ekaṁ veḷuriyamayaṁ ekaṁ phalikamayaṁ.

made of gold, silver, beryl, and crystal.

Sovaṇṇamayassa sopānassa sovaṇṇamayā thambhā ahesuṁ, rūpiyamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.
The golden stairs had posts of gold, and banisters and finials of silver.

Rūpiyamayassa sopānassa rūpiyamayā thambhā ahesuṁ, sovaṇṇamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.
The silver stairs had posts of silver, and banisters and finials of gold.

Veḷuriyamayassa sopānassa veḷuriyamayā thambhā ahesuṁ, phalikamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.

The beryl stairs had posts of beryl, and banisters and finials of crystal.

Phalikamayassa sopānassa phalikamayā thambhā ahesuṁ, veḷuriyamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.
The crystal stairs had posts of crystal, and banisters and finials of beryl.

Tā kho panānanda, pokkharaṇiyo dvīhi vedikāhi parikkhittā ahesuṁ ekā vedikā sovaṇṇamayā, ekā rūpiyamayā.
Those lotus ponds were surrounded by two balustrades, made of gold and silver.

Sovaṇṇamayāya vedikāya sovaṇṇamayā thambhā ahesuṁ, rūpiyamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.
The golden balustrades had posts of gold, and banisters and finials of silver.

Rūpiyamayāya vedikāya rūpiyamayā thambhā ahesuṁ, sovaṇṇamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.
The silver balustrades had posts of silver, and banisters and finials of gold.

Atha kho, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa etadahosi:
Then King Mahāsudassana thought,

‘yannūnāhaṁ imāsu pokkharaṇīsu evarūpaṁ mālaṁ ropāpeyyaṁ uppalaṁ padumaṁ kumudaṁ puṇḍarīkaṁ sabbotukaṁ sabbajanassa anāvaṭan’ti.
‘Why don’t I plant flowers in the lotus ponds such as blue water lilies, and lotuses of pink, yellow, and white, blooming all year round, and accessible to the public?’

Ropāpesi kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano tāsu pokkharaṇīsu evarūpaṁ mālaṁ uppalaṁ padumaṁ kumudaṁ puṇḍarīkaṁ sabbotukaṁ sabbajanassa anāvaṭaṁ.
So that’s what he did.

Atha kho, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa etadahosi:

Then King Mahāsudassana thought,

‘yannūnāhaṁ imāsaṁ pokkharaṇīnaṁ tīre nhāpake purise ṭhapeyyaṁ, ye āgatāgataṁ janaṁ nhāpessantī’ti.
‘Why don’t I appoint bath attendants to help bathe the people who come to bathe in the lotus ponds?’

Ṭhapesi kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano tāsaṁ pokkharaṇīnaṁ tīre nhāpake purise, ye āgatāgataṁ janaṁ nhāpesuṁ.
So that’s what he did.

Atha kho, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa etadahosi:
Then King Mahāsudassana thought,

‘yannūnāhaṁ imāsaṁ pokkharaṇīnaṁ tīre evarūpaṁ dānaṁ paṭṭhapeyyaṁ—‘Why don’t I set up charities on the banks of the lotus ponds, annaṁ annaṭṭhikassa, pānaṁ pānaṭṭhikassa, vatthaṁ vatthaṭṭhikassa, yānaṁ yānaṭṭhikassa, sayanaṁ sayanaṭṭhikassa, itthiṁ itthiṭṭhikassa, hiraññaṁ hiraññaṭṭhikassa, suvaṇṇaṁ suvaṇṇaṭṭhikassā’ti.

so that those in need of food, drink, clothes, vehicles, beds, women, gold, or silver can get what they need?’

Paṭṭhapesi kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano tāsaṁ pokkharaṇīnaṁ tīre evarūpaṁ dānaṁ—
So that’s what he did.

annaṁ annaṭṭhikassa, pānaṁ pānaṭṭhikassa, vatthaṁ vatthaṭṭhikassa, yānaṁ yānaṭṭhikassa, sayanaṁ sayanaṭṭhikassa, itthiṁ itthiṭṭhikassa, hiraññaṁ hiraññaṭṭhikassa, suvaṇṇaṁ suvaṇṇaṭṭhikassa.

Atha kho, ānanda, brāhmaṇagahapatikā pahūtaṁ sāpateyyaṁ ādāya rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ upasaṅkamitvā evamāhaṁsu:
Then the brahmins and householders came to the king bringing abundant wealth and said, ‘idaṁ, deva, pahūtaṁ sāpateyyaṁ devaññeva uddissa ābhataṁ, taṁ devo paṭiggaṇhatū’ti.

‘Sire, this abundant wealth is specially for you alone; may Your Highness accept it!’

‘Alaṁ, bho, mamapidaṁ pahūtaṁ sāpateyyaṁ dhammikena balinā abhisaṅkhataṁ, tañca vo hotu, ito ca bhiyyo harathā’ti.
‘There’s enough raised for me through regular taxes. Let this be for you; and here, take even more!’

Te raññā paṭikkhittā ekamantaṁ apakkamma evaṁ samacintesuṁ:
When the king turned them down, they withdrew to one side to think up a plan, ‘na kho etaṁ amhākaṁ patirūpaṁ, yaṁ mayaṁ imāni sāpateyyāni punadeva sakāni gharāni paṭihareyyāma.

‘It wouldn’t be proper for us to take this abundant wealth back to our own homes.

Yannūna mayaṁ rañño mahāsudassanassa nivesanaṁ māpeyyāmā’ti.
Why don’t we build a home for King Mahāsudassana?’

Te rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ upasaṅkamitvā evamāhaṁsu:
They went up to the king and said,

‘nivesanaṁ te, deva, māpessāmā’ti.
‘We shall have a home built for you, sire!’

Adhivāsesi kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano tuṇhībhāvena.
King Mahāsudassana consented in silence.

Atha kho, ānanda, sakko devānamindo rañño mahāsudassanassa cetasā cetoparivitakkamaññāya vissakammaṁ devaputtaṁ āmantesi:

And then Sakka, lord of gods, knowing what the king was thinking, addressed the god Vissakamma, ‘ehi tvaṁ, samma vissakamma, rañño mahāsudassanassa nivesanaṁ māpehi dhammaṁ nāma pāsādan’ti.

‘Come, dear Vissakamma, build a palace named Principle as a home for King Mahāsudassana.’

‘Evaṁ, bhaddantavā’ti kho, ānanda, vissakammo devaputto sakkassa devānamindassa paṭissutvā seyyathāpi nāma balavā puriso samiñjitaṁ vā bāhaṁ pasāreyya pasāritaṁ vā bāhaṁ samiñjeyya; evameva—devesu tāvatiṁsesu antarahito rañño mahāsudassanassa purato pāturahosi.
‘Yes, lord,’ replied Vissakamma. Then, as easily as a strong person would extend or contract their arm, he vanished from the gods of the Thirty-Three and appeared in front of King Mahāsudassana.

Atha kho, ānanda, vissakammo devaputto rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ etadavoca:
Vissakamma said to the king,

‘nivesanaṁ te, deva, māpessāmi dhammaṁ nāma pāsādan’ti.
‘I shall build a palace named Principle as a home for you, sire.’

Adhivāsesi kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano tuṇhībhāvena.
King Mahāsudassana consented in silence.

Māpesi kho, ānanda, vissakammo devaputto rañño mahāsudassanassa nivesanaṁ dhammaṁ nāma pāsādaṁ.
And so that’s what Vissakamma did.

Dhammo, ānanda, pāsādo puratthimena pacchimena ca yojanaṁ āyāmena ahosi. Uttarena dakkhiṇena ca aḍḍhayojanaṁ vitthārena.
The Palace of Principle stretched for a league from east to west, and half a league from north to south.

Dhammassa, ānanda, pāsādassa tiporisaṁ uccatarena vatthu citaṁ ahosi catunnaṁ vaṇṇānaṁ iṭṭhakāhi—
It was lined with tiles of four colors, three fathoms high,

ekā iṭṭhakā sovaṇṇamayā, ekā rūpiyamayā, ekā veḷuriyamayā, ekā phalikamayā.
made of gold, silver, beryl, and crystal.

Dhammassa, ānanda, pāsādassa caturāsītithambhasahassāni ahesuṁ catunnaṁ vaṇṇānaṁ—
It had 84,000 pillars of four colors,

eko thambho sovaṇṇamayo, eko rūpiyamayo, eko veḷuriyamayo, eko phalikamayo.
made of gold, silver, beryl, and crystal.

Dhammo, ānanda, pāsādo catunnaṁ vaṇṇānaṁ phalakehi santhato ahosi—
It was covered with panels of four colors, ekaṁ phalakaṁ sovaṇṇamayaṁ, ekaṁ rūpiyamayaṁ, ekaṁ veḷuriyamayaṁ, ekaṁ phalikamayaṁ.

made of gold, silver, beryl, and crystal.

Dhammassa, ānanda, pāsādassa catuvīsati sopānāni ahesuṁ catunnaṁ vaṇṇānaṁ—
It had twenty-four staircases of four colors,

ekaṁ sopānaṁ sovaṇṇamayaṁ, ekaṁ rūpiyamayaṁ, ekaṁ veḷuriyamayaṁ, ekaṁ phalikamayaṁ.
made of gold, silver, beryl, and crystal.

Sovaṇṇamayassa sopānassa sovaṇṇamayā thambhā ahesuṁ rūpiyamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.
The golden stairs had posts of gold, and banisters and finials of silver.

Rūpiyamayassa sopānassa rūpiyamayā thambhā ahesuṁ sovaṇṇamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.

The silver stairs had posts of silver, and banisters and finials of gold.

Veḷuriyamayassa sopānassa veḷuriyamayā thambhā ahesuṁ phalikamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.
The beryl stairs had posts of beryl, and banisters and finials of crystal.

Phalikamayassa sopānassa phalikamayā thambhā ahesuṁ veḷuriyamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.
The crystal stairs had posts of crystal, and banisters and finials of beryl.

Dhamme, ānanda, pāsāde caturāsītikūṭāgārasahassāni ahesuṁ catunnaṁ vaṇṇānaṁ—
It had 84,000 chambers of four colors, ekaṁ kūṭāgāraṁ sovaṇṇamayaṁ, ekaṁ rūpiyamayaṁ, ekaṁ veḷuriyamayaṁ, ekaṁ phalikamayaṁ.

made of gold, silver, beryl, and crystal.

Sovaṇṇamaye kūṭāgāre rūpiyamayo pallaṅko paññatto ahosi, rūpiyamaye kūṭāgāre sovaṇṇamayo pallaṅko paññatto ahosi, veḷuriyamaye kūṭāgāre dantamayo pallaṅko paññatto ahosi, phalikamaye kūṭāgāre sāramayo pallaṅko paññatto ahosi.
In each chamber a couch was spread: in the golden chamber a couch of silver; in the silver chamber a couch of beryl; in the beryl chamber a couch of ivory; in the crystal chamber a couch of hardwood.

Sovaṇṇamayassa kūṭāgārassa dvāre rūpiyamayo tālo ṭhito ahosi, tassa rūpiyamayo khandho sovaṇṇamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
At the door of the golden chamber stood a palm tree of silver, with trunk of silver, and leaves and fruits of gold.

Rūpiyamayassa kūṭāgārassa dvāre sovaṇṇamayo tālo ṭhito ahosi, tassa sovaṇṇamayo khandho, rūpiyamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.

At the door of the silver chamber stood a palm tree of gold, with trunk of gold, and leaves and fruits of silver.

Veḷuriyamayassa kūṭāgārassa dvāre phalikamayo tālo ṭhito ahosi, tassa phalikamayo khandho, veḷuriyamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
At the door of the beryl chamber stood a palm tree of crystal, with trunk of crystal, and leaves and fruits of beryl.

Phalikamayassa kūṭāgārassa dvāre veḷuriyamayo tālo ṭhito ahosi, tassa veḷuriyamayo khandho, phalikamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
At the door of the crystal chamber stood a palm tree of beryl, with trunk of beryl, and leaves and fruits of crystal.

Atha kho, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa etadahosi:
Then King Mahāsudassana thought,

‘yannūnāhaṁ mahāviyūhassa kūṭāgārassa dvāre sabbasovaṇṇamayaṁ tālavanaṁ māpeyyaṁ, yattha divāvihāraṁ nisīdissāmī’ti.
‘Why don’t I build a grove of golden palm trees at the door to the great foyer, where I can sit for the day?’

Māpesi kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano mahāviyūhassa kūṭāgārassa dvāre sabbasovaṇṇamayaṁ tālavanaṁ, yattha divāvihāraṁ nisīdi.
So that’s what he did.

Dhammo, ānanda, pāsādo dvīhi vedikāhi parikkhitto ahosi, ekā vedikā sovaṇṇamayā, ekā rūpiyamayā.
The Palace of Principle was surrounded by two balustrades, made of gold and silver.

Sovaṇṇamayāya vedikāya sovaṇṇamayā thambhā ahesuṁ, rūpiyamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.
The golden balustrades had posts of gold, and banisters and finials of silver.

Rūpiyamayāya vedikāya rūpiyamayā thambhā ahesuṁ, sovaṇṇamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.
The silver balustrades had posts of silver, and banisters and finials of gold.

Dhammo, ānanda, pāsādo dvīhi kiṅkiṇikajālehi parikkhitto ahosi —
The Palace of Principle was surrounded by two nets of bells, ekaṁ jālaṁ sovaṇṇamayaṁ ekaṁ rūpiyamayaṁ.

made of gold and silver.

Sovaṇṇamayassa jālassa rūpiyamayā kiṅkiṇikā ahesuṁ, rūpiyamayassa jālassa sovaṇṇamayā kiṅkiṇikā ahesuṁ.
The golden net had bells of silver, and the silver net had bells of gold.

Tesaṁ kho panānanda, kiṅkiṇikajālānaṁ vāteritānaṁ saddo ahosi vaggu ca rajanīyo ca khamanīyo ca madanīyo ca.
When those nets of bells were blown by the wind they sounded graceful, tantalizing, sensuous, lovely, and intoxicating,

Seyyathāpi, ānanda, pañcaṅgikassa tūriyassa suvinītassa suppaṭitāḷitassa sukusalehi samannāhatassa saddo hoti, vaggu ca rajanīyo ca khamanīyo ca madanīyo ca;
like a quintet made up of skilled musicians who had practiced well and kept excellent rhythm.

evameva kho, ānanda, tesaṁ kiṅkiṇikajālānaṁ vāteritānaṁ saddo ahosi vaggu ca rajanīyo ca khamanīyo ca madanīyo ca.

Ye kho panānanda, tena samayena kusāvatiyā rājadhāniyā dhuttā ahesuṁ soṇḍā pipāsā, te tesaṁ kiṅkiṇikajālānaṁ vāteritānaṁ saddena paricāresuṁ.
And any addicts, libertines, or drunkards in Kusāvatī at that time were entertained by that sound.

Niṭṭhito kho panānanda, dhammo pāsādo duddikkho ahosi musati cakkhūni.

When it was finished, the palace was hard to look at, dazzling to the eyes,

Seyyathāpi, ānanda, vassānaṁ pacchime māse saradasamaye viddhe vigatavalāhake deve ādicco nabhaṁ abbhussakkamāno duddikkho hoti musati cakkhūni; like the sun rising in a clear and cloudless sky in the last month of the rainy season.

evameva kho, ānanda, dhammo pāsādo duddikkho ahosi musati cakkhūni.

Atha kho, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa etadahosi:
Then King Mahāsudassana thought,

‘yannūnāhaṁ dhammassa pāsādassa purato dhammaṁ nāma pokkharaṇiṁ māpeyyan’ti.
‘Why don’t I build a lotus pond named Principle in front of the palace?’

Māpesi kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano dhammassa pāsādassa purato dhammaṁ nāma pokkharaṇiṁ.
So that’s what he did.

Dhammā, ānanda, pokkharaṇī puratthimena pacchimena ca yojanaṁ āyāmena ahosi, uttarena dakkhiṇena ca aḍḍhayojanaṁ vitthārena.
The Lotus Pond of Principle stretched for a league from east to west, and half a league from north to south.

Dhammā, ānanda, pokkharaṇī catunnaṁ vaṇṇānaṁ iṭṭhakāhi citā ahosi—
It was lined with tiles of four colors,

ekā iṭṭhakā sovaṇṇamayā, ekā rūpiyamayā, ekā veḷuriyamayā, ekā phalikamayā.
made of gold, silver, beryl, and crystal.

Dhammāya, ānanda, pokkharaṇiyā catuvīsati sopānāni ahesuṁ catunnaṁ vaṇṇānaṁ—
It had twenty-four staircases of four colors,

ekaṁ sopānaṁ sovaṇṇamayaṁ, ekaṁ rūpiyamayaṁ, ekaṁ veḷuriyamayaṁ, ekaṁ phalikamayaṁ.
made of gold, silver, beryl, and crystal.

Sovaṇṇamayassa sopānassa sovaṇṇamayā thambhā ahesuṁ rūpiyamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.
The golden stairs had posts of gold, and banisters and finials of silver.

Rūpiyamayassa sopānassa rūpiyamayā thambhā ahesuṁ sovaṇṇamayā sūciyo ca uṇhīsañca.

The silver balustrades had posts of silver, and banisters and finials of gold.

Dhammā, ānanda, pokkharaṇī sattahi tālapantīhi parikkhittā ahosi—
It was surrounded by seven rows of palm trees,

ekā tālapanti sovaṇṇamayā, ekā rūpiyamayā, ekā veḷuriyamayā, ekā phalikamayā, ekā lohitaṅkamayā, ekā masāragallamayā, ekā sabbaratanamayā.
made of gold, silver, beryl, crystal, ruby, emerald, and all precious things.

Sovaṇṇamayassa tālassa sovaṇṇamayo khandho ahosi rūpiyamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
The golden palms had trunks of gold, and leaves and fruits of silver.

Rūpiyamayassa tālassa rūpiyamayo khandho ahosi sovaṇṇamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
The silver palms had trunks of silver, and leaves and fruits of gold.

The beryl palms had trunks of beryl, and leaves and fruits of crystal.

Phalikamayassa tālassa phalikamayo khandho ahosi veḷuriyamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
The crystal palms had trunks of crystal, and leaves and fruits of beryl.

Lohitaṅkamayassa tālassa lohitaṅkamayo khandho ahosi masāragallamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
The ruby palms had trunks of ruby, and leaves and fruits of emerald.

Masāragallamayassa tālassa masāragallamayo khandho ahosi lohitaṅkamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
The emerald palms had trunks of emerald, and leaves and fruits of ruby.

Sabbaratanamayassa tālassa sabbaratanamayo khandho ahosi, sabbaratanamayāni pattāni ca phalāni ca.
The palms of all precious things had trunks of all precious things, and leaves and fruits of all precious things.

Tāsaṁ kho panānanda, tālapantīnaṁ vāteritānaṁ saddo ahosi, vaggu ca rajanīyo ca khamanīyo ca madanīyo ca.
When those rows of palm trees were blown by the wind they sounded graceful, tantalizing, sensuous, lovely, and intoxicating,

Seyyathāpi, ānanda, pañcaṅgikassa tūriyassa suvinītassa suppaṭitāḷitassa sukusalehi samannāhatassa saddo hoti vaggu ca rajanīyo ca khamanīyo ca madanīyo ca;
like a quintet made up of skilled musicians who had practiced well and kept excellent rhythm.

evameva kho, ānanda, tāsaṁ tālapantīnaṁ vāteritānaṁ saddo ahosi vaggu ca rajanīyo ca khamanīyo ca madanīyo ca.

Ye kho panānanda, tena samayena kusāvatiyā rājadhāniyā dhuttā ahesuṁ soṇḍā pipāsā, te tāsaṁ tālapantīnaṁ vāteritānaṁ saddena paricāresuṁ.
And any addicts, libertines, or drunkards in Kusāvatī at that time were entertained by that sound.

Niṭṭhite kho panānanda, dhamme pāsāde niṭṭhitāya dhammāya ca pokkharaṇiyā rājā mahāsudassano ‘ye tena samayena samaṇesu vā samaṇasammatā brāhmaṇesu vā brāhmaṇasammatā’, te sabbakāmehi santappetvā dhammaṁ pāsādaṁ abhiruhi.
When the palace and its lotus pond were finished, King Mahāsudassana served those who were reckoned as true ascetics and brahmins with all they desired. Then he ascended the Palace of Principle.

Paṭhamabhāṇavāro.

5. Jhānasampatti

5. Attaining Absorption

Atha kho, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa etadahosi:
Then King Mahāsudassana thought,

‘kissa nu kho me idaṁ kammassa phalaṁ kissa kammassa vipāko, yenāhaṁ etarahi evaṁmahiddhiko evaṁmahānubhāvo’ti?
‘Of what deed of mine is this the fruit and result, that I am now so mighty and powerful?’

Atha kho, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa etadahosi:
Then King Mahāsudassana thought,

‘tiṇṇaṁ kho me idaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ tiṇṇaṁ kammānaṁ vipāko, yenāhaṁ etarahi evaṁmahiddhiko evaṁmahānubhāvo, seyyathidaṁ—
‘It is the fruit and result of three kinds of deeds:

dānassa damassa saṁyamassā’ti.
giving, self-control, and restraint.’

Atha kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano yena mahāviyūhaṁ kūṭāgāraṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā mahāviyūhassa kūṭāgārassa dvāre ṭhito udānaṁ udānesi:
Then he went to the great foyer, stood at the door, and expressed this heartfelt sentiment:

‘tiṭṭha, kāmavitakka, tiṭṭha, byāpādavitakka, tiṭṭha, vihiṁsāvitakka.
‘Stop here, sensual, malicious, and cruel thoughts—

Ettāvatā, kāmavitakka, ettāvatā, byāpādavitakka, ettāvatā, vihiṁsāvitakkā’ti.
no further!’

Atha kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano mahāviyūhaṁ kūṭāgāraṁ pavisitvā sovaṇṇamaye pallaṅke nisinno vivicceva kāmehi vivicca akusalehi dhammehi savitakkaṁ savicāraṁ vivekajaṁ pītisukhaṁ paṭhamaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja vihāsi.
Then he entered the great foyer and sat on the golden couch. Quite secluded from sensual pleasures, secluded from unskillful qualities, he entered and remained in the first absorption, which has the rapture and bliss born of seclusion, while placing the mind and keeping it connected.

Vitakkavicārānaṁ vūpasamā ajjhattaṁ sampasādanaṁ cetaso ekodibhāvaṁ avitakkaṁ avicāraṁ samādhijaṁ pītisukhaṁ dutiyaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja vihāsi.
As the placing of the mind and keeping it connected were stilled, he entered and remained in the second absorption, which has the rapture and bliss born of immersion, with internal clarity and confidence, and unified mind, without placing the mind and keeping it connected.

Pītiyā ca virāgā upekkhako ca vihāsi, sato ca sampajāno sukhañca kāyena paṭisaṁvedesi, yaṁ taṁ ariyā ācikkhanti: ‘upekkhako satimā sukhavihārī’ti tatiyaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja vihāsi.
And with the fading away of rapture, he entered and remained in the third absorption, where he meditated with equanimity, mindful and aware, personally experiencing the bliss of which the noble ones declare, ‘Equanimous and mindful, one meditates in bliss.’

Sukhassa ca pahānā dukkhassa ca pahānā pubbeva somanassadomanassānaṁ atthaṅgamā adukkhamasukhaṁ upekkhāsatipārisuddhiṁ catutthaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja vihāsi.
With the giving up of pleasure and pain, and the ending of former happiness and sadness, he entered and remained in the fourth absorption, without pleasure or pain, with pure equanimity and mindfulness.

Atha kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano mahāviyūhā kūṭāgārā nikkhamitvā sovaṇṇamayaṁ kūṭāgāraṁ pavisitvā rūpiyamaye pallaṅke nisinno mettāsahagatena cetasā ekaṁ disaṁ pharitvā vihāsi. Tathā dutiyaṁ tathā tatiyaṁ tathā catutthaṁ. Iti uddhamadho tiriyaṁ sabbadhi sabbattatāya sabbāvantaṁ lokaṁ mettāsahagatena cetasā vipulena mahaggatena appamāṇena averena abyāpajjena pharitvā vihāsi.
Then King Mahāsudassana left the great foyer and entered the golden chamber, where he sat on the golden couch.

He meditated spreading a heart full of love to one direction, and to the second, and to the third, and to the fourth. In the same way he spread a heart full of love above, below, across, everywhere, all around, to everyone in the world—abundant, expansive, limitless, free of enmity and ill will.

Karuṇāsahagatena cetasā …pe…
He meditated spreading a heart full of compassion …

muditāsahagatena cetasā …pe…
He meditated spreading a heart full of rejoicing …

upekkhāsahagatena cetasā ekaṁ disaṁ pharitvā vihāsi. Tathā dutiyaṁ tathā tatiyaṁ tathā catutthaṁ. Iti uddhamadho tiriyaṁ sabbadhi sabbattatāya sabbāvantaṁ lokaṁ upekkhāsahagatena cetasā vipulena mahaggatena appamāṇena averena abyāpajjena pharitvā vihāsi.
He meditated spreading a heart full of equanimity to one direction, and to the second, and to the third, and to the fourth. In the same way above, below, across, everywhere, all around, he spread a heart full of equanimity to the whole world—abundant, expansive, limitless, free of enmity and ill will.

6. Caturāsītinagarasahassādi

He had 84,000 aristocrat vassals, with the counselor-treasure foremost.

caturāsīti dhenusahassāni ahesuṁ duhasandanāni kaṁsūpadhāraṇāni;
He had 84,000 milk-cows with silken reins and bronze pails.

caturāsīti vatthakoṭisahassāni ahesuṁ khomasukhumānaṁ kappāsikasukhumānaṁ koseyyasukhumānaṁ kambalasukhumānaṁ;
He had 8,400,000,000 fine cloths of linen, silk, wool, and cotton.

rañño, ānanda, mahāsudassanassa caturāsīti thālipākasahassāni ahesuṁ sāyaṁ pātaṁ bhattābhihāro abhihariyittha.
He had 84,000 servings of food, which were presented to him as offerings in the morning and evening.

Tena kho panānanda, samayena rañño mahāsudassanassa caturāsīti nāgasahassāni sāyaṁ pātaṁ upaṭṭhānaṁ āgacchanti.

Now at that time his 84,000 royal elephants came to attend on him in the morning and evening.

Atha kho, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa etadahosi:
Then King Mahāsudassana thought,

‘imāni kho me caturāsīti nāgasahassāni sāyaṁ pātaṁ upaṭṭhānaṁ āgacchanti, yannūna vassasatassa vassasatassa accayena dvecattālīsaṁ dvecattālīsaṁ nāgasahassāni sakiṁ sakiṁ upaṭṭhānaṁ āgaccheyyun’ti.
‘What if instead half of the elephants took turns to attend on me at the end of each century?’

Atha kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano pariṇāyakaratanaṁ āmantesi:
He instructed the counselor-treasure to do this, and so it was done.

‘imāni kho me, samma pariṇāyakaratana, caturāsīti nāgasahassāni sāyaṁ pātaṁ upaṭṭhānaṁ āgacchanti, tena hi, samma pariṇāyakaratana, vassasatassa vassasatassa accayena dvecattālīsaṁ dvecattālīsaṁ nāgasahassāni sakiṁ sakiṁ upaṭṭhānaṁ āgacchantū’ti.

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, ānanda, pariṇāyakaratanaṁ rañño mahāsudassanassa paccassosi.

Atha kho, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa aparena samayena vassasatassa vassasatassa accayena dvecattālīsaṁ dvecattālīsaṁ nāgasahassāni sakiṁ sakiṁ upaṭṭhānaṁ āgamaṁsu.

7. Subhaddādeviupasaṅkamana

7. The Visit of Queen Subhaddā

Atha kho, ānanda, subhaddāya deviyā bahunnaṁ vassānaṁ bahunnaṁ vassasatānaṁ bahunnaṁ vassasahassānaṁ accayena etadahosi:

Then, after many years, many hundred years, many thousand years had passed, Queen Subhaddā thought, ‘ciraṁ diṭṭho kho me rājā mahāsudassano. Yannūnāhaṁ rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkameyyan’ti.

‘It is long since I have seen the king. Why don’t I go to see him?’

Atha kho, ānanda, subhaddā devī itthāgāraṁ āmantesi:
So the queen addressed the ladies of the harem,

‘etha tumhe sīsāni nhāyatha pītāni vatthāni pārupatha.
‘Come, bathe your heads and dress in yellow.

Ciraṁ diṭṭho no rājā mahāsudassano, rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamissāmā’ti.
It is long since we saw the king, and we shall go to see him.’

‘Evaṁ, ayye’ti kho, ānanda, itthāgāraṁ subhaddāya deviyā paṭissutvā sīsāni nhāyitvā pītāni vatthāni pārupitvā yena subhaddā devī tenupasaṅkami.
‘Yes, ma’am,’ replied the ladies of the harem. They did as she asked and returned to the queen.

Atha kho, ānanda, subhaddā devī pariṇāyakaratanaṁ āmantesi:
Then the queen addressed the counselor-treasure,

‘kappehi, samma pariṇāyakaratana, caturaṅginiṁ senaṁ, ciraṁ diṭṭho no rājā mahāsudassano, rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamissāmā’ti.
‘Dear counselor-treasure, please ready the army with four divisions. It is long since we saw the king, and we shall go to see him.’

‘Evaṁ, devī’ti kho, ānanda, pariṇāyakaratanaṁ subhaddāya deviyā paṭissutvā caturaṅginiṁ senaṁ kappāpetvā subhaddāya deviyā paṭivedesi:
‘Yes, my queen,’ he replied, and did as he was asked. He informed the queen,

‘kappitā kho, devi, caturaṅginī senā,
‘My queen, the army with four divisions is ready,

yassadāni kālaṁ maññasī’ti.
please go at your convenience.’

Atha kho, ānanda, subhaddā devī caturaṅginiyā senāya saddhiṁ itthāgārena yena dhammo pāsādo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā dhammaṁ pāsādaṁ abhiruhitvā yena mahāviyūhaṁ kūṭāgāraṁ tenupasaṅkami.
Then Queen Subhaddā together with the ladies of the harem went with the army to the Palace of Principle. She ascended the palace and went to the great foyer, Upasaṅkamitvā mahāviyūhassa kūṭāgārassa dvārabāhaṁ ālambitvā aṭṭhāsi.

where she stood leaning against a door-post.

Atha kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano saddaṁ sutvā:
Hearing them, the king thought,

‘kiṁ nu kho mahato viya janakāyassa saddo’ti mahāviyūhā kūṭāgārā nikkhamanto addasa subhaddaṁ deviṁ dvārabāhaṁ ālambitvā ṭhitaṁ, disvāna subhaddaṁ deviṁ etadavoca:
‘What’s that, it sounds like a big crowd!’ Coming out of the foyer he saw Queen Subhaddā leaning against a door-post and said to her,

‘ettheva, devi, tiṭṭha mā pāvisī’ti.
‘Please stay there, my queen, don’t enter in here.’

Atha kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano aññataraṁ purisaṁ āmantesi:
Then he addressed a certain man,

‘ehi tvaṁ, ambho purisa, mahāviyūhā kūṭāgārā sovaṇṇamayaṁ pallaṅkaṁ nīharitvā sabbasovaṇṇamaye tālavane paññapehī’ti.
‘Come, mister, bring the golden couch from the great foyer and set it up in the golden palm grove.’

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, ānanda, so puriso rañño mahāsudassanassa paṭissutvā mahāviyūhā kūṭāgārā sovaṇṇamayaṁ pallaṅkaṁ nīharitvā sabbasovaṇṇamaye tālavane paññapesi.
‘Yes, Your Majesty,’ that man replied, and did as he was asked.

Atha kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano dakkhiṇena passena sīhaseyyaṁ kappesi pāde pādaṁ accādhāya sato sampajāno.
The king laid down in the lion’s posture—on the right side, placing one foot on top of the other—mindful and aware.

Atha kho, ānanda, subhaddāya deviyā etadahosi:
Then Queen Subhaddā thought,

‘vippasannāni kho rañño mahāsudassanassa indriyāni, parisuddho chavivaṇṇo pariyodāto, mā heva kho rājā mahāsudassano kālamakāsī’ti rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ etadavoca:
‘The king’s faculties are so very clear, and the complexion of his skin is pure and bright. Let him not pass away!’ She said to him, ‘Imāni te, deva, caturāsīti nagarasahassāni kusāvatīrājadhānippamukhāni.

‘Sire, you have 84,000 cities, with the royal capital of Kusāvatī foremost.

Ettha, deva, chandaṁ janehi jīvite apekkhaṁ karohi.
Arouse desire for these! Take an interest in life!’

Imāni te, deva, caturāsīti pāsādasahassāni dhammapāsādappamukhāni.
And she likewise urged the king to live on by taking an interest in all his possessions as described above.

Ettha, deva, chandaṁ janehi jīvite apekkhaṁ karohi.

Imāni te, deva, caturāsīti kūṭāgārasahassāni mahāviyūhakūṭāgārappamukhāni.

Ettha, deva, chandaṁ janehi jīvite apekkhaṁ karohi.

Imāni te, deva, caturāsīti khattiyasahassāni anuyantāni pariṇāyakaratanappamukhāni.

Ettha, deva, chandaṁ janehi jīvite apekkhaṁ karohi.

Imāni te, deva, caturāsīti dhenusahassāni duhasandanāni kaṁsūpadhāraṇāni.

Ettha, deva, chandaṁ janehi jīvite apekkhaṁ karohi.

Imāni te, deva, caturāsīti vatthakoṭisahassāni khomasukhumānaṁ kappāsikasukhumānaṁ koseyyasukhumānaṁ kambalasukhumānaṁ.

Ettha, deva, chandaṁ janehi, jīvite apekkhaṁ karohi.

Imāni te, deva, caturāsīti thālipākasahassāni sāyaṁ pātaṁ bhattābhihāro abhihariyati.

Ettha, deva, chandaṁ janehi jīvite apekkhaṁ karohī'ti.

Evaṁ vutte, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano subhaddaṁ deviṁ etadavoca:
When the queen had spoken, the king said to her,

'Dīgharattaṁ kho maṁ tvaṁ, devi, iṭṭhehi kantehi piyehi manāpehi samudācarittha;
'For a long time, my queen, you have spoken to me with loving, desirable, pleasant, and agreeable words.

atha ca pana maṁ tvaṁ pacchime kāle aniṭṭhehi akantehi appiyehi amanāpehi samudācarasī'ti.
And yet in my final hour, your words are undesirable, unpleasant, and disagreeable!'

'Kathaṁ carahi taṁ, deva, samudācarāmī'ti?
'Then how exactly, Your Majesty, am I to speak to you?'

'Evaṁ kho maṁ tvaṁ, devi, samudācara:
'Like this, my queen:

“sabbeheva, deva, piyehi manāpehi nānābhāvo vinābhāvo aññathābhāvo, mā kho tvaṁ, deva, sāpekkho kālamakāsi, dukkhā sāpekkhassa kālaṅkiriyā, garahitā ca sāpekkhassa kālaṅkiriyā.
“Sire, we must be parted and separated from all we hold dear and beloved. Don’t pass away with concerns. Such concern is suffering, and it’s criticized.

Imāni te, deva, caturāsīti nagarasahassāni kusāvatīrājadhānippamukhāni.
Sire, you have 84,000 cities, with the royal capital of Kusāvatī foremost.

Ettha, deva, chandaṁ pajaha jīvite apekkhaṁ mākāsi.
Give up desire for these! Take no interest in life!”’

Imāni te, deva, caturāsīti pāsādasahassāni dhammapāsādappamukhāni.
And so on for all the king’s possessions.

Ettha, deva, chandaṁ pajaha jīvite apekkhaṁ mākāsi.

Evaṁ vutte, ānanda, subhaddā devī parodi assūni pavattesi.
When the king had spoken, Queen Subhaddā cried and burst out in tears.

Atha kho, ānanda, subhaddā devī assūni puñchitvā rājānaṁ mahāsudassanaṁ etadavoca:
Wiping away her tears, the queen said to the king:

‘Sabbeheva, deva, piyehi manāpehi nānābhāvo vinābhāvo aññathābhāvo, mā kho tvaṁ, deva, sāpekkho kālamakāsi, dukkhā sāpekkhassa kālaṅkiriyā, garahitā ca sāpekkhassa kālaṅkiriyā.

8. Brahmalokūpagama

8. Rebirth in the Brahmā Realm

Atha kho, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano na cirasseva kālamakāsi.
Not long after that, King Mahāsudassana passed away.

Seyyathāpi, ānanda, gahapatissa vā gahapatiputtassa vā manuññaṁ bhojanaṁ bhuttāvissa bhattasammado hoti; evameva kho, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa māraṇantikā vedanā ahosi.
And the feeling he had close to death was like a householder or their child falling asleep after eating a delectable meal.

Kālaṅkato ca, ānanda, rājā mahāsudassano sugatiṁ brahmalokaṁ upapajji.
When he passed away King Mahāsudassana was reborn in a good place, a Brahmā realm.

Rājā, ānanda, mahāsudassano caturāsīti vassasahassāni kumārakīḷaṁ kīḷi.
Ānanda, King Mahāsudassana played children's games for 84,000 years.

Caturāsīti vassasahassāni oparajjaṁ kāresi.
He ruled as viceroy for 84,000 years.

Caturāsīti vassasahassāni rajjaṁ kāresi.
He ruled as king for 84,000 years.

Caturāsīti vassasahassāni gihibhūto dhamme pāsāde brahmacariyaṁ cari.
He led the spiritual life as a layman in the Palace of Principle for 84,000 years.

So cattāro brahmavihāre bhāvetvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā brahmalokūpago ahosi.
And having developed the four Brahmā meditations, when his body broke up, after death, he was reborn in a good place, a Brahmā realm.

Siyā kho panānanda, evamassa:
Now, Ānanda, you might think:

‘añño nūna tena samayena rājā mahāsudassano ahosī’ti, ‘Surely King Mahāsudassana must have been someone else at that time?’

na kho panetaṁ, ānanda, evaṁ daṭṭhabbaṁ. Ahaṁ tena samayena rājā mahāsudassano ahosiṁ.
But you should not see it like that. I myself was King Mahāsudassana at that time.

Of those 84,000 couches, I only used one, made of gold or silver or ivory or heartwood.

Tesaṁ kho panānanda, caturāsīti nāgasahassānaṁ ekoyeva so nāgo hoti, yaṁ tena samayena abhiruhāmi yadidaṁ uposatho nāgarājā.
Of those 84,000 bull elephants, I only rode one, the royal bull elephant named Sabbath.

Tesaṁ kho panānanda, caturāsīti assasahassānaṁ ekoyeva so asso hoti, yaṁ tena samayena abhiruhāmi yadidaṁ valāhako assarājā.
Of those 84,000 horses, I only rode one, the royal horse named Thundercloud.

Tesaṁ kho panānanda, caturāsīti rathasahassānaṁ ekoyeva so ratho hoti, yaṁ tena samayena abhiruhāmi yadidaṁ vejayantaratho.
Of those 84,000 chariots, I only rode one, the chariot named Triumph.

Tesaṁ kho panānanda, caturāsīti itthisahassānaṁ ekāyeva sā itthī hoti, yā tena samayena paccupaṭṭhāti khattiyānī vā vessinī vā.
Of those 84,000 women, I was only served by one, a maiden of the aristocratic or merchant classes.

Tesaṁ kho panānanda, caturāsīti vatthakoṭisahassānaṁ ekaṁyeva taṁ dussayugaṁ hoti, yaṁ tena samayena paridahāmi khomasukhumaṁ vā kappāsikasukhumaṁ vā koseyyasukhumaṁ vā kambalasukhumaṁ vā.
Of those 8,400,000,000 cloths, I only wore one pair, made of fine linen, cotton, silk, or wool.

Tesaṁ kho panānanda, caturāsīti thālipākasahassānaṁ ekoyeva so thālipāko hoti, yato nāḷikodanaparamaṁ bhuñjāmi tadupiyañca sūpeyyaṁ.
Of those 84,000 servings of food, I only had one, eating at most a serving of rice and suitable sauce.

Passānanda, sabbete saṅkhārā atītā niruddhā vipariṇatā.
See, Ānanda! All those conditioned phenomena have passed, ceased, and perished.

Evaṁ aniccā kho, ānanda, saṅkhārā;
So impermanent are conditions,

evaṁ addhuvā kho, ānanda, saṅkhārā;
so unstable are conditions,

evaṁ anassāsikā kho, ānanda, saṅkhārā.
so unreliable are conditions.

Yāvañcidaṁ, ānanda, alameva sabbasaṅkhāresu nibbindituṁ, alaṁ virajjituṁ, alaṁ vimuccituṁ.
This is quite enough for you to become disillusioned, dispassionate, and freed regarding all conditions.

Chakkhattuṁ kho panāhaṁ, ānanda, abhijānāmi imasmiṁ padese sarīraṁ nikkhipitaṁ, tañca kho rājāva samāno cakkavattī dhammiko dhammarājā cāturanto vijitāvī janapadatthāvariyappatto sattaratanasamannāgato, ayaṁ sattamo sarīranikkhepo.
Six times, Ānanda, I recall having laid down my body at this place. And the seventh time was as a wheel-turning monarch, a just and principled king, at which time my dominion extended to all four sides, I achieved stability in the country, and I possessed the seven treasures.

Na kho panāhaṁ, ānanda, taṁ padesaṁ samanupassāmi sadevake loke samārake sabrahmake sassamaṇabrāhmaṇiyā pajāya sadevamanussāya yattha tathāgato aṭṭhamaṁ sarīraṁ nikkhipeyyā”ti.
But Ānanda, I do not see any place in this world with its gods, Māras, and Brahmās, this population with its ascetics and brahmins, its gods and humans where the Realized One would lay down his body for the eighth time.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Idaṁ vatvāna sugato athāparaṁ etadavoca satthā:
Then the Holy One, the Teacher, went on to say:

> “Aniccā vata saṅkhārā,
> “Oh! Conditions are impermanent,
>
> uppādavayadhammino;
> their nature is to rise and fall;
>
> Uppajjitvā nirujjhanti,
> having arisen, they cease;
>
> tesaṁ vūpasamo sukho”ti.
> their stilling is true bliss.”

Mahāsudassanasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ catutthaṁ.

1. Declaring the Rebirths of People From Nādika and Elsewhere

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā nātike viharati giñjakāvasathe.
At one time the Buddha was staying at Nādika in the brick house.

Tena kho pana samayena bhagavā parito parito janapadesu paricārake abbhatīte kālaṅkate upapattīsu byākaroti kāsikosalesu vajjimallesu cetivaṁsesu kurupañcālesu majjhasūrasenesu:
Now at that time the Buddha was explaining the rebirths of devotees all over the nations; the Kāsis and Kosalans, Vajjis and Mallas, Cetīs and Vaṁsas, Kurus and Pañcālas, Macchas and Sūrasenas:

“asu amutra upapanno, asu amutra upapanno.
“This one was reborn here, while that one was reborn there.

Over fifty devotees in Nādika have passed away having ended the five lower fetters. They’ve been reborn spontaneously, and will be extinguished there, not liable to return from that world.

Sādhikā navuti nātikiyā paricārakā abbhatītā kālaṅkatā tiṇṇaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā rāgadosamohānaṁ tanuttā sakadāgāmino, sakideva imaṁ lokaṁ āgantvā dukkhassantaṁ karissanti.
More than ninety devotees in Nādika have passed away having ended three fetters, and weakened greed, hate, and delusion. They're once-returners, who will come back to this world once only, then make an end of suffering.

2. Ānandaparikathā

2. Ānanda’s Suggestion

Atha kho āyasmato ānandassa etadahosi:
Then Venerable Ānanda thought,

“ime kho panāpi ahesuṁ māgadhakā paricārakā bahū ceva rattaññū ca abbhatītā kālaṅkatā.
“But there were also Magadhan devotees—many, and of long standing too—who have passed away.

Suññā maññe aṅgamagadhā aṅgamāgadhakehi paricārakehi abbhatītehi kālaṅkatehi.
You’d think that Aṅga and Magadha were empty of devotees who have passed away!

Te kho panāpi ahesuṁ buddhe pasannā dhamme pasannā saṅghe pasannā sīlesu paripūrakārino.
But they too had confidence in the Buddha, the teaching, and the Saṅgha, and had fulfilled their ethics.

Te abbhatītā kālaṅkatā bhagavatā abyākatā;
The Buddha hasn’t declared their passing.

tesampissa sādhu veyyākaraṇaṁ, bahujano pasīdeyya, tato gaccheyya sugatiṁ.
It would be good to do so, for many people would gain confidence, and so be reborn in a good place.

Ayaṁ kho panāpi ahosi rājā māgadho seniyo bimbisāro dhammiko dhammarājā hito brāhmaṇagahapatikānaṁ negamānañceva jānapadānañca.
That King Seniya Bimbisāra of Magadha was a just and principled king who benefited the brahmins and householders of town and country.

Apissudaṁ manussā kittayamānarūpā viharanti:
People still sing his praises:

‘evaṁ no so dhammiko dhammarājā sukhāpetvā kālaṅkato, evaṁ mayaṁ tassa dhammikassa dhammarañño vijite phāsu viharimhā’ti.
‘That just and principled king, who made us so happy, has passed away. Life was good under his dominion.’

He wandered for alms in Nādika. After the meal, on his return from alms-round, he washed his feet and entered the brick house. He paid heed, paid attention, and concentrated wholeheartedly on the fate of Magadhan devotees, and sat on the seat spread out, thinking, “gatiṁ nesaṁ jānissāmi abhisamparāyaṁ, yaṅgatikā te bhavanto yaṁabhisamparāyā”ti.

“I shall know their destiny, where they are reborn in the next life.”

Addasā kho bhagavā māgadhake paricārake:
And he saw where they had been reborn.

Atha kho bhagavā sāyanhasamayaṁ paṭisallānā vuṭṭhito giñjakāvasathā nikkhamitvā vihārapacchāyāyaṁ paññatte āsane nisīdi.
Then in the late afternoon, the Buddha came out of retreat. Emerging from the brick house, he sat on the seat spread out in the shade of the porch.

Atha kho āyasmā ānando yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Venerable Ānanda went up to the Buddha, bowed, sat down to one side, and said to him, “upasantapadisso, bhante, bhagavā bhātiriva bhagavato mukhavaṇṇo vippasannattā indriyānaṁ.

“Sir, you look so serene; your face seems to shine owing to the clarity of your faculties.

Santena nūnajja, bhante, bhagavā vihārena vihāsī”ti?
Have you been abiding in a peaceful meditation today, sir?”

“Yadeva kho me tvaṁ, ānanda, māgadhake paricārake ārabbha sammukhā parikathaṁ katvā uṭṭhāyāsanā pakkanto, tadevāhaṁ nātike piṇḍāya caritvā pacchābhattaṁ piṇḍapātapaṭikkanto pāde pakkhāletvā giñjakāvasathaṁ pavisitvā māgadhake paricārake ārabbha aṭṭhiṁ katvā manasikatvā sabbaṁ cetasā samannāharitvā paññatte āsane nisīdiṁ:
The Buddha then recounted what had happened since speaking to Ānanda, revealing that he had seen the destiny of the Magadhan devotees. He continued:

I am Janavasabha, Holy One!’

Abhijānāsi no tvaṁ, ānanda, ito pubbe evarūpaṁ nāmadheyyaṁ sutaṁ yadidaṁ janavasabho”ti?
Ānanda, do you recall having previously heard such a name as Janavasabha?”

“Na kho ahaṁ, bhante, abhijānāmi ito pubbe evarūpaṁ nāmadheyyaṁ sutaṁ yadidaṁ janavasabhoti, api ca me, bhante, lomāni haṭṭhāni ‘janavasabho’ti nāmadheyyaṁ sutvā.
“No, sir. But when I heard the word, I got goosebumps!

Tassa mayhaṁ, bhante, etadahosi:
I thought,

‘na hi nūna so orako yakkho bhavissati yadidaṁ evarūpaṁ nāmadheyyaṁ supaññattaṁ yadidaṁ janavasabho’”ti.
‘This must be no ordinary spirit to bear such an exalted name as Janavasabha.’” “Anantarā kho, ānanda, saddapātubhāvā uḷāravaṇṇo me yakkho sammukhe pāturahosi.

“After making himself heard while invisible, Ānanda, a very beautiful spirit appeared in front of me.

Dutiyakampi saddamanussāvesi:
And for a second time he called out:

‘bimbisāro ahaṁ, bhagavā;
‘I am Bimbisāra, Blessed One!

I am Bimbisāra, Holy One!

Idaṁ sattamaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhante, vessavaṇassa mahārājassa sahabyataṁ upapajjāmi, so tato cuto manussarājā bhavituṁ pahomi.

This is the seventh time I have been reborn in the company of the Great King Vessavaṇa. After passing away from there, I am now able to become a king of non-humans.

Ito satta tato satta,
Seven from here, seven from there—

saṁsārāni catuddasa;
fourteen transmigrations in all.

Nivāsamabhijānāmi,
That’s how many past lives

yattha me vusitaṁ pure.
I can recollect.

Dīgharattaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhante, avinipāto avinipātaṁ sañjānāmi, āsā ca pana me santiṭṭhati sakadāgāmitāyā’”ti.
For a long time I’ve known that I won’t be reborn in the underworld, but that I still hope to become a once-returner.’

“Acchariyamidaṁ āyasmato janavasabhassa yakkhassa, abbhutamidaṁ āyasmato janavasabhassa yakkhassa.
‘It’s incredible and amazing that you, the venerable spirit Janavasabha, should say:

‘Dīgharattaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhante, avinipāto avinipātaṁ sañjānāmī’ti ca vadesi, ‘āsā ca pana me santiṭṭhati sakadāgāmitāyā’ti ca vadesi, kutonidānaṁ panāyasmā janavasabho yakkho evarūpaṁ uḷāraṁ visesādhigamaṁ sañjānātī”ti?
“For a long time I’ve been aware that I won’t be reborn in the underworld” and also “But I still hope to become a once-returner.” But from what source do you know that you’ve achieved such a high distinction?’

“‘Na aññatra, bhagavā, tava sāsanā, na aññatra, sugata, tava sāsanā; ‘None other than the Blessed One’s instruction! None other than the Holy One’s instruction!

yadagge ahaṁ, bhante, bhagavati ekantikato abhippasanno, tadagge ahaṁ, bhante, dīgharattaṁ avinipāto avinipātaṁ sañjānāmi, āsā ca pana me santiṭṭhati sakadāgāmitāya.
From the day I had absolute devotion to the Buddha I have known that I won’t be reborn in the underworld, but that I still hope to become a once-returner.

Idhāhaṁ, bhante, vessavaṇena mahārājena pesito virūḷhakassa mahārājassa santike kenacideva karaṇīyena addasaṁ bhagavantaṁ antarāmagge giñjakāvasathaṁ pavisitvā māgadhake paricārake ārabbha aṭṭhiṁ katvā manasikatvā sabbaṁ cetasā samannāharitvā nisinnaṁ:
Just now, sir, I had been sent out by the great king Vessavaṇa to the great king Virūḷhaka’s presence on some business, and on the way I saw the Buddha giving his attention to the fate of the Magadhan devotees.

“gatiṁ nesaṁ jānissāmi abhisamparāyaṁ, yaṅgatikā te bhavanto yaṁabhisamparāyā”ti.

Anacchariyaṁ kho panetaṁ, bhante, yaṁ vessavaṇassa mahārājassa tassaṁ parisāyaṁ bhāsato sammukhā sutaṁ sammukhā paṭiggahitaṁ:
But it comes as no surprise that I have heard and learned the fate of the Magadhan devotees in the presence of the great king Vessavaṇa as he was speaking to his assembly.

“yaṅgatikā te bhavanto yaṁabhisamparāyā”ti.

Tassa mayhaṁ, bhante, etadahosi:
It occurred to me,

“bhagavantañca dakkhāmi, idañca bhagavato ārocessāmī”ti.
“I shall see the Buddha and inform him of this.”

Ime kho me, bhante, dvepaccayā bhagavantaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamituṁ.
These are the two reasons I’ve come to see the Buddha.

4. Devasabhā

4. The Council of the Gods

Purimāni, bhante, divasāni purimatarāni tadahuposathe pannarase vassūpanāyikāya puṇṇāya puṇṇamāya rattiyā kevalakappā ca devā tāvatiṁsā sudhammāyaṁ sabhāyaṁ sannisinnā honti sannipatitā.
Sir, it was more than a few days ago—on the fifteenth day sabbath on the full moon day at the entry to the rainy season—when all the gods of the Thirty-Three were sitting together in the Hall of Justice.

Mahatī ca dibbaparisā samantato nisinnā honti, cattāro ca mahārājāno catuddisā nisinnā honti.
A large assembly of gods was sitting all around, and the Four Great Kings were there.

Puratthimāya disāya dhataraṭṭho mahārājā pacchimābhimukho nisinno hoti deve purakkhatvā;
The Great King Dhataraṭṭha was seated to the east, facing west, in front of his gods.

dakkhiṇāya disāya virūḷhako mahārājā uttarābhimukho nisinno hoti deve purakkhatvā;
The Great King Virūḷhaka was seated to the south, facing north, in front of his gods.

pacchimāya disāya virūpakkho mahārājā puratthābhimukho nisinno hoti deve purakkhatvā;
The Great King Virūpakkha was seated to the west, facing east, in front of his gods.

uttarāya disāya vessavaṇo mahārājā dakkhiṇābhimukho nisinno hoti deve purakkhatvā.
The Great King Vessavaṇa was seated to the north, facing south, in front of his gods.

Yadā, bhante, kevalakappā ca devā tāvatiṁsā sudhammāyaṁ sabhāyaṁ sannisinnā honti sannipatitā, mahatī ca dibbaparisā samantato nisinnā honti, cattāro ca mahārājāno catuddisā nisinnā honti. Idaṁ nesaṁ hoti āsanasmiṁ;
When the gods of the Thirty-Three have a gathering like this, that is how they are seated.

atha pacchā amhākaṁ āsanaṁ hoti.
After that come our seats.

Ye te, bhante, devā bhagavati brahmacariyaṁ caritvā adhunūpapannā tāvatiṁsakāyaṁ, te aññe deve atirocanti vaṇṇena ceva yasasā ca.
Sir, those gods who had been recently reborn in the company of the Thirty-Three after leading the spiritual life under the Buddha outshone the other gods in beauty and glory.

Tena sudaṁ, bhante, devā tāvatiṁsā attamanā honti pamuditā pītisomanassajātā:
The gods of the Thirty-Three were uplifted and overjoyed at that, full of rapture and happiness, saying,

“dibbā vata bho kāyā paripūrenti, hāyanti asurakāyā”ti.
“The heavenly hosts swell, while the demon hosts dwindle!”

Atha kho, bhante, sakko devānamindo devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sampasādaṁ viditvā imāhi gāthāhi anumodi:
Seeing the joy of those gods, Sakka, lord of gods, celebrated with these verses:

“Modanti vata bho devā,
“The gods rejoice—

tāvatiṁsā sahindakā;
the Thirty-Three with their Lord—

Tathāgataṁ namassantā, revering the Realized One,

dhammassa ca sudhammataṁ.
and the natural excellence of the teaching;

Nave deve ca passantā,
and seeing the new gods,

vaṇṇavante yasassine;
so beautiful and glorious,

Sugatasmiṁ brahmacariyaṁ,
who have come here after leading caritvāna idhāgate.

the spiritual life under the Buddha!

Te aññe atirocanti,
They outshine the others

vaṇṇena yasasāyunā;
in beauty, glory, and lifespan.

Sāvakā bhūripaññassa,
Here are the distinguished disciples

visesūpagatā idha.
of he whose wisdom is vast.

Idaṁ disvāna nandanti,
Seeing this, they delight—

tāvatiṁsā sahindakā;
the Thirty-Three with their Lord—

Tathāgataṁ namassantā,
revering the Realized One,

dhammassa ca sudhammatan”ti.
and the natural excellence of the teaching.”

Tena sudaṁ, bhante, devā tāvatiṁsā bhiyyoso mattāya attamanā honti pamuditā pītisomanassajātā
The gods of the Thirty-Three were even more uplifted and overjoyed at that, saying:

“dibbā vata, bho, kāyā paripūrenti, hāyanti asurakāyā”ti.
“The heavenly hosts swell, while the demon hosts dwindle!”

Atha kho, bhante, yenatthena devā tāvatiṁsā sudhammāyaṁ sabhāyaṁ sannisinnā honti sannipatitā, taṁ atthaṁ cintayitvā taṁ atthaṁ mantayitvā vuttavacanāpi taṁ cattāro mahārājāno tasmiṁ atthe honti. Paccānusiṭṭhavacanāpi taṁ cattāro mahārājāno tasmiṁ atthe honti,
Then the gods of the Thirty-Three, having considered and deliberated on the matter for which they were seated together in the Hall of Justice, advised and instructed the Four Great Kings on the subject.

sakesu sakesu āsanesu ṭhitā avipakkantā.
And each stood at his own seat without departing.

Te vuttavākyā rājāno,
The Kings were instructed,

paṭiggayhānusāsaniṁ;
and heeded good advice.

Vippasannamanā santā,
With clear and peaceful minds,

aṭṭhaṁsu samhi āsaneti.
they stood by their own seats.

Atha kho, bhante, uttarāya disāya uḷāro āloko sañjāyi, obhāso pāturahosi atikkammeva devānaṁ devānubhāvaṁ.
Then in the northern quarter a magnificent light arose and radiance appeared, surpassing the glory of the gods.

Atha kho, bhante, sakko devānamindo deve tāvatiṁse āmantesi:
Then Sakka, lord of gods, addressed the gods of the Thirty-Three,

“yathā kho, mārisā, nimittāni dissanti, uḷāro āloko sañjāyati, obhāso pātubhavati, brahmā pātubhavissati. Brahmuno hetaṁ pubbanimittaṁ pātubhāvāya yadidaṁ āloko sañjāyati obhāso pātubhavatī”ti.
“As indicated by the signs—light arising and radiance appearing—Brahmā will appear. For this is the precursor for the appearance of Brahmā, namely light arising and radiance appearing.”

Yathā nimittā dissanti,
As indicated by the signs,

brahmā pātubhavissati;
Brahmā will appear.

Brahmuno hetaṁ nimittaṁ,
For this is the sign of Brahmā:

obhāso vipulo mahāti.
a light vast and great.

5. Sanaṅkumārakathā

5. On Sanaṅkumāra

Atha kho, bhante, devā tāvatiṁsā yathāsakesu āsanesu nisīdiṁsu:
Then the gods of the Thirty-Three sat in their own seats, saying,

“obhāsametaṁ ñassāma, yaṁvipāko bhavissati, sacchikatvāva naṁ gamissāmā”ti.
“We shall find out what has caused that light, and having realized it we shall go to it.”

Cattāropi mahārājāno yathāsakesu āsanesu nisīdiṁsu:
And the Four Great Kings did likewise.

“obhāsametaṁ ñassāma yaṁvipāko bhavissati, sacchikatvāva naṁ gamissāmā”ti.

Idaṁ sutvā devā tāvatiṁsā ekaggā samāpajjiṁsu:
Hearing that, the gods of the Thirty-Three agreed in unison,

“obhāsametaṁ ñassāma, yaṁvipāko bhavissati, sacchikatvāva naṁ gamissāmā”ti.
“We shall find out what has caused that light, and having realized it we shall go to it.”

Yadā, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ pātubhavati, oḷārikaṁ attabhāvaṁ abhinimminitvā pātubhavati.
When Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra appears to the gods of the Thirty-Three, he does so after manifesting in a solid corporeal form.

Yo kho pana, bhante, brahmuno pakativaṇṇo anabhisambhavanīyo so devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ cakkhupathasmiṁ.
For the gods of the Thirty-Three aren’t able to see a Brahmā’s normal appearance.

Yadā, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ pātubhavati, so aññe deve atirocati vaṇṇena ceva yasasā ca.
When Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra appears to the gods of the Thirty-Three, he outshines the other gods in beauty and glory,

Seyyathāpi, bhante, sovaṇṇo viggaho mānusaṁ viggahaṁ atirocati;
as a golden statue outshines the human form.

evameva kho, bhante, yadā brahmā sanaṅkumāro devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ pātubhavati, so aññe deve atirocati vaṇṇena ceva yasasā ca.

Yadā, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ pātubhavati, na tassaṁ parisāyaṁ koci devo abhivādeti vā paccuṭṭheti vā āsanena vā nimanteti.
When Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra appears to the gods of the Thirty-Three, not a single god in that assembly greets him by bowing down or rising up or inviting him to a seat.

Sabbeva tuṇhībhūtā pañjalikā pallaṅkena nisīdanti:
They all sit silently on their couches with their joined palms raised, thinking, “yassadāni devassa pallaṅkaṁ icchissati brahmā sanaṅkumāro, tassa devassa pallaṅke nisīdissatī”ti.

“Now Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra will sit on the couch of whatever god he chooses.”

Yassa kho pana, bhante, devassa brahmā sanaṅkumāro pallaṅke nisīdati, uḷāraṁ so labhati devo vedapaṭilābhaṁ; uḷāraṁ so labhati devo somanassapaṭilābhaṁ.
And the god on whose couch Brahmā sits is overjoyed and brimming with happiness,

Seyyathāpi, bhante, rājā khattiyo muddhāvasitto adhunābhisitto rajjena, uḷāraṁ so labhati vedapaṭilābhaṁ, uḷāraṁ so labhati somanassapaṭilābhaṁ;
like a king on the day of his coronation.

evameva kho, bhante, yassa devassa brahmā sanaṅkumāro pallaṅke nisīdati, uḷāraṁ so labhati devo vedapaṭilābhaṁ, uḷāraṁ so labhati devo somanassapaṭilābhaṁ.

Atha, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro oḷārikaṁ attabhāvaṁ abhinimminitvā kumāravaṇṇī hutvā pañcasikho devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ pāturahosi.

Then Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra manifested in a solid corporeal form, taking on the appearance of the youth Pañcasikha, and appeared to the gods of the Thirty-Three.

So vehāsaṁ abbhuggantvā ākāse antalikkhe pallaṅkena nisīdi.
Rising into the air, he sat cross-legged in the sky,

Seyyathāpi, bhante, balavā puriso supaccatthate vā pallaṅke same vā bhūmibhāge pallaṅkena nisīdeyya;
like a strong man might sit cross-legged on a well-appointed couch or on level ground.

evameva kho, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro vehāsaṁ abbhuggantvā ākāse antalikkhe pallaṅkena nisīditvā devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sampasādaṁ viditvā imāhi gāthāhi anumodi:
Seeing the joy of those gods, Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra celebrated with these verses:

“Modanti vata bho devā,
“The gods rejoice—

tāvatiṁsā sahindakā;
the Thirty-Three with their Lord—

Tathāgataṁ namassantā,
revering the Realized One,

and the natural excellence of the teaching;

Nave deve ca passantā,
and seeing the new gods,

vaṇṇavante yasassine;
so beautiful and glorious,

Sugatasmiṁ brahmacariyaṁ,
who have come here after leading

the spiritual life under the Buddha!

Te aññe atirocanti,
They outshine the others

vaṇṇena yasasāyunā;
in beauty, glory, and lifespan.

Sāvakā bhūripaññassa,
Here are the distinguished disciples

visesūpagatā idha.
of he whose wisdom is vast.

Idaṁ disvāna nandanti,
Seeing this, they delight—

tāvatiṁsā sahindakā;
the Thirty-Three with their Lord—

Tathāgataṁ namassantā,
revering the Realized One,

dhammassa ca sudhammatan”ti.
and the natural excellence of the teaching!”

Imamatthaṁ, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro bhāsittha;
That is the topic on which Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra spoke.

imamatthaṁ, bhante, brahmuno sanaṅkumārassa bhāsato aṭṭhaṅgasamannāgato saro hoti vissaṭṭho ca viññeyyo ca mañju ca savanīyo ca bindu ca avisārī ca gambhīro ca ninnādī ca.
And while he was speaking on that topic, his voice had eight qualities: it was clear, comprehensible, charming, audible, rounded, undistorted, deep, and resonant.

Yathāparisaṁ kho pana, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro sarena viññāpeti; na cassa bahiddhā parisāya ghoso niccharati.

He makes sure his voice is intelligible as far as the assembly goes, but it doesn’t extend outside the assembly.

Yassa kho pana, bhante, evaṁ aṭṭhaṅgasamannāgato saro hoti, so vuccati “brahmassaro”ti.
When someone has a voice like this, they’re said to have the voice of Brahmā.

Atha kho, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro tettiṁse attabhāve abhinimminitvā devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ paccekapallaṅkesu pallaṅkena nisīditvā deve tāvatiṁse āmantesi:
Then Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra, having manifested thirty-three corporeal forms, sat down on the couches of each of the gods of the Thirty-Three and addressed them, “taṁ kiṁ maññanti, bhonto devā tāvatiṁsā, yāvañca so bhagavā bahujanahitāya paṭipanno bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānaṁ.

“What do the good gods of the Thirty-Three think about how much the Buddha has acted for the welfare and happiness of the people, for the benefit, welfare, and happiness of gods and humans?

Ye hi keci, bho, buddhaṁ saraṇaṁ gatā dhammaṁ saraṇaṁ gatā saṅghaṁ saraṇaṁ gatā sīlesu paripūrakārino te kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā appekacce paranimmitavasavattīnaṁ devānaṁ sahabyataṁ upapajjanti, appekacce nimmānaratīnaṁ devānaṁ sahabyataṁ upapajjanti, appekacce tusitānaṁ devānaṁ sahabyataṁ upapajjanti, appekacce yāmānaṁ devānaṁ sahabyataṁ upapajjanti, appekacce tāvatiṁsānaṁ devānaṁ sahabyataṁ upapajjanti, appekacce cātumahārājikānaṁ devānaṁ sahabyataṁ upapajjanti.
For consider those who have gone for refuge to the Buddha, the teaching, and the Saṅgha, and have fulfilled their ethics. When their bodies break up, after death, some are reborn in the company of the Gods Who Control the Creations of Others, some with the Gods Who Love to Create, some with the Joyful Gods, some with the Gods of Yama, some with the Gods of the Thirty-Three, and some with the Gods of the Four Great Kings.

Ye sabbanihīnaṁ kāyaṁ paripūrenti, te gandhabbakāyaṁ paripūrentī”ti.
And at the very least they swell the hosts of the fairies.”

Imamatthaṁ, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro bhāsittha;
That is the topic on which Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra spoke.

imamatthaṁ, bhante, brahmuno sanaṅkumārassa bhāsato ghosoyeva devā maññanti:
And while he was speaking on that topic, each of the gods fancied, “yvāyaṁ mama pallaṅke svāyaṁ ekova bhāsatī”ti.

“The one sitting on my couch is the only one speaking.”

Ekasmiṁ bhāsamānasmiṁ,
When one is speaking,

sabbe bhāsanti nimmitā;
all the forms speak.

Ekasmiṁ tuṇhimāsīne,
When one sits in silence,

sabbe tuṇhī bhavanti te.
they all remain silent.

Tadāsu devā maññanti,
But those gods imagine—

tāvatiṁsā sahindakā;
the Thirty-Three with their Lord—

Yvāyaṁ mama pallaṅkasmiṁ, that the one on their seat svāyaṁ ekova bhāsatīti.

is the only one to speak.

Atha kho, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro ekattena attānaṁ upasaṁharati, ekattena attānaṁ upasaṁharitvā sakkassa devānamindassa pallaṅke pallaṅkena nisīditvā deve tāvatiṁse āmantesi:
The Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra merged into one corporeal form. Then he sat on the couch of Sakka, lord of gods, and addressed the gods of the Thirty-Three:

6. Bhāvitaiddhipāda

6. Developing the Bases of Psychic Power

“Taṁ kiṁ maññanti, bhonto devā tāvatiṁsā, yāva supaññattā cime tena bhagavatā jānatā passatā arahatā sammāsambuddhena cattāro iddhipādā paññattā iddhipahutāya iddhivisavitāya iddhivikubbanatāya.
“What do the good gods of the Thirty-Three think about how much the four bases of psychic power have been clearly described by the Blessed One—the one who knows and sees, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha—for the multiplication, generation, and transformation of corporeal forms through psychic power?

Katame cattāro?
What four?

Idha bho bhikkhu chandasamādhippadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṁ iddhipādaṁ bhāveti.
It’s when a mendicant develops the basis of psychic power that has immersion due to enthusiasm, and active effort.

Vīriyasamādhippadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṁ iddhipādaṁ bhāveti.
They develop the basis of psychic power that has immersion due to energy, and active effort.

Cittasamādhippadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṁ iddhipādaṁ bhāveti.
They develop the basis of psychic power that has immersion due to mental development, and active effort.

Vīmaṁsāsamādhippadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṁ iddhipādaṁ bhāveti.
They develop the basis of psychic power that has immersion due to inquiry, and active effort.

Ime kho, bho, tena bhagavatā jānatā passatā arahatā sammāsambuddhena cattāro iddhipādā paññattā iddhipahutāya iddhivisavitāya iddhivikubbanatāya.
These are the four bases of psychic power that have been clearly described by the Buddha, for the multiplication, generation, and transformation of corporeal forms through psychic power.

Ye hi keci bho atītamaddhānaṁ samaṇā vā brāhmaṇā vā anekavihitaṁ iddhividhaṁ paccanubhosuṁ, sabbe te imesaṁyeva catunnaṁ iddhipādānaṁ bhāvitattā bahulīkatattā.
All the ascetics and brahmins in the past,

Yepi hi keci bho anāgatamaddhānaṁ samaṇā vā brāhmaṇā vā anekavihitaṁ iddhividhaṁ paccanubhossanti, sabbe te imesaṁyeva catunnaṁ iddhipādānaṁ bhāvitattā bahulīkatattā.
future,

Yepi hi keci bho etarahi samaṇā vā brāhmaṇā vā anekavihitaṁ iddhividhaṁ paccanubhonti, sabbe te imesaṁyeva catunnaṁ iddhipādānaṁ bhāvitattā bahulīkatattā.
or present who wield the many kinds of psychic power do so by developing and cultivating these four bases of psychic power.

Passanti no, bhonto devā tāvatiṁsā, mamapimaṁ evarūpaṁ iddhānubhāvan”ti?
gentlemen, do you see such psychic might and power in me?”

“Evaṁ, mahābrahme”ti.

“Yes, Great Brahmā.”

“Ahampi kho bho imesaṁyeva catunnañca iddhipādānaṁ bhāvitattā bahulīkatattā evaṁ mahiddhiko evaṁmahānubhāvo”ti.
“I too became so mighty and powerful by developing and cultivating these four bases of psychic power.”

Imamatthaṁ, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro bhāsittha.
That is the topic on which Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra spoke.

Imamatthaṁ, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro bhāsitvā deve tāvatiṁse āmantesi:
And having spoken about that, he addressed the gods of the Thirty-Three:

7. Tividhaokāsādhigama

7. The Three Openings

“Taṁ kiṁ maññanti, bhonto devā tāvatiṁsā, yāvañcidaṁ tena bhagavatā jānatā passatā arahatā sammāsambuddhena tayo okāsādhigamā anubuddhā sukhassādhigamāya.
“What do the good gods of the Thirty-Three think about how much the Buddha has understood the three opportunities for achieving happiness?

Katame tayo?
What three?

Idha bho ekacco saṁsaṭṭho viharati kāmehi saṁsaṭṭho akusalehi dhammehi.
First, take someone who lives mixed up with sensual pleasures and unskillful qualities.

So aparena samayena ariyadhammaṁ suṇāti, yoniso manasi karoti, dhammānudhammaṁ paṭipajjati.
After some time they hear the noble teaching, properly attend to how it applies to them, and practice accordingly.

So ariyadhammassavanaṁ āgamma yonisomanasikāraṁ dhammānudhammappaṭipattiṁ asaṁsaṭṭho viharati kāmehi asaṁsaṭṭho akusalehi dhammehi.
They live aloof from sensual pleasures and unskillful qualities.

Tassa asaṁsaṭṭhassa kāmehi asaṁsaṭṭhassa akusalehi dhammehi uppajjati sukhaṁ, sukhā bhiyyo somanassaṁ.
That gives rise to pleasure, and more than pleasure, happiness,

Seyyathāpi, bho, pamudā pāmojjaṁ jāyetha;
like the joy that's born from gladness.

evameva kho, bho, asaṁsaṭṭhassa kāmehi asaṁsaṭṭhassa akusalehi dhammehi uppajjati sukhaṁ, sukhā bhiyyo somanassaṁ.

Ayaṁ kho, bho, tena bhagavatā jānatā passatā arahatā sammāsambuddhena paṭhamo okāsādhigamo anubuddho sukhassādhigamāya.
This is the first opportunity for achieving happiness.

Puna caparaṁ, bho, idhekaccassa oḷārikā kāyasaṅkhārā appaṭippassaddhā honti, oḷārikā vacīsaṅkhārā appaṭippassaddhā honti, oḷārikā cittasaṅkhārā appaṭippassaddhā honti.
Next, take someone whose coarse physical, verbal, and mental processes have not died down.

So aparena samayena ariyadhammaṁ suṇāti, yoniso manasi karoti, dhammānudhammaṁ paṭipajjati.
After some time they hear the teaching of the noble ones, properly attend to how it applies to them, and practice accordingly.

Tassa ariyadhammassavanaṁ āgamma yonisomanasikāraṁ dhammānudhammappaṭipattiṁ oḷārikā kāyasaṅkhārā paṭippassambhanti, oḷārikā vacīsaṅkhārā paṭippassambhanti, oḷārikā cittasaṅkhārā paṭippassambhanti.
Their coarse physical, verbal, and mental processes die down.

Tassa oḷārikānaṁ kāyasaṅkhārānaṁ paṭippassaddhiyā oḷārikānaṁ vacīsaṅkhārānaṁ paṭippassaddhiyā oḷārikānaṁ cittasaṅkhārānaṁ paṭippassaddhiyā uppajjati sukhaṁ, sukhā bhiyyo somanassaṁ.
That gives rise to pleasure, and more than pleasure, happiness,

Seyyathāpi, bho, pamudā pāmojjaṁ jāyetha;
like the joy that's born from gladness.

evameva kho bho oḷārikānaṁ kāyasaṅkhārānaṁ paṭippassaddhiyā oḷārikānaṁ vacīsaṅkhārānaṁ paṭippassaddhiyā oḷārikānaṁ cittasaṅkhārānaṁ paṭippassaddhiyā uppajjati sukhaṁ, sukhā bhiyyo somanassaṁ.

Ayaṁ kho, bho, tena bhagavatā jānatā passatā arahatā sammāsambuddhena dutiyo okāsādhigamo anubuddho sukhassādhigamāya.
This is the second opportunity for achieving happiness.

Puna caparaṁ, bho, idhekacco 'idaṁ kusalan'ti yathābhūtaṁ nappajānāti, 'idaṁ akusalan'ti yathābhūtaṁ nappajānāti.
Next, take someone who doesn't truly understand what is skillful and what is unskillful,

'Idaṁ sāvajjaṁ idaṁ anavajjaṁ, idaṁ sevitabbaṁ idaṁ na sevitabbaṁ, idaṁ hīnaṁ idaṁ paṇītaṁ, idaṁ kaṇhasukkasappaṭibhāgan'ti yathābhūtaṁ nappajānāti.
what is blameworthy and what is blameless, what should be cultivated and what should not be cultivated, what is inferior and what is superior, and what is on the side of dark and the side of bright.

So aparena samayena ariyadhammaṁ suṇāti, yoniso manasi karoti, dhammānudhammaṁ paṭipajjati.
After some time they hear the teaching of the noble ones, properly attend to how it applies to them, and practice accordingly.

So ariyadhammassavanaṁ āgamma yonisomanasikāraṁ dhammānudhammappaṭipattiṁ, ‘idaṁ kusalan’ti yathābhūtaṁ pajānāti, ‘idaṁ akusalan’ti yathābhūtaṁ pajānāti.
They truly understand what is skillful and what is unskillful, and so on.

“What do the good gods of the Thirty-Three think about how much the Buddha has clearly described the seven prerequisites of immersion for the development and fulfillment of right immersion?

Katame satta?
What seven?

Sammādiṭṭhi sammāsaṅkappo sammāvācā sammākammanto sammāājīvo sammāvāyāmo sammāsati.
Right view, right thought, right speech, right action, right livelihood, right effort, and right mindfulness.

Yā kho, bho, imehi sattahaṅgehi cittassa ekaggatā parikkhatā, ayaṁ vuccati, bho, ariyo sammāsamādhi saupaniso itipi saparikkhāro itipi.
Unification of mind with these seven factors as prerequisites is called noble right immersion ‘with its vital conditions’ and ‘with its prerequisites’.

Right view gives rise to right thought. Right thought gives rise to right speech. Right speech gives rise to right action. Right action gives rise to right livelihood. Right livelihood gives rise to right effort. Right effort gives rise to right mindfulness. Right mindfulness gives rise to right immersion. Right immersion gives rise to right knowledge. Right knowledge gives rise to right freedom.

Svākkhāto hi, bho, bhagavatā dhammo sandiṭṭhiko, akāliko ehipassiko opaneyyiko paccattaṁ veditabbo viññūhi apārutā amatassa dvārā.
For the teaching is well explained by the Buddha—visible in this very life, immediately effective, inviting inspection, relevant, so that sensible people can know it for themselves—and the doors of the deathless are flung open.

And the Buddha, having heard and learned it in the presence of the spirit Janavasabha, and also from his own direct knowledge, informed Venerable Ānanda. And Venerable Ānanda, having heard and learned it in the presence of the Buddha, informed the monks, nuns, laymen, and laywomen.

Tayidaṁ brahmacariyaṁ iddhañceva phītañca vitthārikaṁ bāhujaññaṁ puthubhūtaṁ yāva devamanussehi suppakāsitanti.
And that’s how this spiritual life has become successful and prosperous, extensive, popular, widespread, and well proclaimed wherever there are gods and humans.

2. Aṭṭhayathābhuccavaṇṇa

2. Eight Genuine Praises

Atha kho, bhante, sakko devānamindo devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sampasādaṁ viditvā deve tāvatiṁse āmantesi:
Seeing the joy of those gods, Sakka, lord of gods, addressed them, ‘iccheyyātha no tumhe, mārisā, tassa bhagavato aṭṭha yathābhucce vaṇṇe sotun’ti?

‘Gentlemen, would you like to hear eight genuine praises of the Buddha?’

‘Icchāma mayaṁ, mārisa, tassa bhagavato aṭṭha yathābhucce vaṇṇe sotun’ti.
‘Indeed we would, sir.’

Atha kho, bhante, sakko devānamindo devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ bhagavato aṭṭha yathābhucce vaṇṇe payirudāhāsi:
Then Sakka proffered these eight genuine praises of the Buddha:

‘Taṁ kiṁ maññanti, bhonto devā tāvatiṁsā?
‘What do the good gods of the Thirty-Three think Yāvañca so bhagavā bahujanahitāya paṭipanno bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānaṁ.

about how much the Buddha has acted for the welfare and happiness of the people, out of compassion for the world, for the benefit, welfare, and happiness of gods and humans?

Evaṁ bahujanahitāya paṭipannaṁ bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānaṁ imināpaṅgena samannāgataṁ satthāraṁ neva atītaṁse samanupassāma, na panetarahi, aññatra tena bhagavatā. (1)
I don’t see any Teacher, past or present, who has such compassion for the world, apart from the Buddha.

Svākkhāto kho pana tena bhagavatā dhammo sandiṭṭhiko akāliko ehipassiko opaneyyiko paccattaṁ veditabbo viññūhi.
Also, the Buddha has explained the teaching well—visible in this very life, immediately effective, inviting inspection, relevant, so that sensible people can know it for themselves.

I don’t see any Teacher, past or present, who explains such a relevant teaching, apart from the Buddha.

“Idaṁ kusalan”ti kho pana tena bhagavatā supaññattaṁ, “idaṁ akusalan”ti supaññattaṁ.
Also, the Buddha has clearly described what is skillful and what is unskillful, “Idaṁ sāvajjaṁ idaṁ anavajjaṁ, idaṁ sevitabbaṁ idaṁ na sevitabbaṁ, idaṁ hīnaṁ idaṁ paṇītaṁ, idaṁ kaṇhasukkasappaṭibhāgan”ti supaññattaṁ.

what is blameworthy and what is blameless, what should be cultivated and what should not be cultivated, what is inferior and what is superior, and what is on the side of dark and the side of bright.

I don’t see any Teacher, past or present, who so clearly describes all these things, apart from the Buddha.

Supaññattā kho pana tena bhagavatā sāvakānaṁ nibbānagāminī paṭipadā, saṁsandati nibbānañca paṭipadā ca.
Also, the Buddha has clearly described the practice that leads to extinguishment for his disciples. And extinguishment and the practice come together,

Seyyathāpi nāma gaṅgodakaṁ yamunodakena saṁsandati sameti;
as the waters of the Ganges come together and converge with the waters of the Yamuna.

I don’t see any Teacher, past or present, who so clearly describes the practice that leads to extinguishment for his disciples, apart from the Buddha.

Abhinipphanno kho pana tassa bhagavato lābho abhinipphanno siloko, yāva maññe khattiyā sampiyāyamānarūpā viharanti, vigatamado kho pana so bhagavā āhāraṁ āhāreti.
Also, possessions and popularity have accrued to the Buddha, so much that you’d think it would thrill even the aristocrats. But he takes his food free of vanity.

Evaṁ vigatamadaṁ āhāraṁ āharayamānaṁ imināpaṅgena samannāgataṁ satthāraṁ neva atītaṁse samanupassāma, na panetarahi, aññatra tena bhagavatā. (5)

Laddhasahāyo kho pana so bhagavā sekhānañceva paṭipannānaṁ khīṇāsavānañca vusitavataṁ.
Also, the Buddha has gained companions, both trainees who are practicing, and those with defilements ended who have completed their journey.

Te bhagavā apanujja ekārāmataṁ anuyutto viharati.
The Buddha is committed to the joy of solitude, but doesn't send them away.

Evaṁ ekārāmataṁ anuyuttaṁ imināpaṅgena samannāgataṁ satthāraṁ neva atītaṁse samanupassāma, na panetarahi, aññatra tena bhagavatā. (6)
I don't see any Teacher, past or present, so committed to the joy of solitude, apart from the Buddha.

Yathāvādī kho pana so bhagavā tathākārī, yathākārī tathāvādī, iti yathāvādī tathākārī, yathākārī tathāvādī.
Also, the Buddha does as he says, and says as he does, thus: he does as he says, and says as he does.

Tiṇṇavicikiccho kho pana so bhagavā vigatakathaṅkatho pariyositasaṅkappo ajjhāsayaṁ ādibrahmacariyaṁ.
Also, the Buddha has gone beyond doubt and got rid of indecision. He has achieved all he wished for regarding the fundamental purpose of the spiritual life.

Evaṁ tiṇṇavicikicchaṁ vigatakathaṅkathaṁ pariyositasaṅkappaṁ ajjhāsayaṁ ādibrahmacariyaṁ imināpaṅgena samannāgataṁ satthāraṁ neva atītaṁse samanupassāma, na panetarahi, aññatra tena bhagavatā'ti. (8)

I don’t see any Teacher, past or present, who has achieved these things, apart from the Buddha.’

Ime kho, bhante, sakko devānamindo devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ bhagavato aṭṭha yathābhucce vaṇṇe payirudāhāsi.
These are the eight genuine praises of the Buddha proffered by Sakka.

Tena sudaṁ, bhante, devā tāvatiṁsā bhiyyoso mattāya attamanā honti pamuditā pītisomanassajātā bhagavato aṭṭha yathābhucce vaṇṇe sutvā.
Hearing them, the gods of the Thirty-Three were even more uplifted and overjoyed.

Tatra, bhante, ekacce devā evamāhaṁsu:
Then some gods thought,

‘aho vata, mārisā, cattāro sammāsambuddhā loke uppajjeyyuṁ dhammañca deseyyuṁ yathariva bhagavā.
‘If only four fully awakened Buddhas might arise in the world and teach the Dhamma, just like the Blessed One!

Evaṁ vutte, bhante, sakko devānamindo deve tāvatiṁse etadavoca:
When they said this, Sakka said,

‘It’s impossible, gentlemen, for two perfected ones, fully awakened Buddhas to arise in the same solar system at the same time.

Aho vata, mārisā, so bhagavā appābādho appātaṅko ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ tiṭṭheyya.
May that Blessed One be healthy and well, and remain with us for a long time!

Tadassa bahujanahitāya bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānan’ti.
That would be for the welfare and happiness of the people, out of compassion for the world, for the benefit, welfare, and happiness of gods and humans!’

Atha kho, bhante, yenatthena devā tāvatiṁsā sudhammāyaṁ sabhāyaṁ sannisinnā honti sannipatitā, taṁ atthaṁ cintayitvā taṁ atthaṁ mantayitvā vuttavacanāpi taṁ cattāro mahārājāno tasmiṁ atthe honti.
Then the gods of the Thirty-Three, having considered and deliberated on the matter for which they were seated together in the Hall of Justice, advised and instructed the Four Great Kings on the subject.

Paccānusiṭṭhavacanāpi taṁ cattāro mahārājāno tasmiṁ atthe honti, sakesu sakesu āsanesu ṭhitā avipakkantā.
And each stood at their own seat without departing.

Te vuttavākyā rājāno,
The Kings were instructed,

paṭiggayhānusāsaniṁ;
and heeded good advice.

Vippasannamanā santā,
With clear and peaceful minds,

aṭṭhaṁsu samhi āsaneti.
they stood by their own seats.

Atha kho, bhante, uttarāya disāya uḷāro āloko sañjāyi, obhāso pāturahosi atikkammeva devānaṁ devānubhāvaṁ.
Then in the northern quarter a magnificent light arose and radiance appeared, surpassing the glory of the gods.

Atha kho, bhante, sakko devānamindo deve tāvatiṁse āmantesi:
Then Sakka, lord of gods, addressed the gods of the Thirty-Three,

‘yathā kho, mārisā, nimittāni dissanti, uḷāro āloko sañjāyati, obhāso pātubhavati, brahmā pātubhavissati;
‘As indicated by the signs—light arising and radiance appearing—Brahmā will appear. For this is the precursor for the appearance of Brahmā, namely light arising and radiance appearing.’

brahmuno hetaṁ pubbanimittaṁ pātubhāvāya, yadidaṁ āloko sañjāyati obhāso pātubhavatīti.

Yathā nimittā dissanti,
As indicated by the signs,

brahmā pātubhavissati;
Brahmā will appear.

Brahmuno hetaṁ nimittaṁ,
For this is the sign of Brahmā:

obhāso vipulo mahā’ti.
a light vast and great.

3. Sanaṅkumārakathā

3. On Sanaṅkumāra

Atha kho, bhante, devā tāvatiṁsā yathāsakesu āsanesu nisīdiṁsu:
Then the gods of the Thirty-Three sat in their own seats, saying,

‘obhāsametaṁ ñassāma, yaṁvipāko bhavissati, sacchikatvāva naṁ gamissāmā’ti.
‘We shall find out what has caused that light, and having realized it we shall go to it.’

Cattāropi mahārājāno yathāsakesu āsanesu nisīdiṁsu:
And the Four Great Kings did likewise.

‘obhāsametaṁ ñassāma, yaṁvipāko bhavissati, sacchikatvāva naṁ gamissāmā’ti.

Idaṁ sutvā devā tāvatiṁsā ekaggā samāpajjiṁsu:
Hearing that, the gods of the Thirty-Three agreed in unison,

‘obhāsametaṁ ñassāma, yaṁvipāko bhavissati, sacchikatvāva naṁ gamissāmā’ti.

‘We shall find out what has caused that light, and having realized it we shall go to it.’

Yadā, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ pātubhavati, oḷārikaṁ attabhāvaṁ abhinimminitvā pātubhavati.
When Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra appears to the gods of the Thirty-Three, he does so after manifesting in a solid corporeal form,

Yo kho pana, bhante, brahmuno pakativaṇṇo, anabhisambhavanīyo so devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ cakkhupathasmiṁ.
for the gods of the Thirty-Three aren’t able to see a Brahmā’s normal appearance.

Yadā, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ pātubhavati, so aññe deve atirocati vaṇṇena ceva yasasā ca.
When Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra appears to the gods of the Thirty-Three, he outshines the other gods in beauty and glory,

Seyyathāpi, bhante, so vaṇṇo viggaho mānusaṁ viggahaṁ atirocati;
as a golden statue outshines the human form.

evameva kho, bhante, yadā brahmā sanaṅkumāro devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ pātubhavati, so aññe deve atirocati vaṇṇena ceva yasasā ca.

Yadā, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ pātubhavati, na tassaṁ parisāyaṁ koci devo abhivādeti vā paccuṭṭheti vā āsanena vā nimanteti.
When Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra appears to the gods of the Thirty-Three, not a single god in that assembly greets him by bowing down or rising up or inviting him to a seat.

Sabbeva tuṇhībhūtā pañjalikā pallaṅkena nisīdanti:
They all sit silently on their couches with their joined palms raised, thinking, ‘yassadāni devassa pallaṅkaṁ icchissati brahmā sanaṅkumāro, tassa devassa pallaṅke nisīdissatī’ti.

‘Now Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra will sit on the couch of whatever god he chooses.’

Yassa kho pana, bhante, devassa brahmā sanaṅkumāro pallaṅke nisīdati, uḷāraṁ so labhati devo vedapaṭilābhaṁ, uḷāraṁ so labhati devo somanassapaṭilābhaṁ.
And the god on whose couch Brahmā sits is overjoyed and brimming with happiness,

Seyyathāpi, bhante, rājā khattiyo muddhāvasitto adhunābhisitto rajjena, uḷāraṁ so labhati vedapaṭilābhaṁ, uḷāraṁ so labhati somanassapaṭilābhaṁ;
like a king on the day of his coronation.

evameva kho, bhante, yassa devassa brahmā sanaṅkumāro pallaṅke nisīdati, uḷāraṁ so labhati devo vedapaṭilābhaṁ, uḷāraṁ so labhati devo somanassapaṭilābhaṁ.

Atha, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sampasādaṁ viditvā antarahito imāhi gāthāhi anumodi:
Seeing the joy of those gods, Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra celebrated with these verses:

‘Modanti vata bho devā,
‘The gods rejoice—

tāvatiṁsā sahindakā;
the Thirty-Three with their Lord—

Tathāgataṁ namassantā,
revering the Realized One,

dhammassa ca sudhammataṁ.
and the natural excellence of the teaching;

Nave deve ca passantā,

and seeing the new gods,

vaṇṇavante yasassine;
so beautiful and glorious,

Sugatasmiṁ brahmacariyaṁ,
who have come here after leading

the spiritual life under the Buddha!

Te aññe atirocanti,
They outshine the others

vaṇṇena yasasāyunā;
in beauty, glory, and lifespan.

Sāvakā bhūripaññassa,
Here are the distinguished disciples

visesūpagatā idha.
of he whose wisdom is vast.

Idaṁ disvāna nandanti,
Seeing this, they delight—

tāvatiṁsā sahindakā;
the Thirty-Three with their Lord—

Tathāgataṁ namassantā,
revering the Realized One,

dhammassa ca sudhammatan’ti.
and the natural excellence of the teaching!’

Imamatthaṁ, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro abhāsittha.
That is the topic on which Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra spoke.

Imamatthaṁ, bhante, brahmuno sanaṅkumārassa bhāsato aṭṭhaṅgasamannāgato saro hoti vissaṭṭho ca viññeyyo ca mañju ca savanīyo ca bindu ca avisārī ca gambhīro ca ninnādī ca.

And while he was speaking on that topic, his voice had eight qualities: it was clear, comprehensible, charming, audible, rounded, undistorted, deep, and resonant.

Yathāparisaṁ kho pana, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro sarena viññāpeti, na cassa bahiddhā parisāya ghoso niccharati.
He makes sure his voice is intelligible as far as the assembly goes, but it doesn't extend outside the assembly.

Yassa kho pana, bhante, evaṁ aṭṭhaṅgasamannāgato saro hoti, so vuccati 'brahmassaro'ti.
When someone has a voice like this, they're said to have the voice of Brahmā.

Atha kho, bhante, devā tāvatiṁsā brahmānaṁ sanaṅkumāraṁ etadavocuṁ:
Then the gods of the Thirty-Three said to Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra,

'sādhu, mahābrahme, etadeva mayaṁ saṅkhāya modāma;
'Good, Great Brahmā! Knowing this, we rejoice.

atthi ca sakkena devānamindena tassa bhagavato aṭṭha yathābhuccā vaṇṇā bhāsitā;
And there are the eight genuine praises of the Buddha spoken by Sakka—te ca mayaṁ saṅkhāya modāmā'ti.

knowing them, too, we rejoice.'

4. Aṭṭhayathābhuccavaṇṇa

4. Eight Genuine Praises

Atha, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro sakkaṁ devānamindaṁ etadavoca:
Then Brahmā said to Sakka,

‘sādhu, devānaminda, mayampi tassa bhagavato aṭṭha yathābhucce vaṇṇe suṇeyyāmā’ti.
‘It would be good, lord of gods, if I could also hear the eight genuine praises of the Buddha.’

‘Evaṁ, mahābrahme’ti kho, bhante, sakko devānamindo brahmuno sanaṅkumārassa bhagavato aṭṭha yathābhucce vaṇṇe payirudāhāsi.
Saying, ‘Yes, Great Brahmā,’ Sakka repeated the eight genuine praises for him.

‘Taṁ kiṁ maññati, bhavaṁ mahābrahmā?

Hearing them, Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra was uplifted and overjoyed, full of rapture and happiness.

Atha, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro oḷārikaṁ attabhāvaṁ abhinimminitvā kumāravaṇṇī hutvā pañcasikho devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ pāturahosi.
Then Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra manifested in a solid corporeal form, taking on the appearance of the youth Pañcasikha, and appeared to the gods of the Thirty-Three.

So vehāsaṁ abbhuggantvā ākāse antalikkhe pallaṅkena nisīdi.
Rising into the air, he sat cross-legged in the sky,

Seyyathāpi, bhante, balavā puriso supaccatthate vā pallaṅke same vā bhūmibhāge pallaṅkena nisīdeyya;
like a strong man might sit cross-legged on a well-appointed couch or on level ground.

evameva kho, bhante, brahmā sanaṅkumāro vehāsaṁ abbhuggantvā ākāse antalikkhe pallaṅkena nisīditvā deve tāvatiṁse āmantesi:

There he addressed the gods of the Thirty-Three:

5. Govindabrāhmaṇavatthu

5. The Story of the Steward

‘Taṁ kiṁ maññanti, bhonto devā tāvatiṁsā, yāva dīgharattaṁ mahāpaññova so bhagavā ahosi.
‘What do the gods of the Thirty-Three think about the extent of the Buddha’s great wisdom?

Bhūtapubbaṁ, bho, rājā disampati nāma ahosi.
Once upon a time, there was a king named Disampati.

Disampatissa rañño govindo nāma brāhmaṇo purohito ahosi.
He had a brahmin high priest named the Steward.

Disampatissa rañño reṇu nāma kumāro putto ahosi.
Disampati’s son was the prince named Reṇu,

Govindassa brāhmaṇassa jotipālo nāma māṇavo putto ahosi.
while the Steward’s son was the student named Jotipāla.

Iti reṇu ca rājaputto jotipālo ca māṇavo aññe ca cha khattiyā iccete aṭṭha sahāyā ahesuṁ.
There were Reṇu the prince, Jotipāla the student, and six other aristocrats; these eight became friends.

Atha kho, bho, ahorattānaṁ accayena govindo brāhmaṇo kālamakāsi.
In due course the brahmin Steward passed away.

Govinde brāhmaṇe kālaṅkate rājā disampati paridevesi:
At his passing, King Disampati lamented,

“yasmiṁ vata, bho, mayaṁ samaye govinde brāhmaṇe sabbakiccāni sammā vossajjitvā pañcahi kāmaguṇehi samappitā samaṅgībhūtā paricārema, tasmiṁ no samaye govindo brāhmaṇo kālaṅkato”ti.

“At a time when I have relinquished all my duties to the brahmin Steward and amuse myself, supplied and provided with the five kinds of sensual stimulation, he passes away!”

Evaṁ vutte, bho, reṇu rājaputto rājānaṁ disampatiṁ etadavoca:
When he said this, Prince Reṇu said to him,

“mā kho tvaṁ, deva, govinde brāhmaṇe kālaṅkate atibāḷhaṁ paridevesi.
“Sire, don’t lament too much at the Steward’s passing.

Atthi, deva, govindassa brāhmaṇassa jotipālo nāma māṇavo putto paṇḍitataro ceva pitarā, alamatthadasataro ceva pitarā;
He has a son named Jotipāla, who is even more astute and expert than his father.

yepissa pitā atthe anusāsi, tepi jotipālasseva māṇavassa anusāsaniyā”ti.
He should manage the affairs that were managed by his father.”

“Evaṁ, kumārā”ti?
“Is that so, my prince?”

“Evaṁ, devā”ti.
“Yes, sire.”

6. Mahāgovindavatthu

6. The Story of the Great Steward

Atha kho, bho, rājā disampati aññataraṁ purisaṁ āmantesi:
So King Disampati addressed one of his men,

“ehi tvaṁ, ambho purisa, yena jotipālo māṇavo tenupasaṅkama; upasaṅkamitvā jotipālaṁ māṇavaṁ evaṁ vadehi:

“Please, mister, go to the student Jotipāla, and say to him, ‘bhavamatthu bhavantaṁ jotipālaṁ, rājā disampati bhavantaṁ jotipālaṁ māṇavaṁ āmantayati, rājā disampati bhoto jotipālassa māṇavassa dassanakāmo’”ti.

‘Best wishes, Jotipāla! You are summoned by King Disampati; he wants to see you.’”

“Evaṁ, devā”ti kho, bho, so puriso disampatissa rañño paṭissutvā yena jotipālo māṇavo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā jotipālaṁ māṇavaṁ etadavoca:
“Yes, Your Majesty,” replied that man, and did as he was asked.

“bhavamatthu bhavantaṁ jotipālaṁ, rājā disampati bhavantaṁ jotipālaṁ māṇavaṁ āmantayati, rājā disampati bhoto jotipālassa māṇavassa dassanakāmo”ti.

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho, bho, jotipālo māṇavo tassa purisassa paṭissutvā yena rājā disampati tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā disampatinā raññā saddhiṁ sammodi;
Then Jotipāla went to the king and exchanged greetings with him.

sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho, bho, jotipālaṁ māṇavaṁ rājā disampati etadavoca:
When the greetings and polite conversation were over, he sat down to one side, and the king said to him, “anusāsatu no bhavaṁ jotipālo, mā no bhavaṁ jotipālo anusāsaniyā paccabyāhāsi.

“May you, Jotipāla, manage my affairs—please don’t turn me down!

Pettike taṁ ṭhāne ṭhapessāmi, govindiye abhisiñcissāmī”ti.
I shall appoint you to your father’s position, and anoint you as Steward.”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho, bho, so jotipālo māṇavo disampatissa rañño paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Jotipāla.

Atha kho, bho, rājā disampati jotipālaṁ māṇavaṁ govindiye abhisiñci, taṁ pettike ṭhāne ṭhapesi.
So the king anointed him as Steward and appointed him to his father’s position.

Abhisitto jotipālo māṇavo govindiye pettike ṭhāne ṭhapito yepissa pitā atthe anusāsi tepi atthe anusāsati, yepissa pitā atthe nānusāsi tepi atthe anusāsati;
After his appointment, the Steward Jotipāla managed both the affairs that his father had managed, and other affairs that his father had not managed.

yepissa pitā kammante abhisambhosi tepi kammante abhisambhoti, yepissa pitā kammante nābhisambhosi tepi kammante abhisambhoti.
He organized both the works that his father had organized, and other works that his father had not organized.

Tamenaṁ manussā evamāhaṁsu:
When people noticed this they said,

“govindo vata, bho, brāhmaṇo, mahāgovindo vata, bho, brāhmaṇo”ti.
“The brahmin is indeed a Steward, a Great Steward!”

Iminā kho evaṁ, bho, pariyāyena jotipālassa māṇavassa govindo mahāgovindotveva samaññā udapādi.
And that’s how the student Jotipāla came to be known as the Great Steward.

6.1. Rajjasaṁvibhajana

6.1. Dividing the Realm

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo yena te cha khattiyā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā te cha khattiye etadavoca:
Then the Great Steward went to the six aristocrats and said, “disampati kho, bho, rājā jiṇṇo vuddho mahallako addhagato vayoanuppatto, ko nu kho pana, bho, jānāti jīvitaṁ?

“King Disampati is old, elderly and senior, advanced in years, and has reached the final stage of life. Who knows how long he has to live?

Ṭhānaṁ kho panetaṁ vijjati, yaṁ disampatimhi raññe kālaṅkate rājakattāro reṇuṁ rājaputtaṁ rajje abhisiñceyyuṁ.
It’s likely that when he passes away the king-makers will anoint Prince Reṇu as king.

Āyantu, bhonto, yena reṇu rājaputto tenupasaṅkamatha; upasaṅkamitvā reṇuṁ rājaputtaṁ evaṁ vadetha:
Come, sirs, go to Prince Reṇu and say,

‘Prince Reṇu, we are your friends, dear, beloved, and cherished. We have shared your joys and sorrows.

Disampati kho, bho, rājā jiṇṇo vuddho mahallako addhagato vayoanuppatto, ko nu kho pana, bho, jānāti jīvitaṁ?
King Disampati is old, elderly and senior, advanced in years, and has reached the final stage of life. Who knows how long he has to live?

Ṭhānaṁ kho panetaṁ vijjati, yaṁ disampatimhi raññe kālaṅkate rājakattāro bhavantaṁ reṇuṁ rajje abhisiñceyyuṁ.

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho, bho, te cha khattiyā mahāgovindassa brāhmaṇassa paṭissutvā yena reṇu rājaputto tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā reṇuṁ rājaputtaṁ etadavocuṁ:
“Yes, sir,” replied the six aristocrats. They went to Prince Reṇu and put the proposal to him.

“mayaṁ kho bhoto reṇussa sahāyā piyā manāpā appaṭikūlā; yaṁsukho bhavaṁ taṁsukhā mayaṁ, yaṁdukkho bhavaṁ taṁdukkhā mayaṁ.

Disampati kho, bho, rājā jiṇṇo vuddho mahallako addhagato vayoanuppatto, ko nu kho pana bho jānāti jīvitaṁ?

Ṭhānaṁ kho panetaṁ vijjati, yaṁ disampatimhi raññe kālaṅkate rājakattāro bhavantaṁ reṇuṁ rajje abhisiñceyyuṁ.

Sace bhavaṁ reṇu rajjaṁ labhetha, saṁvibhajetha no rajjenā”ti.

“Ko nu kho, bho, añño mama vijite sukho bhavetha, aññatra bhavantebhi?
The prince replied, “Who else, sirs, in my realm ought to prosper if not you?

Sacāhaṁ, bho, rajjaṁ labhissāmi, saṁvibhajissāmi vo rajjenā”ti.
If I gain kingship, I will share it with you all.”

Atha kho, bho, ahorattānaṁ accayena rājā disampati kālamakāsi.
In due course King Disampati passed away.

Disampatimhi raññe kālaṅkate rājakattāro reṇuṁ rājaputtaṁ rajje abhisiñciṁsu.
At his passing, the king-makers anointed Prince Reṇu as king.

Abhisitto reṇu rajjena pañcahi kāmaguṇehi samappito samaṅgībhūto paricāreti.

But after being anointed, King Reṇu amused himself, supplied and provided with the five kinds of sensual stimulation.

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo yena te cha khattiyā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā te cha khattiye etadavoca:
Then the Great Steward went to the six aristocrats and said, “disampati kho, bho, rājā kālaṅkato.

“King Disampati has passed away.

Abhisitto reṇu rajjena pañcahi kāmaguṇehi samappito samaṅgībhūto paricāreti.
But after being anointed, King Reṇu amused himself, supplied and provided with the five kinds of sensual stimulation.

Ko nu kho pana, bho, jānāti, madanīyā kāmā?
Who knows the intoxicating power of sensual pleasures?

Āyantu, bhonto, yena reṇu rājā tenupasaṅkamatha; upasaṅkamitvā reṇuṁ rājānaṁ evaṁ vadetha:
Come, sirs, go to Prince Reṇu and say,

‘disampati kho, bho, rājā kālaṅkato, abhisitto bhavaṁ reṇu rajjena, sarati bhavaṁ taṁ vacanan’”ti?
‘Sir, King Disampati has passed away, and you have been anointed as king. Do you remember what you said?’”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho, bho, te cha khattiyā mahāgovindassa brāhmaṇassa paṭissutvā yena reṇu rājā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā reṇuṁ rājānaṁ etadavocuṁ:
“Yes, sir,” replied the six aristocrats. They went to Prince Reṇu and said, “disampati kho, bho, rājā kālaṅkato, abhisitto bhavaṁ reṇu rajjena, sarati bhavaṁ taṁ vacanan”ti?

“Sir, King Disampati has passed away, and you have been anointed as king. Do you remember what you said?”

“Sarāmahaṁ, bho, taṁ vacanaṁ.
“I remember, sirs.

Ko nu kho, bho, pahoti imaṁ mahāpathaviṁ uttarena āyataṁ dakkhiṇena sakaṭamukhaṁ sattadhā samaṁ suvibhattaṁ vibhajitun”ti?
Who is able to neatly divide into seven equal parts this great land, so broad in the north and narrow as the front of a cart in the south?”

“Ko nu kho, bho, añño pahoti, aññatra mahāgovindena brāhmaṇenā”ti?
“Who else, sir, if not the Great Steward?”

Atha kho, bho, reṇu rājā aññataraṁ purisaṁ āmantesi:
So King Reṇu addressed one of his men,

“ehi tvaṁ, ambho purisa, yena mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo tenupasaṅkama; upasaṅkamitvā mahāgovindaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ evaṁ vadehi:
“Please, mister, go to the brahmin Great Steward and say that ‘rājā taṁ, bhante, reṇu āmantetī’”ti.

King Reṇu summons him.”

“Evaṁ, devā”ti kho, bho, so puriso reṇussa rañño paṭissutvā yena mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā mahāgovindaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ etadavoca:
“Yes, Your Majesty,” replied that man, and did as he was asked.

“rājā taṁ, bhante, reṇu āmantetī”ti.

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho, bho, mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo tassa purisassa paṭissutvā yena reṇu rājā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā reṇunā raññā saddhiṁ sammodi.
Then the Great Steward went to the king and exchanged greetings with him.

Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho, bho, mahāgovindaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ reṇu rājā etadavoca:
When the greetings and polite conversation were over, he sat down to one side, and the king said to him,

"etu, bhavaṁ govindo imaṁ mahāpathaviṁ uttarena āyataṁ dakkhiṇena sakaṭamukhaṁ sattadhā samaṁ suvibhattaṁ vibhajatū"ti.
"Come, let the good Steward neatly divide into seven equal parts this great land, so broad in the north and narrow as the front of a cart in the south."

"Evaṁ, bho"ti kho bho mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo reṇussa rañño paṭissutvā imaṁ mahāpathaviṁ uttarena āyataṁ dakkhiṇena sakaṭamukhaṁ sattadhā samaṁ suvibhattaṁ vibhaji.
"Yes, sir," replied the Great Steward, and did as he was asked.

Sabbāni sakaṭamukhāni paṭṭhapesi.
All were set up like the fronts of carts,

6.2. Kittisaddaabbhuggamana

6.2. A Good Reputation

Atha kho, bho, te cha khattiyā yena mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā mahāgovindaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ etadavocuṁ:
Then the six aristocrats approached the Great Steward and said, “yathā kho bhavaṁ govindo reṇussa rañño sahāyo piyo manāpo appaṭikūlo.

“Steward, just as you are King Reṇu’s friend, dear, beloved, and cherished, Evameva kho bhavaṁ govindo amhākampi sahāyo piyo manāpo appaṭikūlo, anusāsatu no bhavaṁ govindo;

you are also our friend.

mā no bhavaṁ govindo anusāsaniyā paccabyāhāsī”ti.
Would you manage our affairs? Please don’t turn us down!”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo tesaṁ channaṁ khattiyānaṁ paccassosi.
“Yes, sirs,” replied the Great Steward.

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo satta ca rājāno khattiye muddhāvasitte rajje anusāsi, satta ca brāhmaṇamahāsāle satta ca nhātakasatāni mante vācesi.
Then the Great Steward managed the realms of the seven kings. And he taught seven well-to-do brahmins, and seven hundred bathed initiates to recite the hymns.

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindassa brāhmaṇassa aparena samayena evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggacchi:
After some time he got this good reputation,

“sakkhi mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmānaṁ passati, sakkhi mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmunā sākaccheti sallapati mantetī”ti.
“The Great Steward sees Brahmā in person! The Great Steward discusses, converses, and consults with Brahmā in person!”

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindassa brāhmaṇassa etadahosi:
The Great Steward thought,

“mayhaṁ kho evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:
“I have the reputation

‘sakkhi mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmānaṁ passati, sakkhi mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmunā sākaccheti sallapati mantetī’ti.
of seeing Brahmā in person, and discussing with him in person.

Na kho panāhaṁ brahmānaṁ passāmi, na brahmunā sākacchemi, na brahmunā sallapāmi, na brahmunā mantemi.
But I don’t.

Sutaṁ kho pana metaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ vuddhānaṁ mahallakānaṁ ācariyapācariyānaṁ bhāsamānānaṁ:
I have heard that brahmins of the past who were elderly and senior, the teachers of teachers, said:

‘yo vassike cattāro māse paṭisallīyati, karuṇaṁ jhānaṁ jhāyati, so brahmānaṁ passati brahmunā sākaccheti brahmunā sallapati brahmunā mantetī’ti.
‘Whoever goes on retreat for the four months of the rainy season and practices the absorption on compassion sees Brahmā and discusses with him.’

Yannūnāhaṁ vassike cattāro māse paṭisallīyeyyaṁ, karuṇaṁ jhānaṁ jhāyeyyan”ti.
Why don’t I do that?”

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo yena reṇu rājā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā reṇuṁ rājānaṁ etadavoca:
So the Great Steward went to King Reṇu and told him of the situation, saying,

“mayhaṁ kho, bho, evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:

‘sakkhi mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmānaṁ passati, sakkhi mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmunā sākaccheti sallapati

“Yassadāni bhavaṁ govindo kālaṁ maññatī”ti.
“Please do so, Steward, at your convenience.”

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo yena te cha khattiyā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā te cha khattiye etadavoca:
Then the Great Steward went to the six aristocrats to put the same proposal, and received the same reply.

“mayhaṁ kho, bho, evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:

‘sakkhi mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmānaṁ passati, sakkhi mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmunā sākaccheti sallapati mantetī’ti.

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo yena te satta ca brāhmaṇamahāsālā satta ca nhātakasatāni tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā te satta ca brāhmaṇamahāsāle satta ca nhātakasatāni etadavoca:
He also went to the seven well-to-do brahmins and seven hundred bathed initiates and put to them the same proposal, adding,

“mayhaṁ kho, bho, evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:

‘sakkhi mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmānaṁ passati, sakkhi mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmunā sākaccheti sallapati mantetī’ti.

Na kho panāhaṁ, bho, brahmānaṁ passāmi, na brahmunā sākacchemi, na brahmunā sallapāmi, na brahmunā mantemi.

Sutaṁ kho pana metaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ vuddhānaṁ mahallakānaṁ ācariyapācariyānaṁ bhāsamānānaṁ:

namhi kenaci upasaṅkamitabbo aññatra ekena bhattābhihārenā”ti.
And they too said,

“Yassadāni bhavaṁ govindo kālaṁ maññatī”ti.
“Please do so, Steward, at your convenience.”

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo yena cattārīsā bhariyā sādisiyo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā cattārīsā bhariyā sādisiyo etadavoca:
Then the Great Steward went to his forty equal wives to put the same proposal to them, and received the same reply.

“mayhaṁ kho, bhotī, evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:

‘sakkhi mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmānaṁ passati, sakkhi mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmunā sākaccheti sallapati mantetī’ti.

Then the Great Steward had a new meeting hall built to the east of his citadel, where he went on retreat for the four months of the rainy season and practiced the absorption on compassion.

nāssudha koci upasaṅkamati aññatra ekena bhattābhihārena.
And no one approached him except the one who brought him meals.

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindassa brāhmaṇassa catunnaṁ māsānaṁ accayena ahudeva ukkaṇṭhanā ahu paritassanā:
But then, when the four months had passed, the Great Steward became dissatisfied and anxious,

“sutaṁ kho pana metaṁ brāhmaṇānaṁ vuddhānaṁ mahallakānaṁ ācariyapācariyānaṁ bhāsamānānaṁ:
“I have heard that brahmins of the past said that whoever goes on retreat for the four months of the rainy season and practices the absorption on compassion sees Brahmā and discusses with him.

Na kho panāhaṁ brahmānaṁ passāmi, na brahmunā sākacchemi na brahmunā sallapāmi na brahmunā mantemī”ti.
But I neither see Brahmā nor discuss with him.”

6.3. Brahmunāsākacchā

6.3. A Discussion With Brahmā

Atha kho, bho, brahmā sanaṅkumāro mahāgovindassa brāhmaṇassa cetasā cetoparivitakkamaññāya—seyyathāpi nāma balavā puriso samiñjitaṁ vā bāhaṁ pasāreyya, pasāritaṁ vā bāhaṁ samiñjeyya; evameva—brahmaloke antarahito mahāgovindassa brāhmaṇassa sammukhe pāturahosi.

And then Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra, knowing what the Great Steward was thinking, as easily as a strong person would extend or contract their arm, vanished from the Brahmā realm and reappeared in the Great Steward's presence.

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindassa brāhmaṇassa ahudeva bhayaṁ ahu chambhitattaṁ ahu lomahaṁso yathā taṁ adiṭṭhapubbaṁ rūpaṁ disvā.
At that, the Great Steward became frightened, scared, his hair standing on end, as he had never seen such a sight before.

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo bhīto saṁviggo lomahaṭṭhajāto brahmānaṁ sanaṅkumāraṁ gāthāya ajjhabhāsi:
So he addressed Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra in verse:

"Vaṇṇavā yasavā sirimā,
"Who might you be, sir,

ko nu tvamasi mārisa;
so beautiful, glorious, majestic?

Ajānantā taṁ pucchāma,
Not knowing, I ask—

kathaṁ jānemu taṁ mayan"ti.
how am I to know who you are?"

"Maṁ ve kumāraṁ jānanti,
"In the Brahmā realm they know me brahmaloke sanantanaṁ;

as 'The Eternal Youth'.

Sabbe jānanti maṁ devā,
All the gods know me thus,

evaṁ govinda jānahi".

and so you should know me, Steward.”

“Āsanaṁ udakaṁ pajjaṁ,
“A Brahmā deserves a seat and water, madhusākañca brahmuno;

foot-salve, and sweet cakes.

these gifts of hospitality.”

“Paṭiggaṇhāma te agghaṁ,
“I accept the gifts of hospitality yaṁ tvaṁ govinda bhāsasi;

of which you speak.

Diṭṭhadhammahitatthāya, or happiness in lives to come.”

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindassa brāhmaṇassa etadahosi:
Then the Great Steward thought,

“katāvakāso khomhi brahmunā sanaṅkumārena.
“Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra has granted me an opportunity.

Kiṁ nu kho ahaṁ brahmānaṁ sanaṅkumāraṁ puccheyyaṁ diṭṭhadhammikaṁ vā atthaṁ samparāyikaṁ vā”ti?

Should I ask him about what is beneficial for this life or lives to come?”

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindassa brāhmaṇassa etadahosi:
Then he thought,

“kusalo kho ahaṁ diṭṭhadhammikānaṁ atthānaṁ, aññepi maṁ diṭṭhadhammikaṁ atthaṁ pucchanti.
“I’m a skilled in what is beneficial for this life, and others even ask me about it.

Yannūnāhaṁ brahmānaṁ sanaṅkumāraṁ samparāyikaññeva atthaṁ puccheyyan”ti.
Why don’t I ask Brahmā about the benefit that specifically applies to lives to come?”

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo brahmānaṁ sanaṅkumāraṁ gāthāya ajjhabhāsi:
So he addressed Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra in verse:

“Pucchāmi brahmānaṁ sanaṅkumāraṁ,
“I’m in doubt, so I ask Brahmā—who is free of doubt—

Kaṅkhī akaṅkhiṁ paravediyesu;
about things one may learn from another.

6.4. Reṇurājaāmantanā

6.4. Informing King Reṇu

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo yena reṇu rājā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā reṇuṁ rājānaṁ etadavoca:
So the Great Steward went to King Reṇu and said,

“aññaṁ dāni bhavaṁ purohitaṁ pariyesatu, yo bhoto rajjaṁ anusāsissati.
“Sir, please now find another high priest to manage the affairs of state for you.

Atha yā te gati, sā no gati bhavissatī”ti.

6.5. Chakhattiyaāmantanā

6.5. Informing the Six Aristocrats

Atha kho, bho, mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo yena te cha khattiyā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā te cha khattiye etadavoca:
Then the Great Steward went to the six aristocrats and said, “aññaṁ dāni bhavanto purohitaṁ pariyesantu, yo bhavantānaṁ rajje anusāsissati.

“Sirs, please now find another high priest to manage the affairs of state for you.

Icchāmahaṁ, bho, agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajituṁ.

I shall go forth from the lay life to homelessness!”

Atha kho, bho, te cha khattiyā ekamantaṁ apakkamma evaṁ samacintesuṁ:
Then the six aristocrats withdrew to one side and thought up a plan, “ime kho brāhmaṇā nāma dhanaluddhā;

“These brahmins are really greedy for wealth.

Why don’t we try to persuade him with wealth?”

Te mahāgovindaṁ brāhmaṇaṁ upasaṅkamitvā evamāhaṁsu:
They returned to the Great Steward and said,

“saṁvijjati kho, bho, imesu sattasu rajjesu pahūtaṁ sāpateyyaṁ, tato bhoto yāvatakena attho, tāvatakaṁ āharīyatan”ti.
“In these seven kingdoms there is abundant wealth. We’ll get you as much as you want.”

“Alaṁ, bho, mamapidaṁ pahūtaṁ sāpateyyaṁ bhavantānaṁyeva vāhasā.
“Enough, sirs. I already have abundant wealth, owing to my lords.

Tamahaṁ sabbaṁ pahāya agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajissāmi.
Giving up all that, I shall go forth.”

Yathā kho pana me sutaṁ brahmuno āmagandhe bhāsamānassa, te na sunimmadayā agāraṁ ajjhāvasatā,

And when he had gone forth, the seven anointed aristocrat kings, the seven brahmins with seven hundred initiates, the forty equal wives, and many thousands of aristocrats, brahmins, householders, and many harem women shaved off their hair and beards, dressed in ocher robes, and went forth from the lay life to homelessness.

Tāya sudaṁ, bho, parisāya parivuto mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo gāmanigamarājadhānīsu cārikaṁ carati.

And so the going forth of all those gentlemen was not in vain, was not wasted, but was fruitful and fertile.’

Sarati taṁ bhagavā”ti?
Do you remember this, Blessed One?”

“Sarāmahaṁ, pañcasikha.
“I remember, Pañcasikha.

Ahaṁ tena samayena mahāgovindo brāhmaṇo ahosiṁ.
I myself was the brahmin Great Steward at that time.

Ahaṁ tesaṁ sāvakānaṁ brahmalokasahabyatāya maggaṁ desesiṁ.

And I taught those disciples the path to rebirth in the company of Brahmā.

Taṁ kho pana me, pañcasikha, brahmacariyaṁ na nibbidāya na virāgāya na nirodhāya na upasamāya na abhiññāya na sambodhāya na nibbānāya saṁvattati, yāvadeva brahmalokūpapattiyā.
But that spiritual path of mine doesn’t lead to disillusionment, dispassion, cessation, peace, insight, awakening, and extinguishment. It only leads as far as rebirth in the Brahmā realm.

Idaṁ kho pana me, pañcasikha, brahmacariyaṁ ekantanibbidāya virāgāya nirodhāya upasamāya abhiññāya sambodhāya nibbānāya saṁvattati.
But this spiritual path does lead to disillusionment, dispassion, cessation, peace, insight, awakening, and extinguishment.

Katamañca taṁ, pañcasikha, brahmacariyaṁ ekantanibbidāya virāgāya nirodhāya upasamāya abhiññāya sambodhāya nibbānāya saṁvattati?
And what is the spiritual path that leads to extinguishment?

Ayameva ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo.
It is simply this noble eightfold path, that is:

Seyyathidaṁ—sammādiṭṭhi sammāsaṅkappo sammāvācā sammākammanto sammāājīvo sammāvāyāmo sammāsati sammāsamādhi.
right view, right thought, right speech, right action, right livelihood, right effort, right mindfulness, and right immersion.

Idaṁ kho taṁ, pañcasikha, brahmacariyaṁ ekantanibbidāya virāgāya nirodhāya upasamāya abhiññāya sambodhāya nibbānāya saṁvattati.
This is the spiritual path that leads to disillusionment, dispassion, cessation, peace, insight, awakening, and extinguishment.

Ye kho pana me, pañcasikha, sāvakā sabbenasabbaṁ sāsanaṁ ājānanti, te āsavānaṁ khayā anāsavaṁ cetovimuttiṁ paññāvimuttiṁ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharanti;
Those of my disciples who completely understand my instructions realize the undefiled freedom of heart and freedom by wisdom in this very life. And they live having realized it with their own insight due to the ending of defilements.

ye na sabbenasabbaṁ sāsanaṁ ājānanti, te pañcannaṁ orambhāgiyānaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā opapātikā honti tattha parinibbāyino anāvattidhammā tasmā lokā.
Of those disciples who only partly understand my instructions, some, with the ending of the five lower fetters, become reborn spontaneously. They are extinguished there, and are not liable to return from that world.

Ye na sabbenasabbaṁ sāsanaṁ ājānanti, appekacce tiṇṇaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā rāgadosamohānaṁ tanuttā sakadāgāmino honti sakideva imaṁ lokaṁ āgantvā dukkhassantaṁ karissanti.
Some, with the ending of three fetters, and the weakening of greed, hate, and delusion, become once-returners. They come back to this world once only, then make an end of suffering.

Ye na sabbenasabbaṁ sāsanaṁ ājānanti, appekacce tiṇṇaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā sotāpannā honti avinipātadhammā niyatā sambodhiparāyaṇā.
And some, with the ending of three fetters, become stream-enterers, not liable to be reborn in the underworld, bound for awakening.

Iti kho, pañcasikha, sabbesaṁyeva imesaṁ kulaputtānaṁ amoghā pabbajjā avañjhā saphalā saudrayā”ti.
And so the going forth of all those gentlemen was not in vain, was not wasted, but was fruitful and fertile.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Attamano pañcasikho gandhabbaputto bhagavato bhāsitaṁ abhinanditvā anumoditvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā tatthevantaradhāyīti.
Delighted, the fairy Pañcasikha approved and agreed with what the Buddha said. He bowed and respectfully circled the Buddha, keeping him on his right, before vanishing right there.

Mahāgovindasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ chaṭṭhaṁ.

20. Mahāsamayasutta

The Great Congregation

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā sakkesu viharati kapilavatthusmiṁ mahāvane mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi sabbeheva arahantehi;
At one time the Buddha was staying in the land of the Sakyans, near Kapilavatthu in the Great Wood, together with a large Saṅgha of around five hundred mendicants, all of whom were perfected ones.

dasahi ca lokadhātūhi devatā yebhuyyena sannipatitā honti bhagavantaṁ dassanāya bhikkhusaṅghañca.
And most of the deities from ten solar systems had gathered to see the Buddha and the Saṅgha of mendicants.

Atha kho catunnaṁ suddhāvāsakāyikānaṁ devatānaṁ etadahosi:
Then four deities of the Pure Abodes, aware of what was happening, thought:

“ayaṁ kho bhagavā sakkesu viharati kapilavatthusmiṁ mahāvane mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi sabbeheva arahantehi;

dasahi ca lokadhātūhi devatā yebhuyyena sannipatitā honti bhagavantaṁ dassanāya bhikkhusaṅghañca.

Yannūna mayampi yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkameyyāma; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavato santike paccekaṁ gāthaṁ bhāseyyāmā”ti.

“Why don’t we go to the Buddha and each recite a verse in his presence?”

Atha kho tā devatā seyyathāpi nāma balavā puriso samiñjitaṁ vā bāhaṁ pasāreyya pasāritaṁ vā bāhaṁ samiñjeyya; evameva—suddhāvāsesu devesu antarahitā bhagavato purato pāturahesuṁ.
Then, as easily as a strong person would extend or contract their arm, they vanished from the Pure Abodes and reappeared in front of the Buddha.

Atha kho tā devatā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu.
They bowed to the Buddha and stood to one side.

Ekamantaṁ ṭhitā kho ekā devatā bhagavato santike imaṁ gāthaṁ abhāsi:
Standing to one side, one deity recited this verse in the Buddha’s presence:

“Mahāsamayo pavanasmiṁ,
“There’s a great congregation in the woods,

Devakāyā samāgatā;
a host of gods have assembled.

Āgatamha imaṁ dhammasamayaṁ,
We’ve come to this righteous congregation

Dakkhitāye aparājitasaṅghan”ti.
to see the invincible Saṅgha!”

Atha kho aparā devatā bhagavato santike imaṁ gāthaṁ abhāsi:
Then another deity recited this verse in the Buddha’s presence:

“Tatra bhikkhavo samādahaṁsu,
“The mendicants there are immersed in samādhi,

Cittamattano ujukaṁ akaṁsu;
they’ve straightened out their own minds.

Sārathīva nettāni gahetvā,
Like a charioteer who has taken the reins,

Indriyāni rakkhanti paṇḍitā”ti.
the astute ones protect their senses.”

Atha kho aparā devatā bhagavato santike imaṁ gāthaṁ abhāsi:
Then another deity recited this verse in the Buddha’s presence:

“Chetvā khīlaṁ chetvā palighaṁ,
“Having cut the stake and cut the bar,

Indakhīlaṁ ūhacca manejā;
they’re unstirred, with boundary pillar uprooted.

Te caranti suddhā vimalā,
They live pure and immaculate,

Cakkhumatā sudantā susunāgā”ti.
the young dragons tamed by the seer.”

Atha kho aparā devatā bhagavato santike imaṁ gāthaṁ abhāsi:
Then another deity recited this verse in the Buddha’s presence:

“Ye keci buddhaṁ saraṇaṁ gatāse,
“Anyone who has gone to the Buddha for refuge

Na te gamissanti apāyabhūmiṁ;
won’t go to a plane of loss.

Pahāya mānusaṁ dehaṁ,
After giving up this human body,

Devakāyaṁ paripūressantī”ti.
they swell the hosts of gods.”

1. Devatāsannipāta

1. The Gathering of Deities

Atha kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to the mendicants:

“yebhuyyena, bhikkhave, dasasu lokadhātūsu devatā sannipatitā honti, tathāgataṁ dassanāya bhikkhusaṅghañca.
“Mendicants, most of the deities from ten solar systems have gathered to see the Realized One and the mendicant Saṅgha.

Yepi te, bhikkhave, ahesuṁ atītamaddhānaṁ arahanto sammāsambuddhā, tesampi bhagavantānaṁ etapparamāyeva devatā sannipatitā ahesuṁ seyyathāpi mayhaṁ etarahi.
The Buddhas of the past had, and the Buddhas of the future will have, gatherings of deities that are at most like the gathering for me now.

Yepi te, bhikkhave, bhavissanti anāgatamaddhānaṁ arahanto sammāsambuddhā, tesampi bhagavantānaṁ etapparamāyeva devatā sannipatitā bhavissanti seyyathāpi mayhaṁ etarahi.

Ācikkhissāmi, bhikkhave, devakāyānaṁ nāmāni;
I shall declare the names of the heavenly hosts;

kittayissāmi, bhikkhave, devakāyānaṁ nāmāni;
I shall extol the names of the heavenly hosts;

desessāmi, bhikkhave, devakāyānaṁ nāmāni.
I shall teach the names of the heavenly hosts.

Taṁ suṇātha, sādhukaṁ manasikarotha, bhāsissāmī”ti.
Listen and pay close attention, I will speak.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho te bhikkhū bhagavato paccassosuṁ.
“Yes, sir,” they replied.

Bhagavā etadavoca:

The Buddha said this:

“Silokamanukassāmi,
“I shall invoke a paean of praise!

yattha bhummā tadassitā;
Where the earth-gods dwell,

Ye sitā girigabbharaṁ,
there, in mountain caves,

pahitattā samāhitā.
resolute and composed,

Puthūsīhāva sallīnā, dwell many like lonely lions,

Te ca ātappamakaruṁ,
Those monks became keen,

sutvā buddhassa sāsanaṁ.
hearing the Buddha’s instruction.

Tesaṁ pāturahu ñāṇaṁ,
Knowledge manifested in them,

amanussānadassanaṁ;
seeing those non-human beings.

Appeke satamaddakkhuṁ,
Some saw a hundred,

sahassaṁ atha sattariṁ.
a thousand, even seventy thousand,

Sataṁ eke sahassānaṁ, while some saw a hundred thousand amanussānamaddasuṁ;

non-human beings.

Appekenantamaddakkhuṁ,
But some saw an endless number disā sabbā phuṭā ahuṁ.

spread out in every direction.

Tañca sabbaṁ abhiññāya,
And all that was known

vavatthitvāna cakkhumā;

mendicants, you should be aware of them.

Ye vohaṁ kittayissāmi,
I shall extol them for you,

girāhi anupubbaso’.
with lyrics in proper order.

Sattasahassā te yakkhā,
There are seven thousand spirits,

bhummā kāpilavatthavā;
earth-gods of Kapilavatthu.

Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,

vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Chasahassā hemavatā,
From the Himalayas there are six thousand

yakkhā nānattavaṇṇino;
spirits of different colors.

Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,

vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Sātāgirā tisahassā,
From Sātāgira there are three thousand

yakkhā nānattavaṇṇino;
spirits of different colors.

Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,

vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Iccete soḷasasahassā,
And thus there are sixteen thousand

yakkhā nānattavaṇṇino;
spirits of different colors.

Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,

vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Vessāmittā pañcasatā,
From Vessamittā there are five hundred

yakkhā nānattavaṇṇino;
spirits of different colors.

Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,

vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Kumbhīro rājagahiko,
And there’s Kumbhīra of Rājagaha, vepullassa nivesanaṁ;

whose home is on Mount Vepulla.

Bhiyyo naṁ satasahassaṁ, Attended by more than yakkhānaṁ payirupāsati;

a hundred thousand spirits,

Kumbhīro rājagahiko,
Kumbhīra of Rājagaha

sopāgā samitiṁ vanaṁ.
also came to the meeting in the wood.

And he has many mighty sons

indanāmā mahabbalā;
all of them named Inda.

Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,

vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth
bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Uttarañca disaṁ rājā,
King Kuvera rules
kuvero taṁ pasāsati;
the northern quarter.
Yakkhānañca adhipati,
Lord of spirits,
mahārājā yasassiso.
he’s a great king, glorious.

Puttāpi tassa bahavo,
And he has many mighty sons
indanāmā mahabbalā;
all of them named Inda.
Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,
vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.
Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth
bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Purimaṁ disaṁ dhataraṭṭho, Dhataraṭṭha in the east,
dakkhiṇena virūḷhako;
Virūḷhaka to the south,

Pacchimena virūpakkho, Virūpakkha to the west,

kuvero uttaraṁ disaṁ.
and Kuvera in the north.

Cattāro te mahārājā,
These Four Great Kings,

samantā caturo disā;
all around in the four quarters,

Daddallamānā aṭṭhaṁsu, stood there dazzling

vane kāpilavatthave.
in the wood at Kapilavatthu.

Tesaṁ māyāvino dāsā,
Their deceitful bondservants came,

āguṁ vañcanikā saṭhā;
so treacherous and crafty—

Māyā kuṭeṇḍu viṭeṇḍu, the deceivers Kuṭeṇḍu, Viṭeṇḍu, viṭucca viṭuṭo saha.

with Viṭucca and Viṭuḍa.

Candano kāmaseṭṭho ca,
And Candana and Kāmaseṭṭha, kinnighaṇḍu nighaṇḍu ca;

Kinnughaṇḍu and Nighaṇḍu,

Panādo opamañño ca,
Panāda and Opamañña, devasūto ca mātali.

and Mātali, the god’s charioteer.

Cittaseno ca gandhabbo,
Cittasena the fairy came too,

naḷorājā janesabho;
and the kings Nala and Janesabha,

Āgā pañcasikho ceva,
as well as Pañcasikha,

timbarū sūriyavacchasā.
Timbaru, and Suriyavaccasā.

Ete caññe ca rājāno,
These and other kings there were,

gandhabbā saha rājubhi;
the fairies with their kings.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Athāguṁ nāgasā nāgā,
Then came dragons from Nābhasa,

vesālā sahatacchakā;
and Vesālī, with the Tacchakas.

Kambalassatarā āguṁ,
The Kambalas and Assataras came pāyāgā saha ñātibhi.

from Pāyāga with their kin.

Yāmunā dhataraṭṭhā ca,
From Yamunā the Dhataraṭṭha

āgū nāgā yasassino;
dragons came, so glorious.

Erāvaṇo mahānāgo,
And Erāvaṇa the great dragon

sopāgā samitiṁ vanaṁ.
also came to the meeting in the wood.

Ye nāgarāje sahasā haranti,
Those who seize the dragon kings by force—

Dibbā dijā pakkhi visuddhacakkhū;
divine, twice-born birds with piercing vision—

Vehāyasā te vanamajjhapattā, swoop down to the wood from the sky;

Citrā supaṇṇā iti tesa nāmaṁ.
their name is ‘Rainbow Phoenix’.

Abhayaṁ tadā nāgarājānamāsi,
But the dragon kings remained fearless,

Supaṇṇato khemamakāsi buddho;
for the Buddha kept them safe from the phoenixes.

Saṇhāhi vācāhi upavhayantā,
Introducing each other with gentle words,

Nāgā supaṇṇā saraṇamakaṁsu buddhaṁ.
the dragons and phoenixes took the Buddha as their refuge.

Jitā vajirahatthena, Defeated by Vajirahattha, samuddaṁ asurāsitā;

the demons live in the ocean.

Bhātaro vāsavassete,

They’re brothers of Vāsava, iddhimanto yasassino.

powerful and glorious.

Kālakañcā mahābhismā,
There’s the terrifying Kālakañjas, asurā dānaveghasā;

the Dānaveghasa demons,

Vepacitti sucitti ca,
Vepacitti and Sucitti,

pahārādo namucī saha.
Pahārāda with Namuci,

Satañca baliputtānaṁ, and a hundred of Bali’s sons,

sabbe verocanāmakā;
all named after Veroca.

Sannayhitvā balisenaṁ,
Bali’s army armed themselves

rāhubhaddamupāgamuṁ;
and went up to the auspicious Rāhu, saying:

‘Samayo dāni bhaddante,
‘Now is the time, sir,

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ’.
for the meeting of mendicants in the wood.’

Āpo ca devā pathavī,
The gods of Water and Earth,

tejo vāyo tadāgamuṁ;
and Fire and Wind came there.

Varuṇā vāraṇā devā,
The Varuṇa and Vāruṇa gods,

somo ca yasasā saha.
and Soma together with Yasa.

Mettā karuṇā kāyikā,
A host of the gods of Love

āguṁ devā yasassino;
and Compassion came, so glorious.

Dasete dasadhā kāyā,
These ten hosts of gods

sabbe nānattavaṇṇino.
shone in all different colors.

Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,

vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Veṇḍudevā sahali ca,
The Veṇhu and Sahali gods,

asamā ca duve yamā;
and Asama, and the twin Yamas came.

Candassūpanisā devā,
The gods living on the moon came,

candamāguṁ purakkhatvā.
with the Moon before them.

Sūriyassūpanisā devā,
The gods living on the sun came,

sūriyamāguṁ purakkhatvā;
with the Sun before them.

Nakkhattāni purakkhatvā,
And with the stars before them

āguṁ mandavalāhakā.
came the silly gods of clouds.

Vasūnaṁ vāsavo seṭṭho,
And Sakka came, the stronghold-giver, sakkopāgā purindado;

known as Vāsava, the best of the Vasus.

Dasete dasadhā kāyā,
These ten hosts of gods

sabbe nānattavaṇṇino.
shone in all different colors.

Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,

vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Athāguṁ sahabhū devā,
Then came the Sahabhū gods,

jalamaggi sikhāriva;
blazing like a crested flame;

Ariṭṭhakā ca rojā ca,
and the Ariṭṭhakas and Rojas too, umāpupphanibhāsino.

and the gods hued blue as flax.

Varuṇā sahadhammā ca,
The Varuṇas and Sahadhammas, accutā ca anejakā;

the Accutas and Anejakas,

Sūleyyarucirā āguṁ,
the Sūleyyas and Ruciras all came,

āguṁ vāsavanesino;
as did the Vāsavanesi gods.

Dasete dasadhā kāyā,
These ten hosts of gods

sabbe nānattavaṇṇino.
shone in all different colors.

Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,

vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Samānā mahāsamanā,
The Samānas, Mahāsamānas,

mānusā mānusuttamā;
Mānusas, and Mānusuttamas all came,

Khiḍḍāpadosikā āguṁ, and the gods depraved by play,

āguṁ manopadosikā.
and those who are malevolent.

Athāguṁ harayo devā,
Then came the Hari gods,

ye ca lohitavāsino;
and the Lohitavāsīs.

Pāragā mahāpāragā,
The Pāragas and Mahāpāragas came,

āguṁ devā yasassino;
such glorious gods.

Dasete dasadhā kāyā,
These ten hosts of gods

sabbe nānattavaṇṇino.
shone in all different colors.

Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,

vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Sukkā karambhā aruṇā,

The Sukkas, Karumhas, and Aruṇas

āguṁ veghanasā saha;
came along with the Veghanasas.

Odātagayhā pāmokkhā,
And the Odātagayhas came as chiefs āguṁ devā vicakkhaṇā.

of the Vicakkhaṇa gods.

Sadāmattā hāragajā,
The Sadāmattas and Hāragajas, missakā ca yasassino;

and the glorious Missakas;

Thanayaṁ āga pajjunno, Pajjuna came thundering,

yo disā abhivassati.
he who rains on all quarters.

Dasete dasadhā kāyā,
These ten hosts of gods

sabbe nānattavaṇṇino;
shone in all different colors.

Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,

vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Khemiyā tusitā yāmā,
The Khemiyas, Tusitas, Yāmas,

kaṭṭhakā ca yasassino;
and the glorious Kaṭṭhakas came;

Lambītakā lāmaseṭṭhā,
The Lambītakas, Lāmaseṭṭhas,

jotināmā ca āsavā;
those called the Jotis and Āsavas.

Nimmānaratino āguṁ,
The Gods Who Love to Create came too, athāguṁ paranimmitā.

and those who delight in the Creations of Others.

Dasete dasadhā kāyā,
These ten hosts of gods

sabbe nānattavaṇṇino;
shone in all different colors.

Iddhimanto jutimanto,
They’re powerful and brilliant,

vaṇṇavanto yasassino;
so beautiful and glorious.

Modamānā abhikkāmuṁ,
Rejoicing, they’ve come forth

bhikkhūnaṁ samitiṁ vanaṁ.
to the meeting of mendicants in the wood.

Saṭṭhete devanikāyā,
These sixty hosts of gods

sabbe nānattavaṇṇino;
shone in all different colors.

Nāmanvayena āgacchuṁ,
They came in order of their names,

ye caññe sadisā saha.
these and others likewise, thinking:

‘Pavuṭṭhajātimakhilaṁ,
‘We shall see those rid of rebirth, kind,

oghatiṇṇamanāsavaṁ;
the undefiled ones who have crossed the flood,

Dakkhemoghataraṁ nāgaṁ, and the dragon who brought them across,

candaṁva asitātigaṁ’.
who like the Moon has overcome darkness.’

Subrahmā paramatto ca,
Subrahmā and Paramatta came,

puttā iddhimato saha;
with sons of those powerful ones.

Sanaṅkumāro tisso ca,
Sanaṅkumāra and Tissa

sopāga samitiṁ vanaṁ.
also came to the meeting in the wood.

Sahassaṁ brahmalokānaṁ,
Of a thousand Brahmā realms, mahābrahmābhitiṭṭhati;

the Great Brahmā stands forth.

Upapanno jutimanto,
He has arisen, resplendent, bhismākāyo yasassiso.

his formidable body so glorious.

Dasettha issarā āguṁ,
The ten Issarās came there,

paccekavasavattino;
each one of them wielding power,

Tesañca majjhato āga, and in the middle of them came hārito parivārito.

Hārita with his following.”

Te ca sabbe abhikkante,
When they had all come forth—

sainde deve sabrahmake;
the gods with their Lord, and the Brahmās—

Mārasenā abhikkāmi, Māra’s army came forth too:

passa kaṇhassa mandiyaṁ.
see the stupidity of the Dark Lord!

‘Etha gaṇhatha bandhatha,
“Come, seize them and bind them,” he said,

rāgena baddhamatthu vo;
“let them be bound by desire!

Samantā parivāretha,
Surround them on all sides,

mā vo muñcittha koci naṁ’.
don’t let any escape!”

Iti tattha mahāseno,
And so there the great general

kaṇho senaṁ apesayi;
sent forth his dark army.

Pāṇinā talamāhacca,
He struck the ground with his fist

saraṁ katvāna bheravaṁ.
to make a horrifying sound

Yathā pāvussako megho, like a storm cloud shedding rain,

thanayanto savijjuko;
thundering and flashing.

Tadā so paccudāvatti,
But then he retreated,

saṅkuddho asayaṁvase.
furious, out of control.

Tañca sabbaṁ abhiññāya,
And all that was known

vavatthitvāna cakkhumā;
and distinguished by the Seer.

Tato āmantayī satthā,
Therefore he addressed

sāvake sāsane rate.
the disciples who love the teaching:

‘Mārasenā abhikkantā, “Māra’s army has arrived;

te vijānātha bhikkhavo’;
mendicants, you should be aware of them.”

Te ca ātappamakaruṁ,
Those monks became keen,

sutvā buddhassa sāsanaṁ;
hearing the Buddha’s instruction.

Vītarāgehi pakkāmuṁ,
The army fled from those free of passion,

nesaṁ lomāpi iñjayuṁ.
and not a single hair was stirred!

‘Sabbe vijitasaṅgāmā,
“All are triumphant in battle, bhayātītā yasassino;

so fearless and glorious.

Modanti saha bhūtehi,
They rejoice with all the spirits,

sāvakā te janesutā’”ti.
the disciples well-known among men.”

Mahāsamayasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ sattamaṁ.

21. Sakkapañhasutta

Sakka's Questions

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā magadhesu viharati, pācīnato rājagahassa ambasaṇḍā nāma brāhmaṇagāmo, tassuttarato vediyake pabbate indasālaguhāyaṁ.
At one time the Buddha was staying in the land of the Magadhans; east of Rājagaha there's a brahmin village named Ambasaṇḍā, north of which, on Mount Vediyaka, is the Indasāla cave.

Tena kho pana samayena sakkassa devānamindassa ussukkaṁ udapādi bhagavantaṁ dassanāya.
Now at that time Sakka, the lord of gods, became eager to see the Buddha.

Atha kho sakkassa devānamindassa etadahosi:
He thought,

"kahaṁ nu kho bhagavā etarahi viharati arahaṁ sammāsambuddho"ti?
"Where is the Blessed One at present, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha?"

Addasā kho sakko devānamindo bhagavantaṁ magadhesu viharantaṁ pācīnato rājagahassa ambasaṇḍā nāma brāhmaṇagāmo, tassuttarato vediyake pabbate indasālaguhāyaṁ.
He saw that the Buddha was at the Indasāla cave,

Disvāna deve tāvatiṁse āmantesi:

and addressed the gods of the Thirty-Three,

“ayaṁ, mārisā, bhagavā magadhesu viharati, pācīnato rājagahassa ambasaṇḍā nāma brāhmaṇagāmo, tassuttarato vediyake pabbate indasālaguhāyaṁ.
“Good sirs, the Buddha is staying in the land of the Magadhans at the Indasāla cave.

Yadi pana, mārisā, mayaṁ taṁ bhagavantaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkameyyāma arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhan”ti?
What if we were to go and see that Blessed One, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha?”

“Evaṁ, bhaddantavā”ti kho devā tāvatiṁsā sakkassa devānamindassa paccassosuṁ.
“Yes, lord,” replied the gods.

Atha kho sakko devānamindo pañcasikhaṁ gandhabbadevaputtaṁ āmantesi:
Then Sakka addressed the fairy Pañcasikha,

“ayaṁ, tāta pañcasikha, bhagavā magadhesu viharati pācīnato rājagahassa ambasaṇḍā nāma brāhmaṇagāmo, tassuttarato vediyake pabbate indasālaguhāyaṁ.
“Dear Pañcasikha, the Buddha is staying in the land of the Magadhans at the Indasāla cave.

Yadi pana, tāta pañcasikha, mayaṁ taṁ bhagavantaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkameyyāma arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhan”ti?
What if we were to go and see that Blessed One, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha?”

“Evaṁ, bhaddantavā”ti kho pañcasikho gandhabbadevaputto sakkassa devānamindassa paṭissutvā beluvapaṇḍuvīṇaṁ ādāya sakkassa devānamindassa anucariyaṁ upāgami.

“Yes, lord,” replied the fairy Pañcasikha. Taking his arched harp made from the pale timber of wood-apple, he went as Sakka’s attendant.

Atha kho sakko devānamindo devehi tāvatiṁsehi parivuto pañcasikhena gandhabbadevaputtena purakkhato—
Then Sakka went at the head of a retinue consisting of the gods of the Thirty-Three and the fairy Pañcasikha.

seyyathāpi nāma balavā puriso samiñjitaṁ vā bāhaṁ pasāreyya pasāritaṁ vā bāhaṁ samiñjeyya; evameva—devesu tāvatiṁsesu antarahito magadhesu pācīnato rājagahassa ambasaṇḍā nāma brāhmaṇagāmo, tassuttarato vediyake pabbate paccuṭṭhāsi.
As easily as a strong person would extend or contract their arm, he vanished from the heaven of the gods of the Thirty-Three and landed on Mount Vediyaka north of Ambasaṇḍā.

Tena kho pana samayena vediyako pabbato atiriva obhāsajāto hoti ambasaṇḍā ca brāhmaṇagāmo yathā taṁ devānaṁ devānubhāvena.
Now at that time a dazzling light appeared over Mount Vediyaka and Ambasaṇḍā, as happens through the glory of the gods.

Apissudaṁ parito gāmesu manussā evamāhaṁsu:
People in the villages round about, terrified, shocked, and awestruck, said, “ādittassu nāmajja vediyako pabbato jhāyatisu nāmajja vediyako pabbato jalatisu. Nāmajja vediyako pabbato.

“Mount Vediyaka must be on fire today, blazing and burning!

Kiṁsu nāmajja vediyako pabbato atiriva obhāsajāto ambasaṇḍā ca brāhmaṇagāmo”ti;
Oh why has such a dazzling light appeared over Mount Vediyaka and Ambasaṇḍā?”

saṁviggā lomahaṭṭhajātā ahesuṁ.

Atha kho sakko devānamindo pañcasikhaṁ gandhabbadevaputtaṁ āmantesi:
Then Sakka addressed the fairy Pañcasikha,

“durupasaṅkamā kho, tāta pañcasikha, tathāgatā mādisena, jhāyī jhānaratā, tadantaraṁ paṭisallīnā.
“My dear Pañcasikha, it’s hard for one like me to get near the Realized Ones while they are on retreat practicing absorption, enjoying absorption.

Yadi pana tvaṁ, tāta pañcasikha, bhagavantaṁ paṭhamaṁ pasādeyyāsi, tayā, tāta, paṭhamaṁ pasāditaṁ pacchā mayaṁ taṁ bhagavantaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkameyyāma arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhan”ti.
But if you were to charm the Buddha first, then I could go to see him.”

“Evaṁ, bhaddantavā”ti kho pañcasikho gandhabbadevaputto sakkassa devānamindassa paṭissutvā beluvapaṇḍuvīṇaṁ ādāya yena indasālaguhā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā:
“Yes, lord,” replied the fairy Pañcasikha. Taking his arched harp made from the pale timber of wood-apple, he went to the Indasāla cave. When he had drawn near, he stood to one side, thinking,

“ettāvatā me bhagavā neva atidūre bhavissati nāccāsanne, saddañca me sossatī”ti—
“This is neither too far nor too near; and he’ll hear my voice.”

ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi.

1. Pañcasikhagītagāthā

1. Pañcasikha’s Song

Ekamantaṁ ṭhito kho pañcasikho gandhabbadevaputto beluvapaṇḍuvīṇaṁ assāvesi, imā ca gāthā abhāsi buddhūpasañhitā dhammūpasañhitā saṅghūpasañhitā arahantūpasañhitā kāmūpasañhitā:

Standing to one side, Pañcasikha played his arched harp, and sang these verses on the Buddha, the teaching, the Saṅgha, the perfected ones, and sensual love.

“Vande te pitaraṁ bhadde,
“My lady Suriyavaccasā, oh my Sunshine—

timbaruṁ sūriyavacchase;
I pay homage to your father Timbaru,

Yena jātāsi kalyāṇī,
through whom was born a lady so fine,

ānandajananī mama.
to fill me with a joy I never knew.

Vātova sedataṁ kanto,
As sweet as a breeze to one who’s sweating,

pānīyaṁva pipāsato;
or when thirsty, a sweet and cooling drink,

Aṅgīrasi piyāmesi,
so dear is your shining beauty to me,

dhammo arahatāmiva.
just like the teaching is to all the saints!

Āturasseva bhesajjaṁ,
Like a cure when you’re struck by fever dire,

bhojanaṁva jighacchato;
or food to ease the hunger pain,

Parinibbāpaya maṁ bhadde,
come on, darling, please put out my fire, jalantamiva vārinā.

quench me like water on a flame.

Sītodakaṁ pokkharaṇiṁ,
As elephants burning in the heat of summer,
yuttaṁ kiñjakkhareṇunā;
sink down in a lotus pond to rest,
Nāgo ghammābhitattova,
so cool, full of petals and of pollen—
ogāhe te thanūdaraṁ.
that’s how I would plunge into your breast.

Accaṅkusova nāgova,
Like elephants bursting bonds in rutting season,
jitaṁ me tuttatomaraṁ;
beating off the pricks of lance and pikes—
Kāraṇaṁ nappajānāmi,
I just don’t understand what is the reason sammatto lakkhaṇūruyā.
I’m so crazy for your shapely thighs!

Tayi gedhitacittosmi,
For you, my heart is full of passion,
cittaṁ vipariṇāmitaṁ;
I’m in an altered state of mind.
Paṭigantuṁ na sakkomi,
There is no going back, I’m just not able,
vaṅkaghastova ambujo.
I’m like a fish that’s hooked up on the line.

Vāmūru saja maṁ bhadde,
Come on, my darling, hold me, fair of thighs!

saja maṁ mandalocane;
Embrace me, with your so bashful eyes!

Palissaja maṁ kalyāṇi,
Take me in your arms, my lovely lady,

etaṁ me abhipatthitaṁ.
that’s all I’d ever want or could desire.

Appako vata me santo,
Ah, then my desire was such a small thing,

kāmo vellitakesiyā;
my sweet, with your curling wavy hair;

Anekabhāvo samuppādi,
now, like to arahants an offering,

arahanteva dakkhiṇā.
it’s grown so very much from there.

Yaṁ me atthi kataṁ puññaṁ,
Whatever the merit I have forged arahantesu tādisu;

by giving to such perfected beings—

Taṁ me sabbaṅgakalyāṇi,
may that, my altogether gorgeous,

tayā saddhiṁ vipaccataṁ.
ripen in togetherness with you.

Yaṁ me atthi kataṁ puññaṁ,
Whatever the merit I have forged asmiṁ pathavimaṇḍale;

in this wide open land,

Taṁ me sabbaṅgakalyāṇi,

may that, my altogether gorgeous,

tayā saddhiṁ vipaccataṁ.
ripen in togetherness with you.

Sakyaputtova jhānena,
Absorbed, the Sakyan meditates,

ekodi nipako sato;
unified, alert, and mindful,

Amataṁ muni jigīsāno,
the sage aims right at the deathless state—

tamahaṁ sūriyavacchase.
like me, oh my Sunshine, aiming for you!

Yathāpi muni nandeyya,
And just like the sage would be rejoicing,

patvā sambodhimuttamaṁ;
were he to awaken to the truth,

Evaṁ nandeyyaṁ kalyāṇi,
so I’d be rejoicing, lady, missībhāvaṁ gato tayā.

were I to end up as one with you.

Sakko ce me varaṁ dajjā,
If Sakka were to grant me just one wish,

tāvatiṁsānamissaro;
as Lord of the holy Thirty-Three,

Tāhaṁ bhadde vareyyāhe,
my darling, you’re the only one I’d wish for, evaṁ kāmo daḷho mama.

so strong is the love I hold for you.

Sālaṁva na ciraṁ phullaṁ,
Like a freshly blossoming sal tree

pitaraṁ te sumedhase;
is your father, my lady so wise.

Vandamāno namassāmi,
I pay homage to him, bowing down humbly,

yassāsetādisī pajā”ti.
to he whose daughter is of such a kind.”

Evaṁ vutte, bhagavā pañcasikhaṁ gandhabbadevaputtaṁ etadavoca:
When Pañcasikha had spoken, the Buddha said to him,

“saṁsandati kho te, pañcasikha, tantissaro gītassarena, gītassaro ca tantissarena; “Pañcasikha, the sound of the strings and the sound of your voice blend well together, na ca pana te, pañcasikha, tantissaro gītassaraṁ ativattati, gītassaro ca tantissaraṁ.

so that neither overpowers the other.

Kadā saṁyūḷhā pana te, pañcasikha, imā gāthā buddhūpasañhitā dhammūpasañhitā saṅghūpasañhitā arahantūpasañhitā kāmūpasañhitā”ti?
But when did you compose these verses on the Buddha, the teaching, the Saṅgha, the perfected ones, and sensual love?”

“Ekamidaṁ, bhante, samayaṁ bhagavā uruvelāyaṁ viharati najjā nerañjarāya tīre ajapālanigrodhe paṭhamābhisambuddho.
“This one time, sir, when you were first awakened, you were staying near Uruvelā at the goatherd’s banyan tree on the bank of the Nerañjarā River.

Tena kho panāhaṁ, bhante, samayena bhaddā nāma sūriyavacchasā timbaruno gandhabbarañño dhītā, tamabhikaṅkhāmi.

And at that time I was in love with the lady named Bhaddā Suriyavaccasā, the daughter of the fairy king Timbaru.

Sā kho pana, bhante, bhaginī parakāminī hoti;
But the sister desired another—sikhaṇḍī nāma mātalissa saṅgāhakassa putto, tamabhikaṅkhati.

it was Mātali the charioteer’s son named Sikhaḍḍī who she loved.

Yato kho ahaṁ, bhante, taṁ bhaginiṁ nālatthaṁ kenaci pariyāyena.
Since I couldn’t win that sister by any means,

Athāhaṁ beluvapaṇḍuvīṇaṁ ādāya yena timbaruno gandhabbarañño nivesanaṁ tenupasaṅkamiṁ; upasaṅkamitvā beluvapaṇḍuvīṇaṁ assāvesiṁ, imā ca gāthā abhāsiṁ buddhūpasañhitā dhammūpasañhitā saṅghūpasañhitā arahantūpasañhitā kāmūpasañhitā—
I took my arched harp to Timbaru’s home, where I played those verses.

Vande te pitaraṁ bhadde,

timbaruṁ sūriyavacchase;

Yena jātāsi kalyāṇī,

ānandajananī mama.

…pe…

Sālaṁva na ciraṁ phullaṁ,

pitaraṁ te sumedhase;

Vandamāno namassāmi,

yassāsetādisī pajāti.

Evaṁ vutte, bhante, bhaddā sūriyavacchasā maṁ etadavoca:
When I finished, Suriyavacchasā said to me,

‘na kho me, mārisa, so bhagavā sammukhā diṭṭho, api ca sutoyeva me so bhagavā devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sudhammāyaṁ sabhāyaṁ upanaccantiyā.
‘Dear sir, I have not personally seen the Buddha. But I did hear about him when I went to dance for the gods of the Thirty-Three in the Hall of Justice.

Yato kho tvaṁ, mārisa, taṁ bhagavantaṁ kittesi, hotu no ajja samāgamo’ti.
Since you extol the Buddha, let us meet up today.’

Soyeva no, bhante, tassā bhaginiyā saddhiṁ samāgamo ahosi.
And that’s when I met up with that sister.

Na ca dāni tato pacchā”ti.
But we have not met since.”

2. Sakkūpasaṅkama

2. The Approach of Sakka

Atha kho sakkassa devānamindassa etadahosi:
Then Sakka, lord of gods, thought,

“paṭisammodati pañcasikho gandhabbadevaputto bhagavatā, bhagavā ca pañcasikhenā”ti.
“Pañcasikha is exchanging pleasantries with the Buddha.”

Atha kho sakko devānamindo pañcasikhaṁ gandhabbadevaputtaṁ āmantesi:
So he addressed Pañcasikha,

“abhivādehi me tvaṁ, tāta pañcasikha, bhagavantaṁ:
“My dear Pañcasikha, please bow to the Buddha for me, saying:

‘sakko, bhante, devānamindo sāmacco saparijano bhagavato pāde sirasā vandatī’”ti.
‘Sir, Sakka, lord of gods, with his ministers and retinue, bows with his head at your feet.’”

“Evaṁ, bhaddantavā”ti kho pañcasikho gandhabbadevaputto sakkassa devānamindassa paṭissutvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādeti:
“Yes, lord,” replied Pañcasikha. He bowed to the Buddha and said,

“sakko, bhante, devānamindo sāmacco saparijano bhagavato pāde sirasā vandatī”ti.
“Sir, Sakka, lord of gods, with his ministers and retinue, bows with his head at your feet.”

“Evaṁ sukhī hotu, pañcasikha, sakko devānamindo sāmacco saparijano;
“So may Sakka with his ministers and retinue be happy, Pañcasikha,” said the Buddha, sukhakāmā hi devā manussā asurā nāgā gandhabbā ye caññe santi puthukāyā”ti.

“for all want to be happy—whether gods, humans, demons, dragons, fairies, or any of the other diverse creatures there may be.”

Evañca pana tathāgatā evarūpe mahesakkhe yakkhe abhivadanti.
For that is how the Realized Ones salute such illustrious spirits.

Abhivadito sakko devānamindo bhagavato indasālaguhaṁ pavisitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi.
And being saluted by the Buddha, Sakka entered the Indasāla cave, bowed to the Buddha, and stood to one side.

Devāpi tāvatiṁsā indasālaguhaṁ pavisitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu.
And the gods of the Thirty-Three did likewise,

Pañcasikhopi gandhabbadevaputto indasālaguhaṁ pavisitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi.
as did Pañcasikha.

Tena kho pana samayena indasālaguhā visamā santī samā samapādi, sambādhā santī urundā samapādi, andhakāro guhāyaṁ antaradhāyi, āloko udapādi yathā taṁ devānaṁ devānubhāvena.
And at that time the uneven places were evened out, the cramped places were opened up, the darkness vanished and light appeared, as happens through the glory of the gods.

Atha kho bhagavā sakkaṁ devānamindaṁ etadavoca:
Then the Buddha said to Sakka, “acchariyamidaṁ āyasmato kosiyassa, abbhutamidaṁ āyasmato kosiyassa tāva bahukiccassa bahukaraṇīyassa yadidaṁ idhāgamanan”ti.

“It’s incredible and amazing that you, the venerable Kosiya, who has so many duties and so much to do, should come here.”

“Cirapaṭikāhaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamitukāmo; api ca devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ kehici kehici kiccakaraṇīyehi byāvaṭo; evāhaṁ nāsakkhiṁ bhagavantaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamituṁ.
“For a long time I’ve wanted to go and see the Buddha, but I wasn’t able, being prevented by my many duties and responsibilities for the gods of the Thirty-Three.

Ekamidaṁ, bhante, samayaṁ bhagavā sāvatthiyaṁ viharati salaḷāgārake.
This one time, sir, the Buddha was staying near Sāvatthī in the frankincense-tree hut.

Atha khvāhaṁ, bhante, sāvatthiṁ agamāsiṁ bhagavantaṁ dassanāya.
Then I went to Sāvatthī to see the Buddha.

Tena kho pana, bhante, samayena bhagavā aññatarena samādhinā nisinno hoti, bhūjati ca nāma vessavaṇassa mahārājassa paricārikā bhagavantaṁ paccupaṭṭhitā hoti, pañjalikā namassamānā tiṭṭhati.
But at that time the Buddha was sitting immersed in some kind of meditation. And a divine maiden of Great King Vessavaṇa named Bhūjati was attending on the Buddha, standing there paying homage to him with joined palms.

Atha khvāhaṁ, bhante, bhūjatiṁ etadavocaṁ:
So I said to her,

‘abhivādehi me tvaṁ, bhagini, bhagavantaṁ:
‘Sister, please bow to the Buddha for me, saying:

“sakko, bhante, devānamindo sāmacco saparijano bhagavato pāde sirasā vandatī”’ti.
“Sir, Sakka, lord of gods, with his ministers and retinue, bows with his head at your feet.”’

Evaṁ vutte, bhante, sā bhūjati maṁ etadavoca:
When I said this, she said to me,

‘akālo kho, mārisa, bhagavantaṁ dassanāya;
‘It’s the wrong time to see the Buddha, paṭisallīno bhagavā’ti.

as he’s in retreat.’

‘Tena hi, bhagini, yadā bhagavā tamhā samādhimhā vuṭṭhito hoti, atha mama vacanena bhagavantaṁ abhivādehi:
‘Well then, sister, please convey my message when the Buddha emerges from that immersion.’

“sakko, bhante, devānamindo sāmacco saparijano bhagavato pāde sirasā vandatī”’ti.

Kacci me sā, bhante, bhaginī bhagavantaṁ abhivādesi?

I hope that sister bowed to you?

Sarati bhagavā tassā bhaginiyā vacanan”ti?
Do you remember what she said?”

“Abhivādesi maṁ sā, devānaminda, bhaginī, sarāmahaṁ tassā bhaginiyā vacanaṁ.
“She did bow, lord of gods, and I remember what she said.

Api cāhaṁ āyasmato nemisaddena tamhā samādhimhā vuṭṭhito”ti.
I also remember that it was the sound of your chariot wheels that pulled me out of that immersion.”

“Ye te, bhante, devā amhehi paṭhamataraṁ tāvatiṁsakāyaṁ upapannā, tesaṁ me sammukhā sutaṁ sammukhā paṭiggahitaṁ:
“Sir, I have heard and learned this in the presence of the gods who were reborn in the host of the Thirty-Three before me:

‘yadā tathāgatā loke uppajjanti arahanto sammāsambuddhā, dibbā kāyā paripūrenti, hāyanti asurakāyā’ti.
‘When a Realized One arises in the world, perfected and fully awakened, the heavenly hosts swell, while the demon hosts dwindle.’

Taṁ me idaṁ, bhante, sakkhidiṭṭhaṁ yato tathāgato loke uppanno arahaṁ sammāsambuddho, dibbā kāyā paripūrenti, hāyanti asurakāyāti.
And I have seen this with my own eyes.

2.1. Gopakavatthu

2.1. The Story of Gopikā

Idheva, bhante, kapilavatthusmiṁ gopikā nāma sakyadhītā ahosi buddhe pasannā dhamme pasannā saṅghe pasannā sīlesu paripūrakārinī.

Right here in Kapilavatthu there was a Sakyan lady named Gopikā who had confidence in the Buddha, the teaching, and the Saṅgha, and had fulfilled her ethics.

Sā itthittaṁ virājetvā purisattaṁ bhāvetvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapannā.
Losing her attachment to femininity, she developed masculinity. When her body broke up, after death, she was reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.

Devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sahabyataṁ amhākaṁ puttattaṁ ajjhupagatā.
In the company of the gods of the Thirty-Three she became one of my sons.

Tatrapi naṁ evaṁ jānanti:
There they knew him as ‘gopako devaputto, gopako devaputto’ti.

the god Gopaka.

Aññepi, bhante, tayo bhikkhū bhagavati brahmacariyaṁ caritvā hīnaṁ gandhabbakāyaṁ upapannā.
Meanwhile three others, mendicants who had led the spiritual life under the Buddha, were reborn in the inferior fairy realm.

Te pañcahi kāmaguṇehi samappitā samaṅgībhūtā paricārayamānā amhākaṁ upaṭṭhānaṁ āgacchanti amhākaṁ pāricariyaṁ.
There they amused themselves, supplied and provided with the five kinds of sensual stimulation, and became my servants and attendants.

Te amhākaṁ upaṭṭhānaṁ āgate amhākaṁ pāricariyaṁ gopako devaputto paṭicodesi:
At that, Gopaka scolded them,

‘kutomukhā nāma tumhe, mārisā, tassa bhagavato dhammaṁ assuttha—

‘Where on earth were you at, good sirs, when you heard the Buddha’s teaching!

ahañhi nāma itthikā samānā buddhe pasannā dhamme pasannā saṅghe pasannā sīlesu paripūrakārinī itthittaṁ virājetvā purisattaṁ bhāvetvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapannā, devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sahabyataṁ sakkassa devānamindassa puttattaṁ ajjhupagatā.
For while I was still a woman I had confidence in the Buddha, the teaching, and the Saṅgha, and had fulfilled my ethics. I lost my attachment to femininity and developed masculinity. When my body broke up, after death, I was reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm. In the company of the gods of the Thirty-Three I became one of Sakka’s sons.

Idhāpi maṁ evaṁ jānanti:
Here they know me as “gopako devaputto gopako devaputto”ti.

the god Gopaka.

Tumhe pana, mārisā, bhagavati brahmacariyaṁ caritvā hīnaṁ gandhabbakāyaṁ upapannā.
But you, having led the spiritual life under the Buddha, were reborn in the inferior fairy realm.’

Duddiṭṭharūpaṁ vata bho addasāma, ye mayaṁ addasāma sahadhammike hīnaṁ gandhabbakāyaṁ upapanne’ti.

Tesaṁ, bhante, gopakena devaputtena paṭicoditānaṁ dve devā diṭṭheva dhamme satiṁ paṭilabhiṁsu kāyaṁ brahmapurohitaṁ, eko pana devo kāme ajjhāvasi.
When scolded by Gopaka, two of those gods in that very life gained mindfulness leading to the host of Brahmā’s Ministers. But one god remained attached to sensuality.

‘Upāsikā cakkhumato ahosiṁ,
‘I was a laywoman disciple of the seer,

Nāmampi mayhaṁ ahu “gopikā”ti;
and my name was Gopikā.

Buddhe ca dhamme ca abhippasannā,
I was devoted to the Buddha and the teaching,

Saṅghañcupaṭṭhāsiṁ pasannacittā.
and I faithfully served the Saṅgha.

Tasseva buddhassa sudhammatāya,
Because of the excellence of the Buddha’s teaching,

Sakkassa puttomhi mahānubhāvo;
I’m now a mighty, splendid son of Sakka,

Mahājutīko tidivūpapanno,
reborn among the Three and Thirty.

Jānanti maṁ idhāpi “gopako”ti.
And here they know me as Gopaka.

Athaddasaṁ bhikkhavo diṭṭhapubbe,
Then I saw some mendicants who I’d seen before,

Gandhabbakāyūpagate vasīne;
dwelling in the host of fairies.

Imehi te gotamasāvakāse,
When I used to be a human,

Ye ca mayaṁ pubbe manussabhūtā.
they were disciples of Gotama.

Annena pānena upaṭṭhahimhā,
I served them with food and drink,

Pādūpasaṅgayha sake nivesane;
and clasped their feet in my own home.

Kutomukhā nāma ime bhavanto,
Where on earth were they at Buddhassa dhammāni paṭiggahesuṁ.

when they learned the Buddha’s teachings?

Paccattaṁ veditabbo hi dhammo,
For each must know for themselves the teaching Sudesito cakkhumatānubuddho;
so well-taught, realized by the seer.
Ahañhi tumheva upāsamāno,
I was one who followed you,
Sutvāna ariyāna subhāsitāni.
having heard the fine words of the noble ones.

Sakkassa puttomhi mahānubhāvo,
I’m now a mighty, splendid son of Sakka,
Mahājutīko tidivūpapanno;
reborn among the Three and Thirty.
Tumhe pana seṭṭhamupāsamānā,
But you followed the best of men,
Anuttaraṁ brahmacariyaṁ caritvā.
and led the supreme spiritual life,

Hīnaṁ kāyaṁ upapannā bhavanto,
but still you’re born in this lesser realm, Anānulomā bhavatūpapatti;
a rebirth not befitting.
Duddiṭṭharūpaṁ vata addasāma,
It’s a sorry sight I see, good sirs, Sahadhammike hīnakāyūpapanne.
fellow Buddhists in a lesser realm.

Gandhabbakāyūpagatā bhavanto,
Reborn in the host of fairies,

Devānamāgacchatha pāricariyaṁ;
you only wait upon the gods.

Agāre vasato mayhaṁ,
Meanwhile, I dwelt in a house—

Imaṁ passa visesataṁ.
but see my distinction now!

Itthī hutvā svajja pumomhi devo,
Having been a woman now I'm a male god,

Dibbehi kāmehi samaṅgibhūto';
blessed with heavenly sensual pleasures.'

Te coditā gotamasāvakena,
Scolded by that disciple of Gotama,

Saṁvegamāpādu samecca gopakaṁ.
when they understood Gopaka, they were struck with urgency.

'Handa viyāyāma byāyāma,
'Let's strive, let's try hard—

Mā no mayaṁ parapessā ahumhā';
we won't serve others any more!'

Tesaṁ duve vīriyamārabhiṁsu,
Two of them aroused energy,

Anussaraṁ gotamasāsanāni.
recalling the Buddha's instructions.

Idheva cittāni virājayitvā,
Right away they became dispassionate,

Kāmesu ādīnavamaddasaṁsu;
seeing the drawbacks in sensual pleasures.

Te kāmasaṁyojanabandhanāni,
The fetters and bonds of sensual pleasures—

Pāpimayogāni duraccayāni.
the ties of the Wicked One so hard to break—

Nāgova sannāni guṇāni chetvā, they burst them like a bull elephant his ropes,

Deve tāvatiṁse atikkamiṁsu;
and passed right over the Thirty-Three.

Saindā devā sapajāpatikā,
The gods with Inda and Pajāpati

Sabbe sudhammāya sabhāyupaviṭṭhā.
were all gathered in the Hall of Justice.

Tesaṁ nisinnānaṁ abhikkamiṁsu,
As they sat there, they passed over them,

Vīrā virāgā virajaṁ karontā;
the heroes desireless, practicing purity.

Te disvā saṁvegamakāsi vāsavo,
Seeing them, Vāsava was struck with a sense of urgency;

Devābhibhū devagaṇassa majjhe.
the master of gods in the midst of the group said,

‘Imehi te hīnakāyūpapannā,
‘These were born in the lesser fairy realm,

Deve tāvatiṁse abhikkamanti’;
but now they pass us by!’

Saṁvegajātassa vaco nisamma,
Heeding the speech of one so moved,

So gopako vāsavamajjhabhāsi.

Gopaka addressed Vāsava,

‘Buddho janindatthi manussaloke,
‘There is a Buddha, a lord of men, in the world.
Kāmābhibhū sakyamunīti ñāyati;
Known as the Sakyan Sage, he’s mastered the senses.
Tasseva te puttā satiyā vihīnā,
Those sons of his were bereft of mindfulness;
Coditā mayā te satimajjhalatthuṁ’.
but when scolded by me they gained it back.

Tiṇṇaṁ tesaṁ āvasinettha eko,
Of the three, there is one who remains Gandhabbakāyūpagato vasīno;
dwelling in the host of fairies.
Dve ca sambodhipathānusārino,
But two, recollecting the path to awakening,
Devepi hīḷenti samāhitattā.
serene, spurn even the gods.’

Etādisī dhammappakāsanettha,
The teaching’s explained in such a way
Na tattha kiṅkaṅkhati koci sāvako;
that not a single disciple doubts it.
Nitiṇṇaoghaṁ vicikicchachinnaṁ,
We venerate the Buddha, the victor, lord of men,
Buddhaṁ namassāma jinaṁ janindaṁ.
who has crossed the flood and cut off doubt.

Yaṁ te dhammaṁ idhaññāya,
They attained to distinction fitting visesaṁ ajjhagaṁsu te;

the extent to which they understood the teaching here.

Kāyaṁ brahmapurohitaṁ,
Two of them mastered the distinction of duve tesaṁ visesagū.

the host of Brahmā’s Ministers.

Tassa dhammassa pattiyā,
We have come here, dear sir,

āgatamhāsi mārisa;
to realize this same teaching.

Katāvakāsā bhagavatā,
If the Buddha would give me a chance,

pañhaṁ pucchemu mārisā”ti.
I would ask a question, dear sir.”

Atha kho bhagavato etadahosi:
Then the Buddha thought,

“dīgharattaṁ visuddho kho ayaṁ yakkho, yaṁ kiñci maṁ pañhaṁ pucchissati, sabbaṁ taṁ atthasañhitaṁyeva pucchissati, no anatthasañhitaṁ.
“For a long time now this spirit has led a pure life. Any question he asks me will be beneficial, not useless.

Yañcassāhaṁ puṭṭho byākarissāmi, taṁ khippameva ājānissatī”ti.
And he will quickly understand any answer I give to his question.”

Atha kho bhagavā sakkaṁ devānamindaṁ gāthāya ajjhabhāsi:
So the Buddha addressed Sakka in verse:

“Puccha vāsava maṁ pañhaṁ,

“Ask me your question, Vāsava, yaṁ kiñci manasicchasi;

whatever you want.

Tassa tasseva pañhassa,
I’ll solve each and every ahaṁ antaṁ karomi te”ti.

problem you have.”

Paṭhamabhāṇavāro niṭṭhito.
The first recitation section is finished.

Katāvakāso sakko devānamindo bhagavatā imaṁ bhagavantaṁ paṭhamaṁ pañhaṁ apucchi:
Having been granted an opportunity by the Buddha, Sakka asked the first question.

“Kiṁsaṁyojanā nu kho, mārisa, devā manussā asurā nāgā gandhabbā ye caññe santi puthukāyā, te:
“Dear sir, what fetters bind the gods, humans, demons, dragons, fairies—and any of the other diverse creatures—‘averā adaṇḍā asapattā abyāpajjā viharemu averino’ti iti ca nesaṁ hoti, atha ca pana saverā sadaṇḍā sasapattā sabyāpajjā viharanti saverino”ti?

so that, though they wish to be free of enmity, violence, hostility, and hate, they still have enmity, violence, hostility, and hate?”

Itthaṁ sakko devānamindo bhagavantaṁ pañhaṁ apucchi.
Such was Sakka’s question to the Buddha.

Tassa bhagavā pañhaṁ puṭṭho byākāsi:
And the Buddha answered him:

“Issāmacchariyasaṁyojanā kho, devānaminda, devā manussā asurā nāgā gandhabbā ye caññe santi puthukāyā, te:
“Lord of gods, the fetters of jealousy and stinginess bind the gods, humans, demons, dragons, fairies—and any of the other diverse creatures—

‘averā adaṇḍā asapattā abyāpajjā viharemu averino’ti iti ca nesaṁ hoti, atha ca pana saverā sadaṇḍā sasapattā sabyāpajjā viharanti saverino”ti.
so that, though they wish to be free of enmity, violence, hostility, and hate, they still have enmity, violence, hostility, and hate.”

Itthaṁ bhagavā sakkassa devānamindassa pañhaṁ puṭṭho byākāsi.
Such was the Buddha’s answer to Sakka.

Attamano sakko devānamindo bhagavato bhāsitaṁ abhinandi anumodi:
Delighted, Sakka approved and agreed with what the Buddha said, saying,

“evametaṁ, bhagavā, evametaṁ, sugata.
“That’s so true, Blessed One! That’s so true, Holy One!

Tiṇṇā mettha kaṅkhā vigatā kathaṅkathā bhagavato pañhaveyyākaraṇaṁ sutvā”ti.
Hearing the Buddha’s answer, I’ve gone beyond doubt and got rid of indecision.”

Itiha sakko devānamindo bhagavato bhāsitaṁ abhinanditvā anumoditvā bhagavantaṁ uttari pañhaṁ apucchi:

2.2. Vedanākammaṭṭhāna

2.2. Meditation on Feelings

“Somanassampāhaṁ, devānaminda, duvidhena vadāmi—“Lord of gods, there are two kinds of happiness, I say:

sevitabbampi, asevitabbampi.
that which you should cultivate, and that which you should not cultivate.

Domanassampāhaṁ, devānaminda, duvidhena vadāmi—
There are two kinds of sadness, I say:

sevitabbampi, asevitabbampi.
that which you should cultivate, and that which you should not cultivate.

Upekkhampāhaṁ, devānaminda, duvidhena vadāmi—
There are two kinds of equanimity, I say:

sevitabbampi, asevitabbampi.
that which you should cultivate, and that which you should not cultivate.

Somanassampāhaṁ, devānaminda, duvidhena vadāmi sevitabbampi, asevitabbampīti iti kho panetaṁ vuttaṁ, kiñcetaṁ paṭicca vuttaṁ?
Why did I say that there are two kinds of happiness?

Tattha yaṁ jaññā somanassaṁ
Take a happiness of which you know:

‘imaṁ kho me somanassaṁ sevato akusalā dhammā abhivaḍḍhanti, kusalā dhammā parihāyantī’ti, evarūpaṁ somanassaṁ na sevitabbaṁ.
‘When I cultivate this kind of happiness, unskillful qualities grow, and skillful qualities decline.’ You should not cultivate that kind of happiness.

Tattha yaṁ jaññā somanassaṁ
Take a happiness of which you know:

‘imaṁ kho me somanassaṁ sevato akusalā dhammā parihāyanti, kusalā dhammā abhivaḍḍhantī’ti, evarūpaṁ somanassaṁ sevitabbaṁ.
‘When I cultivate this kind of happiness, unskillful qualities decline, and skillful qualities grow.’ You should cultivate that kind of happiness.

Tattha yañce savitakkaṁ savicāraṁ, yañce avitakkaṁ avicāraṁ, ye avitakke avicāre, te paṇītatare.
And that which is free of placing the mind and keeping it connected is better than that which still involves placing the mind and keeping it connected.

Somanassampāhaṁ, devānaminda, duvidhena vadāmi sevitabbampi, asevitabbampīti.
That’s why I said there are two kinds of happiness.

But sir, that joy and happiness is in the sphere of the rod and the sword. It doesn’t lead to disillusionment, dispassion, cessation, peace, insight, awakening, and extinguishment.

Yo kho pana me ayaṁ, bhante, bhagavato dhammaṁ sutvā vedapaṭilābho somanassapaṭilābho, so adaṇḍāvacaro asatthāvacaro ekantanibbidāya virāgāya nirodhāya upasamāya abhiññāya sambodhāya nibbānāya saṁvattatī”ti.

But the joy and happiness I feel listening to the Buddha’s teaching is not in the sphere of the rod and the sword. It does lead to disillusionment, dispassion, cessation, peace, insight, awakening, and extinguishment.”

“Kiṁ pana tvaṁ, devānaminda, atthavasaṁ sampassamāno evarūpaṁ vedapaṭilābhaṁ somanassapaṭilābhaṁ pavedesī”ti?
“But lord of gods, what reason do you see for speaking of such joy and happiness?”

“Cha kho ahaṁ, bhante, atthavase sampassamāno evarūpaṁ vedapaṭilābhaṁ somanassapaṭilābhaṁ pavedemi.
“I see six reasons to speak of such joy and happiness, sir.

Idheva tiṭṭhamānassa,
While staying right here,

devabhūtassa me sato;
remaining in the godly form,

Punarāyu ca me laddho,
I have gained an extended life:

evaṁ jānāhi mārisa.
know this, dear sir.

Imaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhante, paṭhamaṁ atthavasaṁ sampassamāno evarūpaṁ vedapaṭilābhaṁ somanassapaṭilābhaṁ pavedemi.
This is the first reason.

Cutāhaṁ diviyā kāyā,
When I fall from the heavenly host,

āyuṁ hitvā amānusaṁ;
leaving behind the non-human life,

Amūḷho gabbhamessāmi,

I shall consciously go to a new womb, yattha me ramatī mano.

wherever my mind delights.

Imaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhante, dutiyaṁ atthavasaṁ sampassamāno evarūpaṁ vedapaṭilābhaṁ somanassapaṭilābhaṁ pavedemi.
This is the second reason.

Svāhaṁ amūḷhapaññassa,
Living happily under the guidance

viharaṁ sāsane rato;
of the one of unclouded wisdom,

Ñāyena viharissāmi,
I shall practice according to method,

sampajāno paṭissato.
aware and mindful.

Imaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhante, tatiyaṁ atthavasaṁ sampassamāno evarūpaṁ vedapaṭilābhaṁ somanassapaṭilābhaṁ pavedemi.
This is the third reason.

Ñāyena me carato ca,
And if awakening should arise

sambodhi ce bhavissati;
as I practice according to the method,

Aññātā viharissāmi,
I shall live as one who understands,

sveva anto bhavissati.
and my end shall come right there.

Imaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhante, catutthaṁ atthavasaṁ sampassamāno evarūpaṁ vedapaṭilābhaṁ somanassapaṭilābhaṁ pavedemi.
This is the fourth reason.

Cutāhaṁ mānusā kāyā,
When I fall from the human realm,

āyuṁ hitvāna mānusaṁ;
leaving behind the human life,

Puna devo bhavissāmi,
I shall become a god again,

devalokamhi uttamo.
in the supreme heaven realm.

Imaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhante, pañcamaṁ atthavasaṁ sampassamāno evarūpaṁ vedapaṭilābhaṁ somanassapaṭilābhaṁ pavedemi.
This is the fifth reason.

Te paṇītatarā devā,
They are the finest of gods,

akaniṭṭhā yasassino;
the glorious Akaniṭṭhas.

Antime vattamānamhi,
So long as my final life goes on,

so nivāso bhavissati.
there my home will be.

Imaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhante, chaṭṭhaṁ atthavasaṁ sampassamāno evarūpaṁ vedapaṭilābhaṁ somanassapaṭilābhaṁ pavedemi.
This is the sixth reason.

Ime kho ahaṁ, bhante, cha atthavase sampassamāno evarūpaṁ vedapaṭilābhaṁ somanassapaṭilābhaṁ pavedemi.
Seeing these six reasons I speak of such joy and happiness.

Apariyositasaṅkappo,
My wishes unfulfilled,

vicikiccho kathaṅkathī;
doubting and undecided,

Vicariṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ,
I wandered for such a long time,

anvesanto tathāgataṁ.
in search of the Realized One.

Yassu maññāmi samaṇe,
I imagined that ascetics

pavivittavihārino;
living in seclusion

Sambuddhā iti maññāno, must surely be awakened,

gacchāmi te upāsituṁ.
so I went to sit near them.

‘Kathaṁ ārādhanā hoti,
‘How is there success?

kathaṁ hoti virādhanā’;
How is there failure?’

Iti puṭṭhā na sampāyanti,
But they couldn’t answer such questions

magge paṭipadāsu ca.
about the path and practice.

Tyassu yadā maṁ jānanti,
And when they found out that I sakko devānamāgato;

was Sakka, come from the gods,

Tyassu mameva pucchanti, they questioned me instead about ‘kiṁ katvā pāpuṇī idaṁ’.

the deed that brought me to this state.

Tesaṁ yathāsutaṁ dhammaṁ,
I taught them the Dhamma desayāmi jane sutaṁ;

as I had learned it among men.

Tena attamanā honti,
They were delighted with that, saying:

‘diṭṭho no vāsavoti ca’.
‘We’ve seen Vāsava!’

Yadā ca buddhamaddakkhiṁ,
Now since I’ve seen the Buddha, vicikicchāvitāraṇaṁ;

who helps us overcome doubt,

Somhi vītabhayo ajja,
today, free of fear,

sambuddhaṁ payirupāsiya.
I pay homage to the awakened one.

Taṇhāsallassa hantāraṁ,
Destroyer of the dart of craving, buddhaṁ appaṭipuggalaṁ;

the Buddha is unrivaled.

Ahaṁ vande mahāvīraṁ,
I bow to the great hero,

buddhamādiccabandhunaṁ.
the Buddha, Kinsman of the Sun.

Yaṁ karomasi brahmuno,
Just as Brahmā is worshipped samaṁ devehi mārisa;

by the gods, dear sir,

Tadajja tuyhaṁ kassāma,
today we shall worship you—handa sāmaṁ karoma te.

come, let us bow to you!

Tvameva asi sambuddho,
You alone are the Awakened!

tuvaṁ satthā anuttaro;
You are the Teacher supreme!

Sadevakasmiṁ lokasmiṁ,
In the world with its gods, natthi te paṭipuggalo”ti.

there is no-one like you.”

Atha kho sakko devānamindo pañcasikhaṁ gandhabbaputtaṁ āmantesi:
Then Sakka addressed the fairy Pañcasikha,

“bahūpakāro kho mesi tvaṁ, tāta pañcasikha, yaṁ tvaṁ bhagavantaṁ paṭhamaṁ pasādesi.
“Dear Pañcasikha, you were very helpful to me, since you first charmed the Buddha, Tayā, tāta, paṭhamaṁ pasāditaṁ pacchā mayaṁ taṁ bhagavantaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamimhā arahantaṁ sammāsambuddhaṁ.

after which I went to see him.

Pettike vā ṭhāne ṭhapayissāmi, gandhabbarājā bhavissasi, bhaddañca te sūriyavacchasaṁ dammi, sā hi te abhipatthitā”ti.
I shall appoint you to your father’s position—you shall be king of the fairies. And I give you Bhaddā Suriyavaccasā, who you love so much.”

Atha kho sakko devānamindo pāṇinā pathaviṁ parāmasitvā tikkhattuṁ udānaṁ udānesi:
Then Sakka, touching the ground with his hand, expressed this heartfelt sentiment three times:

“Namo tassa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa.
“Homage to that Blessed One, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha!

Namo tassa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa.
Homage to that Blessed One, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha!

Namo tassa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassā”ti.
Homage to that Blessed One, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha!”

Imasmiñca pana veyyākaraṇasmiṁ bhaññamāne sakkassa devānamindassa virajaṁ vītamalaṁ dhammacakkhuṁ udapādi:
And while this discourse was being spoken, the stainless, immaculate vision of the Dhamma arose in Sakka, lord of gods:

“yaṁ kiñci samudayadhammaṁ sabbaṁ taṁ nirodhadhamman”ti.

“Everything that has a beginning has an end.”

Aññesañca asītiyā devatāsahassānaṁ;
And also for another 80,000 deities.

iti ye sakkena devānamindena ajjhiṭṭhapañhā puṭṭhā, te bhagavatā byākatā.
Such were the questions Sakka was invited to ask, and which were answered by the Buddha.

Tasmā imassa veyyākaraṇassa sakkapañhātveva adhivacananti.
And that’s why the name of this discussion is “Sakka’s Questions”.

Sakkapañhasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ aṭṭhamaṁ.

The Longer Discourse on Mindfulness Meditation

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā kurūsu viharati kammāsadhammaṁ nāma kurūnaṁ nigamo.
At one time the Buddha was staying in the land of the Kurus, near the Kuru town named Kammāsadamma.

Tatra kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
There the Buddha addressed the mendicants,

“bhikkhavo”ti.
“Mendicants!”

“Bhaddante”ti te bhikkhū bhagavato paccassosuṁ.
“Venerable sir,” they replied.

Bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said this:

“Ekāyano ayaṁ, bhikkhave, maggo sattānaṁ visuddhiyā, sokaparidevānaṁ samatikkamāya dukkhadomanassānaṁ atthaṅgamāya ñāyassa adhigamāya nibbānassa sacchikiriyāya, yadidaṁ cattāro satipaṭṭhānā.
“Mendicants, the four kinds of mindfulness meditation are the path to convergence. They are in order to purify sentient beings, to get past sorrow and crying, to make an end of pain and sadness, to end the cycle of suffering, and to realize extinguishment.

Katame cattāro?

What four?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ,
It’s when a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

vedanāsu vedanānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ,
They meditate observing an aspect of feelings—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

citte cittānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ,
They meditate observing an aspect of the mind—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ.
They meditate observing an aspect of principles—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

Uddeso niṭṭhito.

1. Kāyānupassanā

1. Observing the Body

1.1. Kāyānupassanāānāpānapabba

1.1. Mindfulness of Breathing

Kathañca pana, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati?
And how does a mendicant meditate observing an aspect of the body?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu araññagato vā rukkhamūlagato vā suññāgāragato vā nisīdati pallaṅkaṁ ābhujitvā ujuṁ kāyaṁ paṇidhāya parimukhaṁ satiṁ upaṭṭhapetvā.

It’s when a mendicant—gone to a wilderness, or to the root of a tree, or to an empty hut—sits down cross-legged, with their body straight, and focuses their mindfulness right there.

So satova assasati, satova passasati.
Just mindful, they breathe in. Mindful, they breathe out.

Dīghaṁ vā assasanto ‘dīghaṁ assasāmī’ti pajānāti, dīghaṁ vā passasanto ‘dīghaṁ passasāmī’ti pajānāti.
When breathing in heavily they know: ‘I’m breathing in heavily.’ When breathing out heavily they know: ‘I’m breathing out heavily.’

Rassaṁ vā assasanto ‘rassaṁ assasāmī’ti pajānāti, rassaṁ vā passasanto ‘rassaṁ passasāmī’ti pajānāti.
When breathing in lightly they know: ‘I’m breathing in lightly.’ When breathing out lightly they know: ‘I’m breathing out lightly.’

‘Sabbakāyapaṭisaṁvedī assasissāmī’ti sikkhati, ‘sabbakāyapaṭisaṁvedī passasissāmī’ti sikkhati.
They practice breathing in experiencing the whole body. They practice breathing out experiencing the whole body.

‘Passambhayaṁ kāyasaṅkhāraṁ assasissāmī’ti sikkhati, ‘passambhayaṁ kāyasaṅkhāraṁ passasissāmī’ti sikkhati.
They practice breathing in stilling the body’s motion. They practice breathing out stilling the body’s motion.

Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, dakkho bhamakāro vā bhamakārantevāsī vā dīghaṁ vā añchanto ‘dīghaṁ añchāmī’ti pajānāti, rassaṁ vā añchanto ‘rassaṁ añchāmī’ti pajānāti;
It’s like a deft carpenter or carpenter’s apprentice. When making a deep cut they know: ‘I’m making a deep cut,’ and when making a shallow cut they know: ‘I’m making a shallow cut.’

evameva kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu dīghaṁ vā assasanto ‘dīghaṁ assasāmī’ti pajānāti, dīghaṁ vā passasanto ‘dīghaṁ passasāmī’ti pajānāti, rassaṁ vā assasanto ‘rassaṁ assasāmī’ti pajānāti, rassaṁ vā passasanto ‘rassaṁ passasāmī’ti pajānāti.

‘Sabbakāyapaṭisaṁvedī assasissāmī’ti sikkhati, ‘sabbakāyapaṭisaṁvedī passasissāmī’ti sikkhati, ‘passambhayaṁ kāyasaṅkhāraṁ assasissāmī’ti sikkhati, ‘passambhayaṁ kāyasaṅkhāraṁ passasissāmī’ti sikkhati.

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā kāye kāyānupassī viharati, bahiddhā vā kāye kāyānupassī viharati, ajjhattabahiddhā vā kāye kāyānupassī viharati.
And so they meditate observing an aspect of the body internally, externally, and both internally and externally.

Samudayadhammānupassī vā kāyasmiṁ viharati, vayadhammānupassī vā kāyasmiṁ viharati, samudayavayadhammānupassī vā kāyasmiṁ viharati.
They meditate observing the body as liable to originate, as liable to vanish, and as liable to both originate and vanish.

‘Atthi kāyo’ti vā panassa sati paccupaṭṭhitā hoti yāvadeva ñāṇamattāya paṭissatimattāya anissito ca viharati, na ca kiñci loke upādiyati.
Or mindfulness is established that the body exists, to the extent necessary for knowledge and mindfulness. They meditate independent, not grasping at anything in the world.

Evampi kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati.
That’s how a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body.

Ānāpānapabbaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ.

1.2. Kāyānupassanāiriyāpathapabba

1.2. The Postures

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, bhikkhu gacchanto vā ‘gacchāmī’ti pajānāti, ṭhito vā ‘ṭhitomhī’ti pajānāti, nisinno vā ‘nisinnomhī’ti pajānāti, sayāno vā ‘sayānomhī’ti pajānāti, Furthermore, when a mendicant is walking they know: ‘I am walking.’ When standing they know: ‘I am standing.’ When sitting they know: ‘I am sitting.’ And when lying down they know: ‘I am lying down.’

yathā yathā vā panassa kāyo paṇihito hoti tathā tathā naṁ pajānāti.
Whatever posture their body is in, they know it.

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā kāye kāyānupassī viharati, bahiddhā vā kāye kāyānupassī viharati, ajjhattabahiddhā vā kāye kāyānupassī viharati.
And so they meditate observing an aspect of the body internally, externally, and both internally and externally.

Samudayadhammānupassī vā kāyasmiṁ viharati, vayadhammānupassī vā kāyasmiṁ viharati, samudayavayadhammānupassī vā kāyasmiṁ viharati.
They meditate observing the body as liable to originate, as liable to vanish, and as liable to both originate and vanish.

‘Atthi kāyo’ti vā panassa sati paccupaṭṭhitā hoti yāvadeva ñāṇamattāya paṭissatimattāya anissito ca viharati, na ca kiñci loke upādiyati.
Or mindfulness is established that the body exists, to the extent necessary for knowledge and mindfulness. They meditate independent, not grasping at anything in the world.

Evampi kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati.
That too is how a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body.

Iriyāpathapabbaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ.

1.3. Kāyānupassanāsampajānapabba

1.3. Situational Awareness

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, bhikkhu abhikkante paṭikkante sampajānakārī hoti, ālokite vilokite sampajānakārī hoti, samiñjite pasārite sampajānakārī hoti, saṅghāṭipattacīvaradhāraṇe sampajānakārī hoti, asite pīte khāyite sāyite sampajānakārī hoti, uccārapassāvakamme sampajānakārī hoti, gate ṭhite nisinne sutte jāgarite bhāsite tuṇhībhāve sampajānakārī hoti.
Furthermore, a mendicant acts with situational awareness when going out and coming back; when looking ahead and aside; when bending and extending the limbs; when bearing the outer robe, bowl, and robes; when eating, drinking, chewing, and tasting; when urinating and defecating; when walking, standing, sitting, sleeping, waking, speaking, and keeping silent.

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā …pe…
And so they meditate observing an aspect of the body internally …

Evampi kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati.
That too is how a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body.

Sampajānapabbaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ.

1.4. Kāyānupassanāpaṭikūlamanasikārapabba

1.4. Focusing on the Repulsive

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, bhikkhu imameva kāyaṁ uddhaṁ pādatalā adho kesamatthakā tacapariyantaṁ pūraṁ nānappakārassa asucino paccavekkhati:

Furthermore, a mendicant examines their own body, up from the soles of the feet and down from the tips of the hairs, wrapped in skin and full of many kinds of filth.

‘atthi imasmiṁ kāye kesā lomā nakhā dantā taco, maṁsaṁ nhāru aṭṭhi aṭṭhimiñjaṁ vakkaṁ, hadayaṁ yakanaṁ kilomakaṁ pihakaṁ papphāsaṁ, antaṁ antaguṇaṁ udariyaṁ karīsaṁ, pittaṁ semhaṁ pubbo lohitaṁ sedo medo, assu vasā kheḷo siṅghāṇikā lasikā muttan’ti.
‘In this body there is head hair, body hair, nails, teeth, skin, flesh, sinews, bones, bone marrow, kidneys, heart, liver, diaphragm, spleen, lungs, intestines, mesentery, undigested food, feces, bile, phlegm, pus, blood, sweat, fat, tears, grease, saliva, snot, synovial fluid, urine.’

Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, ubhatomukhā putoḷi pūrā nānāvihitassa dhaññassa, seyyathidaṁ—sālīnaṁ vīhīnaṁ muggānaṁ māsānaṁ tilānaṁ taṇḍulānaṁ. Tamenaṁ cakkhumā puriso muñcitvā paccavekkheyya: ‘ime sālī, ime vīhī ime muggā ime māsā ime tilā ime taṇḍulā’ti.
It’s as if there were a bag with openings at both ends, filled with various kinds of grains, such as fine rice, wheat, mung beans, peas, sesame, and ordinary rice. And someone with good eyesight were to open it and examine the contents: ‘These grains are fine rice, these are wheat, these are mung beans, these are peas, these are sesame, and these are ordinary rice.’

Evameva kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu imameva kāyaṁ uddhaṁ pādatalā adho kesamatthakā tacapariyantaṁ pūraṁ nānappakārassa asucino paccavekkhati:

‘atthi imasmiṁ kāye kesā lomā …pe… muttan’ti.

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā …pe…
And so they meditate observing an aspect of the body internally …

Evampi kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati.
That too is how a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body.

Paṭikūlamanasikārapabbaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ.

1.5. Kāyānupassanādhātumanasikārapabba
1.5. Focusing on the Elements

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, bhikkhu imameva kāyaṁ yathāṭhitaṁ yathāpaṇihitaṁ dhātuso paccavekkhati:
Furthermore, a mendicant examines their own body, whatever its placement or posture, according to the elements:

‘atthi imasmiṁ kāye pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū’ti.
‘In this body there is the earth element, the water element, the fire element, and the air element.’

Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, dakkho goghātako vā goghātakantevāsī vā gāviṁ vadhitvā catumahāpathe bilaso vibhajitvā nisinno assa;
It’s as if a deft butcher or butcher’s apprentice were to kill a cow and sit down at the crossroads with the meat cut into portions.

evameva kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu imameva kāyaṁ yathāṭhitaṁ yathāpaṇihitaṁ dhātuso paccavekkhati:

‘atthi imasmiṁ kāye pathavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātū’ti.

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā kāye kāyānupassī viharati …pe…
And so they meditate observing an aspect of the body internally …

Evampi kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati.

That too is how a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body.

Dhātumanasikārapabbaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ.

1.6. Kāyānupassanānavasivathikapabba

1.6. The Charnel Ground Contemplations

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, bhikkhu seyyathāpi passeyya sarīraṁ sivathikāya chaḍḍitaṁ ekāhamataṁ vā dvīhamataṁ vā tīhamataṁ vā uddhumātakaṁ vinīlakaṁ vipubbakajātaṁ.
Furthermore, suppose a mendicant were to see a corpse discarded in a charnel ground. And it had been dead for one, two, or three days, bloated, livid, and festering.

So imameva kāyaṁ upasaṁharati:
They'd compare it with their own body:

'ayampi kho kāyo evaṁdhammo evaṁbhāvī evaṁanatīto'ti.
'This body is also of that same nature, that same kind, and cannot go beyond that.'

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā …pe…
And so they meditate observing an aspect of the body internally …

Evampi kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati. (1)
That too is how a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body.

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, bhikkhu seyyathāpi passeyya sarīraṁ sivathikāya chaḍḍitaṁ kākehi vā khajjamānaṁ kulalehi vā khajjamānaṁ gijjhehi vā khajjamānaṁ kaṅkehi vā khajjamānaṁ sunakhehi vā khajjamānaṁ byagghehi vā khajjamānaṁ dīpīhi vā khajjamānaṁ siṅgālehi vā khajjamānaṁ vividhehi vā pāṇakajātehi khajjamānaṁ.

Furthermore, suppose they were to see a corpse discarded in a charnel ground being devoured by crows, hawks, vultures, herons, dogs, tigers, leopards, jackals, and many kinds of little creatures.

So imameva kāyaṁ upasaṁharati:
They'd compare it with their own body:

'ayampi kho kāyo evaṁdhammo evaṁbhāvī evaṁanatīto'ti.
'This body is also of that same nature, that same kind, and cannot go beyond that.'

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā …pe…
And so they meditate observing an aspect of the body internally …

Evampi kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati. (2)
That too is how a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body.

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, bhikkhu seyyathāpi passeyya sarīraṁ sivathikāya chaḍḍitaṁ aṭṭhikasaṅkhalikaṁ samaṁsalohitaṁ nhārusambandhaṁ …pe… (3)
Furthermore, suppose they were to see a corpse discarded in a charnel ground, a skeleton with flesh and blood, held together by sinews …

Aṭṭhikasaṅkhalikaṁ nimaṁsalohitamakkhitaṁ nhārusambandhaṁ …pe… (4)
A skeleton without flesh but smeared with blood, and held together by sinews …

Aṭṭhikasaṅkhalikaṁ apagatamaṁsalohitaṁ nhārusambandhaṁ …pe… (5)
A skeleton rid of flesh and blood, held together by sinews …

Aṭṭhikāni apagatasambandhāni disā vidisā vikkhittāni, aññena hatthaṭṭhikaṁ aññena pādaṭṭhikaṁ aññena gopphakaṭṭhikaṁ aññena jaṅghaṭṭhikaṁ aññena ūruṭṭhikaṁ aññena kaṭiṭṭhikaṁ aññena phāsukaṭṭhikaṁ aññena piṭṭhiṭṭhikaṁ aññena khandhaṭṭhikaṁ aññena gīvaṭṭhikaṁ aññena hanukaṭṭhikaṁ aññena dantaṭṭhikaṁ aññena sīsakaṭāhaṁ.

Bones without sinews, scattered in every direction. Here a hand-bone, there a foot-bone, here a shin-bone, there a thigh-bone, here a hip-bone, there a rib-bone, here a back-bone, there an arm-bone, here a neck-bone, there a jaw-bone, here a tooth, there the skull …

So imameva kāyaṁ upasaṁharati:

‘ayampi kho kāyo evaṁdhammo evaṁbhāvī evaṁanatīto’ti.

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā …pe…

viharati. (6)

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, bhikkhu seyyathāpi passeyya sarīraṁ sivathikāya chaḍḍitaṁ aṭṭhikāni setāni saṅkhavaṇṇapaṭibhāgāni …pe… (7)
White bones, the color of shells …

Aṭṭhikāni puñjakitāni terovassikāni …pe… (8)
Decrepit bones, heaped in a pile …

Aṭṭhikāni pūtīni cuṇṇakajātāni.
Bones rotted and crumbled to powder.

So imameva kāyaṁ upasaṁharati:
They’d compare it with their own body:

‘ayampi kho kāyo evaṁdhammo evaṁbhāvī evaṁanatīto’ti.
‘This body is also of that same nature, that same kind, and cannot go beyond that.’

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā kāye kāyānupassī viharati, bahiddhā vā kāye kāyānupassī viharati, ajjhattabahiddhā vā kāye kāyānupassī viharati.

And so they meditate observing an aspect of the body internally, externally, and both internally and externally.

Samudayadhammānupassī vā kāyasmiṁ viharati, vayadhammānupassī vā kāyasmiṁ viharati, samudayavayadhammānupassī vā kāyasmiṁ viharati.
They meditate observing the body as liable to originate, as liable to vanish, and as liable to both originate and vanish.

‘Atthi kāyo’ti vā panassa sati paccupaṭṭhitā hoti yāvadeva ñāṇamattāya paṭissatimattāya anissito ca viharati, na ca kiñci loke upādiyati.
Or mindfulness is established that the body exists, to the extent necessary for knowledge and mindfulness. They meditate independent, not grasping at anything in the world.

Evampi kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati. (9)
That too is how a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body.

Navasivathikapabbaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ.

2. Vedanānupassanā

2. Observing the Feelings

Kathañca pana, bhikkhave, bhikkhu vedanāsu vedanānupassī viharati?
And how does a mendicant meditate observing an aspect of feelings?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu sukhaṁ vā vedanaṁ vedayamāno ‘sukhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayāmī’ti pajānāti. (1)

It’s when a mendicant who feels a pleasant feeling knows: ‘I feel a pleasant feeling.’

Dukkhaṁ vā vedanaṁ vedayamāno ‘dukkhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayāmī’ti pajānāti. (2)
When they feel a painful feeling, they know: ‘I feel a painful feeling.’

Adukkhamasukhaṁ vā vedanaṁ vedayamāno ‘adukkhamasukhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayāmī’ti pajānāti. (3)
When they feel a neutral feeling, they know: ‘I feel a neutral feeling.’

Sāmisaṁ vā sukhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayamāno ‘sāmisaṁ sukhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayāmī’ti pajānāti. (4)
When they feel a material pleasant feeling, they know: ‘I feel a material pleasant feeling.’

Nirāmisaṁ vā sukhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayamāno ‘nirāmisaṁ sukhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayāmī’ti pajānāti. (5)
When they feel a spiritual pleasant feeling, they know: ‘I feel a spiritual pleasant feeling.’

Sāmisaṁ vā dukkhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayamāno ‘sāmisaṁ dukkhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayāmī’ti pajānāti. (6)
When they feel a material painful feeling, they know: ‘I feel a material painful feeling.’

Nirāmisaṁ vā dukkhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayamāno ‘nirāmisaṁ dukkhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayāmī’ti pajānāti. (7)
When they feel a spiritual painful feeling, they know: ‘I feel a spiritual painful feeling.’

Sāmisaṁ vā adukkhamasukhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayamāno ‘sāmisaṁ adukkhamasukhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayāmī’ti pajānāti. (8)

When they feel a material neutral feeling, they know: ‘I feel a material neutral feeling.’

Nirāmisaṁ vā adukkhamasukhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayamāno ‘nirāmisaṁ adukkhamasukhaṁ vedanaṁ vedayāmī’ti pajānāti. (9)
When they feel a spiritual neutral feeling, they know: ‘I feel a spiritual neutral feeling.’

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā vedanāsu vedanānupassī viharati, bahiddhā vā vedanāsu vedanānupassī viharati, ajjhattabahiddhā vā vedanāsu vedanānupassī viharati.
And so they meditate observing an aspect of feelings internally, externally, and both internally and externally.

Samudayadhammānupassī vā vedanāsu viharati, vayadhammānupassī vā vedanāsu viharati, samudayavayadhammānupassī vā vedanāsu viharati.
They meditate observing feelings as liable to originate, as liable to vanish, and as liable to both originate and vanish.

‘Atthi vedanā’ti vā panassa sati paccupaṭṭhitā hoti yāvadeva ñāṇamattāya paṭissatimattāya anissito ca viharati, na ca kiñci loke upādiyati.
Or mindfulness is established that feelings exist, to the extent necessary for knowledge and mindfulness. They meditate independent, not grasping at anything in the world.

Evampi kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu vedanāsu vedanānupassī viharati.
That’s how a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of feelings.

Vedanānupassanā niṭṭhitā.

3. Cittānupassanā

3. Observing the Mind

Kathañca pana, bhikkhave, bhikkhu citte cittānupassī viharati?
And how does a mendicant meditate observing an aspect of the mind?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu sarāgaṁ vā cittaṁ 'sarāgaṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (1) Vītarāgaṁ vā cittaṁ 'vītarāgaṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (2) Sadosaṁ vā cittaṁ 'sadosaṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (3) Vītadosaṁ vā cittaṁ 'vītadosaṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (4) Samohaṁ vā cittaṁ 'samohaṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (5) Vītamohaṁ vā cittaṁ 'vītamohaṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (6) Saṅkhittaṁ vā cittaṁ 'saṅkhittaṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (7) Vikkhittaṁ vā cittaṁ 'vikkhittaṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (8) Mahaggataṁ vā cittaṁ 'mahaggataṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (12) Samāhitaṁ vā cittaṁ 'samāhitaṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (13) Asamāhitaṁ vā cittaṁ 'asamāhitaṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (14) Vimuttaṁ vā cittaṁ 'vimuttaṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (15) Avimuttaṁ vā cittaṁ 'avimuttaṁ cittan'ti pajānāti. (16)
It's when a mendicant knows mind with greed as 'mind with greed,' and mind without greed as 'mind without greed.' They know mind with hate as 'mind with hate,' and mind without hate as 'mind without hate.' They know mind with delusion as 'mind with delusion,' and mind without delusion as 'mind without delusion.' They know constricted mind as 'constricted mind,' and scattered mind as 'scattered mind.' They know expansive mind as 'expansive mind,' and unexpansive mind as 'unexpansive mind.' They know mind that is not supreme as 'mind that is not supreme,' and mind that is supreme as 'mind that is supreme.' They know mind immersed in meditation as 'mind immersed in meditation,' and mind not immersed in meditation as 'mind not immersed in meditation.' They know freed mind as 'freed mind,' and unfreed mind as 'unfreed mind.'

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā citte cittānupassī viharati, bahiddhā vā citte cittānupassī viharati, ajjhattabahiddhā vā citte cittānupassī viharati.
And so they meditate observing an aspect of the mind internally, externally, and both internally and externally.

Samudayadhammānupassī vā cittasmiṁ viharati, vayadhammānupassī vā cittasmiṁ viharati, samudayavayadhammānupassī vā cittasmiṁ viharati,
They meditate observing the mind as liable to originate, as liable to vanish, and as liable to both originate and vanish.

‘atthi cittan’ti vā panassa sati paccupaṭṭhitā hoti yāvadeva ñāṇamattāya paṭissatimattāya anissito ca viharati, na ca kiñci loke upādiyati.
Or mindfulness is established that the mind exists, to the extent necessary for knowledge and mindfulness. They meditate independent, not grasping at anything in the world.

Evampi kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu citte cittānupassī viharati.
That’s how a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the mind.

Cittānupassanā niṭṭhitā.

4. Dhammānupassanā
4. Observing Principles

4.1. Dhammānupassanānīvaraṇapabba
4.1. The Hindrances

Kathañca pana, bhikkhave, bhikkhu dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati?
And how does a mendicant meditate observing an aspect of principles?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati pañcasu nīvaraṇesu.
It’s when a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of principles with respect to the five hindrances.

Kathañca pana, bhikkhave, bhikkhu dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati pañcasu nīvaraṇesu?
And how does a mendicant meditate observing an aspect of principles with respect to the five hindrances?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu santaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ kāmacchandaṁ ‘atthi me ajjhattaṁ kāmacchando’ti pajānāti, asantaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ kāmacchandaṁ ‘natthi me ajjhattaṁ kāmacchando’ti pajānāti, yathā ca anuppannassa kāmacchandassa uppādo hoti tañca pajānāti, yathā ca uppannassa kāmacchandassa pahānaṁ hoti tañca pajānāti, yathā ca pahīnassa kāmacchandassa āyatiṁ anuppādo hoti tañca pajānāti. (1)
It’s when a mendicant who has sensual desire in them understands: ‘I have sensual desire in me.’ When they don’t have sensual desire in them, they understand: ‘I don’t have sensual desire in me.’ They understand how sensual desire arises; how, when it’s already arisen, it’s given up; and how, once it’s given up, it doesn’t arise again in the future.

Santaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ byāpādaṁ ‘atthi me ajjhattaṁ byāpādo’ti pajānāti, asantaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ byāpādaṁ ‘natthi me ajjhattaṁ byāpādo’ti pajānāti, yathā ca anuppannassa byāpādassa uppādo hoti tañca pajānāti, yathā ca uppannassa byāpādassa pahānaṁ hoti tañca pajānāti, yathā ca pahīnassa byāpādassa āyatiṁ anuppādo hoti tañca pajānāti. (2)
When they have ill will in them, they understand: ‘I have ill will in me.’ When they don’t have ill will in them, they understand: ‘I don’t have ill will in me.’ They understand how ill will arises; how, when it’s already arisen, it’s given up; and how, once it’s given up, it doesn’t arise again in the future.

Santaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ thinamiddhaṁ ‘atthi me ajjhattaṁ thinamiddhan’ti pajānāti, asantaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ thinamiddhaṁ ‘natthi me ajjhattaṁ thinamiddhan’ti pajānāti, yathā ca anuppannassa thinamiddhassa uppādo hoti tañca pajānāti, yathā ca uppannassa thinamiddhassa pahānaṁ hoti tañca pajānāti, yathā ca pahīnassa thinamiddhassa āyatiṁ anuppādo hoti tañca pajānāti. (3)
When they have dullness and drowsiness in them, they understand: ‘I have dullness and drowsiness in me.’ When they don’t have dullness and drowsiness in them, they understand: ‘I don’t have dullness and drowsiness in me.’ They understand how dullness and drowsiness arise; how, when they’ve already arisen, they’re given up; and how, once they’re given up, they don’t arise again in the future.

Santaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ uddhaccakukkuccaṁ ‘atthi me ajjhattaṁ uddhaccakukkuccan’ti pajānāti, asantaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ uddhaccakukkuccaṁ ‘natthi me ajjhattaṁ uddhaccakukkuccan’ti pajānāti, yathā ca anuppannassa uddhaccakukkuccassa uppādo hoti tañca pajānāti, yathā ca uppannassa uddhaccakukkuccassa pahānaṁ hoti tañca pajānāti, yathā ca pahīnassa uddhaccakukkuccassa āyatiṁ anuppādo hoti tañca pajānāti. (4)
When they have restlessness and remorse in them, they understand: ‘I have restlessness and remorse in me.’ When they don’t have restlessness and remorse in them, they understand: ‘I don’t have restlessness and remorse in me.’ They understand how restlessness and remorse arise; how, when they’ve already arisen, they’re given up; and how, once they’re given up, they don’t arise again in the future.

Santaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ vicikicchaṁ ‘atthi me ajjhattaṁ vicikicchā’ti pajānāti, asantaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ vicikicchaṁ ‘natthi me ajjhattaṁ vicikicchā’ti pajānāti, yathā ca anuppannāya vicikicchāya uppādo hoti tañca pajānāti, yathā ca uppannāya vicikicchāya pahānaṁ hoti tañca pajānāti, yathā ca pahīnāya vicikicchāya āyatiṁ anuppādo hoti tañca pajānāti. (5)
When they have doubt in them, they understand: ‘I have doubt in me.’ When they don’t have doubt in them, they understand: ‘I don’t have doubt in me.’ They understand how doubt arises; how, when it’s already arisen, it’s given up; and how, once it’s given up, it doesn’t arise again in the future.

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati, bahiddhā vā dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati, ajjhattabahiddhā vā dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati.
And so they meditate observing an aspect of principles internally, externally, and both internally and externally.

Samudayadhammānupassī vā dhammesu viharati, vayadhammānupassī vā dhammesu viharati, samudayavayadhammānupassī vā dhammesu viharati.
They meditate observing the principles as liable to originate, as liable to vanish, and as liable to both originate and vanish.

‘Atthi dhammā’ti vā panassa sati paccupaṭṭhitā hoti yāvadeva ñāṇamattāya paṭissatimattāya, anissito ca viharati, na ca kiñci loke upādiyati.

That’s how a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of principles with respect to the five hindrances.

Nīvaraṇapabbaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ.

4.2. Dhammānupassanākhandhapabba

4.2. The Aggregates

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, bhikkhu dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati pañcasu upādānakkhandhesu.
Furthermore, a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of principles with respect to the five grasping aggregates.

Kathañca pana, bhikkhave, bhikkhu dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati pañcasu upādānakkhandhesu?
And how does a mendicant meditate observing an aspect of principles with respect to the five grasping aggregates?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu:
It's when a mendicant contemplates:

'iti rūpaṁ, iti rūpassa samudayo, iti rūpassa atthaṅgamo;
Such is form, such is the origin of form, such is the ending of form.

iti vedanā, iti vedanāya samudayo, iti vedanāya atthaṅgamo;
Such is feeling, such is the origin of feeling, such is the ending of feeling.

iti saññā, iti saññāya samudayo, iti saññāya atthaṅgamo;
Such is perception, such is the origin of perception, such is the ending of perception.

iti saṅkhārā, iti saṅkhārānaṁ samudayo, iti saṅkhārānaṁ atthaṅgamo, Such are choices, such is the origin of choices, such is the ending of choices.

iti viññāṇaṁ, iti viññāṇassa samudayo, iti viññāṇassa atthaṅgamo'ti, Such is consciousness, such is the origin of consciousness, such is the ending of consciousness.'

iti ajjhattaṁ vā dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati, bahiddhā vā dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati, ajjhattabahiddhā vā dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati.
And so they meditate observing an aspect of principles internally …

Samudayadhammānupassī vā dhammesu viharati, vayadhammānupassī vā dhammesu viharati, samudayavayadhammānupassī vā dhammesu viharati.

4.4. The Awakening Factors

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, bhikkhu dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati sattasu bojjhaṅgesu.
Furthermore, a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of principles with respect to the seven awakening factors.

Kathañca pana, bhikkhave, bhikkhu dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati sattasu bojjhaṅgesu?
And how does a mendicant meditate observing an aspect of principles with respect to the seven awakening factors?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu santaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ satisambojjhaṅgaṁ ‘atthi me ajjhattaṁ satisambojjhaṅgo’ti pajānāti, asantaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ satisambojjhaṅgaṁ ‘natthi me ajjhattaṁ satisambojjhaṅgo’ti pajānāti, yathā ca anuppannassa satisambojjhaṅgassa uppādo hoti tañca pajānāti, yathā ca uppannassa satisambojjhaṅgassa bhāvanāya pāripūrī hoti tañca pajānāti. (1)
It’s when a mendicant who has the awakening factor of mindfulness in them understands: ‘I have the awakening factor of mindfulness in me.’ When they don’t have the awakening factor of mindfulness in them, they understand: ‘I don’t have the awakening factor of mindfulness in me.’ They understand how the awakening factor of mindfulness that has not arisen comes to arise; and how the awakening factor of mindfulness that has arisen becomes fulfilled by development.

Santaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ dhammavicayasambojjhaṅgaṁ ‘atthi me ajjhattaṁ dhammavicayasambojjhaṅgo’ti pajānāti, asantaṁ vā ajjhattaṁ dhammavicayasambojjhaṅgaṁ ‘natthi me ajjhattaṁ dhammavicayasambojjhaṅgo’ti pajānāti, yathā ca anuppannassa dhammavicayasambojjhaṅgassa uppādo hoti tañca pajānāti, yathā ca uppannassa

4.5. Dhammānupassanāsaccapabba
4.5. The Truths

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, bhikkhu dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati catūsu ariyasaccesu.
Furthermore, a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of principles with respect to the four noble truths.

Kathañca pana, bhikkhave, bhikkhu dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati catūsu ariyasaccesu?
And how does a mendicant meditate observing an aspect of principles with respect to the four noble truths?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu ‘idaṁ dukkhan’ti yathābhūtaṁ pajānāti, ‘ayaṁ dukkhasamudayo’ti yathābhūtaṁ pajānāti, ‘ayaṁ dukkhanirodho’ti yathābhūtaṁ pajānāti, ‘ayaṁ dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā’ti yathābhūtaṁ pajānāti.
It’s when a mendicant truly understands: ‘This is suffering’ … ‘This is the origin of suffering’ … ‘This is the cessation of suffering’ … ‘This is the practice that leads to the cessation of suffering.’

Paṭhamabhāṇavāro niṭṭhito.
The first recitation section is finished.

4.5.1. Dukkhasaccaniddesa
4.5.1. The Truth of Suffering

Katamañca, bhikkhave, dukkhaṁ ariyasaccaṁ?
And what is the noble truth of suffering?

Jātipi dukkhā, jarāpi dukkhā, maraṇampi dukkhaṁ, sokaparidevadukkhadomanassupāyāsāpi dukkhā, appiyehi sampayogopi dukkho, piyehi vippayogopi dukkho, yampicchaṁ na labhati tampi dukkhaṁ, saṅkhittena pañcupādānakkhandhā dukkhā.
Rebirth is suffering; old age is suffering; death is suffering; sorrow, lamentation, pain, sadness, and distress are suffering; association with the disliked is suffering; separation from the liked is suffering; not getting what you wish for is suffering. In brief, the five grasping aggregates are suffering.

Katamā ca, bhikkhave, jāti?
And what is rebirth?

Yā tesaṁ tesaṁ sattānaṁ tamhi tamhi sattanikāye jāti sañjāti okkanti abhinibbatti khandhānaṁ pātubhāvo āyatanānaṁ paṭilābho,
The rebirth, inception, conception, reincarnation, manifestation of the sets of phenomena, and acquisition of the sense fields of the various sentient beings in the various orders of sentient beings.

ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, jāti. (1)
This is called rebirth.

Katamā ca, bhikkhave, jarā?
And what is old age?

Yā tesaṁ tesaṁ sattānaṁ tamhi tamhi sattanikāye jarā jīraṇatā khaṇḍiccaṁ pāliccaṁ valittacatā āyuno saṁhāni indriyānaṁ paripāko,
The old age, decrepitude, broken teeth, grey hair, wrinkly skin, diminished vitality, and failing faculties of the various sentient beings in the various orders of sentient beings.

ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, jarā. (2)
This is called old age.

Katamañca, bhikkhave, maraṇaṁ?
And what is death?

Yaṁ tesaṁ tesaṁ sattānaṁ tamhā tamhā sattanikāyā cuti cavanatā bhedo antaradhānaṁ maccu maraṇaṁ kālakiriyā khandhānaṁ bhedo kaḷevarassa nikkhepo jīvitindriyassupacchedo,
The passing away, perishing, disintegration, demise, mortality, death, decease, breaking up of the aggregates, laying to rest of the corpse, and cutting off of the life faculty of the various sentient beings in the various orders of sentient beings.

idaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, maraṇaṁ. (3)
This is called death.

Katamo ca, bhikkhave, soko?
And what is sorrow?

Yo kho, bhikkhave, aññataraññatarena byasanena samannāgatassa aññataraññatarena dukkhadhammena phuṭṭhassa soko socanā socitattaṁ antosoko antoparisoko,
The sorrow, sorrowing, state of sorrow, inner sorrow, inner deep sorrow in someone who has undergone misfortune, who has experienced suffering.

ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, soko. (4)
This is called sorrow.

Katamo ca, bhikkhave, paridevo?
And what is lamentation?

Yo kho, bhikkhave, aññataraññatarena byasanena samannāgatassa aññataraññatarena dukkhadhammena phuṭṭhassa ādevo paridevo ādevanā paridevanā ādevitattaṁ paridevitattaṁ,

The wail, lament, wailing, lamenting, state of wailing and lamentation in someone who has undergone misfortune, who has experienced suffering.

ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, paridevo. (5)
This is called lamentation.

Katamañca, bhikkhave, dukkhaṁ?
And what is pain?

Yaṁ kho, bhikkhave, kāyikaṁ dukkhaṁ kāyikaṁ asātaṁ kāyasamphassajaṁ dukkhaṁ asātaṁ vedayitaṁ, Physical pain, physical displeasure, the painful, unpleasant feeling that’s born from physical contact.

idaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, dukkhaṁ. (6)
This is called pain.

Katamañca, bhikkhave, domanassaṁ?
And what is sadness?

Yaṁ kho, bhikkhave, cetasikaṁ dukkhaṁ cetasikaṁ asātaṁ manosamphassajaṁ dukkhaṁ asātaṁ vedayitaṁ, Mental pain, mental displeasure, the painful, unpleasant feeling that’s born from mental contact.

idaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, domanassaṁ. (7)
This is called sadness.

Katamo ca, bhikkhave, upāyāso?
And what is distress?

Yo kho, bhikkhave, aññataraññatarena byasanena samannāgatassa aññataraññatarena dukkhadhammena phuṭṭhassa āyāso upāyāso āyāsitattaṁ upāyāsitattaṁ,
The stress, distress, state of stress and distress in someone who has undergone misfortune, who has experienced suffering.

ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, upāyāso. (8)

This is called distress.

Katamo ca, bhikkhave, appiyehi sampayogo dukkho?
And what is meant by ‘association with the disliked is suffering’?

Idha yassa te honti aniṭṭhā akantā amanāpā rūpā saddā gandhā rasā phoṭṭhabbā dhammā, ye vā panassa te honti anatthakāmā ahitakāmā aphāsukakāmā ayogakkhemakāmā, yā tehi saddhiṁ saṅgati samāgamo samodhānaṁ missībhāvo,
There are sights, sounds, smells, tastes, touches, and thoughts that are unlikable, undesirable, and disagreeable. And there are those who want to harm, injure, disturb, and threaten you. The coming together with these, the joining, inclusion, mixing with them:

ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, appiyehi sampayogo dukkho. (9) this is what is meant by ‘association with the disliked is suffering’.

Katamo ca, bhikkhave, piyehi vippayogo dukkho?
And what is meant by ‘separation from the liked is suffering’?

Idha yassa te honti iṭṭhā kantā manāpā rūpā saddā gandhā rasā phoṭṭhabbā dhammā, ye vā panassa te honti atthakāmā hitakāmā phāsukakāmā yogakkhemakāmā mātā vā pitā vā bhātā vā bhaginī vā mittā vā amaccā vā ñātisālohitā vā, yā tehi saddhiṁ asaṅgati asamāgamo asamodhānaṁ amissībhāvo,
There are sights, sounds, smells, tastes, touches, and thoughts that are likable, desirable, and agreeable. And there are those who want to benefit, help, comfort, and protect you. The division from these, the disconnection, segregation, and parting from them:

ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, piyehi vippayogo dukkho. (10) this is what is meant by ‘separation from the liked is suffering’.

Katamañca, bhikkhave, yampicchaṁ na labhati tampi dukkhaṁ?
And what is meant by ‘not getting what you wish for is suffering’?

Jātidhammānaṁ, bhikkhave, sattānaṁ evaṁ icchā uppajjati:

In sentient beings who are liable to be reborn, such a wish arises:

‘aho vata mayaṁ na jātidhammā assāma, na ca vata no jāti āgaccheyyā’ti.
‘Oh, if only we were not liable to be reborn! If only rebirth would not come to us!’

Na kho panetaṁ icchāya pattabbaṁ,
But you can’t get that by wishing.

idampi yampicchaṁ na labhati tampi dukkhaṁ.
This is what is meant by ‘not getting what you wish for is suffering.’

Jarādhammānaṁ, bhikkhave, sattānaṁ evaṁ icchā uppajjati:
In sentient beings who are liable to grow old …

experience sorrow, lamentation, pain, sadness, and distress, such a wish arises: ‘Oh, if only we were not liable to experience sorrow, lamentation, pain, sadness, and distress! If only sorrow, lamentation, pain, sadness, and distress would not come to us!’

Na kho panetaṁ icchāya pattabbaṁ,
But you can’t get that by wishing.

idampi yampicchaṁ na labhati tampi dukkhaṁ. (11)
This is what is meant by ‘not getting what you wish for is suffering.’

Katame ca, bhikkhave, saṅkhittena pañcupādānakkhandhā dukkhā?
And what is meant by ‘in brief, the five grasping aggregates are suffering’?

Seyyathidaṁ—rūpupādānakkhandho, vedanupādānakkhandho, saññupādānakkhandho, saṅkhārupādānakkhandho, viññāṇupādānakkhandho.
They are the grasping aggregates that consist of form, feeling, perception, choices, and consciousness.

Ime vuccanti, bhikkhave, saṅkhittena pañcupādānakkhandhā dukkhā.
This is what is meant by ‘in brief, the five grasping aggregates are suffering’.

Idaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, dukkhaṁ ariyasaccaṁ.
This is called the noble truth of suffering.

4.5.2. Samudayasaccaniddesa

4.5.2. The Origin of Suffering

Katamañca, bhikkhave, dukkhasamudayaṁ ariyasaccaṁ?
And what is the noble truth of the origin of suffering?

Yāyaṁ taṇhā ponobbhavikā nandīrāgasahagatā tatratatrābhinandinī, seyyathidaṁ—It’s the craving that leads to future rebirth, mixed up with relishing and greed, looking for enjoyment in various different realms. That is, kāmataṇhā bhavataṇhā vibhavataṇhā.

craving for sensual pleasures, craving for continued existence, and craving to end existence.

Sā kho panesā, bhikkhave, taṇhā kattha uppajjamānā uppajjati, kattha nivisamānā nivisati?
But where does that craving arise and where does it settle?

Yaṁ loke piyarūpaṁ sātarūpaṁ, etthesā taṇhā uppajjamānā uppajjati, ettha nivisamānā nivisati.

4.5.3. The Cessation of Suffering

Katamañca, bhikkhave, dukkhanirodhaṁ ariyasaccaṁ?
And what is the noble truth of the cessation of suffering?

Yo tassāyeva taṇhāya asesavirāganirodho cāgo paṭinissaggo mutti anālayo.

It’s the fading away and cessation of that very same craving with nothing left over; giving it away, letting it go, releasing it, and not adhering to it.

This is called the noble truth of the cessation of suffering.

4.5.4. Maggasaccaniddesa
4.5.4. The Path

Katamañca, bhikkhave, dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā ariyasaccaṁ?
And what is the noble truth of the practice that leads to the cessation of suffering?

Ayameva ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo seyyathidaṁ—
It is simply this noble eightfold path, that is:

sammādiṭṭhi sammāsaṅkappo sammāvācā sammākammanto sammāājīvo sammāvāyāmo sammāsati sammāsamādhi.
right view, right thought, right speech, right action, right livelihood, right effort, right mindfulness, and right immersion.

Katamā ca, bhikkhave, sammādiṭṭhi?
And what is right view?

Yaṁ kho, bhikkhave, dukkhe ñāṇaṁ, dukkhasamudaye ñāṇaṁ, dukkhanirodhe ñāṇaṁ, dukkhanirodhagāminiyā paṭipadāya ñāṇaṁ.
Knowing about suffering, the origin of suffering, the cessation of suffering, and the practice that leads to the cessation of suffering.

Ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, sammādiṭṭhi. (1)
This is called right view.

Katamo ca, bhikkhave, sammāsaṅkappo?
And what is right thought?

Nekkhammasaṅkappo abyāpādasaṅkappo avihiṁsāsaṅkappo.
Thoughts of renunciation, good will, and harmlessness.

Ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, sammāsaṅkappo. (2)
This is called right thought.

Katamā ca, bhikkhave, sammāvācā?
And what is right speech?

Musāvādā veramaṇī pisuṇāya vācāya veramaṇī pharusāya vācāya veramaṇī samphappalāpā veramaṇī.
The refraining from lying, divisive speech, harsh speech, and talking nonsense.

Ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, sammāvācā. (3)
This is called right speech.

Katamo ca, bhikkhave, sammākammanto?
And what is right action?

Pāṇātipātā veramaṇī adinnādānā veramaṇī kāmesumicchācārā veramaṇī.
Refraining from killing living creatures, stealing, and sexual misconduct.

Ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, sammākammanto. (4)
This is called right action.

Katamo ca, bhikkhave, sammāājīvo?
And what is right livelihood?

Idha, bhikkhave, ariyasāvako micchāājīvaṁ pahāya sammāājīvena jīvitaṁ kappeti.
It’s when a noble disciple gives up wrong livelihood and earns a living by right livelihood.

Ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, sammāājīvo. (5)
This is called right livelihood.

Katamo ca, bhikkhave, sammāvāyāmo?
And what is right effort?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu anuppannānaṁ pāpakānaṁ akusalānaṁ dhammānaṁ anuppādāya chandaṁ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṁ ārabhati cittaṁ paggaṇhāti padahati;
It’s when a mendicant generates enthusiasm, tries, makes an effort, exerts the mind, and strives so that bad, unskillful qualities don’t arise.

uppannānaṁ pāpakānaṁ akusalānaṁ dhammānaṁ pahānāya chandaṁ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṁ ārabhati cittaṁ paggaṇhāti padahati;
They generate enthusiasm, try, make an effort, exert the mind, and strive so that bad, unskillful qualities that have arisen are given up.

anuppannānaṁ kusalānaṁ dhammānaṁ uppādāya chandaṁ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṁ ārabhati cittaṁ paggaṇhāti padahati;
They generate enthusiasm, try, make an effort, exert the mind, and strive so that skillful qualities arise.

uppannānaṁ kusalānaṁ dhammānaṁ ṭhitiyā asammosāya bhiyyobhāvāya vepullāya bhāvanāya pāripūriyā chandaṁ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṁ ārabhati cittaṁ paggaṇhāti padahati.

They generate enthusiasm, try, make an effort, exert the mind, and strive so that skillful qualities that have arisen remain, are not lost, but increase, mature, and are completed by development.

Ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, sammāvāyāmo. (6)
This is called right effort.

Katamā ca, bhikkhave, sammāsati?
And what is right mindfulness?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ;
It’s when a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

vedanāsu vedanānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ;
They meditate observing an aspect of feelings—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

citte cittānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ;
They meditate observing an aspect of the mind—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ.
They meditate observing an aspect of principles—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

Ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, sammāsati. (7)
This is called right mindfulness.

Katamo ca, bhikkhave, sammāsamādhi?
And what is right immersion?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu vivicceva kāmehi vivicca akusalehi dhammehi savitakkaṁ savicāraṁ vivekajaṁ pītisukhaṁ paṭhamaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.

It’s when a mendicant, quite secluded from sensual pleasures, secluded from unskillful qualities, enters and remains in the first absorption, which has the rapture and bliss born of seclusion, while placing the mind and keeping it connected.

Vitakkavicārānaṁ vūpasamā ajjhattaṁ sampasādanaṁ cetaso ekodibhāvaṁ avitakkaṁ avicāraṁ samādhijaṁ pītisukhaṁ dutiyaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
As the placing of the mind and keeping it connected are stilled, they enter and remain in the second absorption, which has the rapture and bliss born of immersion, with internal clarity and confidence, and unified mind, without placing the mind and keeping it connected.

Pītiyā ca virāgā upekkhako ca viharati, sato ca sampajāno, sukhañca kāyena paṭisaṁvedeti, yaṁ taṁ ariyā ācikkhanti ‘upekkhako satimā sukhavihārī’ti tatiyaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
And with the fading away of rapture, they enter and remain in the third absorption, where they meditate with equanimity, mindful and aware, personally experiencing the bliss of which the noble ones declare, ‘Equanimous and mindful, one meditates in bliss.’

Sukhassa ca pahānā dukkhassa ca pahānā pubbeva somanassadomanassānaṁ atthaṅgamā adukkhamasukhaṁ upekkhāsatipārisuddhiṁ catutthaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
Giving up pleasure and pain, and ending former happiness and sadness, they enter and remain in the fourth absorption, without pleasure or pain, with pure equanimity and mindfulness.

Ayaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, sammāsamādhi.
This is called right immersion.

Idaṁ vuccati, bhikkhave, dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā ariyasaccaṁ. (8)
This is called the noble truth of the practice that leads to the cessation of suffering.

Iti ajjhattaṁ vā dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati, bahiddhā vā dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati, ajjhattabahiddhā vā dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati.
And so they meditate observing an aspect of principles internally, externally, and both internally and externally.

Samudayadhammānupassī vā dhammesu viharati, vayadhammānupassī vā dhammesu viharati, samudayavayadhammānupassī vā dhammesu viharati.
They meditate observing the principles as liable to originate, as liable to vanish, and as liable to both originate and vanish.

‘Atthi dhammā’ti vā panassa sati paccupaṭṭhitā hoti yāvadeva ñāṇamattāya paṭissatimattāya anissito ca viharati, na ca kiñci loke upādiyati.
Or mindfulness is established that principles exist, to the extent necessary for knowledge and mindfulness. They meditate independent, not grasping at anything in the world.

Evampi kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati catūsu ariyasaccesu.
That’s how a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of principles with respect to the four noble truths.

Saccapabbaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ.

Dhammānupassanā niṭṭhitā.

With Pāyāsi

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

At one time Venerable Kassapa the Prince was wandering in the land of the Kosalans together with a large Saṅgha of five hundred mendicants when he arrived at a Kosalan citadel named Setavyā.

Tatra sudaṁ āyasmā kumārakassapo setabyāyaṁ viharati uttarena setabyaṁ siṁsapāvane.
He stayed in the grove of Indian Rosewood to the north of Setavyā.

Tena kho pana samayena pāyāsi rājañño setabyaṁ ajjhāvasati sattussadaṁ satiṇakaṭṭhodakaṁ sadhaññaṁ rājabhoggaṁ raññā pasenadinā kosalena dinnaṁ rājadāyaṁ brahmadeyyaṁ.
Now at that time the chieftain Pāyāsi was living in Setavyā. It was a crown property given by King Pasenadi of Kosala, teeming with living creatures, full of hay, wood, water, and grain, a royal endowment of the highest quality.

1. Pāyāsirājaññavatthu

1. On Pāyāsi

Tena kho pana samayena pāyāsissa rājaññassa evarūpaṁ pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ uppannaṁ hoti:

Now at that time Pāyāsi had the following harmful misconception:

“itipi natthi paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko”ti.
“There’s no afterlife. No beings are reborn spontaneously. There’s no fruit or result of good and bad deeds.”

Assosuṁ kho setabyakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā:
The brahmins and householders of Setavyā heard,

“samaṇo khalu bho kumārakassapo samaṇassa gotamassa sāvako kosalesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi setabyaṁ anuppatto setabyāyaṁ viharati uttarena setabyaṁ siṁsapāvane.
“It seems the ascetic Kassapa the Prince—a disciple of the ascetic Gotama—is staying in the grove of Indian Rosewood to the north of Setavyā.

Taṁ kho pana bhavantaṁ kumārakassapaṁ evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:
He has this good reputation:

‘paṇḍito byatto medhāvī bahussuto cittakathī kalyāṇapaṭibhāno vuddho ceva arahā ca.
‘He is astute, competent, intelligent, learned, a brilliant speaker, eloquent, mature, a perfected one.’

Sādhu kho pana tathārūpānaṁ arahataṁ dassanaṁ hotī’”ti.
It’s good to see such perfected ones.”

Atha kho setabyakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā setabyāya nikkhamitvā saṅghasaṅghī gaṇībhūtā uttarenamukhā gacchanti yena siṁsapāvanaṁ.
Then, having departed Setavyā, they formed into companies and headed north to the grove.

Tena kho pana samayena pāyāsi rājañño uparipāsāde divāseyyaṁ upagato hoti.

Now at that time the chieftain Pāyāsi had retired to the upper floor of his stilt longhouse for his midday nap.

Addasā kho pāyāsi rājañño setabyake brāhmaṇagahapatike setabyāya nikkhamitvā saṅghasaṅghī gaṇībhūte uttarenamukhe gacchante yena siṁsapāvanaṁ,
He saw the brahmins and householders heading north towards the grove,

disvā khattaṁ āmantesi:
and addressed his steward,

“kiṁ nu kho, bho khatte, setabyakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā setabyāya nikkhamitvā saṅghasaṅghī gaṇībhūtā uttarenamukhā gacchanti yena siṁsapāvanan”ti?
“My steward, why are the brahmins and householders heading north towards the grove?”

“Atthi kho, bho, samaṇo kumārakassapo, samaṇassa gotamassa sāvako kosalesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi setabyaṁ anuppatto setabyāyaṁ viharati uttarena setabyaṁ siṁsapāvane.
“The ascetic Kassapa the Prince—a disciple of the ascetic Gotama—is staying in the grove of Indian Rosewood to the north of Setavyā.

Taṁ kho pana bhavantaṁ kumārakassapaṁ evaṁ kalyāṇo kittisaddo abbhuggato:
He has this good reputation:

‘paṇḍito byatto medhāvī bahussuto cittakathī kalyāṇapaṭibhāno vuddho ceva arahā cā’ti.
‘He is astute, competent, intelligent, learned, a brilliant speaker, eloquent, mature, a perfected one.’

Tamete bhavantaṁ kumārakassapaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamantī”ti.
They’re going to see that Kassapa the Prince.”

“Tena hi, bho khatte, yena setabyakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā tenupasaṅkama; upasaṅkamitvā setabyake brāhmaṇagahapatike evaṁ vadehi:
“Well then, go to the brahmins and householders and say to them:

‘pāyāsi, bho, rājañño evamāha—
‘Sirs, the chieftain Pāyāsi asks āgamentu kira bhavanto, pāyāsipi rājañño samaṇaṁ kumārakassapaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamissatī’ti.

you to wait, as he will also go to see the ascetic Kassapa the Prince.’

Purā samaṇo kumārakassapo setabyake brāhmaṇagahapatike bāle abyatte saññāpeti:
Before Kassapa the Prince convinces those foolish and incompetent brahmins and householders that ‘itipi atthi paro loko, atthi sattā opapātikā, atthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’ti.

there is an afterlife, there are beings reborn spontaneously, and there is a fruit or result of good and bad deeds—

Natthi hi, bho khatte, paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko”ti.
for none of these things are true!”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho so khattā pāyāsissa rājaññassa paṭissutvā yena setabyakā brāhmaṇagahapatikā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā setabyake brāhmaṇagahapatike etadavoca:
“Yes, sir,” replied the steward, and did as he was asked.

“pāyāsi, bho, rājañño evamāha, āgamentu kira bhavanto, pāyāsipi rājañño samaṇaṁ kumārakassapaṁ dassanāya upasaṅkamissatī”ti.

Atha kho pāyāsi rājañño setabyakehi brāhmaṇagahapatikehi parivuto yena siṁsapāvanaṁ yenāyasmā kumārakassapo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā āyasmatā kumārakassapena

Then Pāyāsi escorted by the brahmins and householders, went up to Kassapa the Prince, and exchanged greetings with him. When the greetings and polite conversation were over, he sat down to one side.

Setabyakāpi kho brāhmaṇagahapatikā appekacce āyasmantaṁ kumārakassapaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu;
Before sitting down to one side, some of the brahmins and householders of Setavyā bowed, some exchanged greetings and polite conversation, some held up their joined palms toward Kassapa the Prince, some announced their name and clan, while some kept silent.

appekacce āyasmatā kumārakassapena saddhiṁ sammodiṁsu;

2. Natthikavāda

2. Nihilism

Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho pāyāsi rājañño āyasmantaṁ kumārakassapaṁ etadavoca:
Seated to one side, the chieftain Pāyāsi said to Venerable Kassapa the Prince, “ahañhi, bho kassapa, evaṁvādī evaṁdiṭṭhī:

“Master Kassapa, this is my doctrine and view:

‘itipi natthi paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’”ti.
‘There’s no afterlife. No beings are reborn spontaneously. There’s no fruit or result of good and bad deeds.’”

“Nāhaṁ, rājañña, evaṁvādiṁ evaṁdiṭṭhiṁ addasaṁ vā assosiṁ vā.
“Well, chieftain, I’ve never seen or heard of anyone holding such a doctrine or view.

Kathañhi nāma evaṁ vadeyya:
For how on earth can anyone say such a thing?

‘itipi natthi paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’ti?

2.1. Candimasūriyaupamā

2.1. The Simile of the Moon and Sun

Tena hi, rājañña, taññevettha paṭipucchissāmi, yathā te khameyya, tathā naṁ byākareyyāsi.
Well then, chieftain, I’ll ask you about this in return, and you can answer as you like.

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, rājañña,
What do you think, chieftain?

ime candimasūriyā imasmiṁ vā loke parasmiṁ vā, devā vā te manussā vā”ti?
Are the moon and sun in this world or the other world? Are they gods or humans?”

“Ime, bho kassapa, candimasūriyā parasmiṁ loke, na imasmiṁ; devā te na manussā”ti.
“They are in the other world, Master Kassapa, and they are gods, not humans.”

“Imināpi kho te, rājañña, pariyāyena evaṁ hotu—
“By this method it ought to be proven that

itipi atthi paro loko, atthi sattā opapātikā, atthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko”ti.

“Those who kill living creatures, steal, and commit sexual misconduct; use speech that’s false, divisive, harsh, or nonsensical; and are covetous, malicious, and have wrong view—when their body breaks up, after death, are reborn in a place of loss, a bad place, the underworld, hell.”

Bhavanto kho pāṇātipātī adinnādāyī kāmesumicchācārī musāvādī pisuṇavācā pharusavācā samphappalāpī abhijjhālū byāpannacittā micchādiṭṭhī.
You do all these things.

Sace tesaṁ bhavataṁ samaṇabrāhmaṇānaṁ saccaṁ vacanaṁ, bhavanto kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā apāyaṁ duggatiṁ vinipātaṁ nirayaṁ upapajjissanti.
If what those ascetics and brahmins say is true, when your body breaks up, after death, you’ll be reborn in a place of loss, a bad place, the underworld, hell.

Sace, bho, kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā apāyaṁ duggatiṁ vinipātaṁ nirayaṁ upapajjeyyātha, yena me āgantvā āroceyyātha:

2.2. Coraupamā

2.2. The Simile of the Bandit

“Tena hi, rājañña, taññevettha paṭipucchissāmi. Yathā te khameyya tathā naṁ byākareyyāsi.
“Well then, chieftain, I’ll ask you about this in return, and you can answer as you like.

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, rājañña,
What do you think, chieftain?

idha te purisā coraṁ āgucāriṁ gahetvā dasseyyuṁ:
Suppose they were to arrest a bandit, a criminal and present him to you, saying,

‘ayaṁ te, bhante, coro āgucārī;
‘Sir, this is a bandit, a criminal.

imassa yaṁ icchasi, taṁ daṇḍaṁ paṇehī’ti.
Punish him as you will.’

Te tvaṁ evaṁ vadeyyāsi:
Then you’d say to them,

‘tena hi, bho, imaṁ purisaṁ daḷhāya rajjuyā pacchābāhaṁ gāḷhabandhanaṁ bandhitvā khuramuṇḍaṁ karitvā kharassarena paṇavena rathikāya rathikaṁ siṅghāṭakena siṅghāṭakaṁ parinetvā dakkhiṇena dvārena nikkhamitvā dakkhiṇato nagarassa āghātane sīsaṁ chindathā’ti.
‘Well then, my men, tie this man’s arms tightly behind his back with a strong rope. Shave his head and march him from street to street and square to square to the beating of a harsh drum. Then take him out the south gate and there, at the place of execution to the south of the city, chop off his head.’

Te ‘sādhū’ti paṭissutvā taṁ purisaṁ daḷhāya rajjuyā pacchābāhaṁ gāḷhabandhanaṁ bandhitvā khuramuṇḍaṁ karitvā kharassarena paṇavena rathikāya rathikaṁ siṅghāṭakena siṅghāṭakaṁ parinetvā dakkhiṇena dvārena nikkhamitvā dakkhiṇato nagarassa āghātane nisīdāpeyyuṁ.
Saying, ‘Good,’ they’d do as they were told, sitting him down at the place of execution.

Labheyya nu kho so coro coraghātesu:

‘Please, good executioners! I have friends and colleagues, relatives and kin in such and such village or town. Wait until I’ve visited them, then I’ll come back’? Or would they just chop off his head as he prattled on?”

“Na hi so, bho kassapa, coro labheyya coraghātesu:

Seyyathāpi, rājañña, puriso gūthakūpe sasīsakaṁ nimuggo assa.
Suppose there were a man sunk over his head in a sewer.

Atha tvaṁ purise āṇāpeyyāsi:
Then you were to order someone ‘tena hi, bho, taṁ purisaṁ tamhā gūthakūpā uddharathā’ti.

to pull him out of the sewer,

Te ‘sādhū’ti paṭissutvā taṁ purisaṁ tamhā gūthakūpā uddhareyyuṁ.
and they’d agree to do so.

Te tvaṁ evaṁ vadeyyāsi:
Then you’d tell them to ‘tena hi, bho, tassa purisassa kāyā veḷupesikāhi gūthaṁ sunimmajjitaṁ nimmajjathā’ti.

carefully scrape the dung off that man’s body with bamboo scrapers,

Te ‘sādhū’ti paṭissutvā tassa purisassa kāyā veḷupesikāhi gūthaṁ sunimmajjitaṁ nimmajjeyyuṁ.
and they’d agree to do so.

Te tvaṁ evaṁ vadeyyāsi:
Then you’d tell them to ‘tena hi, bho, tassa purisassa kāyaṁ paṇḍumattikāya tikkhattuṁ subbaṭṭitaṁ ubbaṭṭethā’ti.

carefully scrub that man’s body down with pale clay three times,

Te tassa purisassa kāyaṁ paṇḍumattikāya tikkhattuṁ subbaṭṭitaṁ ubbaṭṭeyyuṁ.
and they’d do so.

Te tvaṁ evaṁ vadeyyāsi:
Then you’d tell them to ‘tena hi, bho, taṁ purisaṁ telena abbhañjitvā sukhumena cuṇṇena tikkhattuṁ suppadhotaṁ karothā’ti.

smear that man’s body with oil, and carefully wash him down with fine paste three times,

Te taṁ purisaṁ telena abbhañjitvā sukhumena cuṇṇena tikkhattuṁ suppadhotaṁ kareyyuṁ.
and they’d do so.

Te tvaṁ evaṁ vadeyyāsi:
Then you’d tell them to ‘tena hi, bho, tassa purisassa kesamassuṁ kappethā’ti.

dress that man’s hair and beard,

Te tassa purisassa kesamassuṁ kappeyyuṁ.
and they’d do so.

Te tvaṁ evaṁ vadeyyāsi:
Then you’d tell them to ‘tena hi, bho, tassa purisassa mahagghañca mālaṁ mahagghañca vilepanaṁ mahagghāni ca vatthāni upaharathā’ti.

provide that man with costly garlands, makeup, and clothes,

Te tassa purisassa mahagghañca mālaṁ mahagghañca vilepanaṁ mahagghāni ca vatthāni upahareyyuṁ.
and they’d do so.

Te tvaṁ evaṁ vadeyyāsi:
Then you’d tell them to ‘tena hi, bho, taṁ purisaṁ pāsādaṁ āropetvā pañcakāmaguṇāni upaṭṭhāpethā’ti.

bring that man up to the stilt longhouse and set him up with the five kinds of sensual stimulation,

Te taṁ purisaṁ pāsādaṁ āropetvā pañcakāmaguṇāni upaṭṭhāpeyyuṁ.

and they’d do so.

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, rājañña,
What do you think, chieftain?

api nu tassa purisassa sunhātassa suvilittassa sukappitakesamassussa āmukkamālābharaṇassa odātavatthavasanassa uparipāsādavaragatassa pañcahi kāmaguṇehi samappitassa samaṅgībhūtassa paricārayamānassa punadeva tasmiṁ gūthakūpe nimujjitukāmatā assā”ti?
Now that man is nicely bathed and anointed, with hair and beard dressed, bedecked with garlands and bracelets, dressed in white, supplied and provided with the five kinds of sensual stimulation upstairs in the stilt longhouse. Would he want to dive back into that sewer again?”

“No hidaṁ, bho kassapa”.
“No, Master Kassapa.

“Taṁ kissa hetu”?
Why is that?

“Asuci, bho kassapa, gūthakūpo asuci ceva asucisaṅkhāto ca duggandho ca duggandhasaṅkhāto ca jegucchо ca jegucchasaṅkhāto ca paṭikūlo ca paṭikūlasaṅkhāto cā”ti.
Because that sewer is filthy, stinking, disgusting, and repulsive, and it’s regarded as such.”

“Evameva kho, rājañña, manussā devānaṁ asucī ceva asucisaṅkhātā ca, duggandhā ca duggandhasaṅkhātā ca, jegucchā ca jegucchasaṅkhātā ca, paṭikūlā ca paṭikūlasaṅkhātā ca.
“In the same way, chieftain, to the gods, human beings are filthy, stinking, disgusting, and repulsive, and are regarded as such.

Yojanasataṁ kho, rājañña, manussagandho deve ubbādhati.

The smell of humans reaches the gods even a hundred leagues away.

Kiṁ pana te mittāmaccā ñātisālohitā pāṇātipātā paṭiviratā adinnādānā paṭiviratā kāmesumicchācārā paṭiviratā musāvādā paṭiviratā pisuṇāya vācāya paṭiviratā pharusāya vācāya paṭiviratā samphappalāpā paṭiviratā anabhijjhālū abyāpannacittā sammādiṭṭhī, kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapannā te āgantvā ārocessanti:
What then of your friends and colleagues, relatives and kin who are reborn in a higher realm after doing good things? Will they come back to tell you that they will not recover from their illness, I go to them and say, ‘santi kho, bho, eke samaṇabrāhmaṇā evaṁvādino evaṁdiṭṭhino:

‘Sirs, there are some ascetics and brahmins who have this doctrine and view:

“ye te pāṇātipātā paṭiviratā adinnādānā paṭiviratā kāmesumicchācārā paṭiviratā musāvādā paṭiviratā surāmerayamajjapamādaṭṭhānā paṭiviratā, te kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajjanti devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sahabyatan”ti.
“Those who refrain from killing living creatures and so on are reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm, in the company of the gods of the Thirty-Three.”

Bhavanto kho pāṇātipātā paṭiviratā adinnādānā paṭiviratā kāmesumicchācārā paṭiviratā musāvādā paṭiviratā surāmerayamajjapamādaṭṭhānā paṭiviratā.
You do all these things.

Sace tesaṁ bhavataṁ samaṇabrāhmaṇānaṁ saccaṁ vacanaṁ, bhavanto kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajjissanti, devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sahabyataṁ.
If what those ascetics and brahmins say is true, when your body breaks up, after death, you'll be reborn in the company of the gods of the Thirty-Three.

Sace, bho, kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajjeyyātha devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sahabyataṁ, yena me āgantvā āroceyyātha:
If that happens, sirs, come and tell me that

"itipi atthi paro loko, atthi sattā opapātikā, atthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko"ti.
there is an afterlife.

Te me 'sādhū'ti paṭissutvā neva āgantvā ārocenti, na pana dūtaṁ pahiṇanti.
They agree to this. But they don't come back to tell me, nor do they send a messenger.

Ayampi kho, bho kassapa, pariyāyo, yena me pariyāyena evaṁ hoti:
This is how I prove that

'itipi natthi paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko'"ti.
there's no afterlife."

2.4. Tāvatiṁsadevaupamā

2.4. The Simile of the Gods of the Thirty-Three “Tena hi, rājañña, taññevettha paṭipucchissāmi; yathā te khameyya, tathā naṁ byākareyyāsi.

“Well then, chieftain, I’ll ask you about this in return, and you can answer as you like.

Yaṁ kho pana, rājañña, mānussakaṁ vassasataṁ, devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ eso eko rattindivo, tāya rattiyā tiṁsarattiyo māso, tena māsena dvādasamāsiyo saṁvaccharo, tena saṁvaccharena dibbaṁ vassasahassaṁ devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ āyuppamāṇaṁ.
A hundred human years are equivalent to one day and night for the gods of the Thirty-Three. Thirty such days make a month, and twelve months make a year. The gods of the Thirty Three have a lifespan of a thousand such years.

Ye te mittāmaccā ñātisālohitā pāṇātipātā paṭiviratā adinnādānā paṭiviratā kāmesumicchācārā paṭiviratā musāvādā paṭiviratā surāmerayamajjapamādaṭṭhānā paṭiviratā, te kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapannā devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sahabyataṁ.
Now, as to your friends who are reborn in the company of the gods of the Thirty-Three after doing good things.

Sace pana tesaṁ evaṁ bhavissati:
If they think,

‘yāva mayaṁ dve vā tīṇi vā rattindivā dibbehi pañcahi kāmaguṇehi samappitā samaṅgībhūtā paricārema, atha mayaṁ pāyāsissa rājaññassa gantvā āroceyyāma:
‘First I’ll amuse myself for two or three days, supplied and provided with the five kinds of heavenly sensual stimulation. Then I’ll go back to Pāyāsi and tell him that “itipi atthi paro loko, atthi sattā opapātikā, atthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko”ti.

there is an afterlife.’

Api nu te āgantvā āroceyyuṁ—
Would they come back to tell you that

itipi atthi paro loko, atthi sattā opapātikā, atthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’”ti?
there is an afterlife?”

“No hidaṁ, bho kassapa.
“No, Master Kassapa.

Api hi mayaṁ, bho kassapa, ciraṁ kālaṅkatāpi bhaveyyāma.
For I would be long dead by then.

Ko panetaṁ bhoto kassapassa āroceti:
But Master Kassapa, who has told you

‘atthi devā tāvatiṁsā’ti vā ‘evaṁdīghāyukā devā tāvatiṁsā’ti vā.
that the gods of the Thirty-Three exist, or that they have such a long life span?

Na mayaṁ bhoto kassapassa saddahāma:
I don’t believe you.”

‘atthi devā tāvatiṁsā’ti vā ‘evaṁdīghāyukā devā tāvatiṁsā’ti vā”ti.

2.5. Jaccandhaupamā

2.5. Blind From Birth

“Seyyathāpi, rājañña, jaccandho puriso na passeyya kaṇha—sukkāni rūpāni, na passeyya nīlakāni rūpāni, na passeyya pītakāni rūpāni, na passeyya lohitakāni rūpāni, na passeyya mañjiṭṭhakāni rūpāni, na passeyya samavisamaṁ, na passeyya tārakāni rūpāni, na passeyya candimasūriye.
“Chieftain, suppose there was a person blind from birth. They couldn’t see sights that are dark or bright, or blue, yellow, red, or magenta. They couldn’t see even and uneven ground, or the stars, or the moon and sun.

So evaṁ vadeyya:
They’d say,

‘natthi kaṇhasukkāni rūpāni, natthi kaṇhasukkānaṁ rūpānaṁ dassāvī.
‘There’s no such thing as dark and bright sights, and no-one who sees them.

Natthi nīlakāni rūpāni, natthi nīlakānaṁ rūpānaṁ dassāvī.
There’s no such thing as blue,

Natthi pītakāni rūpāni, natthi pītakānaṁ rūpānaṁ dassāvī.
yellow,

Natthi lohitakāni rūpāni, natthi lohitakānaṁ rūpānaṁ dassāvī.
red,

Natthi mañjiṭṭhakāni rūpāni, natthi mañjiṭṭhakānaṁ rūpānaṁ dassāvī.
magenta,

Natthi samavisamaṁ, natthi samavisamassa dassāvī.
even and uneven ground,

Natthi tārakāni rūpāni, natthi tārakānaṁ rūpānaṁ dassāvī.
stars,

Natthi candimasūriyā, natthi candimasūriyānaṁ dassāvī.
moon and sun, and no-one who sees these things.

Ahametaṁ na jānāmi, ahametaṁ na passāmi, tasmā taṁ natthī’ti.
I don’t know it or see it, therefore it doesn’t exist.’

Sammā nu kho so, rājañña, vadamāno vadeyyā”ti?
Would they be speaking rightly?”

“No hidaṁ, bho kassapa.
“No, Master Kassapa.

Atthi kaṇhasukkāni rūpāni, atthi kaṇhasukkānaṁ rūpānaṁ dassāvī.
There are such things as dark and bright sights, and one who sees them.

Atthi nīlakāni rūpāni, atthi nīlakānaṁ rūpānaṁ dassāvī …pe…
And those other things are real, too, as is the one who sees them.

atthi samavisamaṁ, atthi samavisamassa dassāvī.

Atthi tārakāni rūpāni, atthi tārakānaṁ rūpānaṁ dassāvī.

Atthi candimasūriyā, atthi candimasūriyānaṁ dassāvī.
So it’s not right to say this:

‘Ahametaṁ na jānāmi, ahametaṁ na passāmi, tasmā taṁ natthī’ti.
‘I don’t know it or see it, therefore it doesn’t exist.’”

Na hi so, bho kassapa, sammā vadamāno vadeyyā”ti.

“Evameva kho tvaṁ, rājañña, jaccandhūpamo maññe paṭibhāsi yaṁ maṁ tvaṁ evaṁ vadesi.
“In the same way, chieftain, when you tell me you don’t believe me you seem like the blind man in the simile.

Ko panetaṁ bhoto kassapassa āroceti:

‘atthi devā tāvatiṁsā’ti vā, ‘evaṁdīghāyukā devā tāvatiṁsā’ti vā?

Na mayaṁ bhoto kassapassa saddahāma:

‘atthi devā tāvatiṁsā’ti vā ‘evaṁdīghāyukā devā tāvatiṁsā’ti vā”ti.

“Na kho, rājañña, evaṁ paro loko daṭṭhabbo, yathā tvaṁ maññasi iminā maṁsacakkhunā.
You can’t see the other world the way you think, with the eye of the flesh.

Ye kho te, rājañña, samaṇabrāhmaṇā araññavanapatthāni pantāni senāsanāni paṭisevanti, te tattha appamattā ātāpino pahitattā viharantā dibbacakkhuṁ visodhenti.
There are ascetics and brahmins who live in the wilderness, frequenting remote lodgings in the wilderness and the forest.

Meditating diligent, keen, and resolute, they purify the divine eye, the power of clairvoyance.

Te dibbena cakkhunā visuddhena atikkantamānusakena imañceva lokaṁ passanti parañca satte ca opapātike.
With clairvoyance that is purified and superhuman, they see this world and the other world, and sentient beings who are spontaneously reborn.

Evañca kho, rājañña, paro loko daṭṭhabbo;
That's how to see the other world,

na tveva yathā tvaṁ maññasi iminā maṁsacakkhunā.
not how you think, with the eye of the flesh.

Imināpi kho te, rājañña, pariyāyena evaṁ hotu:
By this method, too, it ought to be proven that

'itipi atthi paro loko, atthi sattā opapātikā, atthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko'"ti.
there is an afterlife."

"Kiñcāpi bhavaṁ kassapo evamāha, atha kho evaṁ me ettha hoti:
"Even though Master Kassapa says this, still I think that

'itipi natthi paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko'"ti.
there's no afterlife."

"Atthi pana, rājañña, pariyāyo …pe…
"Can you prove it?"

atthi, bho kassapa, pariyāyo …pe…
"I can."

yathā kathaṁ viya, rājaññā"ti?
"How, exactly, chieftain?"

“Idhāhaṁ, bho kassapa, passāmi samaṇabrāhmaṇe sīlavante kalyāṇadhamme jīvitukāme amaritukāme sukhakāme dukkhapaṭikūle.
“Well, I see ascetics and brahmins who are ethical, of good character, who want to live and don’t want to die, who want to be happy and recoil from pain.

Tassa mayhaṁ, bho kassapa, evaṁ hoti—
I think to myself,

sace kho ime bhonto samaṇabrāhmaṇā sīlavanto kalyāṇadhammā evaṁ jāneyyuṁ:
‘If those ascetics and brahmins knew that

‘ito no matānaṁ seyyo bhavissatī’ti.
things were going to be better for them after death,

Idānime bhonto samaṇabrāhmaṇā sīlavanto kalyāṇadhammā visaṁ vā khādeyyuṁ, satthaṁ vā āhareyyuṁ, ubbandhitvā vā kālaṁ kareyyuṁ, papāte vā papateyyuṁ.
they’d drink poison, slit their wrists, hang themselves, or throw themselves off a cliff.

Yasmā ca kho ime bhonto samaṇabrāhmaṇā sīlavanto kalyāṇadhammā na evaṁ jānanti:
They mustn’t know that ‘ito no matānaṁ seyyo bhavissatī’ti, tasmā ime bhonto samaṇabrāhmaṇā sīlavanto kalyāṇadhammā jīvitukāmā amaritukāmā sukhakāmā dukkhapaṭikūlā attānaṁ na mārenti.

things are going to be better for them after death. That’s why they are ethical, of good character, wanting to live and not wanting to die, wanting to be happy and recoiling from pain.’

Ayampi kho, bho kassapa, pariyāyo, yena me pariyāyena evaṁ hoti:
This is the method by which I prove that

‘itipi natthi paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’”ti.

there’s no afterlife.”

2.6. Gabbhinīupamā

2.6. The Simile of the Pregnant Woman

“Tena hi, rājañña, upamaṁ te karissāmi.
“Well then, chieftain, I shall give you a simile.

Upamāya m’idhekacce viññū purisā bhāsitassa atthaṁ ājānanti.
For by means of a simile some sensible people understand the meaning of what is said.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, rājañña, aññatarassa brāhmaṇassa dve pajāpatiyo ahesuṁ.
Once upon a time, a certain brahmin had two wives.

Ekissā putto ahosi dasavassuddesiko vā dvādasavassuddesiko vā, ekā gabbhinī upavijaññā.
One had a son ten or twelve years of age, while the other was pregnant and nearing her time.

Atha kho so brāhmaṇo kālamakāsi.
Then the brahmin passed away.

Atha kho so māṇavako mātusapattiṁ etadavoca:
So the youth said to his mother’s co-wife,

‘yamidaṁ, bhoti, dhanaṁ vā dhaññaṁ vā rajataṁ vā jātarūpaṁ vā, sabbaṁ taṁ mayhaṁ;
‘Madam, all the wealth, grain, silver, and gold is mine, natthi tuyhettha kiñci.

and you get nothing.

Pitu me, bhoti, dāyajjaṁ niyyādehī’ti.
Transfer to me my father’s inheritance.’

Evaṁ vutte, sā brāhmaṇī taṁ māṇavakaṁ etadavoca:

But the brahmin lady said,

‘āgamehi tāva, tāta, yāva vijāyāmi.
‘Wait, my dear, until I give birth.

Sace kumārako bhavissati, tassapi ekadeso bhavissati;
If it’s a boy, one portion shall be his.

sace kumārikā bhavissati, sāpi te opabhoggā bhavissatī’ti.
If it’s a girl, she will be your reward.’

Dutiyampi kho so māṇavako mātusapattiṁ etadavoca:
But for a second time,

‘yamidaṁ, bhoti, dhanaṁ vā dhaññaṁ vā rajataṁ vā jātarūpaṁ vā, sabbaṁ taṁ mayhaṁ;

natthi tuyhettha kiñci.

Pitu me, bhoti, dāyajjaṁ niyyādehī’ti.

Dutiyampi kho sā brāhmaṇī taṁ māṇavakaṁ etadavoca:

‘āgamehi tāva, tāta, yāva vijāyāmi.

Sace kumārako bhavissati, tassapi ekadeso bhavissati;

sace kumārikā bhavissati sāpi te opabhoggā bhavissatī’ti.

Tatiyampi kho so māṇavako mātusapattiṁ etadavoca:
and a third time, the youth insisted that the entire inheritance must be his.

‘yamidaṁ, bhoti, dhanaṁ vā dhaññaṁ vā rajataṁ vā jātarūpaṁ vā, sabbaṁ taṁ mayhaṁ;

natthi tuyhettha kiñci.

Pitu me, bhoti, dāyajjaṁ niyyādehī’ti.

Atha kho sā brāhmaṇī satthaṁ gahetvā ovarakaṁ pavisitvā udaraṁ opādesi:

So the brahmin lady took a knife, went to her bedroom, and sliced open her belly, thinking, ‘yāva vijāyāmi yadi vā kumārako yadi vā kumārikā’ti.

‘Until I give birth, whether it’s a boy or a girl!’

Sā attānañceva jīvitañca gabbhañca sāpateyyañca vināsesi.
She destroyed her own life and that of the fetus, as well as any wealth.

Yathā taṁ bālā abyattā anayabyasanaṁ āpannā ayoniso dāyajjaṁ gavesantī, evameva kho tvaṁ, rājañña, bālo abyatto anayabyasanaṁ āpajjissasi ayoniso paralokaṁ gavesanto;
Being foolish and incompetent, she sought an inheritance irrationally and fell to ruin and disaster. In the same way, chieftain, being foolish and incompetent, you’re seeking the other world irrationally and will fall to ruin and disaster, seyyathāpi sā brāhmaṇī bālā abyattā anayabyasanaṁ āpannā ayoniso dāyajjaṁ gavesantī.

just like that brahmin lady.

Na kho, rājañña, samaṇabrāhmaṇā sīlavanto kalyāṇadhammā apakkaṁ paripācenti;
Good ascetics and brahmins don’t force what is unripe to ripen;

api ca paripākaṁ āgamenti.
rather, they wait for it to ripen.

Paṇḍitānaṁ attho hi, rājañña, samaṇabrāhmaṇānaṁ sīlavantānaṁ kalyāṇadhammānaṁ jīvitena.
For the life of clever ascetics and brahmins is beneficial.

Yathā yathā kho, rājañña, samaṇabrāhmaṇā sīlavanto kalyāṇadhammā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ tiṭṭhanti tathā tathā bahuṁ puññaṁ pasavanti, bahujanahitāya ca paṭipajjanti bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānaṁ.

So long as they remain, good ascetics and brahmins make much merit, and act for the welfare and happiness of the people, for the benefit, welfare, and happiness of gods and humans.

Imināpi kho te, rājañña, pariyāyena evaṁ hotu:
By this method, too, it ought to be proven that

‘itipi atthi paro loko, atthi sattā opapātikā, atthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’”ti.
there is an afterlife.”

“Kiñcāpi bhavaṁ kassapo evamāha, atha kho evaṁ me ettha hoti:
“Even though Master Kassapa says this, still I think that ‘itipi natthi paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’”ti.

there’s no afterlife.”

“Atthi pana, rājañña, pariyāyo …pe…
“Can you prove it?”

atthi, bho kassapa, pariyāyo …pe…
“I can.”

yathā kathaṁ viya, rājaññā”ti?
“How, exactly, chieftain?”

“Idha me, bho kassapa, purisā coraṁ āgucāriṁ gahetvā dassenti:
“Suppose they were to arrest a bandit, a criminal and present him to me, saying,

‘ayaṁ te, bhante, coro āgucārī;
‘Sir, this is a bandit, a criminal.

imassa yaṁ icchasi, taṁ daṇḍaṁ paṇehī’ti.

Punish him as you will.’

Tyāhaṁ evaṁ vadāmi:
I say to them,

‘tena hi, bho, imaṁ purisaṁ jīvantaṁyeva kumbhiyā pakkhipitvā mukhaṁ pidahitvā allena cammena onandhitvā allāya mattikāya bahalāvalepanaṁ karitvā uddhanaṁ āropetvā aggiṁ dethā’ti.
‘Well then, sirs, place this man in a pot while he’s still alive. Close up the mouth, bind it up with damp leather, and seal it with a thick coat of damp clay. Then lift it up on a stove and light the fire.’

Te me ‘sādhū’ti paṭissutvā taṁ purisaṁ jīvantaṁyeva kumbhiyā pakkhipitvā mukhaṁ pidahitvā allena cammena onandhitvā allāya mattikāya bahalāvalepanaṁ karitvā uddhanaṁ āropetvā aggiṁ denti.
They agree, and do what I ask.

Yadā mayaṁ jānāma ‘kālaṅkato so puriso’ti, atha naṁ kumbhiṁ oropetvā ubbhinditvā mukhaṁ vivaritvā saṇikaṁ nillokema:
When we know that that man has passed away, we lift down the pot and break it open, uncover the mouth, and slowly peek inside, thinking, ‘appeva nāmassa jīvaṁ nikkhamantaṁ passeyyāmā’ti.

‘Hopefully we’ll see his soul escaping.’

Nevassa mayaṁ jīvaṁ nikkhamantaṁ passāma.
But we don’t see his soul escaping.

Ayampi kho, bho kassapa, pariyāyo, yena me pariyāyena evaṁ hoti:
This is how I prove that

‘itipi natthi paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’”ti.
there’s no afterlife.”

2.7. Supinakaupamā

2.7. The Simile of the Dream

“Tena hi, rājañña, taññevettha paṭipucchissāmi, yathā te khameyya, tathā naṁ byākareyyāsi.
“Well then, chieftain, I’ll ask you about this in return, and you can answer as you like.

Abhijānāsi no tvaṁ, rājañña, divā seyyaṁ upagato supinakaṁ passitā ārāmarāmaṇeyyakaṁ vanarāmaṇeyyakaṁ bhūmirāmaṇeyyakaṁ pokkharaṇīrāmaṇeyyakan”ti?
Do you recall ever having a midday nap and seeing delightful parks, woods, meadows, and lotus ponds in a dream?”

“Abhijānāmahaṁ, bho kassapa, divāseyyaṁ upagato supinakaṁ passitā ārāmarāmaṇeyyakaṁ vanarāmaṇeyyakaṁ bhūmirāmaṇeyyakaṁ pokkharaṇīrāmaṇeyyakan”ti.
“I do, sir.”

“Rakkhanti taṁ tamhi samaye khujjāpi vāmanakāpi velāsikāpi komārikāpī”ti?
“At that time were you guarded by hunchbacks, dwarves, midgets, and younglings?”

“Evaṁ, bho kassapa, rakkhanti maṁ tamhi samaye khujjāpi vāmanakāpi velāsikāpi komārikāpī”ti.
“I was.”

“Api nu tā tuyhaṁ jīvaṁ passanti pavisantaṁ vā nikkhamantaṁ vā”ti?
“But did they see your soul entering or leaving?”

“No hidaṁ, bho kassapa”.
“No they did not.”

“Tā hi nāma, rājañña, tuyhaṁ jīvantassa jīvantiyo jīvaṁ na passissanti pavisantaṁ vā nikkhamantaṁ vā.

“So if they couldn’t even see your soul entering or leaving while you were still alive, Kiṁ pana tvaṁ kālaṅkatassa jīvaṁ passissasi pavisantaṁ vā nikkhamantaṁ vā.

how could you see the soul of a dead man?

Imināpi kho te, rājañña, pariyāyena evaṁ hotu:
By this method, too, it ought to be proven that

‘itipi atthi paro loko, atthi sattā opapātikā, atthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’”ti.
there is an afterlife, there are beings reborn spontaneously, and there is a fruit or result of good and bad deeds.”

“Kiñcāpi bhavaṁ kassapo evamāha, atha kho evaṁ me ettha hoti:

there’s no afterlife.”

“Atthi pana, rājañña, pariyāyo …pe…
“Can you prove it?”

“atthi, bho kassapa, pariyāyo …pe…
“I can.”

yathā kathaṁ viya, rājaññā”ti?
“How, exactly, chieftain?”

“Idha me, bho kassapa, purisā coraṁ āgucāriṁ gahetvā dassenti:
“Suppose they were to arrest a bandit, a criminal and present him to me, saying,

‘ayaṁ te, bhante, coro āgucārī;

2.8. Santattaayoguḷaupamā

2.8. The Simile of the Hot Iron Ball

“Tena hi, rājañña, upamaṁ te karissāmi.
“Well then, chieftain, I shall give you a simile.

Upamāya m’idhekacce viññū purisā bhāsitassa atthaṁ ājānanti.
For by means of a simile some sensible people understand the meaning of what is said.

Seyyathāpi, rājañña, puriso divasaṁ santattaṁ ayoguḷaṁ ādittaṁ sampajjalitaṁ sajotibhūtaṁ tulāya tuleyya.
Suppose a person was to heat an iron ball all day until it was burning, blazing, and glowing, and then they weigh it with scales.

Tamenaṁ aparena samayena sītaṁ nibbutaṁ tulāya tuleyya.

Kadā nu kho so ayoguḷo lahutaro vā hoti mudutaro vā kammaññataro vā, yadā vā āditto sampajjalito sajotibhūto, yadā vā sīto nibbuto”ti?
When would that iron ball be lighter, softer, and more workable—when it’s burning or when it’s cool?”

“Yadā so, bho kassapa, ayoguḷo tejosahagato ca hoti vāyosahagato ca āditto sampajjalito sajotibhūto, tadā lahutaro ca hoti mudutaro ca kammaññataro ca.
“So long as the iron ball is full of heat and air—burning, blazing, and glowing—it’s lighter, softer, and more workable.

Yadā pana so ayoguḷo neva tejosahagato hoti na vāyosahagato sīto nibbuto, tadā garutaro ca hoti patthinnataro ca akammaññataro cā”ti.
But when it lacks heat and air—cooled and extinguished—it’s heavier, stiffer, and less workable.”

“Evameva kho, rājañña, yadāyaṁ kāyo āyusahagato ca hoti usmāsahagato ca viññāṇasahagato ca, tadā lahutaro ca hoti mudutaro ca kammaññataro ca.

2.9. Saṅkhadhamaupamā

2.9. The Simile of the Horn Blower

“Tena hi, rājañña, upamaṁ te karissāmi.
“Well then, chieftain, I shall give you a simile.

Upamāya m’idhekacce viññū purisā bhāsitassa atthaṁ ājānanti.
For by means of a simile some sensible people understand the meaning of what is said.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, rājañña, aññataro saṅkhadhamo saṅkhaṁ ādāya paccantimaṁ janapadaṁ agamāsi.
Once upon a time, a certain horn blower took his horn and traveled to a borderland,

So yena aññataro gāmo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā majjhe gāmassa ṭhito tikkhattuṁ saṅkhaṁ upalāpetvā saṅkhaṁ bhūmiyaṁ nikkhipitvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
where he went to a certain village. Standing in the middle of the village, he sounded his horn three times, then placed it on the ground and sat down to one side.

Atha kho, rājañña, tesaṁ paccantajanapadānaṁ manussānaṁ etadahosi:
Then the people of the borderland thought,

‘ambho kassa nu kho eso saddo evaṁrajanīyo evaṅkamanīyo evaṁmadanīyo evambandhanīyo evaṁmucchanīyo’ti.
‘What is making this sound, so arousing, sensuous, intoxicating, infatuating, and captivating?’

Sannipatitvā taṁ saṅkhadhamaṁ etadavocuṁ:
They gathered around the horn blower and said,

‘ambho, kassa nu kho eso saddo evaṁrajanīyo evaṅkamanīyo evaṁmadanīyo evambandhanīyo evaṁmucchanīyo’ti.
‘Mister, what is making this sound, so arousing, sensuous, intoxicating, infatuating, and captivating?’

‘Eso kho, bho, saṅkho nāma yasseso saddo evaṁrajanīyo evaṅkamanīyo evaṁmadanīyo evambandhanīyo evaṁmucchanīyo’ti.
‘The sound is made by this, which is called a horn.’

Te taṁ saṅkhaṁ uttānaṁ nipātesuṁ:
They laid that horn on its back, saying,

‘vadehi, bho saṅkha, vadehi, bho saṅkhā’ti.
‘Speak, good horn! Speak, good horn!’

Neva so saṅkho saddamakāsi.
But still the horn made no sound.

Te taṁ saṅkhaṁ avakujjaṁ nipātesuṁ, passena nipātesuṁ, dutiyena passena nipātesuṁ, uddhaṁ ṭhapesuṁ, omuddhakaṁ ṭhapesuṁ, pāṇinā ākoṭesuṁ, leḍḍunā ākoṭesuṁ, daṇḍena ākoṭesuṁ, satthena ākoṭesuṁ, odhuniṁsu sandhuniṁsu niddhuniṁsu:
Then they lay the horn bent over, they lay it on its side, they lay it on its other side; they stood it upright, they stood it upside down; they struck it with fists, stones, rods, and swords; and they gave it a good shake, saying,

‘vadehi, bho saṅkha, vadehi, bho saṅkhā’ti.
‘Speak, good horn! Speak, good horn!’

Neva so saṅkho saddamakāsi.
But still the horn made no sound.

Atha kho, rājañña, tassa saṅkhadhamassa etadahosi:
So the horn blower thought,

‘yāva bālā ime paccantajanapadā manussā, kathañhi nāma ayoniso saṅkhasaddaṁ gavesissantī’ti.
‘How foolish are these borderland folk! For how can they seek the sound of a horn so irrationally?’

Tesaṁ pekkhamānānaṁ saṅkhaṁ gahetvā tikkhattuṁ saṅkhaṁ upalāpetvā saṅkhaṁ ādāya pakkāmi.
And as they looked on, he picked up the horn, sounded it three times, and took it away with him.

Atha kho, rājañña, tesaṁ paccantajanapadānaṁ manussānaṁ etadahosi:
Then the people of the borderland thought,

‘yadā kira, bho, ayaṁ saṅkho nāma purisasahagato ca hoti vāyāmasahagato ca vāyusahagato ca, tadāyaṁ saṅkho saddaṁ karoti, yadā panāyaṁ saṅkho neva purisasahagato hoti na vāyāmasahagato na vāyusahagato, nāyaṁ saṅkho saddaṁ karotī’ti.
‘So, it seems, when what is called a horn is accompanied by a person, effort, and wind, it makes a sound. But when these things are absent it makes no sound.’

Evameva kho, rājañña, yadāyaṁ kāyo āyusahagato ca hoti usmāsahagato ca viññāṇasahagato ca, tadā abhikkamatipi paṭikkamatipi tiṭṭhatipi nisīdatipi seyyampi kappeti, cakkhunāpi rūpaṁ passati, sotenapi saddaṁ suṇāti, ghānenapi gandhaṁ ghāyati, jivhāyapi rasaṁ sāyati, kāyenapi phoṭṭhabbaṁ phusati, manasāpi dhammaṁ vijānāti.

In the same way, so long as this body is full of life and warmth and consciousness it walks back and forth, stands, sits, and lies down. It sees sights with the eye, hears sounds with the ear, smells odors with the nose, tastes flavors with the tongue, feels touches with the body, and knows thoughts with the mind.

Yadā panāyaṁ kāyo neva āyusahagato hoti, na usmāsahagato, na viññāṇasahagato, tadā neva abhikkamati na paṭikkamati na tiṭṭhati na nisīdati na seyyaṁ kappeti, cakkhunāpi rūpaṁ na passati, sotenapi saddaṁ na suṇāti, ghānenapi gandhaṁ na ghāyati, jivhāyapi rasaṁ na sāyati, kāyenapi phoṭṭhabbaṁ na phusati, manasāpi dhammaṁ na vijānāti.
But when it lacks life and warmth and consciousness it does none of these things.

Imināpi kho te, rājañña, pariyāyena evaṁ hotu:
By this method, too, it ought to be proven that

‘itipi atthi paro loko, atthi sattā opapātikā, atthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’”ti.
there is an afterlife.”

“Kiñcāpi bhavaṁ kassapo evamāha, atha kho evaṁ me ettha hoti:
“Even though Master Kassapa says this, still I think that ‘itipi natthi paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’”ti.

there’s no afterlife.”

“Atthi pana, rājañña, pariyāyo …pe…
“Can you prove it?”

atthi, bho kassapa, pariyāyo …pe…

“I can.”

yathā kathaṁ viya, rājañña”ti?
“How, exactly, chieftain?”

“Idha me, bho kassapa, purisā coraṁ āgucāriṁ gahetvā dassenti:

Tyāhaṁ evaṁ vadāmi:
I say to them,

‘tena hi, bho, imassa purisassa chaviṁ chindatha, appeva nāmassa jīvaṁ passeyyāmā’ti.
‘Well then, sirs, cut open this man’s outer skin. Hopefully we might see his soul.’

Te tassa purisassa chaviṁ chindanti.
They cut open his outer skin,

Nevassa mayaṁ jīvaṁ passāma.
but we see no soul.

Tyāhaṁ evaṁ vadāmi:
I say to them,

‘tena hi, bho, imassa purisassa cammaṁ chindatha, maṁsaṁ chindatha, nhāruṁ chindatha, aṭṭhiṁ chindatha, aṭṭhimiñjaṁ chindatha, appeva nāmassa jīvaṁ passeyyāmā’ti.
‘Well then, sirs, cut open his inner skin, flesh, sinews, bones, or marrow. Hopefully we’ll see his soul.’

Te tassa purisassa aṭṭhimiñjaṁ chindanti, nevassa mayaṁ jīvaṁ passeyyāma.
They do so, but we see no soul.

Ayampi kho, bho kassapa, pariyāyo, yena me pariyāyena evaṁ hoti:
This is how I prove that

‘itipi natthi paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’”ti.
there’s no afterlife.”

2.10. Aggikajaṭilaupamā

2.10. The Simile of the Fire-Worshiping Matted-Hair Ascetic

“Tena hi, rājañña, upamaṁ te karissāmi.
“Well then, chieftain, I shall give you a simile.

Upamāya m’idhekacce viññū purisā bhāsitassa atthaṁ ājānanti.
For by means of a simile some sensible people understand the meaning of what is said.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, rājañña, aññataro aggiko jaṭilo araññāyatane paṇṇakuṭiyā sammati.
Once upon a time, a certain fire-worshiping matted-hair ascetic settled in a leaf hut in a wilderness region.

Atha kho, rājañña, aññataro janapade sattho vuṭṭhāsi.
Then a caravan came out from a certain country.

Atha kho so sattho tassa aggikassa jaṭilassa assamassa sāmantā ekarattiṁ vasitvā pakkāmi.
It stayed for one night not far from that ascetic’s hermitage, and then moved on.

Atha kho, rājañña, tassa aggikassa jaṭilassa etadahosi:
The ascetic thought,

‘yannūnāhaṁ yena so satthavāso tenupasaṅkameyyaṁ, appeva nāmettha kiñci upakaraṇaṁ adhigaccheyyan’ti.
‘Why don’t I go to that caravan’s campsite? Hopefully I’ll find something useful there.’

Atha kho so aggiko jaṭilo kālasseva vuṭṭhāya yena so satthavāso tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā addasa tasmiṁ satthavāse daharaṁ kumāraṁ mandaṁ uttānaseyyakaṁ chaḍḍitaṁ.
So he went, and he saw a little baby boy abandoned there.

Disvānassa etadahosi:
When he saw this he thought,

‘na kho me taṁ patirūpaṁ yaṁ me pekkhamānassa manussabhūto kālaṅkareyya;
‘It’s not proper for me to look on while a human being dies.

yannūnāhaṁ imaṁ dārakaṁ assamaṁ netvā āpādeyyaṁ poseyyaṁ vaḍḍheyyan’ti.
Why don’t I bring this boy back to my hermitage, nurse him, nourish him, and raise him?’

Atha kho so aggiko jaṭilo taṁ dārakaṁ assamaṁ netvā āpādesi posesi vaḍḍhesi.
So that’s what he did.

Yadā so dārako dasavassuddesiko vā hoti dvādasavassuddesiko vā, atha kho tassa aggikassa jaṭilassa janapade kañcideva karaṇīyaṁ uppajji.
When the boy was ten or twelve years old, the ascetic had some business come up in the country.

Atha kho so aggiko jaṭilo taṁ dārakaṁ etadavoca:
So he said to the boy,

‘icchāmahaṁ, tāta, janapadaṁ gantuṁ;
‘My dear, I wish to go to the country.

aggiṁ, tāta, paricareyyāsi.
Serve the sacred flame.

Mā ca te aggi nibbāyi.
Do not extinguish it.

Sace ca te aggi nibbāyeyya, ayaṁ vāsī imāni kaṭṭhāni idaṁ araṇisahitaṁ, aggiṁ nibbattetvā aggiṁ paricareyyāsī’ti.
But if you should extinguish it, here is the hatchet, the firewood, and the bundle of drill-sticks. Light the fire and serve it.’

Atha kho so aggiko jaṭilo taṁ dārakaṁ evaṁ anusāsitvā janapadaṁ agamāsi.
And having instructed the boy, the ascetic went to the country.

Tassa khiḍḍāpasutassa aggi nibbāyi.
But the boy was so engrossed in his play, the fire went out.

Atha kho tassa dārakassa etadahosi:
He thought,

‘pitā kho maṁ evaṁ avaca:
‘My father told me to serve the sacred flame.

“aggiṁ, tāta, paricareyyāsi.

Mā ca te aggi nibbāyi.

Sace ca te aggi nibbāyeyya, ayaṁ vāsī imāni kaṭṭhāni idaṁ araṇisahitaṁ, aggiṁ nibbattetvā aggiṁ paricareyyāsī”ti.

Yannūnāhaṁ aggiṁ nibbattetvā aggiṁ paricareyyan’ti.
Why don’t I light it again and serve it?’

Atha kho so dārako araṇisahitaṁ vāsiyā tacchi:
So he chopped the bundle of drill-sticks with the hatchet, thinking, ‘appeva nāma aggiṁ adhigaccheyyan’ti.

‘Hopefully I’ll get a fire!’

Neva so aggiṁ adhigacchi.
But he still got no fire.

Araṇisahitaṁ dvidhā phālesi, tidhā phālesi, catudhā phālesi, pañcadhā phālesi, dasadhā phālesi, satadhā phālesi, sakalikaṁ sakalikaṁ akāsi, sakalikaṁ sakalikaṁ karitvā udukkhale koṭṭesi, udukkhale koṭṭetvā mahāvāte opuni:

He split the bundle of drill-sticks into two, three, four, five, ten, or a hundred parts. He chopped them into splinters, pounded them in a mortar, and swept them away in a strong wind, thinking, ‘appeva nāma aggiṁ adhigaccheyyan’ti.

‘Hopefully I’ll get a fire!’

Neva so aggiṁ adhigacchi.
But he still got no fire.

Atha kho so aggiko jaṭilo janapade taṁ karaṇīyaṁ tīretvā yena sako assamo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā taṁ dārakaṁ etadavoca:
Then the matted-hair ascetic, having concluded his business in the country, returned to his own hermitage, and said to the boy, ‘kacci te, tāta, aggi na nibbuto’ti?

‘I trust, my dear, that the fire didn’t go out?’

‘Idha me, tāta, khiḍḍāpasutassa aggi nibbāyi.
And the boy told him what had happened.

Tassa me etadahosi:

“pitā kho maṁ evaṁ avaca aggiṁ, tāta, paricareyyāsi.

Mā ca te, tāta, aggi nibbāyi.

Sace ca te aggi nibbāyeyya, ayaṁ vāsī imāni kaṭṭhāni idaṁ araṇisahitaṁ, aggiṁ nibbattetvā aggiṁ paricareyyāsīti.

Yannūnāhaṁ aggiṁ nibbattetvā aggiṁ paricareyyan”ti.

Atha khvāhaṁ, tāta, araṇisahitaṁ vāsiyā tacchiṁ:

“appeva nāma aggiṁ adhigaccheyyan”ti.

Nevāhaṁ aggiṁ adhigacchiṁ.

Araṇisahitaṁ dvidhā phālesiṁ, tidhā phālesiṁ, catudhā phālesiṁ, pañcadhā phālesiṁ, dasadhā phālesiṁ, satadhā phālesiṁ, sakalikaṁ sakalikaṁ akāsiṁ, sakalikaṁ sakalikaṁ karitvā udukkhale koṭṭesiṁ, udukkhale koṭṭetvā mahāvāte opuniṁ:

“appeva nāma aggiṁ adhigaccheyyan”ti.

Nevāhaṁ aggiṁ adhigacchin’ti.

Atha kho tassa aggikassa jaṭilassa etadahosi:
Then the ascetic thought,

‘yāva bālo ayaṁ dārako abyatto, kathañhi nāma ayoniso aggiṁ gavesissatī’ti.
‘How foolish is this boy, how incompetent! For how can he seek a fire so irrationally?’

Tassa pekkhamānassa araṇisahitaṁ gahetvā aggiṁ nibbattetvā taṁ dārakaṁ etadavoca:
So while the boy looked on, he took a bundle of fire-sticks, lit the fire, and said, ‘evaṁ kho, tāta, aggi nibbattetabbo.

‘Dear boy, this is how to light a fire.

Na tveva yathā tvaṁ bālo abyatto ayoniso aggiṁ gavesī’ti.
Not the foolish and incompetent way you sought it so irrationally.’

Evameva kho tvaṁ, rājañña, bālo abyatto ayoniso paralokaṁ gavesissasi.
In the same way, chieftain, being foolish and incompetent, you seek the other world irrationally.

Paṭinissajjetaṁ, rājañña, pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ; paṭinissajjetaṁ, rājañña, pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ.
Let go of this harmful misconception, chieftain, let go of it!

Mā te ahosi dīgharattaṁ ahitāya dukkhāyā”ti.
Don’t create lasting harm and suffering for yourself!”

“Kiñcāpi bhavaṁ kassapo evamāha, atha kho nevāhaṁ sakkomi idaṁ pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ paṭinissajjituṁ.
“Even though Master Kassapa says this, still I’m not able to let go of that harmful misconception.

Rājāpi maṁ pasenadi kosalo jānāti tirorājānopi:
King Pasenadi of Kosala knows my views, and so do foreign kings.

2.11. Dvesatthavāhaupamā

2.11. The Simile of the Two Caravan Leaders

“Tena hi, rājañña, upamaṁ te karissāmi.
“Well then, chieftain, I shall give you a simile.

Upamāya m’idhekacce viññū purisā bhāsitassa atthaṁ ājānanti.
For by means of a simile some sensible people understand the meaning of what is said.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, rājañña, mahāsakaṭasattho sakaṭasahassaṁ puratthimā janapadā pacchimaṁ janapadaṁ agamāsi.
Once upon a time, a large caravan of a thousand wagons traveled from a country in the east to the west.

So yena yena gacchi, khippaṁyeva pariyādiyati tiṇakaṭṭhodakaṁ haritakapaṇṇaṁ.
Wherever they went they quickly used up the grass, wood, water, and the green foliage.

Tasmiṁ kho pana satthe dve satthavāhā ahesuṁ eko pañcannaṁ sakaṭasatānaṁ, eko pañcannaṁ sakaṭasatānaṁ.
Now, that caravan had two leaders, each in charge of five hundred wagons.

Atha kho tesaṁ satthavāhānaṁ etadahosi:
They thought,

‘ayaṁ kho mahāsakaṭasattho sakaṭasahassaṁ;
‘This is a large caravan of a thousand wagons.

te mayaṁ yena yena gacchāma, khippameva pariyādiyati tiṇakaṭṭhodakaṁ haritakapaṇṇaṁ.
Wherever we go we quickly use up the grass, wood, water, and the green foliage.

Yannūna mayaṁ imaṁ satthaṁ dvidhā vibhajeyyāma—
Why don’t we split the caravan in two halves?’

ekato pañca sakaṭasatāni ekato pañca sakaṭasatānī’ti.

Te taṁ satthaṁ dvidhā vibhajiṁsu ekato pañca sakaṭasatāni, ekato pañca sakaṭasatāni.
So that’s what they did.

Eko satthavāho bahuṁ tiṇañca kaṭṭhañca udakañca āropetvā satthaṁ payāpesi.
One caravan leader, having prepared much grass, wood, and water, started the caravan.

Dvīhatīhapayāto kho pana so sattho addasa purisaṁ kāḷaṁ lohitakkhaṁ sannaddhakalāpaṁ kumudamāliṁ allavatthaṁ allakesaṁ kaddamamakkhitehi cakkehi bhadrena rathena paṭipathaṁ āgacchantaṁ, disvā etadavoca:

After two or three days’ journey he saw a dark man with red eyes coming the other way in a donkey cart with muddy wheels. He was armored with a quiver and wreathed with yellow lotus, his clothes and hair all wet. Seeing him, he said, ‘kuto, bho, āgacchasī’ti?

‘Sir, where do you come from?’

‘Amukamhā janapadā’ti.
‘From such and such a country.’

‘Kuhiṁ gamissasī’ti?
‘And where are you going?’

‘Amukaṁ nāma janapadan’ti.
‘To the country named so and so.’

‘Kacci, bho, purato kantāre mahāmegho abhippavuṭṭho’ti?
‘But has there been much rain in the desert up ahead?’

‘Evaṁ, bho, purato kantāre mahāmegho abhippavuṭṭho, āsittodakāni vaṭumāni, bahu tiṇañca kaṭṭhañca udakañca.
‘Indeed there has, sir. The paths are sprinkled with water, and there is much grass, wood, and water.

Chaḍḍetha, bho, purāṇāni tiṇāni kaṭṭhāni udakāni, lahubhārehi sakaṭehi sīghaṁ sīghaṁ gacchatha, mā yoggāni kilamitthā’ti.
Toss out your grass, wood, and water. Your wagons will move swiftly when lightly-laden, so don’t tire your draught teams.’

Atha kho so satthavāho satthike āmantesi:
So the caravan leader addressed his drivers,

‘ayaṁ, bho, puriso evamāha:
‘This man says that

“purato kantāre mahāmegho abhippavuṭṭho, āsittodakāni vaṭumāni, bahu tiṇañca kaṭṭhañca udakañca.
there has been much rain in the desert up ahead.

Chaḍḍetha, bho, purāṇāni tiṇāni kaṭṭhāni udakāni, lahubhārehi sakaṭehi sīghaṁ sīghaṁ gacchatha, mā yoggāni kilamitthā”ti.
He advises us to toss out the grass, wood, and water. The wagons will move swiftly when lightly-laden, and won’t tire our draught teams.

Chaḍḍetha, bho, purāṇāni tiṇāni kaṭṭhāni udakāni, lahubhārehi sakaṭehi satthaṁ payāpethā’ti.
So let’s toss out the grass, wood, and water and restart the caravan with lightly-laden wagons.’

‘Evaṁ, bho’ti kho te satthikā tassa satthavāhassa paṭissutvā chaḍḍetvā purāṇāni tiṇāni kaṭṭhāni udakāni lahubhārehi sakaṭehi satthaṁ payāpesuṁ.
‘Yes, sir,’ the drivers replied, and that’s what they did.

Te paṭhamepi satthavāse na addasaṁsu tiṇaṁ vā kaṭṭhaṁ vā udakaṁ vā.
But in the caravan’s first campsite they saw no grass, wood, or water.

And all fell to ruin and disaster.

Ye ca tasmiṁ satthe ahesuṁ manussā vā pasū vā, sabbe so yakkho amanusso bhakkhesi.
And the men and beasts in that caravan were all devoured by that non-human spirit.

Aṭṭhikāneva sesāni.
Only their bones remained.

Yadā aññāsi dutiyo satthavāho:
Now, when the second caravan leader knew that ‘bahunikkhanto kho, bho, dāni so sattho’ti bahuṁ tiṇañca kaṭṭhañca udakañca āropetvā satthaṁ payāpesi.

the first caravan was well underway, he prepared much grass, wood, and water and started the caravan.

And they saw the other caravan that had come to ruin.

Ye ca tasmiṁ satthepi ahesuṁ manussā vā pasū vā, tesañca aṭṭhikāneva addasaṁsu tena yakkhena amanussena bhakkhitānaṁ.
And they saw the bones of the men and beasts who had been devoured by that non-human spirit.

Atha kho so satthavāho satthike āmantesi:
So the caravan leader addressed his drivers,

‘ayaṁ kho, bho, sattho anayabyasanaṁ āpanno, yathā taṁ tena bālena satthavāhena pariṇāyakena.
‘This caravan came to ruin, as happens when guided by a foolish caravan leader.

Tena hi, bho, yānamhākaṁ satthe appasārāni paṇiyāni, tāni chaḍḍetvā, yāni imasmiṁ satthe mahāsārāni paṇiyāni, tāni ādiyathā’ti.
Well then, sirs, toss out any of our merchandise that’s of little value, and take what’s valuable from this caravan.’

‘Evaṁ, bho’ti kho te satthikā tassa satthavāhassa paṭissutvā yāni sakasmiṁ satthe appasārāni paṇiyāni, tāni chaḍḍetvā yāni tasmiṁ satthe mahāsārāni paṇiyāni, tāni ādiyitvā sotthinā taṁ kantāraṁ nittariṁsu, yathā taṁ paṇḍitena satthavāhena pariṇāyakena.
‘Yes, sir’ replied the drivers, and that’s what they did. They crossed over the desert safely, as happens when guided by an astute caravan leader.

Evameva kho tvaṁ, rājañña, bālo abyatto anayabyasanaṁ āpajjissasi ayoniso paralokaṁ gavesanto, seyyathāpi so purimo satthavāho.
In the same way, chieftain, being foolish and incompetent, you will come to ruin seeking the other world irrationally, like the first caravan leader.

Yepi tava sotabbaṁ saddhātabbaṁ maññissanti, tepi anayabyasanaṁ āpajjissanti, seyyathāpi te satthikā.
And those who think you’re worth listening to and trusting will also come to ruin, like the drivers.

Paṭinissajjetaṁ, rājañña, pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ; paṭinissajjetaṁ, rājañña, pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ.
Let go of this harmful misconception, chieftain, let go of it!

Mā te ahosi dīgharattaṁ ahitāya dukkhāyā”ti.
Don’t create lasting harm and suffering for yourself!”

“Kiñcāpi bhavaṁ kassapo evamāha, atha kho nevāhaṁ sakkomi idaṁ pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ paṭinissajjituṁ.

2.12. Gūthabhārikaupamā

2.12. The Simile of the Dung-Carrier

“Tena hi, rājañña, upamaṁ te karissāmi.
“Well then, chieftain, I shall give you a simile.

For by means of a simile some sensible people understand the meaning of what is said.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, rājañña, aññataro sūkaraposako puriso sakamhā gāmā aññaṁ gāmaṁ agamāsi.
Once upon a time, a certain swineherd went from his own village to another village.

Tattha addasa pahūtaṁ sukkhagūthaṁ chaḍḍitaṁ.
There he saw a large pile of dry dung abandoned.

Disvānassa etadahosi:
He thought,

‘ayaṁ kho pahūto sukkhagūtho chaḍḍito, mama ca sūkarabhattaṁ;
‘This pile of dry dung can serve as food for my pigs.

yannūnāhaṁ ito sukkhagūthaṁ hareyyan’ti.
Why don’t I carry it off?’

So uttarāsaṅgaṁ pattharitvā pahūtaṁ sukkhagūthaṁ ākiritvā bhaṇḍikaṁ bandhitvā sīse ubbāhetvā agamāsi.
So he spread out his upper robe, shoveled the dry dung onto it, tied it up into a bundle, lifted it on to his head, and went on his way.

Tassa antarāmagge mahāakālamegho pāvassi.
While on his way a large sudden storm poured down.

So uggharantaṁ paggharantaṁ yāva agganakhā gūthena makkhito gūthabhāraṁ ādāya agamāsi.
Smeared with leaking, oozing dung down to his fingernails, he kept on carrying the load of dung.

Tamenaṁ manussā disvā evamāhaṁsu:
When people saw him they said,

‘kacci no tvaṁ, bhaṇe, ummatto, kacci viceto, kathañhi nāma uggharantaṁ paggharantaṁ yāva agganakhā gūthena makkhito gūthabhāraṁ harissasī’ti.

‘Have you gone mad, sir? Have you lost your mind? For how can you, smeared with leaking, oozing dung down to your fingernails, keep on carrying that load of dung?’

‘Tumhe khvettha, bhaṇe, ummattā, tumhe vicetā, tathā hi pana me sūkarabhattan’ti.
‘You’re the mad ones, sirs! You’re the ones who’ve lost your minds! For this will serve as food for my pigs.’

Evameva kho tvaṁ, rājañña, gūthabhārikūpamo maññe paṭibhāsi.

2.14. Sāṇabhārikaupamā

2.14. The Simile of the Man Who Carried Hemp

“Tena hi, rājañña, upamaṁ te karissāmi,
“Well then, chieftain, I shall give you a simile.

upamāya m’idhekacce viññū purisā bhāsitassa atthaṁ ājānanti.
For by means of a simile some sensible people understand the meaning of what is said.

Bhūtapubbaṁ, rājañña, aññataro janapado vuṭṭhāsi.
Once upon a time, the inhabitants of a certain country emigrated.

Atha kho sahāyako sahāyakaṁ āmantesi:
Then one friend said to another,

‘āyāma, samma, yena so janapado tenupasaṅkamissāma, appeva nāmettha kiñci dhanaṁ adhigaccheyyāmā’ti.
‘Come, my friend, let’s go to that country. Hopefully we’ll get some riches there!’

‘Evaṁ, sammā’ti kho sahāyako sahāyakassa paccassosi.
‘Yes, my friend,’ the other replied.

Te yena so janapado, yena aññataraṁ gāmapaṭṭaṁ tenupasaṅkamiṁsu, tattha addasaṁsu pahūtaṁ sāṇaṁ chaḍḍitaṁ, disvā sahāyako sahāyakaṁ āmantesi:
They went to that country, and to a certain place in a village. There they saw a pile of abandoned sunn hemp. Seeing it, one friend said to the other, ‘idaṁ kho, samma, pahūtaṁ sāṇaṁ chaḍḍitaṁ, tena hi, samma, tvañca sāṇabhāraṁ bandha, ahañca sāṇabhāraṁ bandhissāmi, ubho sāṇabhāraṁ ādāya gamissāmā’ti.

‘This is a pile of abandoned sunn hemp. Well then, my friend, you make up a bundle of hemp, and I’ll make one too. Let’s both take a bundle of hemp and go on.’

‘Evaṁ, sammā’ti kho sahāyako sahāyakassa paṭissutvā sāṇabhāraṁ bandhitvā te ubho sāṇabhāraṁ ādāya yena aññataraṁ gāmapaṭṭaṁ tenupasaṅkamiṁsu.
‘Yes, my friend,’ he said. Carrying their bundles of hemp they went to another place in the village.

Tattha addasaṁsu pahūtaṁ sāṇasuttaṁ chaḍḍitaṁ, disvā sahāyako sahāyakaṁ āmantesi:
There they saw much sunn hemp thread abandoned. Seeing it, one friend said to the other, pahūtaṁ suvaṇṇaṁ chaḍḍitaṁ, disvā sahāyako sahāyakaṁ āmantesi:

and gold abandoned. Seeing it, one friend said to the other,

‘yassa kho, samma, atthāya iccheyyāma sāṇaṁ vā sāṇasuttaṁ vā sāṇiyo vā khomaṁ vā khomasuttaṁ vā khomadussaṁ vā kappāsaṁ vā kappāsikasuttaṁ vā kappāsikadussaṁ vā ayaṁ vā lohaṁ vā tipuṁ vā sīsaṁ vā sajjhaṁ vā, idaṁ pahūtaṁ suvaṇṇaṁ chaḍḍitaṁ.
‘This pile of gold is just what we wanted all those other things for!

Tena hi, samma, tvañca sāṇabhāraṁ chaḍḍehi, ahañca sajjhabhāraṁ chaḍḍessāmi, ubho suvaṇṇabhāraṁ ādāya gamissāmā’ti.
Well then, my friend, let’s abandon our bundles, and both take a bundle of gold and go on.’

‘Ayaṁ kho me, samma, sāṇabhāro dūrābhato ca susannaddho ca, alaṁ me tvaṁ pajānāhī’ti.
‘I’ve already carried this bundle of hemp a long way, and it’s well tied up. It’s good enough for me, you understand.’

Atha kho so sahāyako sajjhabhāraṁ chaḍḍetvā suvaṇṇabhāraṁ ādiyi.
So one friend abandoned their bundle of silver and picked up a bundle of gold.

Te yena sako gāmo tenupasaṅkamiṁsu.
Then they returned to their own village.

Tattha yo so sahāyako sāṇabhāraṁ ādāya agamāsi, tassa neva mātāpitaro abhinandiṁsu, na puttadārā abhinandiṁsu, na mittāmaccā abhinandiṁsu, na ca tatonidānaṁ sukhaṁ somanassaṁ adhigacchi.

When one friend returned with a bundle of sunn hemp, they didn’t please their parents, their partners and children, or their friends and colleagues. And they got no pleasure and happiness on that account.

Yo pana so sahāyako suvaṇṇabhāraṁ ādāya agamāsi, tassa mātāpitaropi abhinandiṁsu, puttadārāpi abhinandiṁsu, mittāmaccāpi abhinandiṁsu, tatonidānañca sukhaṁ somanassaṁ adhigacchi.
But when the other friend returned with a bundle of gold, they pleased their parents, their partners and children, and their friends and colleagues. And they got much pleasure and happiness on that account.

Evameva kho tvaṁ, rājañña, sāṇabhārikūpamo maññe paṭibhāsi.
In the same way, chieftain, you seem like the hemp-carrier in the simile.

Paṭinissajjetaṁ, rājañña, pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ; paṭinissajjetaṁ, rājañña, pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ.
Let go of this harmful misconception, chieftain, let go of it!

Mā te ahosi dīgharattaṁ ahitāya dukkhāyā”ti.
Don’t create lasting harm and suffering for yourself!”

3. Going for Refuge

“Purimeneva ahaṁ opammena bhoto kassapassa attamano abhiraddho.
“I was delighted and satisfied with your very first simile, Master Kassapa!

Api cāhaṁ imāni vicitrāni pañhāpaṭibhānāni sotukāmo evāhaṁ bhavantaṁ kassapaṁ paccanīkaṁ kātabbaṁ amaññissaṁ.

Nevertheless, I wanted to hear your various solutions to the problem, so I thought I’d oppose you in this way.

Abhikkantaṁ, bho kassapa, abhikkantaṁ, bho kassapa.
Excellent, Master Kassapa! Excellent!

Seyyathāpi, bho kassapa, nikkujjitaṁ vā ukkujjeyya, paṭicchannaṁ vā vivareyya, mūḷhassa vā maggaṁ ācikkheyya, andhakāre vā telapajjotaṁ dhāreyya: ‘cakkhumanto rūpāni dakkhantī’ti; evamevaṁ bhotā kassapena anekapariyāyena dhammo pakāsito.
As if he were righting the overturned, or revealing the hidden, or pointing out the path to the lost, or lighting a lamp in the dark so people with good eyes can see what’s there, Master Kassapa has made the teaching clear in many ways.

Esāhaṁ, bho kassapa, taṁ bhavantaṁ gotamaṁ saraṇaṁ gacchāmi, dhammañca, bhikkhusaṅghañca.
I go for refuge to Master Gotama, to the teaching, and to the mendicant Saṅgha.

From this day forth, may Master Kassapa remember me as a lay follower who has gone for refuge for life.

Master Kassapa, I wish to perform a great sacrifice. Please instruct me so it will be for my lasting welfare and happiness.

5. Uttaramāṇavavatthu

5. On the Brahmin Student Uttara

Atha kho pāyāsi rājañño dānaṁ paṭṭhapesi samaṇabrāhmaṇakapaṇaddhikavaṇibbakayācakānaṁ.

Then the chieftain Pāyāsi set up an offering for ascetics and brahmins, for paupers, vagrants, travelers, and beggars.

Tasmiṁ kho pana dāne evarūpaṁ bhojanaṁ dīyati kaṇājakaṁ bilaṅgadutiyaṁ, dhorakāni ca vatthāni guḷavālakāni.
At that offering such food as rough gruel with pickles was given, and heavy clothes with ball-tails.

Tasmiṁ kho pana dāne uttaro nāma māṇavo vāvaṭo ahosi.
Now, it was a brahmin student named Uttara who organized that offering.

So dānaṁ datvā evaṁ anuddisati:
When the offering was over he referred to it like this,

“imināhaṁ dānena pāyāsiṁ rājaññameva imasmiṁ loke samāgacchiṁ, mā parasmin”ti.
“Through this offering may I be together with the chieftain Pāyāsi in this world, but not in the next.”

Assosi kho pāyāsi rājañño:
Pāyāsi heard of this,

“uttaro kira māṇavo dānaṁ datvā evaṁ anuddisati:

‘imināhaṁ dānena pāyāsiṁ rājaññameva imasmiṁ loke samāgacchiṁ, mā parasmin’”ti.

Atha kho pāyāsi rājañño uttaraṁ māṇavaṁ āmantāpetvā etadavoca:
so he summoned Uttara and said,

“saccaṁ kira tvaṁ, tāta uttara, dānaṁ datvā evaṁ anuddisasi:
“Is it really true, dear Uttara, that you referred to the offering in this way?”

‘imināhaṁ dānena pāyāsiṁ rājaññameva imasmiṁ loke samāgacchiṁ, mā parasmin’”ti?

“Evaṁ, bho”.
“Yes, sir.”

“Kissa pana tvaṁ, tāta uttara, dānaṁ datvā evaṁ anuddisasi:
“But why?

‘imināhaṁ dānena pāyāsiṁ rājaññameva imasmiṁ loke samāgacchiṁ, mā parasmin’ti?

Nanu mayaṁ, tāta uttara, puññatthikā dānasseva phalaṁ pāṭikaṅkhino”ti?
Don’t we who seek merit expect some result from the offering?”

“Bhoto kho dāne evarūpaṁ bhojanaṁ dīyati kaṇājakaṁ bilaṅgadutiyaṁ, yaṁ bhavaṁ pādāpi na iccheyya samphusituṁ, kuto bhuñjituṁ, dhorakāni ca vatthāni guḷavālakāni, yāni bhavaṁ pādāpi na iccheyya samphusituṁ, kuto paridahituṁ.
“At your offering such food as rough gruel with pickles was given, which you wouldn’t even want to touch with your foot, much less eat. And also heavy clothes with ball-tails, which you also wouldn’t want to touch with your foot, much less wear.

Bhavaṁ kho panamhākaṁ piyo manāpo, kathaṁ mayaṁ manāpaṁ amanāpena saṁyojemā”ti?
Sir, you’re dear and beloved to me. But how can I reconcile one so dear with something so disagreeable?”

“Tena hi tvaṁ, tāta uttara, yādisāhaṁ bhojanaṁ bhuñjāmi, tādisaṁ bhojanaṁ paṭṭhapehi.
“Well then, dear Uttara, set up an offering with the same kind of food that I eat, Yādisāni cāhaṁ vatthāni paridahāmi, tādisāni ca vatthāni paṭṭhapehī”ti.

and the same kind of clothes that I wear.”

“Evaṁ, bho”ti kho uttaro māṇavo pāyāsissa rājaññassa paṭissutvā yādisaṁ bhojanaṁ pāyāsi rājañño bhuñjati, tādisaṁ bhojanaṁ paṭṭhapesi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Uttara, and did so.

Yādisāni ca vatthāni pāyāsi rājañño paridahati, tādisāni ca vatthāni paṭṭhapesi.

Atha kho pāyāsi rājañño asakkaccaṁ dānaṁ datvā asahatthā dānaṁ datvā acittīkataṁ dānaṁ datvā apaviddhaṁ dānaṁ datvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā cātumahārājikānaṁ devānaṁ sahabyataṁ upapajji suññaṁ serīsakaṁ vimānaṁ.
So the chieftain Pāyāsi gave gifts carelessly, thoughtlessly, not with his own hands, giving the dregs. When his body broke up, after death, he was reborn in company with the gods of the Four Great Kings, in an empty palace of acacia.

Yo pana tassa dāne vāvaṭo ahosi uttaro nāma māṇavo. So sakkaccaṁ dānaṁ datvā sahatthā dānaṁ datvā cittīkataṁ dānaṁ datvā anapaviddhaṁ dānaṁ datvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajji devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sahabyataṁ.
But the brahmin student Uttara who organized the offering gave gifts carefully, thoughtfully, with his own hands, not giving the dregs. When his body broke up, after death, he was reborn in company with the gods of the Thirty-Three.

6. Pāyāsidevaputta

6. The God Pāyāsi

Tena kho pana samayena āyasmā gavampati abhikkhaṇaṁ suññaṁ serīsakaṁ vimānaṁ divāvihāraṁ gacchati.
Now at that time Venerable Gavampati would often go to that empty acacia palace for the day’s meditation.

Atha kho pāyāsi devaputto yenāyasmā gavampati tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā āyasmantaṁ gavampatiṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhāsi. Ekamantaṁ ṭhitaṁ kho pāyāsiṁ devaputtaṁ āyasmā gavampati etadavoca:
Then the god Pāyāsi went up to him, bowed, and stood to one side. Gavampati said to him, “kosi tvaṁ, āvuso”ti?

“Who are you, reverend?”

“Ahaṁ, bhante, pāyāsi rājañño”ti.
“Sir, I am the chieftain Pāyāsi.”

“Nanu tvaṁ, āvuso, evaṁdiṭṭhiko ahosi:
“Didn’t you have the view that

‘itipi natthi paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’”ti?
there’s no afterlife, no beings are reborn spontaneously, and there’s no fruit or result of good and bad deeds?”

“Saccāhaṁ, bhante, evaṁdiṭṭhiko ahosiṁ:
“It’s true, sir, I did have such a view.

‘itipi natthi paro loko, natthi sattā opapātikā, natthi sukatadukkaṭānaṁ kammānaṁ phalaṁ vipāko’ti.

Api cāhaṁ ayyena kumārakassapena etasmā pāpakā diṭṭhigatā vivecito”ti.
But Venerable Kassapa the Prince dissuaded me from that harmful misconception.”

“Yo pana te, āvuso, dāne vāvaṭo ahosi uttaro nāma māṇavo, so kuhiṁ upapanno”ti?
“But the student named Uttara who organized that offering for you—where has he been reborn?”

“Yo me, bhante, dāne vāvaṭo ahosi uttaro nāma māṇavo, so sakkaccaṁ dānaṁ datvā sahatthā dānaṁ datvā cittīkataṁ dānaṁ datvā anapaviddhaṁ dānaṁ datvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapanno devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sahabyataṁ.
“Sir, Uttara gave gifts carefully, thoughtfully, with his own hands, not giving the dregs. When his body broke up, after death, he was reborn in company with the gods of the Thirty-Three.

Ahaṁ pana, bhante, asakkaccaṁ dānaṁ datvā asahatthā dānaṁ datvā acittīkataṁ dānaṁ datvā apaviddhaṁ dānaṁ datvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā cātumahārājikānaṁ devānaṁ sahabyataṁ upapanno suññaṁ serīsakaṁ vimānaṁ.
But I gave gifts carelessly, thoughtlessly, not with my own hands, giving the dregs. When my body broke up, after death, I was reborn in company with the gods of the Four Great Kings, in an empty palace of acacia.

Tena hi, bhante gavampati, manussalokaṁ gantvā evamārocehi:
So, sir, when you’ve returned to the human realm, please announce this:

‘sakkaccaṁ dānaṁ detha, sahatthā dānaṁ detha, cittīkataṁ dānaṁ detha, anapaviddhaṁ dānaṁ detha.
‘Give gifts carefully, thoughtfully, with your own hands, not giving the dregs.

Pāyāsi rājañño asakkaccaṁ dānaṁ datvā asahatthā dānaṁ datvā acittīkataṁ dānaṁ datvā apaviddhaṁ dānaṁ datvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā cātumahārājikānaṁ devānaṁ sahabyataṁ upapanno suññaṁ serīsakaṁ vimānaṁ.
The chieftain Pāyāsi gave gifts carelessly, thoughtlessly, not with his own hands, giving the dregs. When his body broke up, after death, he was reborn in company with the gods of the Four Great Kings, in an empty palace of acacia.

Yo pana tassa dāne vāvaṭo ahosi uttaro nāma māṇavo, so sakkaccaṁ dānaṁ datvā sahatthā dānaṁ datvā cittīkataṁ dānaṁ datvā anapaviddhaṁ dānaṁ datvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapanno devānaṁ tāvatiṁsānaṁ sahabyatan’”ti.

But the brahmin student Uttara who organized the offering gave gifts carefully, thoughtfully, with his own hands, not giving the dregs. When his body broke up, after death, he was reborn in company with the gods of the Thirty-Three.’”

Atha kho āyasmā gavampati manussalokaṁ āgantvā evamārocesi:
So when Venerable Gavampati returned to the human realm he made that announcement.

“sakkaccaṁ dānaṁ detha, sahatthā dānaṁ detha, cittīkataṁ dānaṁ detha, anapaviddhaṁ dānaṁ detha.

Pāyāsi rājañño asakkaccaṁ dānaṁ datvā asahatthā dānaṁ datvā acittīkataṁ dānaṁ datvā apaviddhaṁ dānaṁ datvā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā cātumahārājikānaṁ devānaṁ sahabyataṁ upapanno suññaṁ serīsakaṁ vimānaṁ.

1. Sunakkhattavatthu

1. On Sunakkhatta

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā mallesu viharati anupiyaṁ nāma mallānaṁ nigamo.
At one time the Buddha was staying in the land of the Mallas, near the Mallian town named Anupiya.

Atha kho bhagavā pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya anupiyaṁ piṇḍāya pāvisi.
Then the Buddha robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, entered Anupiya for alms.

Atha kho bhagavato etadahosi:
Then it occurred to him,

“atippago kho tāva anupiyāyaṁ piṇḍāya carituṁ.
“It’s too early to wander for alms in Anupiya.

Yannūnāhaṁ yena bhaggavagottassa paribbājakassa ārāmo, yena bhaggavagotto paribbājako tenupasaṅkameyyan”ti.
Why don’t I go to the wanderer Bhaggavagotta’s monastery to visit him?”

Atha kho bhagavā yena bhaggavagottassa paribbājakassa ārāmo, yena bhaggavagotto paribbājako tenupasaṅkami.
So that’s what he did.

Atha kho bhaggavagotto paribbājako bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then the wanderer Bhaggavagotta said to the Buddha,

“etu kho, bhante, bhagavā.
“Come, Blessed One!

Svāgataṁ, bhante, bhagavato.
Welcome, Blessed One!

Cirassaṁ kho, bhante, bhagavā imaṁ pariyāyamakāsi yadidaṁ idhāgamanāya.
It’s been a long time since you took the opportunity to come here.

Nisīdatu, bhante, bhagavā, idamāsanaṁ paññattan”ti.
Please, sir, sit down, this seat is ready.”

Nisīdi bhagavā paññatte āsane.
The Buddha sat on the seat spread out,

Bhaggavagottopi kho paribbājako aññataraṁ nīcaṁ āsanaṁ gahetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
while Bhaggavagotta took a low seat, sat to one side,

Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho bhaggavagotto paribbājako bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
and said to the Buddha,

“purimāni, bhante, divasāni purimatarāni sunakkhatto licchaviputto yenāhaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā maṁ etadavoca:
“Sir, a few days ago Sunakkhatta the Licchavi came to me and said:

‘paccakkhāto dāni mayā, bhaggava, bhagavā.
‘Now, Bhaggava, I have rejected the Buddha.

Na dānāhaṁ bhagavantaṁ uddissa viharāmī’ti.
Now I no longer live dedicated to him.’

Kaccetaṁ, bhante, tatheva, yathā sunakkhatto licchaviputto avacā”ti?
Sir, is what Sunakkhatta said true?”

“Tatheva kho etaṁ, bhaggava, yathā sunakkhatto licchaviputto avaca.
“Indeed it is, Bhaggava.

Purimāni, bhaggava, divasāni purimatarāni sunakkhatto licchaviputto yenāhaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā maṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto maṁ etadavoca:
A few days ago Sunakkhatta the Licchavi came to me, bowed, sat down to one side, and said:

‘paccakkhāmi dānāhaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ.
‘Now I reject the Buddha!

Na dānāhaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ uddissa viharissāmī’ti.
Now I shall no longer live dedicated to you.’

Evaṁ vutte, ahaṁ, bhaggava, sunakkhattaṁ licchaviputtaṁ etadavocaṁ:
When Sunakkhatta said this, I said to him,

‘api nu tāhaṁ, sunakkhatta, evaṁ avacaṁ,
‘But Sunakkhatta, did I ever say to you:

ehi tvaṁ, sunakkhatta, mamaṁ uddissa viharāhī’ti?
“Come, live dedicated to me”?’

‘No hetaṁ, bhante’.
‘No, sir.’

‘Tvaṁ vā pana maṁ evaṁ avaca—
‘Or did you ever say to me:

ahaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ uddissa viharissāmī’ti?
“Sir, I shall live dedicated to the Buddha”?’

‘No hetaṁ, bhante’.
‘No, sir.’

‘Iti kira, sunakkhatta, nevāhaṁ taṁ vadāmi—
‘So it seems that I did not ask you to ehi tvaṁ, sunakkhatta, mamaṁ uddissa viharāhīti.

Evaṁ sante, moghapurisa, ko santo kaṁ paccācikkhasi?
In that case, you silly man, are you really in a position to be rejecting anything?

Passa, moghapurisa, yāvañca te idaṁ aparaddhan’ti.
See how far you have strayed!’

‘Na hi pana me, bhante, bhagavā uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karotī’ti.
‘But sir, the Buddha never performs any superhuman demonstrations of psychic power for me.’

‘Api nu tāhaṁ, sunakkhatta, evaṁ avacaṁ—
‘But Sunakkhatta, did I ever say to you:

ehi tvaṁ, sunakkhatta, mamaṁ uddissa viharāhi, ahaṁ te uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissāmī’ti?
“Come, live dedicated to me and I will perform a superhuman demonstration of psychic power for you”?’

‘No hetaṁ, bhante’.
‘No, sir.’

‘Tvaṁ vā pana maṁ evaṁ avaca—
‘Or did you ever say to me:

ahaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ uddissa viharissāmi, bhagavā me uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissatī’ti?
“Sir, I shall live dedicated to the Buddha, and the Buddha will perform a superhuman demonstration of psychic power for me”?’

‘No hetaṁ, bhante’.
‘No, sir.’

‘Iti kira, sunakkhatta, nevāhaṁ taṁ vadāmi—
‘So it seems that I did not ask this of you, and you did not require it of me.

ehi tvaṁ, sunakkhatta, mamaṁ uddissa viharāhi, ahaṁ te uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissāmīti;

napi kira maṁ tvaṁ vadesi—

ahaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ uddissa viharissāmi, bhagavā me uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissatīti.

Evaṁ sante, moghapurisa, ko santo kaṁ paccācikkhasi?
In that case, you silly man, are you really in a position to be rejecting anything?

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, sunakkhatta,
What do you think, Sunakkhatta?

kate vā uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriye akate vā uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriye yassatthāya mayā dhammo desito so niyyāti takkarassa sammā dukkhakkhayāyā’ti?
Whether or not there is a demonstration of psychic power, does my teaching lead someone who practices it to the goal of the complete ending of suffering?’

‘Kate vā, bhante, uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriye akate vā uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriye yassatthāya bhagavatā dhammo desito so niyyāti takkarassa sammā dukkhakkhayāyā’ti.

‘It does, sir.’

‘Iti kira, sunakkhatta, kate vā uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriye, akate vā uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriye, yassatthāya mayā dhammo desito, so niyyāti takkarassa sammā dukkhakkhayāya.
‘So it seems that whether or not there is a demonstration of psychic power, my teaching leads someone who practices it to the goal of the complete ending of suffering.

Tatra, sunakkhatta, kiṁ uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ kataṁ karissati?
In that case, what is the point of superhuman demonstrations of psychic power?

Passa, moghapurisa, yāvañca te idaṁ aparaddhan’ti.
See how far you have strayed, you silly man!’

‘Na hi pana me, bhante, bhagavā aggaññaṁ paññapetī’ti?
‘But sir, the Buddha never describes the origin of the world to me.’

‘Api nu tāhaṁ, sunakkhatta, evaṁ avacaṁ—
‘But Sunakkhatta, did I ever say to you:

ehi tvaṁ, sunakkhatta, mamaṁ uddissa viharāhi, ahaṁ te aggaññaṁ paññapessāmī’ti?
“Come, live dedicated to me and I will describe the origin of the world to you”?’

‘No hetaṁ, bhante’.
‘No, sir.’

‘Tvaṁ vā pana maṁ evaṁ avaca—
‘Or did you ever say to me:

ahaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ uddissa viharissāmi, bhagavā me aggaññaṁ paññapessatī’ti?
“Sir, I shall live dedicated to the Buddha, and the Buddha will describe the origin of the world to me”?’

‘No hetaṁ, bhante’.
‘No, sir.’

‘Iti kira, sunakkhatta, nevāhaṁ taṁ vadāmi—
‘So it seems that I did not ask this of you, and you did not require it of me.

ehi tvaṁ, sunakkhatta, mamaṁ uddissa viharāhi, ahaṁ te aggaññaṁ paññapessāmīti.

Napi kira maṁ tvaṁ vadesi—

ahaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ uddissa viharissāmi, bhagavā me aggaññaṁ paññapessatīti.

Evaṁ sante, moghapurisa, ko santo kaṁ paccācikkhasi?
In that case, you silly man, are you really in a position to be rejecting anything?

Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, sunakkhatta,
What do you think, Sunakkhatta?

paññatte vā aggaññe, apaññatte vā aggaññe, yassatthāya mayā dhammo desito, so niyyāti takkarassa sammā dukkhakkhayāyā’ti?
Whether or not the origin of the world is described, does my teaching lead someone who practices it to the goal of the complete ending of suffering?’

‘Paññatte vā, bhante, aggaññe, apaññatte vā aggaññe, yassatthāya bhagavatā dhammo desito, so niyyāti takkarassa sammā dukkhakkhayāyā’ti.
‘It does, sir.’

‘Iti kira, sunakkhatta, paññatte vā aggaññe, apaññatte vā aggaññe, yassatthāya mayā dhammo desito, so niyyāti takkarassa sammā dukkhakkhayāya.
‘So it seems that whether or not the origin of the world is described, my teaching leads someone who practices it to the goal of the complete ending of suffering.

Tatra, sunakkhatta, kiṁ aggaññaṁ paññattaṁ karissati?
In that case, what is the point of describing the origin of the world?

Passa, moghapurisa, yāvañca te idaṁ aparaddhaṁ.
See how far you have strayed, you silly man!

Anekapariyāyena kho te, sunakkhatta, mama vaṇṇo bhāsito vajjigāme—
In many ways, Sunakkhatta, you have praised me like this in the Vajjian capital:

itipi so bhagavā arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavāti.
“That Blessed One is perfected, a fully awakened Buddha, accomplished in knowledge and conduct, holy, knower of the world, supreme guide for those who wish to train, teacher of gods and humans, awakened, blessed.”

Iti kho te, sunakkhatta, anekapariyāyena mama vaṇṇo bhāsito vajjigāme.

Anekapariyāyena kho te, sunakkhatta, dhammassa vaṇṇo bhāsito vajjigāme—
In many ways you have praised the teaching like this in the Vajjian capital:

svākkhāto bhagavatā dhammo sandiṭṭhiko akāliko ehipassiko opaneyyiko paccattaṁ veditabbo viññūhīti.

“The teaching is well explained by the Buddha—visible in this very life, immediately effective, inviting inspection, relevant, so that sensible people can know it for themselves.”

Iti kho te, sunakkhatta, anekapariyāyena dhammassa vaṇṇo bhāsito vajjigāme.

Anekapariyāyena kho te, sunakkhatta, saṅghassa vaṇṇo bhāsito vajjigāme—
In many ways you have praised the Saṅgha like this in the Vajjian capital:

suppaṭipanno bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho, ujuppaṭipanno bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho, ñāyappaṭipanno bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho, sāmīcippaṭipanno bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho, yadidaṁ cattāri purisayugāni aṭṭha purisapuggalā, esa bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho, āhuneyyo pāhuneyyo dakkhiṇeyyo añjalikaraṇīyo anuttaraṁ puññakkhettaṁ lokassāti.
“The Saṅgha of the Buddha’s disciples is practicing the way that’s good, straightforward, methodical, and proper. It consists of the four pairs, the eight individuals. This is the Saṅgha of the Buddha’s disciples that is worthy of offerings dedicated to the gods, worthy of hospitality, worthy of a religious donation, worthy of greeting with joined palms, and is the supreme field of merit for the world.”

Iti kho te, sunakkhatta, anekapariyāyena saṅghassa vaṇṇo bhāsito vajjigāme.

Ārocayāmi kho te, sunakkhatta, paṭivedayāmi kho te, sunakkhatta.
I declare this to you, Sunakkhatta, I announce this to you!

Bhavissanti kho te, sunakkhatta, vattāro, no visahi sunakkhatto licchaviputto samaṇe gotame brahmacariyaṁ carituṁ, so avisahanto sikkhaṁ paccakkhāya hīnāyāvattoti.
There will be those who say that Sunakkhatta was unable to lead the spiritual life under the ascetic Gotama. That’s why he rejected the training and returned to a lesser life.

Iti kho te, sunakkhatta, bhavissanti vattāro’ti.
That’s what they’ll say.’

Evaṁ kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto mayā vuccamāno apakkameva imasmā dhammavinayā, yathā taṁ āpāyiko nerayiko.
Though I spoke to Sunakkhatta like this, he still left this teaching and training, like someone on the highway to hell.

2. Korakkhattiyavatthu

2. On Korakkhattiya

Ekamidāhaṁ, bhaggava, samayaṁ thūlūsu viharāmi uttarakā nāma thūlūnaṁ nigamo.
Bhaggava, this one time I was staying in the land of the Thūlus where they have a town named Uttarakā.

Atha khvāhaṁ, bhaggava, pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya sunakkhattena licchaviputtena pacchāsamaṇena uttarakaṁ piṇḍāya pāvisiṁ.
Then I robed up in the morning and, taking my bowl and robe, entered Uttarakā for alms with Sunakkhatta the Licchavi as my second monk.

Tena kho pana samayena acelo korakkhattiyo kukkuravatiko catukkuṇḍiko chamānikiṇṇaṁ bhakkhasaṁ mukheneva khādati, mukheneva bhuñjati.
Now at that time the naked ascetic Korakkhattiya had taken a vow to behave like a dog. When food is tossed on the ground, he gets down on all fours, eating and devouring it just with his mouth.

Addasā kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto acelaṁ korakkhattiyaṁ kukkuravatikaṁ catukkuṇḍikaṁ chamānikiṇṇaṁ bhakkhasaṁ mukheneva khādantaṁ mukheneva bhuñjantaṁ.

Sunakkhatta saw him doing this

Disvānassa etadahosi:
and thought,

‘sādhurūpo vata bho ayaṁ samaṇo catukkuṇḍiko chamānikiṇṇaṁ bhakkhasaṁ mukheneva khādati, mukheneva bhuñjatī’ti.
‘That ascetic is a true holy man!’

Atha khvāhaṁ, bhaggava, sunakkhattassa licchaviputtassa cetasā cetoparivitakkamaññāya sunakkhattaṁ licchaviputtaṁ etadavocaṁ:
Then, knowing what Sunakkhatta was thinking, I said to him,

‘tvampi nāma, moghapurisa, samaṇo sakyaputtiyo paṭijānissasī’ti.
‘Don’t you claim to be an ascetic, a follower of the Sakyan, you silly man?’

‘Kiṁ pana maṁ, bhante, bhagavā evamāha:
‘But why does the Buddha say this to me?’

“tvampi nāma, moghapurisa, samaṇo sakyaputtiyo paṭijānissasī”’ti?

‘Nanu te, sunakkhatta, imaṁ acelaṁ korakkhattiyaṁ kukkuravatikaṁ catukkuṇḍikaṁ chamānikiṇṇaṁ bhakkhasaṁ mukheneva khādantaṁ mukheneva bhuñjantaṁ disvāna etadahosi—
‘When you saw that naked ascetic Korakkhattiya, didn’t you think, sādhurūpo vata bho ayaṁ samaṇo catukkuṇḍiko chamānikiṇṇaṁ bhakkhasaṁ mukheneva khādati, mukheneva bhuñjatī’ti?

“That ascetic is a true holy man!”?’

‘Evaṁ, bhante.
‘Yes, sir.

Kiṁ pana, bhante, bhagavā arahattassa maccharāyatī’ti?
But sir, are you jealous of the perfected ones?’

‘Na kho ahaṁ, moghapurisa, arahattassa maccharāyāmi.
‘I’m not jealous of the perfected ones, you silly man.

Api ca tuyhevetaṁ pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ uppannaṁ, taṁ pajaha.
Rather, you should give up this harmful misconception that has arisen in you.

Mā te ahosi dīgharattaṁ ahitāya dukkhāya.
Don’t create lasting harm and suffering for yourself!

Yaṁ kho panetaṁ, sunakkhatta, maññasi acelaṁ korakkhattiyaṁ—sādhurūpo ayaṁ samaṇoti. So sattamaṁ divasaṁ alasakena kālaṁ karissati.
That naked ascetic Korakkhattiya, who you imagine to be a true holy man, will die of flatulence in seven days.

Kālaṅkato ca kālakañcikā nāma asurā sabbanihīno asurakāyo, tatra upapajjissati.
And when he dies, he’ll be reborn in the very lowest rank of demons, named the Kālakañjas.

Kālaṅkatañca naṁ bīraṇatthambake susāne chaḍḍessanti.
And they’ll throw him in the charnel ground on a clump of vetiver.

Ākaṅkhamāno ca tvaṁ, sunakkhatta, acelaṁ korakkhattiyaṁ upasaṅkamitvā puccheyyāsi—
If you wish, Sunakkhatta, go to Korakkhattiya and ask him

jānāsi, āvuso korakkhattiya, attano gatinti?
whether he knows his own destiny.

Ṭhānaṁ kho panetaṁ, sunakkhatta, vijjati yaṁ te acelo korakkhattiyo byākarissati—

It’s possible that he will answer:

jānāmi, āvuso sunakkhatta, attano gatiṁ;
“Reverend Sunakkhatta, I know my own destiny.

kālakañcikā nāma asurā sabbanihīno asurakāyo, tatrāmhi upapanno’ti.
I’ve been reborn in the very lowest rank of demons, named the Kālakañjas.”’

Atha kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto yena acelo korakkhattiyo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā acelaṁ korakkhattiyaṁ etadavoca:
So, Bhaggava, Sunakkhatta went to see Korakkhattiya and said to him,

‘byākato khosi, āvuso korakkhattiya, samaṇena gotamena—
‘Reverend Korakkhattiya, the ascetic Gotama has declared acelo korakkhattiyo sattamaṁ divasaṁ alasakena kālaṁ karissati.

that you will die of flatulence in seven days.

Kālaṅkato ca kālakañcikā nāma asurā sabbanihīno asurakāyo, tatra upapajjissati.
And when you die, you’ll be reborn in the very lowest rank of demons, named the Kālakañjas.

Kālaṅkatañca naṁ bīraṇatthambake susāne chaḍḍessantīti.
And when you die, they’ll throw you in the charnel ground on a clump of vetiver.

Yena tvaṁ, āvuso korakkhattiya, mattaṁ mattañca bhattaṁ bhuñjeyyāsi, mattaṁ mattañca pānīyaṁ piveyyāsi.
But by eating just a little food and drinking just a little water, Yathā samaṇassa gotamassa micchā assa vacanan’ti.

you’ll prove what the ascetic Gotama says to be false.’

Atha kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto ekadvīhikāya sattarattindivāni gaṇesi, yathā taṁ tathāgatassa asaddahamāno.
Then Sunakkhatta counted up the days until the seventh day, as happens when you have no faith in the Realized One.

Atha kho, bhaggava, acelo korakkhattiyo sattamaṁ divasaṁ alasakena kālamakāsi.
But on the seventh day, the naked ascetic Korakkhattiya died of flatulence.

kālaṅkato ca kālakañcikā nāma asurā sabbanihīno asurakāyo, tatra upapajji.
And when he passed away, he was reborn in the very lowest rank of demons, named the Kālakañjas.

kālaṅkatañca naṁ bīraṇatthambake susāne chaḍḍesuṁ.
And when he passed away, they threw him in the charnel ground on a clump of vetiver.

Assosi kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto:
Sunakkhatta the Licchavi heard about this.

‘acelo kira korakkhattiyo alasakena kālaṅkato bīraṇatthambake susāne chaḍḍito’ti.

Atha kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto yena bīraṇatthambakaṁ susānaṁ, yena acelo korakkhattiyo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā acelaṁ korakkhattiyaṁ tikkhattuṁ pāṇinā ākoṭesi:
So he went to see Korakkhattiya in the charnel ground on the clump of vetiver. There he struck Korakkhattiya with his fist three times, ‘jānāsi, āvuso korakkhattiya, attano gatin’ti?

‘Reverend Korakkhattiya, do you know your destiny?’

Atha kho, bhaggava, acelo korakkhattiyo pāṇinā piṭṭhiṁ paripuñchanto vuṭṭhāsi.

Then Korakkhattiya got up, rubbing his back with his hands, and said, ‘Jānāmi, āvuso sunakkhatta, attano gatiṁ.

‘Reverend Sunakkhatta, I know my own destiny.

Kālakañcikā nāma asurā sabbanihīno asurakāyo, tatrāmhi upapanno’ti vatvā tattheva uttāno papati.
I’ve been reborn in the very lowest rank of demons, named the Kālakañjas.’ After speaking, he fell flat right there.

Atha kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto yenāhaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā maṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhaggava, sunakkhattaṁ licchaviputtaṁ etadavocaṁ:
Then Sunakkhatta came to me, bowed, and sat down to one side. I said to him,

‘Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, sunakkhatta,
‘What do you think, Sunakkhatta?

yatheva te ahaṁ acelaṁ korakkhattiyaṁ ārabbha byākāsiṁ, tatheva taṁ vipākaṁ, aññathā vā’ti?
Did the declaration I made about Korakkhattiya turn out to be correct, or not?’

‘Yatheva me, bhante, bhagavā acelaṁ korakkhattiyaṁ ārabbha byākāsi, tatheva taṁ vipākaṁ, no aññathā’ti.
‘It turned out to be correct.’

‘Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, sunakkhatta,
‘What do you think, Sunakkhatta?

yadi evaṁ sante kataṁ vā hoti uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ, akataṁ vā’ti?
If that is so, has a superhuman demonstration of psychic power been performed or not?’

‘Addhā kho, bhante, evaṁ sante kataṁ hoti uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ, no akatan’ti.
‘Clearly, sir, a superhuman demonstration of psychic power has been performed.’

‘Evampi kho maṁ tvaṁ, moghapurisa, uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karontaṁ evaṁ vadesi—‘Though I performed such a superhuman demonstration of psychic power you say this:

na hi pana me, bhante, bhagavā uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karotīti.
“But sir, the Buddha never performs any superhuman demonstrations of psychic power for me.”

Passa, moghapurisa, yāvañca te idaṁ aparaddhan’ti.
See how far you have strayed!’

Evampi kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto mayā vuccamāno apakkameva imasmā dhammavinayā, yathā taṁ āpāyiko nerayiko.
Though I spoke to Sunakkhatta like this, he still left this teaching and training, like someone on the highway to hell.

3. Acelakaḷāramaṭṭakavatthu

3. On the Naked Ascetic Kaḷāramaṭṭaka

Ekamidāhaṁ, bhaggava, samayaṁ vesāliyaṁ viharāmi mahāvane kūṭāgārasālāyaṁ.
This one time, Bhaggava, I was staying near Vesālī, at the Great Wood, in the hall with the peaked roof.

Tena kho pana samayena acelo kaḷāramaṭṭako vesāliyaṁ paṭivasati lābhaggappatto ceva yasaggappatto ca vajjigāme.
Now at that time the naked ascetic Kaḷāramaṭṭaka was residing in Vesālī. And in the Vajjian capital he had reached the peak of material possessions and fame.

Tassa sattavatapadāni samattāni samādinnāni honti:
He had undertaken these seven vows.

‘yāvajīvaṁ acelako assaṁ, na vatthaṁ paridaheyyaṁ, yāvajīvaṁ brahmacārī assaṁ, na methunaṁ dhammaṁ paṭiseveyyaṁ, yāvajīvaṁ surāmaṁseneva yāpeyyaṁ, na odanakummāsaṁ bhuñjeyyaṁ.
‘As long as I live, I will be a naked ascetic, not wearing clothes. As long as I live, I will be celibate, not having sex. As long as I live, I will consume only meat and alcohol, not eating rice and porridge.

Puratthimena vesāliṁ udenaṁ nāma cetiyaṁ, taṁ nātikkameyyaṁ, dakkhiṇena vesāliṁ gotamakaṁ nāma cetiyaṁ, taṁ nātikkameyyaṁ, pacchimena vesāliṁ sattambaṁ nāma cetiyaṁ, taṁ nātikkameyyaṁ, uttarena vesāliṁ bahuputtaṁ nāma cetiyaṁ taṁ nātikkameyyan’ti.
And I will not go past the following tree shrines near Vesālī: the Udena shrine to the east, the Gotamaka to the south, the Sattamba to the west, and the Bahuputta to the north.’

So imesaṁ sattannaṁ vatapadānaṁ samādānahetu lābhaggappatto ceva yasaggappatto ca vajjigāme.
And it was due to undertaking these seven vows that he had reached the peak of material possessions and fame.

Atha kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto yena acelo kaḷāramaṭṭako tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā acelaṁ kaḷāramaṭṭakaṁ pañhaṁ apucchi.
So, Bhaggava, Sunakkhatta went to see Kaḷāramaṭṭaka and asked him a question.

Tassa acelo kaḷāramaṭṭako pañhaṁ puṭṭho na sampāyāsi.
But when he couldn’t answer it,

Asampāyanto kopañca dosañca appaccayañca pātvākāsi.
he displayed irritation, hate, and bitterness.

Atha kho, bhaggava, sunakkhattassa licchaviputtassa etadahosi:
So Sunakkhatta thought,

‘sādhurūpaṁ vata bho arahantaṁ samaṇaṁ āsādimhase.
‘I’ve offended the holy man, the perfected one, the ascetic.

Mā vata no ahosi dīgharattaṁ ahitāya dukkhāyā’ti.
I mustn’t create lasting harm and suffering for myself!’

Atha kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto yenāhaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā maṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhaggava, sunakkhattaṁ licchaviputtaṁ etadavocaṁ:
Then Sunakkhatta came to me, bowed, and sat down to one side. I said to him, ‘tvampi nāma, moghapurisa, samaṇo sakyaputtiyo paṭijānissasī’ti.

‘Don’t you claim to be an ascetic, a follower of the Sakyan, you silly man?’

‘Kiṁ pana maṁ, bhante, bhagavā evamāha—
‘But why does the Buddha say this to me?’

tvampi nāma, moghapurisa, samaṇo sakyaputtiyo paṭijānissasī’ti?

‘Nanu tvaṁ, sunakkhatta, acelaṁ kaḷāramaṭṭakaṁ upasaṅkamitvā pañhaṁ apucchi.
‘Didn’t you go to see the naked ascetic Kaḷāramaṭṭaka and ask him a question?

Tassa te acelo kaḷāramaṭṭako pañhaṁ puṭṭho na sampāyāsi.
But when he couldn’t answer it,

Tassa te etadahosi:
Then you thought,

“sādhurūpaṁ vata bho arahantaṁ samaṇaṁ āsādimhase.
“I’ve offended the holy man, the perfected one, the ascetic.

Mā vata no ahosi dīgharattaṁ ahitāya dukkhāyā”’ti.
I mustn’t create lasting harm and suffering for myself!”’

‘Evaṁ, bhante.
‘Yes, sir.

Kiṁ pana, bhante, bhagavā arahattassa maccharāyatī’ti?
But sir, are you jealous of perfected ones?’

‘Na kho ahaṁ, moghapurisa, arahattassa maccharāyāmi,
‘I’m not jealous of the perfected ones, you silly man.

api ca tuyhevetaṁ pāpakaṁ diṭṭhigataṁ uppannaṁ, taṁ pajaha.

Mā te ahosi dīgharattaṁ ahitāya dukkhāya.
Don’t create lasting harm and suffering for yourself!

Yaṁ kho panetaṁ, sunakkhatta, maññasi acelaṁ kaḷāramaṭṭakaṁ—
That naked ascetic Kaḷāramaṭṭaka, who you imagine to be a true holy man, sādhurūpo ayaṁ samaṇoti, so nacirasseva parihito sānucāriko vicaranto odanakummāsaṁ bhuñjamāno sabbāneva vesāliyāni cetiyāni samatikkamitvā yasā nihīno kālaṁ karissatī’ti.

will shortly be clothed, living with a partner, eating rice and porridge, having gone past all the shrines near Vesālī. And he will die after losing all his fame.’

Atha kho, bhaggava, acelo kaḷāramaṭṭako nacirasseva parihito sānucāriko vicaranto odanakummāsaṁ bhuñjamāno sabbāneva vesāliyāni cetiyāni samatikkamitvā yasā nihīno kālamakāsi.
And that’s exactly what happened.

Assosi kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto:
Sunakkhatta heard about this.

‘acelo kira kaḷāramaṭṭako parihito sānucāriko vicaranto odanakummāsaṁ bhuñjamāno sabbāneva vesāliyāni cetiyāni samatikkamitvā yasā nihīno kālaṅkato’ti.

Atha kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto yenāhaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā maṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho ahaṁ, bhaggava, sunakkhattaṁ licchaviputtaṁ etadavocaṁ:
He came to me, bowed, and sat down to one side. I said to him,

‘Taṁ kiṁ maññasi, sunakkhatta,
‘What do you think, Sunakkhatta?

Evampi kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto mayā vuccamāno apakkameva imasmā dhammavinayā, yathā taṁ āpāyiko nerayiko.
Though I spoke to Sunakkhatta like this, he still left this teaching and training, like someone on the highway to hell.

4. Acelapāthikaputtavatthu

4. On the Naked Ascetic Pāṭikaputta

Ekamidāhaṁ, bhaggava, samayaṁ tattheva vesāliyaṁ viharāmi mahāvane kūṭāgārasālāyaṁ.
This one time, Bhaggava, I was staying right there near Vesālī, at the Great Wood, in the hall with the peaked roof.

Tena kho pana samayena acelo pāthikaputto vesāliyaṁ paṭivasati lābhaggappatto ceva yasaggappatto ca vajjigāme.
Now at that time the naked ascetic Pāṭikaputta was residing in Vesālī. And in the Vajjian capital he had reached the peak of material possessions and fame.

So vesāliyaṁ parisati evaṁ vācaṁ bhāsati:
He was telling a crowd in Vesālī:

‘samaṇopi gotamo ñāṇavādo, ahampi ñāṇavādo.
‘Both the ascetic Gotama and I speak from knowledge.

Ñāṇavādo kho pana ñāṇavādena arahati uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ dassetuṁ.
One who speaks from knowledge ought to display a superhuman demonstration of psychic power to another who speaks from knowledge.

Samaṇo gotamo upaḍḍhapathaṁ āgaccheyya, ahampi upaḍḍhapathaṁ gaccheyyaṁ.
If the ascetic Gotama meets me half-way,

Te tattha ubhopi uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ kareyyāma.
there we should both perform a superhuman demonstration of psychic power.

Ekañce samaṇo gotamo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissati, dvāhaṁ karissāmi.
If he performs one demonstration of psychic power, I’ll perform two.

Dve ce samaṇo gotamo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyāni karissati, cattārāhaṁ karissāmi.
If he performs two, I’ll perform four.

Cattāri ce samaṇo gotamo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyāni karissati, aṭṭhāhaṁ karissāmi.
If he performs four, I’ll perform eight.

Iti yāvatakaṁ yāvatakaṁ samaṇo gotamo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissati, taddiguṇaṁ taddiguṇāhaṁ karissāmī’ti.
However many demonstrations of psychic power the ascetic Gotama performs, I’ll perform double.’

Atha kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto yenāhaṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā maṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto maṁ etadavoca:
Then Sunakkhatta came to me, bowed, sat down to one side, and told me of all this.

‘acelo, bhante, pāthikaputto vesāliyaṁ paṭivasati lābhaggappatto ceva yasaggappatto ca vajjigāme.

So vesāliyaṁ parisati evaṁ vācaṁ bhāsati:

“samaṇopi gotamo ñāṇavādo, ahampi ñāṇavādo.

Ñāṇavādo kho pana ñāṇavādena arahati uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ dassetuṁ.

Samaṇo gotamo upaḍḍhapathaṁ āgaccheyya, ahampi upaḍḍhapathaṁ gaccheyyaṁ.

Te tattha ubhopi uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ kareyyāma.

Ekañce samaṇo gotamo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissati, dvāhaṁ karissāmi.

Dve ce samaṇo gotamo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyāni karissati, cattārāhaṁ karissāmi.

Cattāri ce samaṇo gotamo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyāni karissati, aṭṭhāhaṁ karissāmi.

Iti yāvatakaṁ yāvatakaṁ samaṇo gotamo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissati, taddiguṇaṁ taddiguṇāhaṁ karissāmī”’ti.

Evaṁ vutte, ahaṁ, bhaggava, sunakkhattaṁ licchaviputtaṁ etadavocaṁ:
I said to him,

‘abhabbo kho, sunakkhatta, acelo pāthikaputto taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā mama sammukhībhāvaṁ āgantuṁ.

‘Sunakkhatta, the naked ascetic Pāṭikaputta is not capable of coming into my presence, unless he gives up that statement and that intention, and lets go of that view.

Sacepissa evamassa—
If he thinks he can

ahaṁ taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā samaṇassa gotamassa sammukhībhāvaṁ gaccheyyanti, muddhāpi tassa vipateyyā’ti.
come into my presence without giving up those things, his head may explode.’

‘Rakkhatetaṁ, bhante, bhagavā vācaṁ, rakkhatetaṁ sugato vācan’ti.
‘Careful what you say, Blessed One! Careful what you say, Holy One!’

‘Kiṁ pana maṁ tvaṁ, sunakkhatta, evaṁ vadesi—
‘But why do you say this to me, Sunakkhatta?’

rakkhatetaṁ, bhante, bhagavā vācaṁ, rakkhatetaṁ sugato vācan’ti?

‘Bhagavatā cassa, bhante, esā vācā ekaṁsena odhāritā—‘Sir, the Buddha has definitively asserted that abhabbo acelo pāthikaputto taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā mama sammukhībhāvaṁ āgantuṁ.

Pāṭikaputta is not capable of coming into the Buddha’s presence, otherwise

Sacepissa evamassa—

ahaṁ taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā samaṇassa gotamassa sammukhībhāvaṁ gaccheyyanti, muddhāpi tassa vipateyyāti.

his head may explode.

Acelo ca, bhante, pāthikaputto virūparūpena bhagavato sammukhībhāvaṁ āgaccheyya, tadassa bhagavato musā’ti.
But Pāṭikaputta might come into the Buddha’s presence in disguise, proving the Buddha wrong.’

‘Api nu, sunakkhatta, tathāgato taṁ vācaṁ bhāseyya yā sā vācā dvayagāminī’ti?
‘Sunakkhatta, would the Realized One make an ambiguous statement?’

‘Kiṁ pana, bhante, bhagavatā acelo pāthikaputto cetasā ceto paricca vidito—
‘But sir, did you make that statement after comprehending Pāṭikaputta’s mind with your mind?

abhabbo acelo pāthikaputto taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā mama sammukhībhāvaṁ āgantuṁ.

Sacepissa evamassa—

ahaṁ taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā samaṇassa gotamassa sammukhībhāvaṁ gaccheyyanti, muddhāpi tassa vipateyyāti?

Udāhu, devatā bhagavato etamatthaṁ ārocesuṁ—
Or did deities tell you about it?’

abhabbo, bhante, acelo pāthikaputto taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā bhagavato sammukhībhāvaṁ āgantuṁ.

Sacepissa evamassa—

ahaṁ taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā samaṇassa gotamassa sammukhībhāvaṁ gaccheyyanti, muddhāpi tassa vipateyyā’ti?

‘Cetasā ceto paricca vidito ceva me, sunakkhatta, acelo pāthikaputto—‘Both, Sunakkhatta.

abhabbo acelo pāthikaputto taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā mama sammukhībhāvaṁ āgantuṁ.

Sacepissa evamassa—

ahaṁ taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā samaṇassa gotamassa sammukhībhāvaṁ gaccheyyanti, muddhāpi tassa vipateyyāti.

Devatāpi me etamatthaṁ ārocesuṁ—

abhabbo, bhante, acelo pāthikaputto taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā bhagavato sammukhībhāvaṁ āgantuṁ.

Sacepissa evamassa—

ahaṁ taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā samaṇassa gotamassa sammukhībhāvaṁ gaccheyyanti, muddhāpi tassa vipateyyāti.

Ajitopi nāma licchavīnaṁ senāpati adhunā kālaṅkato tāvatiṁsakāyaṁ upapanno.
For Ajita the Licchavi general has recently passed away and been reborn in the host of the Thirty-Three.

Sopi maṁ upasaṅkamitvā evamārocesi—
He came and told me this,

alajjī, bhante, acelo pāthikaputto;
“The naked ascetic Pāṭikaputta is shameless, sir, musāvādī, bhante, acelo pāthikaputto.

he is a liar.

Mampi, bhante, acelo pāthikaputto byākāsi vajjigāme—

For he has declared of me in the Vajjian capital:

ajito licchavīnaṁ senāpati mahānirayaṁ upapannoti.
‘Ajita the Licchavi general has been reborn in the Great Hell.’

Na kho panāhaṁ, bhante, mahānirayaṁ upapanno;
But that is not true—

tāvatiṁsakāyamhi upapanno.
I have been reborn in the host of the Thirty-Three.

Alajjī, bhante, acelo pāthikaputto;
The naked ascetic Pāṭikaputta is shameless, sir,

musāvādī, bhante, acelo pāthikaputto;
he is a liar.

abhabbo ca, bhante, acelo pāthikaputto taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā bhagavato sammukhībhāvaṁ āgantuṁ.
Pāṭikaputta is not capable of coming into the Buddha’s presence, otherwise

Sacepissa evamassa—

ahaṁ taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā samaṇassa gotamassa sammukhībhāvaṁ gaccheyyanti, muddhāpi tassa vipateyyāti.
his head may explode.”

Iti kho, sunakkhatta, cetasā ceto paricca vidito ceva me acelo pāthikaputto abhabbo acelo pāthikaputto taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā mama sammukhībhāvaṁ āgantuṁ.
Thus I both made that statement after comprehending Pāṭikaputta’s mind with my mind,

Sacepissa evamassa—

ahaṁ taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā samaṇassa gotamassa sammukhībhāvaṁ gaccheyyanti, muddhāpi tassa vipateyyāti.

Devatāpi me etamatthaṁ ārocesuṁ—and deities told me about it.

abhabbo, bhante, acelo pāthikaputto taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā bhagavato sammukhībhāvaṁ āgantuṁ.

Sacepissa evamassa—

ahaṁ taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā samaṇassa gotamassa sammukhībhāvaṁ gaccheyyanti, muddhāpi tassa vipateyyāti.

So kho panāhaṁ, sunakkhatta, vesāliyaṁ piṇḍāya caritvā pacchābhattaṁ piṇḍapātapaṭikkanto yena acelassa pāthikaputtassa ārāmo tenupasaṅkamissāmi divāvihārāya.
So Sunakkhatta, I'll wander for alms in Vesālī. After the meal, on my return from alms-round, I'll go to Pāṭikaputta's monastery for the day's meditation.

Yassadāni tvaṁ, sunakkhatta, icchasi, tassa ārocehī'ti.
Now you may tell him, if you so wish.'

5. Iddhipāṭihāriyakathā
5. On Demonstrations of Psychic Power

Atha khvāhaṁ, bhaggava, pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya vesāliṁ piṇḍāya pāvisiṁ.
Then, Bhaggava, I robed up in the morning and, taking my bowl and robe, entered Vesālī for alms.

Vesāliyaṁ piṇḍāya caritvā pacchābhattaṁ piṇḍapātapaṭikkanto yena acelassa pāthikaputtassa ārāmo tenupasaṅkamiṁ divāvihārāya.

After the meal, on my return from alms-round, I went to Pāṭikaputta’s monastery for the day’s meditation.

Atha kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto taramānarūpo vesāliṁ pavisitvā yena abhiññātā abhiññātā licchavī tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā abhiññāte abhiññāte licchavī etadavoca:
Then Sunakkhatta rushed into Vesālī to see the very well-known Licchavis and said to them, ‘esāvuso, bhagavā vesāliyaṁ piṇḍāya caritvā pacchābhattaṁ piṇḍapātapaṭikkanto yena acelassa pāthikaputtassa ārāmo tenupasaṅkami divāvihārāya.

‘Sirs, after his alms-round, the Buddha has gone to Pāṭikaputta’s monastery for the day’s meditation.

Abhikkamathāyasmanto abhikkamathāyasmanto, sādhurūpānaṁ samaṇānaṁ uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ bhavissatī’ti.
Come forth, sirs, come forth! There will be a superhuman demonstration of psychic power by the holy ascetics!’

Atha kho, bhaggava, abhiññātānaṁ abhiññātānaṁ licchavīnaṁ etadahosi:
So the very well-known Licchavis thought,

‘sādhurūpānaṁ kira, bho, samaṇānaṁ uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ bhavissati;
‘It seems there will be a superhuman demonstration of psychic power by the holy ascetics!

handa vata, bho, gacchāmā’ti.
Let’s go!’

Yena ca abhiññātā abhiññātā brāhmaṇamahāsālā gahapatinecayikā nānātitthiyā samaṇabrāhmaṇā tenupasaṅkami. upasaṅkamitvā abhiññāte abhiññāte nānātitthiye samaṇabrāhmaṇe etadavoca:

Then he went to see the very well-known well-to-do brahmins, rich householders, and ascetics and brahmins who follow various other paths, and said the same thing.

‘esāvuso, bhagavā vesāliyaṁ piṇḍāya caritvā pacchābhattaṁ piṇḍapātapaṭikkanto yena acelassa pāthikaputtassa ārāmo tenupasaṅkami divāvihārāya.

Abhikkamathāyasmanto abhikkamathāyasmanto, sādhurūpānaṁ samaṇānaṁ uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ bhavissatī’ti.

Atha kho, bhaggava, abhiññātānaṁ abhiññātānaṁ nānātitthiyānaṁ samaṇabrāhmaṇānaṁ etadahosi:
They all said,

‘sādhurūpānaṁ kira, bho, samaṇānaṁ uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ bhavissati;
‘It seems there will be a superhuman demonstration of psychic power by the holy ascetics!

handa vata, bho, gacchāmā’ti.
Let’s go!’

Atha kho, bhaggava, abhiññātā abhiññātā licchavī, abhiññātā abhiññātā ca brāhmaṇamahāsālā gahapatinecayikā nānātitthiyā samaṇabrāhmaṇā yena acelassa pāthikaputtassa ārāmo tenupasaṅkamiṁsu.
Then all those very well-known people went to Pāṭikaputta’s monastery.

Sā esā, bhaggava, parisā mahā hoti anekasatā anekasahassā.
That assembly was large, Bhaggava; there were many hundreds, many thousands of them.

Assosi kho, bhaggava, acelo pāthikaputto:
Pāṭikaputta heard,

‘abhikkantā kira abhiññātā abhiññātā licchavī, abhikkantā abhiññātā abhiññātā ca brāhmaṇamahāsālā gahapatinecayikā nānātitthiyā samaṇabrāhmaṇā.
‘It seems that very well-known Licchavis, well-to-do brahmins, rich householders, and ascetics and brahmins who follow various other paths have come forth.

Samaṇopi gotamo mayhaṁ ārāme divāvihāraṁ nisinno’ti.
And the ascetic Gotama is sitting in my monastery for the day’s meditation.’

Sutvānassa bhayaṁ chambhitattaṁ lomahaṁso udapādi.
When he heard that, he became frightened, scared, his hair standing on end.

Atha kho, bhaggava, acelo pāthikaputto bhīto saṁviggo lomahaṭṭhajāto yena tindukakhāṇuparibbājakārāmo tenupasaṅkami.
In fear he went to the Pale-Moon Ebony Trunk Monastery of the wanderers.

Assosi kho, bhaggava, sā parisā:
The assembly heard of this,

‘acelo kira pāthikaputto bhīto saṁviggo lomahaṭṭhajāto yena tindukakhāṇuparibbājakārāmo tenupasaṅkanto’ti.

Atha kho, bhaggava, sā parisā aññataraṁ purisaṁ āmantesi:
and instructed a man,

‘Ehi tvaṁ, bho purisa, yena tindukakhāṇuparibbājakārāmo, yena acelo pāthikaputto tenupasaṅkama. upasaṅkamitvā acelaṁ pāthikaputtaṁ evaṁ vadehi:
‘Come, my man, go to see Pāṭikaputta at the Pale-Moon Ebony Trunk Monastery and say to him,

“abhikkamāvuso, pāthikaputta, abhikkantā abhiññātā abhiññātā licchavī, abhikkantā abhiññātā abhiññātā ca brāhmaṇamahāsālā

gahapatinecayikā nānātitthiyā samaṇabrāhmaṇā, samaṇopi gotamo āyasmato ārāme divāvihāraṁ nisinno; “Come forth, Reverend Pāṭikaputta! All these very well-known people have come forth, and the ascetic Gotama is sitting in your monastery for the day’s meditation.

bhāsitā kho pana te esā, āvuso pāthikaputta, vesāliyaṁ parisati vācā
For you stated this in the assembly at Vesālī:

samaṇopi gotamo ñāṇavādo, ahampi ñāṇavādo.
‘Both the ascetic Gotama and I speak from knowledge.

Ñāṇavādo kho pana ñāṇavādena arahati uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ dassetuṁ.
One who speaks from knowledge ought to display a superhuman demonstration of psychic power to another who speaks from knowledge.

Samaṇo gotamo upaḍḍhapathaṁ āgaccheyya ahampi upaḍḍhapathaṁ gaccheyyaṁ.
If the ascetic Gotama meets me half-way,

Te tattha ubhopi uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ kareyyāma.
there we should both perform a superhuman demonstration of psychic power.

Ekañce samaṇo gotamo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissati, dvāhaṁ karissāmi.
If he performs one demonstration of psychic power, I’ll perform two.

Dve ce samaṇo gotamo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyāni karissati, cattārāhaṁ karissāmi.
If he performs two, I’ll perform four.

Cattāri ce samaṇo gotamo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyāni karissati, aṭṭhāhaṁ karissāmi.
If he performs four, I’ll perform eight.

Iti yāvatakaṁ yāvatakaṁ samaṇo gotamo uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ karissati, taddiguṇaṁ taddiguṇāhaṁ karissāmī”ti
However many demonstrations of psychic power the ascetic Gotama performs, I’ll perform double.’

abhikkamasseva kho āvuso pāthikaputta, upaḍḍhapathaṁ.
Come forth, Reverend Pāṭikaputta, half-way.

Sabbapaṭhamaṁyeva āgantvā samaṇo gotamo āyasmato ārāme divāvihāraṁ nisinno’ti.
The ascetic Gotama has come the first half, and is sitting in your monastery.”’

Evaṁ, bhoti kho, bhaggava, so puriso tassā parisāya paṭissutvā yena tindukakhāṇuparibbājakārāmo, yena acelo pāthikaputto tenupasaṅkami. upasaṅkamitvā acelaṁ pāthikaputtaṁ etadavoca:
‘Yes, sir,’ replied that man, and delivered the message.

‘abhikkamāvuso pāthikaputta, abhikkantā abhiññātā abhiññātā licchavī, abhikkantā abhiññātā abhiññātā ca brāhmaṇamahāsālā gahapatinecayikā nānātitthiyā samaṇabrāhmaṇā.

Samaṇopi gotamo āyasmato ārāme divāvihāraṁ nisinno.

Bhāsitā kho pana te esā, āvuso pāthikaputta, vesāliyaṁ parisati vācā—samaṇopi gotamo ñāṇavādo; ahampi ñāṇavādo.

Ñāṇavādo kho pana ñāṇavādena arahati uttari manussadhammā iddhipāṭihāriyaṁ dassetuṁ …pe…

taddiguṇaṁ taddiguṇāhaṁ karissāmīti.

Abhikkamasseva kho, āvuso pāthikaputta, upaḍḍhapathaṁ.

Sabbapaṭhamaṁyeva āgantvā samaṇo gotamo āyasmato ārāme divāvihāraṁ nisinno’ti.

Evaṁ vutte, bhaggava, acelo pāthikaputto ‘āyāmi, āvuso, āyāmi, āvuso’ti vatvā tattheva saṁsappati, na sakkoti āsanāpi vuṭṭhātuṁ.
When he had spoken, Pāṭika said: ‘I’m coming, sir, I’m coming!’ But wriggle as he might, he couldn’t get up from his seat.

Atha kho so, bhaggava, puriso acelaṁ pāthikaputtaṁ etadavoca:
Then that man said to Pāṭikaputta,

‘kiṁ su nāma te, āvuso pāthikaputta, pāvaḷā su nāma te pīṭhakasmiṁ allīnā, pīṭhakaṁ su nāma te pāvaḷāsu allīnaṁ?
‘What’s up, Reverend Pāṭikaputta? Is your bottom stuck to the bench, or is the bench stuck to your bottom?

Āyāmi āvuso, āyāmi āvusoti vatvā tattheva saṁsappasi, na sakkosi āsanāpi vuṭṭhātun’ti.
You say “I’m coming, sir, I’m coming!” But wriggle as you might, you can’t get up from your seat.’

Evampi kho, bhaggava, vuccamāno acelo pāthikaputto ‘āyāmi, āvuso, āyāmi, āvuso’ti vatvā tattheva saṁsappati, na sakkoti āsanāpi vuṭṭhātuṁ.
And as he was speaking, Pāṭika said: ‘I’m coming, sir, I’m coming!’ But wriggle as he might, he couldn’t get up from his seat.

Yadā kho so, bhaggava, puriso aññāsi:
When that man knew

‘parābhūtarūpo ayaṁ acelo pāthikaputto.
that Pāṭikaputta had lost,

Āyāmi, āvuso, āyāmi, āvusoti vatvā tattheva saṁsappati, na sakkoti āsanāpi vuṭṭhātun’ti.

Atha taṁ parisaṁ āgantvā evamārocesi:
he returned to the assembly and said,

‘parābhūtarūpo, bho, acelo pāthikaputto.
‘Pāṭikaputta has lost, sirs.

Āyāmi, āvuso, āyāmi, āvusoti vatvā tattheva saṁsappati, na sakkoti āsanāpi vuṭṭhātun’ti.
He says “I’m coming, sir, I’m coming!” But wriggle as he might, he can’t get up from his seat.’

Evaṁ vutte, ahaṁ, bhaggava, taṁ parisaṁ etadavocaṁ:
When he said this, I said to the assembly, ‘abhabbo kho, āvuso, acelo pāthikaputto taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā mama sammukhībhāvaṁ āgantuṁ.

‘The naked ascetic Pāṭikaputta is not capable of coming into my presence, unless he gives up that statement and that intention, and lets go of that view.

Sacepissa evamassa—
If he thinks he can

ahaṁ taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā samaṇassa gotamassa sammukhībhāvaṁ gaccheyyanti, muddhāpi tassa vipateyyā’ti.
come into my presence without giving up those things, his head may explode.’

Paṭhamabhāṇavāro niṭṭhito.
The first recitation section is finished.

Atha kho, bhaggava, aññataro licchavimahāmatto uṭṭhāyāsanā taṁ parisaṁ etadavoca:
Then, Bhaggava, a certain Licchavi minister stood up and said to the assembly, ‘tena hi, bho, muhuttaṁ tāva āgametha, yāvāhaṁ gacchāmi.

‘Well then, sirs, wait a moment, I’ll go.

Appeva nāma ahampi sakkuṇeyyaṁ acelaṁ pāthikaputtaṁ imaṁ parisaṁ ānetun’ti.
Hopefully I’ll be able to lead Pāṭikaputta back to the assembly.’

Atha kho so, bhaggava, licchavimahāmatto yena tindukakhāṇuparibbājakārāmo, yena acelo pāthikaputto tenupasaṅkami. upasaṅkamitvā acelaṁ pāthikaputtaṁ etadavoca:
So that minister went to see Pāṭikaputta and said,

‘abhikkamāvuso pāthikaputta, abhikkantaṁ te seyyo, abhikkantā abhiññātā abhiññātā licchavī, abhikkantā abhiññātā abhiññātā ca brāhmaṇamahāsālā gahapatinecayikā nānātitthiyā samaṇabrāhmaṇā. Samaṇopi gotamo āyasmato ārāme divāvihāraṁ nisinno.
‘Come forth, Reverend Pāṭikaputta! It’s best for you to come forth. All these very well-known people have come forth, and the ascetic Gotama is sitting in your monastery for the day’s meditation.

Bhāsitā kho pana te esā, āvuso pāthikaputta, vesāliyaṁ parisati vācā—
You said you’d meet the ascetic Gotama half-way.

samaṇopi gotamo ñāṇavādo …pe…

taddiguṇaṁ taddiguṇāhaṁ karissāmīti.

Abhikkamasseva kho, āvuso pāthikaputta, upaḍḍhapathaṁ.

Sabbapaṭhamaṁyeva āgantvā samaṇo gotamo āyasmato ārāme divāvihāraṁ nisinno.
The ascetic Gotama has come the first half, and is sitting in your monastery.

Bhāsitā kho panesā, āvuso pāthikaputta, samaṇena gotamena parisati vācā—
The ascetic Gotama has told the assembly abhabbo kho acelo pāthikaputto taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā mama sammukhībhāvaṁ āgantuṁ.

that you’re not capable of coming into his presence.

Sacepissa evamassa—

ahaṁ taṁ vācaṁ appahāya taṁ cittaṁ appahāya taṁ diṭṭhiṁ appaṭinissajjitvā samaṇassa gotamassa sammukhībhāvaṁ gaccheyyanti, muddhāpi tassa vipateyyāti.

Abhikkamāvuso pāthikaputta, abhikkamaneneva te jayaṁ karissāma, samaṇassa gotamassa parājayan'ti.
Come forth, Pāṭikaputta! When you come forth we'll make you win and the ascetic Gotama lose.'

Evaṁ vutte, bhaggava, acelo pāthikaputto 'āyāmi, āvuso, āyāmi, āvuso'ti vatvā tattheva saṁsappati, na sakkoti āsanāpi vuṭṭhātuṁ.
When he had spoken, Pāṭikaputta said: 'I'm coming, sir, I'm coming!' But wriggle as he might, he couldn't get up from his seat.

Atha kho so, bhaggava, licchavimahāmatto acelaṁ pāthikaputtaṁ etadavoca:

Then, Bhaggava, I educated, encouraged, fired up, and inspired that assembly with a Dhamma talk. I released that assembly from the great bondage, and lifted 84,000 beings from the great swamp. Next I entered upon the fire element, rose into the sky to the height of seven palm trees, and created a flame another seven palm trees high, blazing and smoking. Finally I landed at the Great Wood, in the hall with the peaked roof.

Passa, moghapurisa, yāvañca te idaṁ aparaddhan’ti.
See how far you have strayed!’

Evampi kho, bhaggava, sunakkhatto licchaviputto mayā vuccamāno apakkameva imasmā dhammavinayā, yathā taṁ āpāyiko nerayiko.
Though I spoke to Sunakkhatta like this, he still left this teaching and training, like someone on the highway to hell.

6. Aggaññapaññattikathā

6. On Describing the Origin of the World

Aggaññañcāhaṁ, bhaggava, pajānāmi.
Bhaggava, I understand the origin of the world.

Tañca pajānāmi, tato ca uttaritaraṁ pajānāmi, tañca pajānaṁ na parāmasāmi, aparāmasato ca me paccattaññeva nibbuti viditā, yadabhijānaṁ tathāgato no anayaṁ āpajjati.
I understand this, and what goes beyond it. Yet since I do not misapprehend that understanding, I have realized extinguishment within myself. Directly knowing this, the Realized One does not come to ruin.

Santi, bhaggava, eke samaṇabrāhmaṇā issarakuttaṁ brahmakuttaṁ ācariyakaṁ aggaññaṁ paññapenti.
There are some ascetics and brahmins who describe the origin of the world in their tradition as created by the Lord God, by Brahmā.

Tyāhaṁ upasaṅkamitvā evaṁ vadāmi:
I go up to them and say,

‘saccaṁ kira tumhe āyasmanto issarakuttaṁ brahmakuttaṁ ācariyakaṁ aggaññaṁ paññapethā’ti?
‘Is it really true that this is the venerables’ view?’

Te ca me evaṁ puṭṭhā, ‘āmo’ti paṭijānanti.

And they answer, ‘Yes’.

Tyāhaṁ evaṁ vadāmi:
I say to them,

‘kathaṁvihitakaṁ pana tumhe āyasmanto issarakuttaṁ brahmakuttaṁ ācariyakaṁ aggaññaṁ paññapethā’ti?
‘But how do you describe in your tradition that the origin of the world came about as created by the Lord God, by Brahmā?’

Te mayā puṭṭhā na sampāyanti, asampāyantā mamaññeva paṭipucchanti.
But they cannot answer, and they even question me in return.

Tesāhaṁ puṭṭho byākaromi:
So I answer them,

‘Hoti kho so, āvuso, samayo yaṁ kadāci karahaci dīghassa addhuno accayena ayaṁ loko saṁvaṭṭati.
‘There comes a time when, reverends, after a very long period has passed, this cosmos contracts.

Saṁvaṭṭamāne loke yebhuyyena sattā ābhassarasaṁvattanikā honti.
As the cosmos contracts, sentient beings are mostly headed for the realm of streaming radiance.

Te tattha honti manomayā pītibhakkhā sayaṁpabhā antalikkhacarā subhaṭṭhāyino ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ tiṭṭhanti.
There they are mind-made, feeding on rapture, self-luminous, moving through the sky, steadily glorious, and they remain like that for a very long time.

Hoti kho so, āvuso, samayo yaṁ kadāci karahaci dīghassa addhuno accayena ayaṁ loko vivaṭṭati.
There comes a time when, after a very long period has passed, this cosmos expands.

Vivaṭṭamāne loke suññaṁ brahmavimānaṁ pātubhavati.

As it expands an empty mansion of Brahmā appears.

Atha kho aññataro satto āyukkhayā vā puññakkhayā vā ābhassarakāyā cavitvā suññaṁ brahmavimānaṁ upapajjati.
Then a certain sentient being—due to the running out of their life-span or merit—passes away from that host of radiant deities and is reborn in that empty mansion of Brahmā.

So tattha hoti manomayo pītibhakkho sayampabho antalikkhacaro subhaṭṭhāyī, ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ tiṭṭhati.
There they are mind-made, feeding on rapture, self-luminous, moving through the sky, steadily glorious, and they remain like that for a very long time.

Tassa tattha ekakassa dīgharattaṁ nivusitattā anabhirati paritassanā uppajjati—
But after staying there all alone for a long time, they become dissatisfied and anxious,

aho vata aññepi sattā itthattaṁ āgaccheyyunti.
“Oh, if only another being would come to this state of existence.”

Atha aññepi sattā āyukkhayā vā puññakkhayā vā ābhassarakāyā cavitvā suññaṁ brahmavimānaṁ upapajjanti tassa sattassa sahabyataṁ.
Then other sentient beings—due to the running out of their life-span or merit—pass away from that host of radiant deities and are reborn in that empty mansion of Brahmā in company with that being.

Tepi tattha honti manomayā pītibhakkhā sayaṁpabhā antalikkhacarā subhaṭṭhāyino, ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ tiṭṭhanti.
There they too are mind-made, feeding on rapture, self-luminous, moving through the sky, steadily glorious, and they remain like that for a very long time.

Tatrāvuso, yo so satto paṭhamaṁ upapanno, tassa evaṁ hoti—
Now, the being who was reborn there first thinks, ahamasmi brahmā mahābrahmā abhibhū anabhibhūto aññadatthudaso vasavattī issaro kattā nimmātā seṭṭho sajitā vasī pitā bhūtabhabyānaṁ, mayā ime sattā nimmitā.

“I am Brahmā, the Great Brahmā, the Undefeated, the Champion, the Universal Seer, the Wielder of Power, the Lord God, the Maker, the Author, the Best, the Begetter, the Controller, the Father of those who have been born and those yet to be born.

Taṁ kissa hetu?
Why is that?

Mamañhi pubbe etadahosi—
Because first I thought,

aho vata aññepi sattā itthattaṁ āgaccheyyunti;
‘Oh, if only another being would come to this state of existence.’

iti mama ca manopaṇidhi. Ime ca sattā itthattaṁ āgatāti.
Such was my heart’s wish, and then these creatures came to this state of existence.”

Yepi te sattā pacchā upapannā, tesampi evaṁ hoti—
And the beings who were reborn there later also think, ayaṁ kho bhavaṁ brahmā mahābrahmā abhibhū anabhibhūto aññadatthudaso vasavattī issaro kattā nimmātā seṭṭho sajitā vasī pitā bhūtabhabyānaṁ;

“This must be Brahmā, the Great Brahmā, the Undefeated, the Champion, the Universal Seer, the Wielder of Power, the Lord God, the Maker, the Author, the Best, the Begetter, the Controller, the Father of those who have been born and those yet to be born.

iminā mayaṁ bhotā brahmunā nimmitā.
And we have been created by him.

Taṁ kissa hetu?
Why is that?

Imañhi mayaṁ addasāma idha paṭhamaṁ upapannaṁ; mayaṁ panāmha pacchā upapannāti.

Because we see that he was reborn here first, and we arrived later.”

Tatrāvuso, yo so satto paṭhamaṁ upapanno, so dīghāyukataro ca hoti vaṇṇavantataro ca mahesakkhataro ca.
And the being who was reborn first is more long-lived, beautiful, and illustrious than those who arrived later.

Ye pana te sattā pacchā upapannā, te appāyukatarā ca honti dubbaṇṇatarā ca appesakkhatarā ca.

Ṭhānaṁ kho panetaṁ, āvuso, vijjati, yaṁ aññataro satto tamhā kāyā cavitvā itthattaṁ āgacchati.
It’s possible that one of those beings passes away from that host and is reborn in this state of existence.

Itthattaṁ āgato samāno agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajati.
Having done so, they go forth from the lay life to homelessness.

Agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajito samāno ātappamanvāya padhānamanvāya anuyogamanvāya appamādamanvāya sammāmanasikāramanvāya tathārūpaṁ cetosamādhiṁ phusati, yathāsamāhite citte taṁ pubbenivāsaṁ anussarati; tato paraṁ nānussarati.
By dint of keen, resolute, committed, and diligent effort, and right focus, they experience an immersion of the heart of such a kind that they recollect that past life, but no further.

So evamāha:
They say:

‘viparīto samaṇo gotamo bhikkhavo ca.
‘The ascetic Gotama has a distorted perspective, and so have his monks.

Samaṇo gotamo evamāha—

He says,

yasmiṁ samaye subhaṁ vimokkhaṁ upasampajja viharati, sabbaṁ tasmiṁ samaye asubhantveva pajānātī’ti.
“When one enters and remains in the liberation of the beautiful, at that time one only perceives what is ugly.”

Yo ca me ayaṁ, bhante, bhagavati pasādo, tamevāhaṁ sādhukamanurakkhissāmī”ti.
I shall carefully preserve the confidence that I have in the Buddha.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Attamano bhaggavagotto paribbājako bhagavato bhāsitaṁ abhinandīti.
Satisfied, the wanderer Bhaggavagotta was happy with what the Buddha said.

25. Udumbarikasutta

The Lion’s Roar at Udumbarikā’s Monastery

1. Nigrodhaparibbājakavatthu

1. On the Wanderer Nigrodha

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā rājagahe viharati gijjhakūṭe pabbate.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Rājagaha, on the Vulture’s Peak Mountain.

Tena kho pana samayena nigrodho paribbājako udumbarikāya paribbājakārāme paṭivasati mahatiyā paribbājakaparisāya saddhiṁ tiṁsamattehi paribbājakasatehi.
Now at that time the wanderer Nigrodha was residing in the lady Udumbarikā’s monastery for wanderers, together with a large assembly of three thousand wanderers.

Atha kho sandhāno gahapati divā divassa rājagahā nikkhami bhagavantaṁ dassanāya.
Then the householder Sandhana left Rājagaha in the middle of the day to see the Buddha.

Atha kho sandhānassa gahapatissa etadahosi:
Then it occurred to him,

“akālo kho bhagavantaṁ dassanāya.
“It’s the wrong time to see the Buddha,

Paṭisallīno bhagavā.

as he’s in retreat.

Manobhāvanīyānampi bhikkhūnaṁ asamayo dassanāya.
And it’s the wrong time to see the esteemed mendicants,

Paṭisallīnā manobhāvanīyā bhikkhū.
as they’re in retreat.

Yannūnāhaṁ yena udumbarikāya paribbājakārāmo, yena nigrodho paribbājako tenupasaṅkameyyan”ti.
Why don’t I visit the wanderer Nigrodha at the lady Udumbarikā’s monastery for wanderers?”

Atha kho sandhāno gahapati yena udumbarikāya paribbājakārāmo, tenupasaṅkami.
So he went to the monastery of the wanderers.

Tena kho pana samayena nigrodho paribbājako mahatiyā paribbājakaparisāya saddhiṁ nisinno hoti unnādiniyā uccāsaddamahāsaddāya anekavihitaṁ tiracchānakathaṁ kathentiyā.
Now at that time, Nigrodha was sitting together with a large assembly of wanderers making an uproar, a dreadful racket. They engaged in all kinds of unworthy talk, such as Seyyathidaṁ—rājakathaṁ corakathaṁ mahāmattakathaṁ senākathaṁ bhayakathaṁ yuddhakathaṁ annakathaṁ pānakathaṁ vatthakathaṁ sayanakathaṁ mālākathaṁ gandhakathaṁ ñātikathaṁ yānakathaṁ gāmakathaṁ nigamakathaṁ nagarakathaṁ janapadakathaṁ itthikathaṁ sūrakathaṁ visikhākathaṁ kumbhaṭṭhānakathaṁ pubbapetakathaṁ nānattakathaṁ lokakkhāyikaṁ samuddakkhāyikaṁ itibhavābhavakathaṁ iti vā.

talk about kings, bandits, and ministers; talk about armies, threats, and wars; talk about food, drink, clothes, and beds; talk about garlands and fragrances; talk about family, vehicles, villages, towns, cities, and countries; talk about women and heroes; street talk and well talk; talk about the departed; motley talk; tales of land and sea; and talk about being reborn in this or that state of existence.

Addasā kho nigrodho paribbājako sandhānaṁ gahapatiṁ dūratova āgacchantaṁ.
Nigrodha saw Sandhāna coming off in the distance,

Disvā sakaṁ parisaṁ saṇṭhāpesi:
and hushed his own assembly:

“appasaddā bhonto hontu, mā bhonto saddamakattha.
“Be quiet, good sirs, don’t make a sound.

Ayaṁ samaṇassa gotamassa sāvako āgacchati sandhāno gahapati.
The householder Sandhāna, a disciple of the ascetic Gotama, is coming.

Yāvatā kho pana samaṇassa gotamassa sāvakā gihī odātavasanā rājagahe paṭivasanti, ayaṁ tesaṁ aññataro sandhāno gahapati.
He is included among the white-clothed lay disciples of the ascetic Gotama, who is residing near Rājagaha.

Appasaddakāmā kho panete āyasmanto appasaddavinītā, appasaddassa vaṇṇavādino.
Such venerables like the quiet, are educated to be quiet, and praise the quiet.

Appeva nāma appasaddaṁ parisaṁ viditvā upasaṅkamitabbaṁ maññeyyā”ti.
Hopefully if he sees that our assembly is quiet he’ll see fit to approach.”

Evaṁ vutte, te paribbājakā tuṇhī ahesuṁ.
Then those wanderers fell silent.

Atha kho sandhāno gahapati yena nigrodho paribbājako tenupasaṅkami, upasaṅkamitvā nigrodhena paribbājakena saddhiṁ sammodi.

Then Sandhāna went up to the wanderer Nigrodha, and exchanged greetings with him.

Sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho sandhāno gahapati nigrodhaṁ paribbājakaṁ etadavoca:
When the greetings and polite conversation were over, he sat down to one side and said to Nigrodha, “aññathā kho ime bhonto aññatitthiyā paribbājakā saṅgamma samāgamma unnādino uccāsaddamahāsaddā anekavihitaṁ tiracchānakathaṁ anuyuttā viharanti.

“The way the wanderers make an uproar as they sit together and talk about all kinds of unworthy topics is one thing.

Seyyathidaṁ—rājakathaṁ …pe… itibhavābhavakathaṁ iti vā.

Aññathā kho pana so bhagavā araññavanapatthāni pantāni senāsanāni paṭisevati appasaddāni appanigghosāni vijanavātāni manussarāhasseyyakāni paṭisallānasāruppānī”ti.
It’s quite different to the way the Buddha frequents remote lodgings in the wilderness and the forest that are quiet and still, far from the madding crowd, remote from human settlements, and fit for retreat.”

Evaṁ vutte, nigrodho paribbājako sandhānaṁ gahapatiṁ etadavoca:
When Sandhāna said this, Nigrodha said to him,

“yagghe, gahapati, jāneyyāsi, kena samaṇo gotamo saddhiṁ sallapati, kena sākacchaṁ samāpajjati, kena paññāveyyattiyaṁ samāpajjati?
“Surely, householder, you should know better! With whom does the ascetic Gotama converse? With whom does he engage in discussion? With whom does he achieve lucidity of wisdom?

Suññāgārahatā samaṇassa gotamassa paññā aparisāvacaro samaṇo gotamo nālaṁ sallāpāya.

Staying in empty huts has destroyed the ascetic Gotama’s wisdom. Not frequenting assemblies, he is unable to hold a discussion.

So antamantāneva sevati.
He just lurks on the periphery.

Seyyathāpi nāma gokāṇā pariyantacārinī antamantāneva sevati.
He’s just like the nilgai antelope, circling around and lurking on the periphery.

Evameva suññāgārahatā samaṇassa gotamassa paññā;

aparisāvacaro samaṇo gotamo;

nālaṁ sallāpāya.

So antamantāneva sevati.

Iṅgha, gahapati, samaṇo gotamo imaṁ parisaṁ āgaccheyya, ekapañheneva naṁ saṁsādeyyāma, tucchakumbhīva naṁ maññe orodheyyāmā”ti.
Please, householder, let the ascetic Gotama come to this assembly. I’ll sink him with just one question! I’ll roll him over and wrap him up like a hollow pot!”

Assosi kho bhagavā dibbāya sotadhātuyā visuddhāya atikkantamānusikāya sandhānassa gahapatissa nigrodhena paribbājakena saddhiṁ imaṁ kathāsallāpaṁ.
With clairaudience that is purified and superhuman, the Buddha heard this discussion between the householder Sandhāna and the wanderer Nigrodha.

Atha kho bhagavā gijjhakūṭā pabbatā orohitvā yena sumāgadhāya tīre moranivāpo tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā sumāgadhāya tīre moranivāpe abbhokāse caṅkami.
Then the Buddha descended Vulture’s Peak Mountain and went to the peacocks’ feeding ground on the bank of the Sumāgadhā, where he walked mindfully in the open air.

Addasā kho nigrodho paribbājako bhagavantaṁ sumāgadhāya tīre moranivāpe abbhokāse caṅkamantaṁ.
Nigrodha saw him,

Disvāna sakaṁ parisaṁ saṇṭhāpesi:
and hushed his own assembly:

“appasaddā bhonto hontu, mā bhonto saddamakattha, ayaṁ samaṇo gotamo sumāgadhāya tīre moranivāpe abbhokāse caṅkamati.
“Be quiet, good sirs, don’t make a sound. The ascetic Gotama is walking mindfully on the bank of the Sumāgadhā.

Appasaddakāmo kho pana so āyasmā, appasaddassa vaṇṇavādī.
The venerable likes quiet and praises quiet.

Appeva nāma appasaddaṁ parisaṁ viditvā upasaṅkamitabbaṁ maññeyya.
Hopefully if he sees that our assembly is quiet he’ll see fit to approach.

Sace samaṇo gotamo imaṁ parisaṁ āgaccheyya, imaṁ taṁ pañhaṁ puccheyyāma:
If he comes, I’ll ask him this question:

‘ko nāma so, bhante, bhagavato dhammo, yena bhagavā sāvake vineti, yena bhagavatā sāvakā vinītā assāsappattā paṭijānanti ajjhāsayaṁ ādibrahmacariyan’”ti?
‘Sir, what teaching do you use to guide your disciples, through which they claim solace in the fundamental purpose of the spiritual life?’”

Evaṁ vutte, te paribbājakā tuṇhī ahesuṁ.
Then those wanderers fell silent.

2. Tapojigucchāvāda

2. Mortification in Disgust of Sin

Atha kho bhagavā yena nigrodho paribbājako tenupasaṅkami.
Then the Buddha went up to the wanderer Nigrodha,

Atha kho nigrodho paribbājako bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
who said to him,

“etu kho, bhante, bhagavā, svāgataṁ, bhante, bhagavato.
“Come, Blessed One! Welcome, Blessed One!

Cirassaṁ kho, bhante, bhagavā imaṁ pariyāyamakāsi yadidaṁ idhāgamanāya.
It’s been a long time since you took the opportunity to come here.

Nisīdatu, bhante, bhagavā, idamāsanaṁ paññattan”ti.
Please, sir, sit down, this seat is ready.”

Nisīdi bhagavā paññatte āsane.
The Buddha sat on the seat spread out,

Nigrodhopi kho paribbājako aññataraṁ nīcāsanaṁ gahetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi.
while Nigrodha took a low seat and sat to one side.

Ekamantaṁ nisinnaṁ kho nigrodhaṁ paribbājakaṁ bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said to him,

“kāya nuttha, nigrodha, etarahi kathāya sannisinnā, kā ca pana vo antarākathā vippakatā”ti?
“Nigrodha, what were you sitting talking about just now? What conversation was unfinished?”

Evaṁ vutte, nigrodho paribbājako bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Nigrodha said,

“idha mayaṁ, bhante, addasāma bhagavantaṁ sumāgadhāya tīre moranivāpe abbhokāse caṅkamantaṁ, disvāna evaṁ avocumhā:
“Well, sir, I saw you walking mindfully and said:

‘sace samaṇo gotamo imaṁ parisaṁ āgaccheyya, imaṁ taṁ pañhaṁ puccheyyāma:
‘If the ascetic Gotama comes, I’ll ask him this question:

“ko nāma so, bhante, bhagavato dhammo, yena bhagavā sāvake vineti, yena bhagavatā sāvakā vinītā assāsappattā paṭijānanti ajjhāsayaṁ ādibrahmacariyan”’ti?
“Sir, what teaching do you use to guide your disciples, through which they claim solace in the fundamental purpose of the spiritual life?”’

Ayaṁ kho no, bhante, antarākathā vippakatā; atha bhagavā anuppatto”ti.
This is the conversation that was unfinished when the Buddha arrived.”

“Dujjānaṁ kho etaṁ, nigrodha, tayā aññadiṭṭhikena aññakhantikena aññarucikena aññatrāyogena aññatrācariyakena, yenāhaṁ sāvake vinemi, yena mayā sāvakā vinītā assāsappattā paṭijānanti ajjhāsayaṁ ādibrahmacariyaṁ.
“It’s hard for you to understand this, Nigrodha, since you have a different view, creed, preference, practice, and tradition.

Iṅgha tvaṁ maṁ, nigrodha, sake ācariyake adhijegucche pañhaṁ puccha:
Please ask me a question about the higher mortification in disgust of sin in your own tradition:

‘kathaṁ santā nu kho, bhante, tapojigucchā paripuṇṇā hoti, kathaṁ aparipuṇṇā’”ti?
‘How are the conditions for the mortification in disgust of sin completed, and how are they incomplete?’”

Evaṁ vutte, te paribbājakā unnādino uccāsaddamahāsaddā ahesuṁ:
When he said this, those wanderers made an uproar,

“acchariyaṁ vata bho, abbhutaṁ vata bho, samaṇassa gotamassa mahiddhikatā mahānubhāvatā, yatra hi nāma sakavādaṁ ṭhapessati, paravādena pavāressatī”ti.

“It’s incredible, it’s amazing! The ascetic Gotama has such power and might! For he sets aside his own doctrine and invites discussion on the doctrine of others!”

Atha kho nigrodho paribbājako te paribbājake appasadde katvā bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Nigrodha, having quieted those wanderers, said to the Buddha, “mayaṁ kho, bhante, tapojigucchāvādā tapojigucchāsārā tapojigucchāallīnā viharāma.

“Sir, we teach mortification in disgust of sin, regarding it as essential and clinging to it.

Kathaṁ santā nu kho, bhante, tapojigucchā paripuṇṇā hoti, kathaṁ aparipuṇṇā”ti?
How are the conditions for the mortification in disgust of sin completed, and how are they incomplete?”

“Idha, nigrodha, tapassī acelako hoti muttācāro, hatthāpalekhano, naehibhaddantiko, natiṭṭhabhaddantiko, nābhihaṭaṁ, na uddissakataṁ, na nimantanaṁ sādiyati, “It’s when a mortifier goes naked, ignoring conventions. They lick their hands, and don’t come or wait when asked. They don’t consent to food brought to them, or food prepared on purpose for them, or an invitation for a meal.

And how is a mortifier restrained in the fourfold restraint?

Idha, nigrodha, tapassī na pāṇaṁ atipāteti, na pāṇaṁ atipātayati, na pāṇamatipātayato samanuñño hoti.
It’s when a mortifier doesn’t kill living creatures, doesn’t get others to kill, and doesn’t approve of killing.

Na adinnaṁ ādiyati, na adinnaṁ ādiyāpeti, na adinnaṁ ādiyato samanuñño hoti.
They don’t steal, get others to steal, or approve of stealing.

Na bhāvitamāsīsati, na bhāvitamāsīsāpeti, na bhāvitamāsīsato samanuñño hoti.
They don’t expect rewards from their practice, they don’t lead others to expect rewards, and they don’t approve of expecting rewards.

Giving up ill will and malevolence, they meditate with a mind rid of ill will, full of compassion for all living beings, cleansing the mind of ill will.

Thinamiddhaṁ pahāya vigatathinamiddho viharati ālokasaññī sato sampajāno, thinamiddhā cittaṁ parisodheti.
Giving up dullness and drowsiness, they meditate with a mind rid of dullness and drowsiness, perceiving light, mindful and aware, cleansing the mind of dullness and drowsiness.

With clairvoyance that is purified and superhuman, they see sentient beings passing away and being reborn—inferior and superior, beautiful and ugly, in a good place or a bad place. They understand how sentient beings are reborn according to their deeds: ‘These dear beings did bad things by way of body, speech, and mind. They spoke ill of the noble ones; they had wrong view; and they chose to act out of that wrong view. When their body breaks up, after death, they’re reborn in a place of loss, a bad place, the underworld, hell. These dear beings, however, did good things by way of body, speech, and mind. They never spoke ill of the noble ones; they had right view; and they chose to act out of that right view. When their body breaks up, after death, they’re reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.’ And so, with clairvoyance that is purified and superhuman, they see sentient beings passing away and being reborn—inferior and superior, beautiful and ugly, in a good place or a bad place. You might think,

‘uddesā no cāvetukāmo samaṇo gotamo evamāhā’ti.
‘The ascetic Gotama speaks like this because he wants us to give up our recitation.’

Na kho panetaṁ, nigrodha, evaṁ daṭṭhabbaṁ.
But you should not see it like this.

Yo eva vo uddeso so eva vo uddeso hotu.
Let your recitation remain as it is.

Siyā kho pana te, nigrodha, evamassa:
You might think,

‘ājīvā no cāvetukāmo samaṇo gotamo evamāhā’ti.

‘The ascetic Gotama speaks like this because he wants us to give up our livelihood.’

Na kho panetaṁ, nigrodha, evaṁ daṭṭhabbaṁ.
But you should not see it like this.

Yo eva vo ājīvo, so eva vo ājīvo hotu.
Let your livelihood remain as it is.

Siyā kho pana te, nigrodha, evamassa:
You might think,

‘ye no dhammā akusalā akusalasaṅkhātā sācariyakānaṁ, tesu patiṭṭhāpetukāmo samaṇo gotamo evamāhā’ti.
‘The ascetic Gotama speaks like this because he wants us to start doing things that are unskillful and considered unskillful in our tradition.’

Na kho panetaṁ, nigrodha, evaṁ daṭṭhabbaṁ.
But you should not see it like this.

Akusalā ceva vo te dhammā hontu akusalasaṅkhātā ca sācariyakānaṁ.
Let those things that are unskillful and considered unskillful in your tradition remain as they are.

Siyā kho pana te, nigrodha, evamassa:
You might think,

‘ye no dhammā kusalā kusalasaṅkhātā sācariyakānaṁ, tehi vivecetukāmo samaṇo gotamo evamāhā’ti.
‘The ascetic Gotama speaks like this because he wants us to stop doing things that are skillful and considered skillful in our tradition.’

Na kho panetaṁ, nigrodha, evaṁ daṭṭhabbaṁ.
But you should not see it like this.

Kusalā ceva vo te dhammā hontu kusalasaṅkhātā ca sācariyakānaṁ.

Let those things that are skillful and considered skillful in your tradition remain as they are.

Iti khvāhaṁ, nigrodha, neva antevāsikamyatā evaṁ vadāmi, napi uddesā cāvetukāmo evaṁ vadāmi, napi ājīvā cāvetukāmo evaṁ vadāmi, napi ye vo dhammā akusalā akusalasaṅkhātā sācariyakānaṁ, tesu patiṭṭhāpetukāmo evaṁ vadāmi, napi ye vo dhammā kusalā kusalasaṅkhātā sācariyakānaṁ, tehi vivecetukāmo evaṁ vadāmi.
I do not speak for any of these reasons.

Santi ca kho, nigrodha, akusalā dhammā appahīnā saṅkilesikā ponobbhavikā sadarā dukkhavipākā āyatiṁ jātijarāmaraṇiyā, yesāhaṁ pahānāya dhammaṁ desemi.
Nigrodha, there are things that are unskillful, corrupted, leading to future lives, hurtful, resulting in suffering and future rebirth, old age, and death. I teach Dhamma so that those things may be given up.

Yathāpaṭipannānaṁ vo saṅkilesikā dhammā pahīyissanti, vodānīyā dhammā abhivaḍḍhissanti, paññāpāripūriṁ vepullattañca diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharissathā”ti.
When you practice accordingly, corrupting qualities will be given up in you and cleansing qualities will grow. You’ll enter and remain in the fullness and abundance of wisdom, having realized it with your own insight in this very life.”

Evaṁ vutte, te paribbājakā tuṇhībhūtā maṅkubhūtā pattakkhandhā adhomukhā pajjhāyantā appaṭibhānā nisīdiṁsu yathā taṁ mārena pariyuṭṭhitacittā.
When this was said, those wanderers sat silent, dismayed, shoulders drooping, downcast, depressed, with nothing to say, as if their minds were possessed by Māra.

Atha kho bhagavato etadahosi:
Then the Buddha thought,

“sabbepime moghapurisā phuṭṭhā pāpimatā.
“All these foolish people have been touched by the Wicked One!

Yatra hi nāma ekassapi na evaṁ bhavissati:
For not even a single one thinks,

‘handa mayaṁ aññāṇatthampi samaṇe gotame brahmacariyaṁ carāma, kiṁ karissati sattāho’”ti?
‘Come, let us lead the spiritual life under the ascetic Gotama for the sake of enlightenment—for what do seven days matter?’

Atha kho bhagavā udumbarikāya paribbājakārāme sīhanādaṁ naditvā vehāsaṁ abbhuggantvā gijjhakūṭe pabbate paccupaṭṭhāsi.
Then the Buddha, having roared his lion’s roar in the lady Udumbarikā’s monastery for wanderers, rose into the air and landed on Vulture’s Peak.

Sandhāno pana gahapati tāvadeva rājagahaṁ pāvisīti.
Meanwhile, the householder Sandhāna just went back to Rājagaha.

Udumbarikasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ dutiyaṁ.

The Wheel-Turning Monarch

1. Attadīpasaraṇatā

1. Taking Refuge in Oneself

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā magadhesu viharati mātulāyaṁ.
At one time the Buddha was staying in the land of the Magadhans at Mātulā.

Tatra kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
There the Buddha addressed the mendicants,

“bhikkhavo”ti.
“Mendicants!”

“Bhaddante”ti te bhikkhū bhagavato paccassosuṁ.
“Venerable sir,” they replied.

Bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said this:

“Attadīpā, bhikkhave, viharatha attasaraṇā anaññasaraṇā, dhammadīpā dhammasaraṇā anaññasaraṇā.
“Mendicants, be your own island, your own refuge, with no other refuge. Let the teaching be your island and your refuge, with no other refuge.

Kathañca pana, bhikkhave, bhikkhu attadīpo viharati attasaraṇo anaññasaraṇo, dhammadīpo dhammasaraṇo anaññasaraṇo?
And how does a mendicant do this?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ.
They meditate observing an aspect of the body—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

Vedanāsu vedanānupassī …pe…
They meditate observing an aspect of feelings …

citte cittānupassī …pe…
mind …

dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ.
principles—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

Evaṁ kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu attadīpo viharati attasaraṇo anaññasaraṇo, dhammadīpo dhammasaraṇo anaññasaraṇo.
That’s how a mendicant is their own island, their own refuge, with no other refuge. That’s how they let the teaching be their island and their refuge, with no other refuge.

Gocare, bhikkhave, caratha sake pettike visaye.
You should roam inside your own territory, the domain of your fathers.

Gocare, bhikkhave, carataṁ sake pettike visaye na lacchati māro otāraṁ, na lacchati māro ārammaṇaṁ.
If you roam inside your own territory, the domain of your fathers, Māra won’t catch you or get hold of you.

Kusalānaṁ, bhikkhave, dhammānaṁ samādānahetu evamidaṁ puññaṁ pavaḍḍhati.
It is due to undertaking skillful qualities that this merit grows.

2. Daḷhanemicakkavattirājā

2. King Daḷhanemi

Bhūtapubbaṁ, bhikkhave, rājā daḷhanemi nāma ahosi cakkavattī dhammiko dhammarājā cāturanto vijitāvī janapadatthāvariyappatto sattaratanasamannāgato.
Once upon a time, mendicants, there was a king named Daḷhanemi who was a wheel-turning monarch, a just and principled king. His dominion extended to all four sides, he achieved stability in the country, and he possessed the seven treasures.

Tassimāni satta ratanāni ahesuṁ seyyathidaṁ—
He had the following seven treasures:

cakkaratanaṁ hatthiratanaṁ assaratanaṁ maṇiratanaṁ itthiratanaṁ gahapatiratanaṁ pariṇāyakaratanameva sattamaṁ.
the wheel, the elephant, the horse, the jewel, the woman, the treasurer, and the counselor as the seventh treasure.

Parosahassaṁ kho panassa puttā ahesuṁ sūrā vīraṅgarūpā parasenappamaddanā.
He had over a thousand sons who were valiant and heroic, crushing the armies of his enemies.

So imaṁ pathaviṁ sāgarapariyantaṁ adaṇḍena asatthena dhammena abhivijiya ajjhāvasi.
After conquering this land girt by sea, he reigned by principle, without rod or sword.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, rājā daḷhanemi bahunnaṁ vassānaṁ bahunnaṁ vassasatānaṁ bahunnaṁ vassasahassānaṁ accayena aññataraṁ purisaṁ āmantesi:
Then, after many years, many hundred years, many thousand years had passed, King Daḷhanemi addressed one of his men, ‘yadā tvaṁ, ambho purisa, passeyyāsi dibbaṁ cakkaratanaṁ osakkitaṁ ṭhānā cutaṁ, atha me āroceyyāsī’ti.

‘My good man, when you see that the heavenly wheel-treasure has receded back from its place, please tell me.’

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, bhikkhave, so puriso rañño daḷhanemissa paccassosi.
‘Yes, Your Majesty,’ replied that man.

Addasā kho, bhikkhave, so puriso bahunnaṁ vassānaṁ bahunnaṁ vassasatānaṁ bahunnaṁ vassasahassānaṁ accayena dibbaṁ cakkaratanaṁ osakkitaṁ ṭhānā cutaṁ, disvāna yena rājā daḷhanemi tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā rājānaṁ daḷhanemiṁ etadavoca:
After many thousand years had passed, that man saw that the heavenly wheel-treasure had receded back from its place. So he went to King Daḷhanemi and said, ‘yagghe, deva, jāneyyāsi, dibbaṁ te cakkaratanaṁ osakkitaṁ ṭhānā cutan’ti.

‘Please sire, you should know that your heavenly wheel-treasure has receded back from its place.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, rājā daḷhanemi jeṭṭhaputtaṁ kumāraṁ āmantāpetvā etadavoca:
So the king summoned the crown prince and said,

‘dibbaṁ kira me, tāta kumāra, cakkaratanaṁ osakkitaṁ ṭhānā cutaṁ.
‘Dear prince, my heavenly wheel-treasure has receded back from its place.

Sutaṁ kho pana metaṁ—I’ve heard that

yassa rañño cakkavattissa dibbaṁ cakkaratanaṁ osakkati ṭhānā cavati, na dāni tena raññā ciraṁ jīvitabbaṁ hotīti.
when this happens to a wheel-turning monarch, he does not have long to live.

Bhuttā kho pana me mānusakā kāmā, samayo dāni me dibbe kāme pariyesituṁ.
I have enjoyed human pleasures. Now it is time for me to seek heavenly pleasures.

Ehi tvaṁ, tāta kumāra, imaṁ samuddapariyantaṁ pathaviṁ paṭipajja.
Come, dear prince, rule this land surrounded by ocean!

Ahaṁ pana kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajissāmī'ti.
I shall shave off my hair and beard, dress in ocher robes, and go forth from the lay life to homelessness.'

Atha kho, bhikkhave, rājā daḷhanemi jeṭṭhaputtaṁ kumāraṁ sādhukaṁ rajje samanusāsitvā kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbaji.
And so, after carefully instructing the crown prince in kingship, King Daḷhanemi shaved off his hair and beard, dressed in ocher robes, and went forth from the lay life to homelessness.

Sattāhapabbajite kho pana, bhikkhave, rājisimhi dibbaṁ cakkaratanaṁ antaradhāyi.
Seven days later the heavenly wheel-treasure vanished.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, aññataro puriso yena rājā khattiyo muddhābhisitto tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā rājānaṁ khattiyaṁ muddhābhisittaṁ etadavoca:
Then a certain man approached the newly anointed aristocrat king and said,

'yagghe, deva, jāneyyāsi, dibbaṁ cakkaratanaṁ antarahitan'ti.
'Please sire, you should know that the heavenly wheel-treasure has vanished.'

Atha kho, bhikkhave, rājā khattiyo muddhābhisitto dibbe cakkaratane antarahite anattamano ahosi, anattamanatañca paṭisaṁvedesi.

At that the king was unhappy and experienced unhappiness.

So yena rājisi tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā rājisiṁ etadavoca:
He went to the royal sage and said,

‘yagghe, deva, jāneyyāsi, dibbaṁ cakkaratanaṁ antarahitan’ti.
‘Please sire, you should know that the heavenly wheel-treasure has vanished.’

Evaṁ vutte, bhikkhave, rājisi rājānaṁ khattiyaṁ muddhābhisittaṁ etadavoca:
When he said this, the royal sage said to him,

‘mā kho tvaṁ, tāta, dibbe cakkaratane antarahite anattamano ahosi, mā anattamanatañca paṭisaṁvedesi, na hi te, tāta, dibbaṁ cakkaratanaṁ pettikaṁ dāyajjaṁ.
‘Don’t be unhappy at the vanishing of the wheel-treasure. My dear, the wheel-treasure is not inherited from your father.

Iṅgha tvaṁ, tāta, ariye cakkavattivatte vattāhi.
Come now, my dear, implement the noble duties of a wheel-turning monarch.

Ṭhānaṁ kho panetaṁ vijjati, yaṁ te ariye cakkavattivatte vattamānassa tadahuposathe pannarase sīsaṁnhātassa uposathikassa uparipāsādavaragatassa dibbaṁ cakkaratanaṁ pātubhavissati sahassāraṁ sanemikaṁ sanābhikaṁ sabbākāraparipūran’ti.
If you do so, it’s possible that—on a fifteenth day sabbath, having bathed your head and gone upstairs in the stilt longhouse to observe the sabbath—the heavenly wheel-treasure will appear to you, with a thousand spokes, with rim and hub, complete in every detail.’

2.1. Cakkavattiariyavatta

2.1. The Noble Duties of a Wheel-Turning Monarch

‘Katamaṁ pana taṁ, deva, ariyaṁ cakkavattivattan’ti?

‘But sire, what are the noble duties of a wheel-turning monarch?’

‘Tena hi tvaṁ, tāta, dhammaṁyeva nissāya dhammaṁ sakkaronto dhammaṁ garuṁ karonto dhammaṁ mānento dhammaṁ pūjento dhammaṁ apacāyamāno dhammaddhajo dhammaketu dhammādhipateyyo dhammikaṁ rakkhāvaraṇaguttiṁ saṁvidahassu antojanasmiṁ balakāyasmiṁ khattiyesu anuyantesu brāhmaṇagahapatikesu negamajānapadesu samaṇabrāhmaṇesu migapakkhīsu.
‘Well then, my dear, relying only on principle—honoring, respecting, and venerating principle, having principle as your flag, banner, and authority—provide just protection and security for your court, troops, aristocrats, vassals, brahmins and householders, people of town and country, ascetics and brahmins, beasts and birds.

Mā ca te, tāta, vijite adhammakāro pavattittha.
Do not let injustice prevail in the realm.

Ye ca te, tāta, vijite adhanā assu, tesañca dhanamanuppadeyyāsi.
Pay money to the penniless in the realm.

Ye ca te, tāta, vijite samaṇabrāhmaṇā madappamādā paṭiviratā khantisoracce niviṭṭhā ekamattānaṁ damenti, ekamattānaṁ samenti, ekamattānaṁ parinibbāpenti, te kālena kālaṁ upasaṅkamitvā paripuccheyyāsi pariggaṇheyyāsi:
And there are ascetics and brahmins in the realm who avoid intoxication and negligence, are settled in patience and gentleness, and who tame, calm, and extinguish themselves. From time to time you should go up to them and ask:

“kiṁ, bhante, kusalaṁ, kiṁ akusalaṁ, kiṁ sāvajjaṁ, kiṁ anavajjaṁ, kiṁ sevitabbaṁ, kiṁ na sevitabbaṁ, kiṁ me karīyamānaṁ dīgharattaṁ ahitāya dukkhāya assa, kiṁ vā pana me karīyamānaṁ dīgharattaṁ hitāya sukhāya assā”ti?
“Sirs, what is skillful? What is unskillful? What is blameworthy? What is blameless? What should be cultivated? What should not be cultivated? Doing what leads to my lasting harm and suffering? Doing what leads to my lasting welfare and happiness?”

Tesaṁ sutvā yaṁ akusalaṁ taṁ abhinivajjeyyāsi, yaṁ kusalaṁ taṁ samādāya vatteyyāsi.
Having heard them, you should reject what is unskillful and undertake and follow what is skillful.

Idaṁ kho, tāta, taṁ ariyaṁ cakkavattivattan’ti.
These are the noble duties of a wheel-turning monarch.’

2.2. Cakkaratanapātubhāva

2.2. The Wheel-Treasure Appears

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, bhikkhave, rājā khattiyo muddhābhisitto rājisissa paṭissutvā ariye cakkavattivatte vatti.
‘Yes, Your Majesty,’ replied the new king to the royal sage. And he implemented the noble duties of a wheel-turning monarch.

Tassa ariye cakkavattivatte vattamānassa tadahuposathe pannarase sīsaṁnhātassa uposathikassa uparipāsādavaragatassa
While he was implementing them, on a fifteenth day sabbath, he had bathed his head and gone upstairs in the stilt longhouse to observe the sabbath.

dibbaṁ cakkaratanaṁ pāturahosi sahassāraṁ sanemikaṁ sanābhikaṁ sabbākāraparipūraṁ.
And the heavenly wheel-treasure appeared to him, with a thousand spokes, with rim and hub, complete in every detail.

Disvāna rañño khattiyassa muddhābhisittassa etadahosi:
Seeing this, the king thought,

‘sutaṁ kho pana metaṁ—yassa rañño khattiyassa muddhābhisittassa tadahuposathe pannarase sīsaṁnhātassa uposathikassa uparipāsādavaragatassa dibbaṁ cakkaratanaṁ pātubhavati sahassāraṁ sanemikaṁ sanābhikaṁ sabbākāraparipūraṁ, so hoti rājā cakkavattīti.

‘I have heard that when the heavenly wheel-treasure appears to a king in this way, he becomes a wheel-turning monarch.

Assaṁ nu kho ahaṁ rājā cakkavattī’ti.
Am I then a wheel-turning monarch?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, rājā khattiyo muddhābhisitto uṭṭhāyāsanā ekaṁsaṁ uttarāsaṅgaṁ karitvā vāmena hatthena bhiṅkāraṁ gahetvā dakkhiṇena hatthena cakkaratanaṁ abbhukkiri:
Then the anointed king, rising from his seat and arranging his robe over one shoulder, took a ceremonial vase in his left hand and besprinkled the wheel-treasure with his right hand, saying, ‘pavattatu bhavaṁ cakkaratanaṁ, abhivijinātu bhavaṁ cakkaratanan’ti.

‘Roll forth, O wheel-treasure! Triumph, O wheel-treasure!’

Atha kho taṁ, bhikkhave, cakkaratanaṁ puratthimaṁ disaṁ pavatti, anvadeva rājā cakkavattī saddhiṁ caturaṅginiyā senāya. Yasmiṁ kho pana, bhikkhave, padese cakkaratanaṁ patiṭṭhāsi, tattha rājā cakkavattī vāsaṁ upagacchi saddhiṁ caturaṅginiyā senāya.
Then the wheel-treasure rolled towards the east. And the king followed it together with his army of four divisions. In whatever place the wheel-treasure stood still, there the king came to stay together with his army.

Ye kho pana, bhikkhave, puratthimāya disāya paṭirājāno, te rājānaṁ cakkavattiṁ upasaṅkamitvā evamāhaṁsu:
And any opposing rulers of the eastern quarter came to the wheel-turning monarch and said, ‘ehi kho, mahārāja, svāgataṁ te mahārāja, sakaṁ te, mahārāja, anusāsa, mahārājā’ti.

‘Come, great king! Welcome, great king! We are yours, great king, instruct us.’

Rājā cakkavattī evamāha:
The wheel-turning monarch said,

‘pāṇo na hantabbo, adinnaṁ nādātabbaṁ, kāmesumicchā na caritabbā, musā na bhāsitabbā, majjaṁ na pātabbaṁ, yathābhuttañca bhuñjathā’ti.
‘Do not kill living creatures. Do not steal. Do not commit sexual misconduct. Do not lie. Do not drink alcohol. Maintain the current level of taxation.’

Ye kho pana, bhikkhave, puratthimāya disāya paṭirājāno, te rañño cakkavattissa anuyantā ahesuṁ.
And so the opposing rulers of the eastern quarter became his vassals.

Atha kho taṁ, bhikkhave, cakkaratanaṁ puratthimaṁ samuddaṁ ajjhogāhetvā paccuttaritvā dakkhiṇaṁ disaṁ pavatti …pe…
Then the wheel-treasure, having plunged into the eastern ocean and emerged again, rolled towards the south. …

dakkhiṇaṁ samuddaṁ ajjhogāhetvā paccuttaritvā pacchimaṁ disaṁ pavatti, anvadeva rājā cakkavattī saddhiṁ caturaṅginiyā senāya.
Having plunged into the southern ocean and emerged again, it rolled towards the west. …

Yasmiṁ kho pana, bhikkhave, padese cakkaratanaṁ patiṭṭhāsi, tattha rājā cakkavattī vāsaṁ upagacchi saddhiṁ caturaṅginiyā senāya.

Ye kho pana, bhikkhave, pacchimāya disāya paṭirājāno, te rājānaṁ cakkavattiṁ upasaṅkamitvā evamāhaṁsu:

‘ehi kho, mahārāja, svāgataṁ te, mahārāja, sakaṁ te, mahārāja, anusāsa, mahārājā’ti.

Rājā cakkavattī evamāha:

‘pāṇo na hantabbo, adinnaṁ nādātabbaṁ, kāmesumicchā na caritabbā, musā na bhāsitabbā, majjaṁ na pātabbaṁ, yathābhuttañca bhuñjathā’ti.

Ye kho pana, bhikkhave, pacchimāya disāya paṭirājāno, te rañño cakkavattissa anuyantā ahesuṁ.

Atha kho taṁ, bhikkhave, cakkaratanaṁ pacchimaṁ samuddaṁ ajjhogāhetvā paccuttaritvā uttaraṁ disaṁ pavatti, anvadeva rājā cakkavattī saddhiṁ caturaṅginiyā senāya.
Having plunged into the western ocean and emerged again, it rolled towards the north, followed by the king together with his army of four divisions.

Yasmiṁ kho pana, bhikkhave, padese cakkaratanaṁ patiṭṭhāsi, tattha rājā cakkavattī vāsaṁ upagacchi saddhiṁ caturaṅginiyā senāya.
In whatever place the wheel-treasure stood still, there the king came to stay together with his army.

Ye kho pana, bhikkhave, uttarāya disāya paṭirājāno, te rājānaṁ cakkavattiṁ upasaṅkamitvā evamāhaṁsu:
And any opposing rulers of the northern quarter came to the wheel-turning monarch and said, ‘ehi kho, mahārāja, svāgataṁ te, mahārāja, sakaṁ te, mahārāja, anusāsa, mahārājā’ti.

‘Come, great king! Welcome, great king! We are yours, great king, instruct us.’

Rājā cakkavattī evamāha:
The wheel-turning monarch said,

‘pāṇo na hantabbo, adinnaṁ nādātabbaṁ, kāmesumicchā na caritabbā, musā na bhāsitabbā, majjaṁ na pātabbaṁ, yathābhuttañca bhuñjathā’ti.

‘Do not kill living creatures. Do not steal. Do not commit sexual misconduct. Do not lie. Do not drink alcohol. Maintain the current level of taxation.’

Ye kho pana, bhikkhave, uttarāya disāya paṭirājāno, te rañño cakkavattissa anuyantā ahesuṁ.
And so the rulers of the northern quarter became his vassals.

Atha kho taṁ, bhikkhave, cakkaratanaṁ samuddapariyantaṁ pathaviṁ abhivijinitvā tameva rājadhāniṁ paccāgantvā rañño cakkavattissa antepuradvāre atthakaraṇapamukhe akkhāhataṁ maññe aṭṭhāsi rañño cakkavattissa antepuraṁ upasobhayamānaṁ.
And then the wheel-treasure, having triumphed over this land surrounded by ocean, returned to the royal capital. There it stood still by the gate to the royal compound at the High Court as if fixed to an axle, illuminating the royal compound.

3. Dutiyādicakkavattikathā

But he didn’t go to the royal sage and ask about the noble duties of a wheel-turning monarch.

So samateneva sudaṁ janapadaṁ pasāsati.
He just governed the country according to his own ideas.

Tassa samatena janapadaṁ pasāsato pubbenāparaṁ janapadā na pabbanti, yathā taṁ pubbakānaṁ rājūnaṁ ariye cakkavattivatte vattamānānaṁ.
So governed, the nations did not prosper like before, as they had when former kings implemented the noble duties of a wheel-turning monarch.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, amaccā pārisajjā gaṇakamahāmattā anīkaṭṭhā dovārikā mantassājīvino sannipatitvā rājānaṁ khattiyaṁ muddhābhisittaṁ etadavocuṁ:
Then the ministers and counselors, the treasury officials, military officers, guardsmen, and advisers gathered and said to the king, ‘na kho te, deva, samatena sudaṁ janapadaṁ pasāsato pubbenāparaṁ janapadā pabbanti, yathā taṁ pubbakānaṁ rājūnaṁ ariye cakkavattivatte vattamānānaṁ.

‘Sire, when governed according to your own ideas, the nations do not prosper like before, as they did when former kings implemented the noble duties of a wheel-turning monarch.

Saṁvijjanti kho te, deva, vijite amaccā pārisajjā gaṇakamahāmattā anīkaṭṭhā dovārikā mantassājīvino mayañceva aññe ca ye mayaṁ ariyaṁ cakkavattivattaṁ dhārema.
In your realm are found ministers and counselors, treasury officials, military officers, guardsmen, and advisers—both ourselves and others—who remember the noble duties of a wheel-turning monarch.

Iṅgha tvaṁ, deva, amhe ariyaṁ cakkavattivattaṁ puccha.
Please, Your Majesty, ask us about the noble duties of a wheel-turning monarch.

Tassa te mayaṁ ariyaṁ cakkavattivattaṁ puṭṭhā byākarissāmā’ti.
We will answer you.’

4. Āyuvaṇṇādiparihānikathā

4. On the Period of Decline

Atha kho, bhikkhave, rājā khattiyo muddhābhisitto amacce pārisajje gaṇakamahāmatte anīkaṭṭhe dovārike mantassājīvino sannipātetvā ariyaṁ cakkavattivattaṁ pucchi.

So the anointed king asked the assembled ministers and counselors, treasury officials, military officers, guardsmen, and advisers about the noble duties of a wheel-turning monarch.

Tassa te ariyaṁ cakkavattivattaṁ puṭṭhā byākariṁsu.
And they answered him.

Tesaṁ sutvā dhammikañhi kho rakkhāvaraṇaguttiṁ saṁvidahi, no ca kho adhanānaṁ dhanamanuppadāsi.
But after listening to them, he didn’t provide just protection and security. Nor did he pay money to the penniless in the realm.

Adhanānaṁ dhane ananuppadiyamāne dāliddiyaṁ vepullamagamāsi.
And so poverty grew widespread.

Dāliddiye vepullaṁ gate aññataro puriso paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyi.
When poverty was widespread, a certain person stole from others, with the intention to commit theft.

Tamenaṁ aggahesuṁ.
They arrested him

Gahetvā rañño khattiyassa muddhābhisittassa dassesuṁ:
and presented him to the king, saying,

‘ayaṁ, deva, puriso paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyī’ti.
‘Your Majesty, this person stole from others with the intention to commit theft.’

Evaṁ vutte, bhikkhave, rājā khattiyo muddhābhisitto taṁ purisaṁ etadavoca:
The king said to that person,

‘saccaṁ kira tvaṁ, ambho purisa, paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyī’ti?
‘Is it really true, mister, that you stole from others with the intention to commit theft?’

‘Saccaṁ, devā’ti.
‘It’s true, sire.’

‘Kiṁ kāraṇā’ti?
‘What was the reason?’

‘Na hi, deva, jīvāmī’ti.
‘Sire, I can’t survive.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, rājā khattiyo muddhābhisitto tassa purisassa dhanamanuppadāsi:
So the king paid some money to that person, saying,

‘iminā tvaṁ, ambho purisa, dhanena attanā ca jīvāhi, mātāpitaro ca posehi, puttadārañca posehi, kammante ca payojehi, samaṇabrāhmaṇesu uddhaggikaṁ dakkhiṇaṁ patiṭṭhāpehi sovaggikaṁ sukhavipākaṁ saggasaṁvattanikan’ti.
‘With this money, mister, keep yourself alive, and provide for your mother and father, partners and children. Work for a living, and establish an uplifting religious donation for ascetics and brahmins that’s conducive to heaven, ripens in happiness, and leads to heaven.’

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, bhikkhave, so puriso rañño khattiyassa muddhābhisittassa paccassosi.
‘Yes, Your Majesty,’ replied that man.

Aññataropi kho, bhikkhave, puriso paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyi.
But then another man stole something from others.

Tamenaṁ aggahesuṁ.
They arrested him

Gahetvā rañño khattiyassa muddhābhisittassa dassesuṁ:
and presented him to the king, saying,

‘ayaṁ, deva, puriso paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyī’ti.
‘Your Majesty, this person stole from others.’

Evaṁ vutte, bhikkhave, rājā khattiyo muddhābhisitto taṁ purisaṁ etadavoca:
The king said to that person,

‘saccaṁ kira tvaṁ, ambho purisa, paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyī’ti?
‘Is it really true, mister, that you stole from others?’

‘Saccaṁ, devā’ti.
‘It’s true, sire.’

‘Kiṁ kāraṇā’ti?
‘What was the reason?’

‘Na hi, deva, jīvāmī’ti.
‘Sire, I can’t survive.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, rājā khattiyo muddhābhisitto tassa purisassa dhanamanuppadāsi:
So the king paid some money to that person, saying,

‘iminā tvaṁ, ambho purisa, dhanena attanā ca jīvāhi, mātāpitaro ca posehi, puttadārañca posehi, kammante ca payojehi, samaṇabrāhmaṇesu uddhaggikaṁ dakkhiṇaṁ patiṭṭhāpehi sovaggikaṁ sukhavipākaṁ saggasaṁvattanikan’ti.
‘With this money, mister, keep yourself alive, and provide for your mother and father, partners and children. Work for a living, and establish an uplifting religious donation for ascetics and brahmins that’s conducive to heaven, ripens in happiness, and leads to heaven.’

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, bhikkhave, so puriso rañño khattiyassa muddhābhisittassa paccassosi.
‘Yes, Your Majesty,’ replied that man.

Assosuṁ kho, bhikkhave, manussā:
People heard about this:

‘ye kira, bho, paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyanti, tesaṁ rājā dhanamanuppadetī’ti.
‘It seems the king is paying money to anyone who steals from others!’

Sutvāna tesaṁ etadahosi:
It occurred to them,

‘yannūna mayampi paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyeyyāmā’ti.
‘Why don’t we steal from others?’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, aññataro puriso paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyi.
So then another man stole something from others.

Tamenaṁ aggahesuṁ.
They arrested him

Gahetvā rañño khattiyassa muddhābhisittassa dassesuṁ:
and presented him to the king, saying,

‘ayaṁ, deva, puriso paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyī’ti.
‘Your Majesty, this person stole from others.’

Evaṁ vutte, bhikkhave, rājā khattiyo muddhābhisitto taṁ purisaṁ etadavoca:
The king said to that person,

‘saccaṁ kira tvaṁ, ambho purisa, paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyī’ti?
‘Is it really true, mister, that you stole from others?’

‘Saccaṁ, devā’ti.
‘It’s true, sire.’

‘Kiṁ kāraṇā’ti?
‘What was the reason?’

‘Na hi, deva, jīvāmī’ti.
‘Sire, I can’t survive.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, rañño khattiyassa muddhābhisittassa etadahosi:
Then the king thought,

‘sace kho ahaṁ yo yo paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyissati, tassa tassa dhanamanuppadassāmi, evamidaṁ adinnādānaṁ pavaḍḍhissati.
‘If I pay money to anyone who steals from others, it will only increase the stealing.

Yannūnāhaṁ imaṁ purisaṁ sunisedhaṁ nisedheyyaṁ, mūlaghaccaṁ kareyyaṁ, sīsamassa chindeyyan’ti.
I’d better make an end of this person, finish him off, and chop off his head.’

Atha kho, bhikkhave, rājā khattiyo muddhābhisitto purise āṇāpesi:
Then he ordered his men,

‘tena hi, bhaṇe, imaṁ purisaṁ daḷhāya rajjuyā pacchābāhaṁ gāḷhabandhanaṁ bandhitvā khuramuṇḍaṁ karitvā kharassarena paṇavena rathikāya rathikaṁ siṅghāṭakena siṅghāṭakaṁ parinetvā dakkhiṇena dvārena nikkhamitvā dakkhiṇato nagarassa sunisedhaṁ nisedhetha, mūlaghaccaṁ karotha, sīsamassa chindathā’ti.

‘Well then, my men, tie this man’s arms tightly behind his back with a strong rope. Shave his head and march him from street to street and square to square to the beating of a harsh drum. Then take him out the south gate and make an end of him, finish him off, and chop off his head.’

‘Evaṁ, devā’ti kho, bhikkhave, te purisā rañño khattiyassa muddhābhisittassa paṭissutvā taṁ purisaṁ daḷhāya rajjuyā pacchābāhaṁ gāḷhabandhanaṁ bandhitvā khuramuṇḍaṁ karitvā kharassarena paṇavena rathikāya rathikaṁ siṅghāṭakena siṅghāṭakaṁ parinetvā dakkhiṇena dvārena nikkhamitvā dakkhiṇato nagarassa sunisedhaṁ nisedhesuṁ, mūlaghaccaṁ akaṁsu, sīsamassa chindiṁsu.
‘Yes, Your Majesty,’ they replied, and did as he commanded.

Assosuṁ kho, bhikkhave, manussā:
People heard about this:

‘ye kira, bho, paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyanti, te rājā sunisedhaṁ nisedheti, mūlaghaccaṁ karoti, sīsāni tesaṁ chindatī’ti.
‘It seems the king is chopping the head off anyone who steals from others!’

Sutvāna tesaṁ etadahosi:
It occurred to them,

‘yannūna mayampi tiṇhāni satthāni kārāpessāma, tiṇhāni satthāni kārāpetvā yesaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyissāma, te sunisedhaṁ nisedhessāma, mūlaghaccaṁ karissāma, sīsāni tesaṁ chindissāmā’ti.
‘We’d better have sharp swords made. Then when we steal from others, we’ll make an end of them, finish them off, and chop off their heads.’

Te tiṇhāni satthāni kārāpesuṁ, tiṇhāni satthāni kārāpetvā gāmaghātampi upakkamiṁsu kātuṁ, nigamaghātampi upakkamiṁsu kātuṁ, nagaraghātampi upakkamiṁsu kātuṁ, panthaduhanampi upakkamiṁsu kātuṁ.

They had sharp swords made. Then they started to make raids on villages, towns, and cities, and to infest the highways.

Yesaṁ te adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyanti, te sunisedhaṁ nisedhenti, mūlaghaccaṁ karonti, sīsāni tesaṁ chindanti.
And they chopped the heads off anyone they stole from.

Iti kho, bhikkhave, adhanānaṁ dhane ananuppadiyamāne dāliddiyaṁ vepullamagamāsi, dāliddiye vepullaṁ gate adinnādānaṁ vepullamagamāsi, adinnādāne vepullaṁ gate satthaṁ vepullamagamāsi, satthe vepullaṁ gate pāṇātipāto vepullamagamāsi, pāṇātipāte vepullaṁ gate tesaṁ sattānaṁ āyupi parihāyi, vaṇṇopi parihāyi.
And so, mendicants, from not paying money to the penniless, poverty became widespread. When poverty was widespread, theft became widespread. When theft was widespread, swords became widespread. When swords were widespread, killing living creatures became widespread. And for the sentient beings among whom killing was widespread, their lifespan and beauty declined.

Tesaṁ āyunāpi parihāyamānānaṁ vaṇṇenapi parihāyamānānaṁ asītivassasahassāyukānaṁ manussānaṁ cattārīsavassasahassāyukā puttā ahesuṁ.
Those people lived for 80,000 years, but their children lived for 40,000 years.

Cattārīsavassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu aññataro puriso paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyi.
Among the people who lived for 40,000 years, a certain person stole something from others.

Tamenaṁ aggahesuṁ.
They arrested him

Gahetvā rañño khattiyassa muddhābhisittassa dassesuṁ:

and presented him to the king, saying,

‘ayaṁ, deva, puriso paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyī’ti.

Evaṁ vutte, bhikkhave, rājā khattiyo muddhābhisitto taṁ purisaṁ etadavoca:
The king said to that person,

‘saccaṁ kira tvaṁ, ambho purisa, paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyī’ti?
‘Is it really true, mister, that you stole from others?’

‘Na hi, devā’ti sampajānamusā abhāsi.
‘No, sire,’ he said, deliberately lying.

Iti kho, bhikkhave, adhanānaṁ dhane ananuppadiyamāne dāliddiyaṁ vepullamagamāsi. Dāliddiye vepullaṁ gate adinnādānaṁ vepullamagamāsi, adinnādāne vepullaṁ gate satthaṁ vepullamagamāsi. And so, mendicants, from not paying money to the penniless, poverty, theft, swords, and killing became widespread. When killing was widespread, lying became widespread. And for the sentient beings among whom lying was widespread, their lifespan and beauty declined.

Tesaṁ āyunāpi parihāyamānānaṁ vaṇṇenapi parihāyamānānaṁ cattārīsavassasahassāyukānaṁ manussānaṁ vīsativassasahassāyukā puttā ahesuṁ.
Those people who lived for 40,000 years had children who lived for 20,000 years.

Vīsativassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu aññataro puriso paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyi.
Among the people who lived for 20,000 years, a certain person stole something from others.

Tamenaṁ aññataro puriso rañño khattiyassa muddhābhisittassa ārocesi:
Someone else reported this to the king,

‘itthannāmo, deva, puriso paresaṁ adinnaṁ theyyasaṅkhātaṁ ādiyī’ti pesuññamakāsi.
‘Your Majesty, such-and-such person stole from others,’ he said, going behind his back.

Iti kho, bhikkhave, adhanānaṁ dhane ananuppadiyamāne dāliddiyaṁ vepullamagamāsi. Dāliddiye vepullaṁ gate adinnādānaṁ vepullamagamāsi, adinnādāne vepullaṁ gate satthaṁ vepullamagamāsi, satthe vepullaṁ gate pāṇātipāto vepullamagamāsi, pāṇātipāte vepullaṁ gate musāvādo vepullamagamāsi, musāvāde vepullaṁ gate pisuṇā vācā vepullamagamāsi, pisuṇāya vācāya vepullaṁ gatāya tesaṁ sattānaṁ āyupi parihāyi, vaṇṇopi parihāyi.
And so, mendicants, from not paying money to the penniless, poverty, theft, swords, killing, and lying became widespread. When lying was widespread, backbiting became widespread. And for the sentient beings among whom backbiting was widespread, their lifespan and beauty declined.

Tesaṁ āyunāpi parihāyamānānaṁ vaṇṇenapi parihāyamānānaṁ vīsativassasahassāyukānaṁ manussānaṁ dasavassasahassāyukā puttā ahesuṁ.
Those people who lived for 20,000 years had children who lived for 10,000 years.

Dasavassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu ekidaṁ sattā vaṇṇavanto honti, ekidaṁ sattā dubbaṇṇā.

Among the people who lived for 10,000 years, some were more beautiful than others.

Tattha ye te sattā dubbaṇṇā, te vaṇṇavante satte abhijjhāyantā paresaṁ dāresu cārittaṁ āpajjiṁsu.
And the ugly beings, coveting the beautiful ones, committed adultery with others' wives.

Iti kho, bhikkhave, adhanānaṁ dhane ananuppadiyamāne dāliddiyaṁ vepullamagamāsi. Dāliddiye vepullaṁ gate …pe… kāmesumicchācāro vepullamagamāsi, kāmesumicchācāre vepullaṁ gate tesaṁ sattānaṁ āyupi parihāyi, vaṇṇopi parihāyi.
And so, mendicants, from not paying money to the penniless, poverty, theft, swords, killing, lying, and backbiting became widespread. When backbiting was widespread, sexual misconduct became widespread. And for the sentient beings among whom sexual misconduct was widespread, their lifespan and beauty declined.

Tesaṁ āyunāpi parihāyamānānaṁ vaṇṇenapi parihāyamānānaṁ dasavassasahassāyukānaṁ manussānaṁ pañcavassasahassāyukā puttā ahesuṁ.
Those people who lived for 10,000 years had children who lived for 5,000 years.

Pañcavassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu dve dhammā vepullamagamaṁsu—
Among the people who lived for 5,000 years, two things became widespread:

pharusāvācā samphappalāpo ca.
harsh speech and talking nonsense.

Vassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu micchādiṭṭhi vepullamagamāsi.
Among the people who lived for 1,000 years, wrong view became widespread.

Micchādiṭṭhiyā vepullaṁ gatāya tesaṁ sattānaṁ āyupi parihāyi, vaṇṇopi parihāyi.
For the sentient beings among whom wrong view was widespread, their lifespan and beauty declined.

Tesaṁ āyunāpi parihāyamānānaṁ vaṇṇenapi parihāyamānānaṁ vassasahassāyukānaṁ manussānaṁ pañcavassasatāyukā puttā ahesuṁ.

Those people who lived for two hundred and fifty years had children who lived for a hundred years.

5. Dasavassāyukasamaya

5. When People Live for Ten Years

Bhavissati, bhikkhave, so samayo, yaṁ imesaṁ manussānaṁ dasavassāyukā puttā bhavissanti.
There will come a time, mendicants, when these people will have children who live for ten years.

Dasavassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu pañcavassikā kumārikā alaṁpateyyā bhavissanti.
Among the people who live for ten years, girls will be marriageable at five.

Dasavassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu imāni rasāni antaradhāyissanti, seyyathidaṁ—
The following flavors will disappear:

sappi navanītaṁ telaṁ madhu phāṇitaṁ loṇaṁ.
ghee, butter, oil, honey, molasses, and salt.

Dasavassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu kudrūsako aggaṁ bhojanānaṁ bhavissati.
The best kind of food will be finger millet,

Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, etarahi sālimaṁsodano aggaṁ bhojanānaṁ;
just as fine rice with meat is the best kind of food today.

evameva kho, bhikkhave, dasavassāyukesu manussesu kudrūsako aggaṁ bhojanānaṁ bhavissati.

Dasavassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu dasa kusalakammapathā sabbena sabbaṁ antaradhāyissanti, dasa akusalakammapathā atibyādippissanti.
The ten ways of doing skillful deeds will totally disappear, and the ten ways of doing unskillful deeds will explode in popularity.

Dasavassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu kusalantipi na bhavissati, kuto pana kusalassa kārako.
Those people will not even have the word ‘skillful’, still less anyone who does what is skillful.

Dasavassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu ye te bhavissanti amatteyyā apetteyyā asāmaññā abrahmaññā na kule jeṭṭhāpacāyino, te pujjā ca bhavissanti pāsaṁsā ca.
And anyone who disrespects mother and father, ascetics and brahmins, and fails to honor the elders in the family will be venerated and praised,

Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, etarahi matteyyā petteyyā sāmaññā brahmaññā kule jeṭṭhāpacāyino pujjā ca pāsaṁsā ca;
just as the opposite is venerated and praised today.

evameva kho, bhikkhave, dasavassāyukesu manussesu ye te bhavissanti amatteyyā apetteyyā asāmaññā abrahmaññā na kule jeṭṭhāpacāyino, te pujjā ca bhavissanti pāsaṁsā ca.

Dasavassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu na bhavissati mātāti vā mātucchāti vā mātulānīti vā ācariyabhariyāti vā garūnaṁ dārāti vā.
There’ll be no recognition of the status of mother, aunts, or wives and partners of teachers and respected people.

Sambhedaṁ loko gamissati yathā ajeḷakā kukkuṭasūkarā soṇasiṅgālā.
The world will become promiscuous, like goats and sheep, chickens and pigs, and dogs and jackals.

Dasavassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu tesaṁ sattānaṁ aññamaññamhi tibbo āghāto paccupaṭṭhito bhavissati tibbo byāpādo tibbo manopadoso tibbaṁ vadhakacittaṁ.
They'll be full of hostility towards each other, with acute ill will, malevolence, and thoughts of murder.

Mātupi puttamhi puttassapi mātari;
Even a mother will feel like this for her child, and the child for its mother, pitupi puttamhi puttassapi pitari;

father for child, child for father,

bhātupi bhaginiyā bhaginiyāpi bhātari tibbo āghāto paccupaṭṭhito bhavissati tibbo byāpādo tibbo manopadoso tibbaṁ vadhakacittaṁ.
brother for sister, and sister for brother.

Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, māgavikassa migaṁ disvā tibbo āghāto paccupaṭṭhito hoti tibbo byāpādo tibbo manopadoso tibbaṁ vadhakacittaṁ;
They'll be just like a deer hunter when he sees a deer—full of hostility, ill will, malevolence, and thoughts of killing.

evameva kho, bhikkhave, dasavassāyukesu manussesu tesaṁ sattānaṁ aññamaññamhi tibbo āghāto paccupaṭṭhito bhavissati tibbo byāpādo tibbo manopadoso tibbaṁ vadhakacittaṁ.

Mātupi puttamhi puttassapi mātari;

pitupi puttamhi puttassapi pitari;

bhātupi bhaginiyā bhaginiyāpi bhātari tibbo āghāto paccupaṭṭhito bhavissati tibbo byāpādo tibbo manopadoso tibbaṁ vadhakacittaṁ.

Dasavassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu sattāhaṁ satthantarakappo bhavissati.
Among the people who live for ten years, there will be an interregnum of swords lasting seven days.

Te aññamaññamhi migasaññaṁ paṭilabhissanti.
During that time they will see each other as beasts.

Tesaṁ tiṇhāni satthāni hatthesu pātubhavissanti.
Sharp swords will appear in their hands,

Te tiṇhena satthena ‘esa migo esa migo’ti aññamaññaṁ jīvitā voropessanti.
with which they’ll take each other’s life, crying, ‘It’s a beast! It’s a beast!’

and finally 80,000 years.

asītivassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu pañcavassasatikā kumārikā alaṁpateyyā bhavissanti.
Among the people who live for 80,000 years, girls will be marriageable at five hundred.

7. Saṅkharājauppatti

7. The Time of King Saṅkha

Asītivassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu tayo ābādhā bhavissanti, icchā, anasanaṁ, jarā.
Among the people who live for 80,000 years, there will be just three afflictions: greed, starvation, and old age.

Asītivassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu ayaṁ jambudīpo iddho ceva bhavissati phīto ca, kukkuṭasampātikā gāmanigamarājadhāniyo.
India will be successful and prosperous. The villages, towns, and capital cities will be no more than a chicken's flight apart.

Asītivassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu ayaṁ jambudīpo avīci maññe phuṭo bhavissati manussehi, seyyathāpi naḷavanaṁ vā saravanaṁ vā.
And the land will be as crowded as hell, just full of people, like a thicket of rushes or reeds.

Asītivassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu ayaṁ bārāṇasī ketumatī nāma rājadhānī bhavissati iddhā ceva phītā ca bahujanā ca ākiṇṇamanussā ca subhikkhā ca.
The royal capital will be our Benares, but renamed Ketumati. And it will be successful, prosperous, populous, full of people, with plenty of food.

Asītivassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu imasmiṁ jambudīpe caturāsītinagarasahassāni bhavissanti ketumatīrājadhānīpamukhāni.
There will be 84,000 cities in India, with the royal capital of Ketumati foremost.

Asītivassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu ketumatiyā rājadhāniyā saṅkho nāma rājā uppajjissati cakkavattī dhammiko dhammarājā cāturanto vijitāvī janapadatthāvariyappatto sattaratanasamannāgato.
And in the royal capital of Ketumati a king named Saṅkha will arise, a wheel-turning monarch, a just and principled king. His dominion will extend to all four sides, he will achieve stability in the country, and possess the seven treasures.

Tassimāni satta ratanāni bhavissanti, seyyathidaṁ—
He will have the following seven treasures:

cakkaratanaṁ hatthiratanaṁ assaratanaṁ maṇiratanaṁ itthiratanaṁ gahapatiratanaṁ pariṇāyakaratanameva sattamaṁ.
the wheel, the elephant, the horse, the jewel, the woman, the treasurer, and the counselor as the seventh treasure.

Parosahassaṁ kho panassa puttā bhavissanti sūrā vīraṅgarūpā parasenappamaddanā.
He will have over a thousand sons who are valiant and heroic, crushing the armies of his enemies.

So imaṁ pathaviṁ sāgarapariyantaṁ adaṇḍena asatthena dhammena abhivijiya ajjhāvasissati.
After conquering this land girt by sea, he will reign by principle, without rod or sword.

8. Metteyyabuddhuppāda

8. The Arising of the Buddha Metteyya

Asītivassasahassāyukesu, bhikkhave, manussesu metteyyo nāma bhagavā loke uppajjissati arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavā.
And the Blessed One named Metteyya will arise in the world—perfected, a fully awakened Buddha, accomplished in knowledge and conduct, holy, knower of the world, supreme guide for those who wish to train, teacher of gods and humans, awakened, blessed—

Seyyathāpāhametarahi loke uppanno arahaṁ sammāsambuddho vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṁ buddho bhagavā.
just as I have arisen today.

So imaṁ lokaṁ sadevakaṁ samārakaṁ sabrahmakaṁ sassamaṇabrāhmaṇiṁ pajaṁ sadevamanussaṁ sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā pavedessati, seyyathāpāhametarahi imaṁ lokaṁ sadevakaṁ samārakaṁ sabrahmakaṁ sassamaṇabrāhmaṇiṁ pajaṁ sadevamanussaṁ sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā pavedemi.
He will realize with his own insight this world—with its gods, Māras and Brahmās, this population with its ascetics and brahmins, gods and humans—and make it known to others, just as I do today.

So dhammaṁ desessati ādikalyāṇaṁ majjhekalyāṇaṁ pariyosānakalyāṇaṁ sātthaṁ sabyañjanaṁ kevalaparipuṇṇaṁ parisuddhaṁ brahmacariyaṁ pakāsessati;
He will teach the Dhamma that's good in the beginning, good in the middle, and good in the end, meaningful and well-phrased. And he will reveal a spiritual practice that's entirely full and pure, seyyathāpāhametarahi dhammaṁ desemi ādikalyāṇaṁ majjhekalyāṇaṁ pariyosānakalyāṇaṁ sātthaṁ sabyañjanaṁ kevalaparipuṇṇaṁ parisuddhaṁ brahmacariyaṁ pakāsemi.

just as I do today.

So anekasahassaṁ bhikkhusaṅghaṁ pariharissati, seyyathāpāhametarahi anekasataṁ bhikkhusaṅghaṁ pariharāmi.
He will look after a Saṅgha of many thousand mendicants, just as I look after a Saṅgha of many hundreds today.

Atha kho, bhikkhave, saṅkho nāma rājā yo so yūpo raññā mahāpanādena kārāpito.
Then King Saṅkha will have the sacrificial post that had been built by King Mahāpanāda raised up.

Taṁ yūpaṁ ussāpetvā ajjhāvasitvā taṁ datvā vissajjitvā samaṇabrāhmaṇakapaṇaddhikavaṇibbakayācakānaṁ dānaṁ datvā metteyyassa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa santike kesamassuṁ ohāretvā kāsāyāni vatthāni acchādetvā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajissati.

After staying there, he will give it away to ascetics and brahmins, paupers, vagrants, travelers, and beggars. Then, having shaved off his hair and beard and dressed in ocher robes, he will go forth from the lay life to homelessness in the Buddha Metteyya’s presence.

So evaṁ pabbajito samāno eko vūpakaṭṭho appamatto ātāpī pahitatto viharanto nacirasseva—yassatthāya kulaputtā sammadeva agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajanti, tadanuttaraṁ—brahmacariyapariyosānaṁ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharissati.
Soon after going forth, living withdrawn, diligent, keen, and resolute, he will realize the supreme end of the spiritual path in this very life. He will live having achieved with his own insight the goal for which gentlemen rightly go forth from the lay life to homelessness.

Attadīpā, bhikkhave, viharatha attasaraṇā anaññasaraṇā, dhammadīpā dhammasaraṇā anaññasaraṇā.
Mendicants, be your own island, your own refuge, with no other refuge. Let the teaching be your island and your refuge, with no other refuge.

Kathañca, bhikkhave, bhikkhu attadīpo viharati attasaraṇo anaññasaraṇo dhammadīpo dhammasaraṇo anaññasaraṇo?
And how does a mendicant do this?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ.
It’s when a mendicant meditates by observing an aspect of the body—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

Vedanāsu vedanānupassī …pe…
They meditate observing an aspect of feelings …

citte cittānupassī …pe…
mind …

dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṁ.

principles—keen, aware, and mindful, rid of desire and aversion for the world.

Evaṁ kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhu attadīpo viharati attasaraṇo anaññasaraṇo dhammadīpo dhammasaraṇo anaññasaraṇo.
That’s how a mendicant is their own island, their own refuge, with no other refuge. That’s how they let the teaching be their island and their refuge, with no other refuge.

9. On Long Life and Beauty for Mendicants

Gocare, bhikkhave, caratha sake pettike visaye.
Mendicants, you should roam inside your own territory, the domain of your fathers.

Gocare, bhikkhave, carantā sake pettike visaye āyunāpi vaḍḍhissatha, vaṇṇenapi vaḍḍhissatha, sukhenapi vaḍḍhissatha, bhogenapi vaḍḍhissatha, balenapi vaḍḍhissatha.
Doing so, you will grow in life span, beauty, happiness, wealth, and power.

Kiñca, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno āyusmiṁ?
And what is long life for a mendicant?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu chandasamādhipadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṁ iddhipādaṁ bhāveti,
It’s when a mendicant develops the basis of psychic power that has immersion due to enthusiasm, and active effort.

vīriyasamādhipadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṁ iddhipādaṁ bhāveti,
They develop the basis of psychic power that has immersion due to energy, and active effort.

cittasamādhipadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṁ iddhipādaṁ bhāveti,
They develop the basis of psychic power that has immersion due to mental development, and active effort.

vīmaṁsāsamādhipadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṁ iddhipādaṁ bhāveti.
They develop the basis of psychic power that has immersion due to inquiry, and active effort.

So imesaṁ catunnaṁ iddhipādānaṁ bhāvitattā bahulīkatattā ākaṅkhamāno kappaṁ vā tiṭṭheyya kappāvasesaṁ vā.
Having developed and cultivated these four bases of psychic power they may, if they wish, live on for the eon or what’s left of the eon.

Idaṁ kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno āyusmiṁ.
This is long life for a mendicant.

Kiñca, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno vaṇṇasmiṁ?
And what is beauty for a mendicant?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu sīlavā hoti, pātimokkhasaṁvarasaṁvuto viharati ācāragocarasampanno, aṇumattesu vajjesu bhayadassāvī, samādāya sikkhati sikkhāpadesu.
It’s when a mendicant is ethical, restrained in the monastic code, conducting themselves well and seeking alms in suitable places. Seeing danger in the slightest fault, they keep the rules they’ve undertaken.

Idaṁ kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno vaṇṇasmiṁ.
This is beauty for a mendicant.

Kiñca, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno sukhasmiṁ?
And what is happiness for a mendicant?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu vivicceva kāmehi vivicca akusalehi dhammehi savitakkaṁ savicāraṁ vivekajaṁ pītisukhaṁ paṭhamaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.

It’s when a mendicant, quite secluded from sensual pleasures, secluded from unskillful qualities, enters and remains in the first absorption, which has the rapture and bliss born of seclusion, while placing the mind and keeping it connected.

Vitakkavicārānaṁ vūpasamā …pe… dutiyaṁ jhānaṁ …
As the placing of the mind and keeping it connected are stilled, they enter and remain in the second absorption …

tatiyaṁ jhānaṁ …
third absorption …

catutthaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
fourth absorption.

Idaṁ kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno, sukhasmiṁ.
This is happiness for a mendicant.

Kiñca, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno bhogasmiṁ?
And what is wealth for a mendicant?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu mettāsahagatena cetasā ekaṁ disaṁ pharitvā viharati tathā dutiyaṁ. Tathā tatiyaṁ. Tathā catutthaṁ. Iti uddhamadho tiriyaṁ sabbadhi sabbattatāya sabbāvantaṁ lokaṁ mettāsahagatena cetasā vipulena mahaggatena appamāṇena averena abyāpajjena pharitvā viharati.
It’s when a monk meditates spreading a heart full of love to one direction, and to the second, and to the third, and to the fourth. In the same way above, below, across, everywhere, all around, they spread a heart full of love to the whole world—abundant, expansive, limitless, free of enmity and ill will.

equanimity to one direction, and to the second, and to the third, and to the fourth. In the same way above, below, across, everywhere, all around, they spread a heart full of equanimity to the whole world—abundant, expansive, limitless, free of enmity and ill will.

Idaṁ kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno bhogasmiṁ.
This is wealth for a mendicant.

Kiñca, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno balasmiṁ?
And what is power for a mendicant?

Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu āsavānaṁ khayā anāsavaṁ cetovimuttiṁ paññāvimuttiṁ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharati.
It’s when a mendicant realizes the undefiled freedom of heart and freedom by wisdom in this very life. And they live having realized it with their own insight due to the ending of defilements.

Idaṁ kho, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno balasmiṁ.
This is power for a mendicant.

Nāhaṁ, bhikkhave, aññaṁ ekabalampi samanupassāmi yaṁ evaṁ duppasahaṁ, yathayidaṁ, bhikkhave, mārabalaṁ.
Mendicants, I do not see a single power so hard to defeat as the power of Māra.

Kusalānaṁ, bhikkhave, dhammānaṁ samādānahetu evamidaṁ puññaṁ pavaḍḍhatī”ti.
It is due to undertaking skillful qualities that this merit grows.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Attamanā te bhikkhū bhagavato bhāsitaṁ abhinandunti.
Satisfied, the mendicants were happy with what the Buddha said.

Cakkavattisuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ tatiyaṁ.

27. Aggaññasutta

The Origin of the World

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā sāvatthiyaṁ viharati pubbārāme migāramātupāsāde.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Sāvatthī in the Eastern Monastery, in the stilt longhouse of Migāra’s mother.

Tena kho pana samayena vāseṭṭhabhāradvājā bhikkhūsu parivasanti bhikkhubhāvaṁ ākaṅkhamānā.
Now at that time Vāseṭṭha and Bhāradvāja were living on probation among the mendicants in hopes of being ordained.

Atha kho bhagavā sāyanhasamayaṁ paṭisallānā vuṭṭhito pāsādā orohitvā pāsādapacchāyāyaṁ abbhokāse caṅkamati.
Then in the late afternoon, the Buddha came downstairs from the longhouse and was walking mindfully in the open air, beneath the shade of the longhouse.

Addasā kho vāseṭṭho bhagavantaṁ sāyanhasamayaṁ paṭisallānā vuṭṭhitaṁ pāsādā orohitvā pāsādapacchāyāyaṁ abbhokāse caṅkamantaṁ.
Vāseṭṭha saw him

Disvāna bhāradvājaṁ āmantesi:
and said to Bhāradvāja,

“ayaṁ, āvuso bhāradvāja, bhagavā sāyanhasamayaṁ paṭisallānā vuṭṭhito pāsādā orohitvā pāsādapacchāyāyaṁ abbhokāse caṅkamati.

“Reverend Bhāradvāja, the Buddha is walking mindfully in the open air, beneath the shade of the longhouse.

Āyāmāvuso bhāradvāja, yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamissāma;
Come, reverend, let’s go to the Buddha.

appeva nāma labheyyāma bhagavato santikā dhammiṁ kathaṁ savanāyā”ti.
Hopefully we’ll get to hear a Dhamma talk from him.”

“Evamāvuso”ti kho bhāradvājo vāseṭṭhassa paccassosi.
“Yes, reverend,” replied Bhāradvāja.

Atha kho vāseṭṭhabhāradvājā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā bhagavantaṁ caṅkamantaṁ anucaṅkamiṁsu.
So they went to the Buddha, bowed, and walked beside him.

Atha kho bhagavā vāseṭṭhaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to Vāseṭṭha,

“tumhe khvattha, vāseṭṭha, brāhmaṇajaccā brāhmaṇakulīnā brāhmaṇakulā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajitā, kacci vo, vāseṭṭha, brāhmaṇā na akkosanti na paribhāsantī”ti?
“Vāseṭṭha, you are both brahmins by birth and clan, and have gone forth from the lay life to homelessness from a brahmin family. I hope you don’t have to suffer abuse and insults from the brahmins.”

“Taggha no, bhante, brāhmaṇā akkosanti paribhāsanti attarūpāya paribhāsāya paripuṇṇāya, no aparipuṇṇāyā”ti.
“Actually, sir, the brahmins do insult and abuse us with their typical insults to the fullest extent.”

“Yathā kathaṁ pana vo, vāseṭṭha, brāhmaṇā akkosanti paribhāsanti attarūpāya paribhāsāya paripuṇṇāya, no aparipuṇṇāyā”ti?

“But how do the brahmins insult you?”

“Brāhmaṇā, bhante, evamāhaṁsu:
“Sir, the brahmins say:

‘brāhmaṇova seṭṭho vaṇṇo, hīnā aññe vaṇṇā.
‘Only brahmins are the highest caste; other castes are inferior.

Brāhmaṇova sukko vaṇṇo, kaṇhā aññe vaṇṇā.
Only brahmins are the light caste; other castes are dark.

Brāhmaṇāva sujjhanti, no abrāhmaṇā.
Only brahmins are purified, not others.

Brāhmaṇāva brahmuno puttā orasā mukhato jātā brahmajā brahmanimmitā brahmadāyādā.
Only brahmins are Brahmā’s rightful sons, born of his mouth, born of Brahmā, created by Brahmā, heirs of Brahmā.

Te tumhe seṭṭhaṁ vaṇṇaṁ hitvā hīnamattha vaṇṇaṁ ajjhupagatā, yadidaṁ muṇḍake samaṇake ibbhe kaṇhe bandhupādāpacce.
You’ve both abandoned the best caste to join an inferior caste, namely these shavelings, fake ascetics, riffraff, black spawn from the feet of our Kinsman.

Tayidaṁ na sādhu, tayidaṁ nappatirūpaṁ, yaṁ tumhe seṭṭhaṁ vaṇṇaṁ hitvā hīnamattha vaṇṇaṁ ajjhupagatā yadidaṁ muṇḍake samaṇake ibbhe kaṇhe bandhupādāpacce’ti.
This is not right, it’s not proper!’

Evaṁ kho no, bhante, brāhmaṇā akkosanti paribhāsanti attarūpāya paribhāsāya paripuṇṇāya, no aparipuṇṇāyā”ti.
That’s how the brahmins insult us.”

“Taggha vo, vāseṭṭha, brāhmaṇā porāṇaṁ assarantā evamāhaṁsu:
“Actually, Vāseṭṭha, the brahmins are forgetting their tradition when they say this to you.

‘brāhmaṇova seṭṭho vaṇṇo, hīnā aññe vaṇṇā;

brāhmaṇova sukko vaṇṇo, kaṇhā aññe vaṇṇā;

brāhmaṇāva sujjhanti, no abrāhmaṇā;

brāhmaṇāva brahmuno puttā orasā mukhato jātā brahmajā brahmanimmitā brahmadāyādā’ti.

Dissanti kho pana, vāseṭṭha, brāhmaṇānaṁ brāhmaṇiyo utuniyopi gabbhiniyopi vijāyamānāpi pāyamānāpi.
For brahmin women are seen menstruating, being pregnant, giving birth, and breast-feeding.

Te ca brāhmaṇā yonijāva samānā evamāhaṁsu:
Yet even though they’re born from a brahmin womb they say:

‘brāhmaṇova seṭṭho vaṇṇo, hīnā aññe vaṇṇā;
‘Only brahmins are the highest caste; other castes are inferior.

brāhmaṇova sukko vaṇṇo, kaṇhā aññe vaṇṇā;
Only brahmins are the light caste; other castes are dark.

brāhmaṇāva sujjhanti, no abrāhmaṇā;
Only brahmins are purified, not others.

brāhmaṇāva brahmuno puttā orasā mukhato jātā brahmajā brahmanimmitā brahmadāyādā’ti.
Only brahmins are Brahmā’s rightful sons, born of his mouth, born of Brahmā, created by Brahmā, heirs of Brahmā.’

Te brahmānañceva abbhācikkhanti, musā ca bhāsanti, bahuñca apuññaṁ pasavanti.
They misrepresent the brahmins, speak falsely, and make much bad karma.

1. Catuvaṇṇasuddhi

1. Purification in the Four Castes

Cattārome, vāseṭṭha, vaṇṇā—

Vāseṭṭha, there are these four castes:

khattiyā, brāhmaṇā, vessā, suddā.
aristocrats, brahmins, merchants, and workers.

Some aristocrats kill living creatures, steal, and commit sexual misconduct. They use speech that's false, divisive, harsh, and nonsensical. And they're covetous, malicious, with wrong view.

Imesu kho, vāseṭṭha, catūsu vaṇṇesu evaṁ ubhayavokiṇṇesu vattamānesu kaṇhasukkesu dhammesu viññugarahitesu ceva viññuppasatthesu ca yadettha brāhmaṇā evamāhaṁsu:

Both these things occur like this, mixed up in these four castes—the dark and the bright, that which is praised and that which is criticized by sensible people. Yet of this the brahmins say:

‘brāhmaṇova seṭṭho vaṇṇo, hīnā aññe vaṇṇā;
‘Only brahmins are the highest caste; other castes are inferior.

brāhmaṇova sukko vaṇṇo, kaṇhā aññe vaṇṇā;
Only brahmins are the light caste; other castes are dark.

brāhmaṇāva sujjhanti, no abrāhmaṇā;
Only brahmins are purified, not others.

brāhmaṇāva brahmuno puttā orasā mukhato jātā brahmajā brahmanimmitā brahmadāyādā’ti.
Only brahmins are Brahmā’s rightful sons, born of his mouth, born of Brahmā, created by Brahmā, heirs of Brahmā.’

Taṁ tesaṁ viññū nānujānanti.
Sensible people don’t acknowledge this.

Taṁ kissa hetu?
Why is that?

Imesañhi, vāseṭṭha, catunnaṁ vaṇṇānaṁ yo hoti bhikkhu arahaṁ khīṇāsavo vusitavā katakaraṇīyo ohitabhāro anuppattasadattho parikkhīṇabhavasaṁyojano sammadaññāvimutto, so nesaṁ aggamakkhāyati dhammeneva, no adhammena.
Because any mendicant from these four castes who is perfected—with defilements ended, who has completed the spiritual journey, done what had to be done, laid down the burden, achieved their own true goal, utterly ended the fetters of rebirth, and is rightly freed through enlightenment—is said to be the best by virtue of principle, not without principle.

Dhammo hi, vāseṭṭha, seṭṭho janetasmiṁ, diṭṭhe ceva dhamme abhisamparāyañca.

For principle, Vāseṭṭha, is the best thing about people in both this life and the next.

Tadamināpetaṁ, vāseṭṭha, pariyāyena veditabbaṁ, yathā dhammova seṭṭho janetasmiṁ, diṭṭhe ceva dhamme abhisamparāyañca.
And here's a way to understand how this is so.

Jānāti kho, vāseṭṭha, rājā pasenadi kosalo:
King Pasenadi of Kosala knows that

'samaṇo gotamo anantarā sakyakulā pabbajito'ti.
the ascetic Gotama has gone forth from the neighboring clan of the Sakyans.

Sakyā kho pana, vāseṭṭha, rañño pasenadissa kosalassa anuyuttā bhavanti.
And the Sakyans are his vassals.

Karonti kho, vāseṭṭha, sakyā rañño pasenadimhi kosale nipaccakāraṁ abhivādanaṁ paccuṭṭhānaṁ añjalikammaṁ sāmīcikammaṁ.
The Sakyans show deference to King Pasenadi by bowing down, rising up, greeting him with joined palms, and observing proper etiquette for him.

Iti kho, vāseṭṭha, yaṁ karonti sakyā rañño pasenadimhi kosale nipaccakāraṁ abhivādanaṁ paccuṭṭhānaṁ añjalikammaṁ sāmīcikammaṁ, karoti taṁ rājā pasenadi kosalo tathāgate nipaccakāraṁ abhivādanaṁ paccuṭṭhānaṁ añjalikammaṁ sāmīcikammaṁ, na naṁ 'sujāto samaṇo gotamo, dujjātohamasmi.
Now, King Pasenadi shows the same kind of deference to the Realized One. But he doesn't think: 'The ascetic Gotama is well-born, I am ill-born.

Balavā samaṇo gotamo, dubbalohamasmi.
He is powerful, I am weak.

Pāsādiko samaṇo gotamo, dubbaṇṇohamasmi.
He is handsome, I am ugly.

Mahesakkho samaṇo gotamo, appesakkhohamasmī’ti.
He is influential, I am insignificant.’

Atha kho naṁ dhammaṁyeva sakkaronto dhammaṁ garuṁ karonto dhammaṁ mānento dhammaṁ pūjento dhammaṁ apacāyamāno evaṁ rājā pasenadi kosalo tathāgate nipaccakāraṁ karoti, abhivādanaṁ paccuṭṭhānaṁ añjalikammaṁ sāmīcikammaṁ.
Rather, in showing such deference to the Realized One he is only honoring, respecting, and venerating principle.

Imināpi kho etaṁ, vāseṭṭha, pariyāyena veditabbaṁ, yathā dhammova seṭṭho janetasmiṁ, diṭṭhe ceva dhamme abhisamparāyañca.
And here’s another way to understand how principle is the best thing about people in both this life and the next.

Tumhe khvattha, vāseṭṭha, nānājaccā nānānāmā nānāgottā nānākulā agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajitā.
Vāseṭṭha, you have different births, names, and clans, and have gone forth from the lay life to homelessness from different families.

‘Ke tumhe’ti—puṭṭhā samānā ‘samaṇā sakyaputtiyāmhā’ti—paṭijānātha.
When they ask you what you are, you claim to be ascetics, followers of the Sakyan.

Yassa kho panassa, vāseṭṭha, tathāgate saddhā niviṭṭhā mūlajātā patiṭṭhitā daḷhā asaṁhāriyā samaṇena vā brāhmaṇena vā devena vā mārena vā brahmunā vā kenaci vā lokasmiṁ, tassetaṁ kallaṁ vacanāya:
But only when someone has faith in the Realized One—settled, rooted, and planted deep, strong, not to be shifted by any ascetic or brahmin or god or Māra or Brahmā or by anyone in the world—is it appropriate for them to say:

‘bhagavatomhi putto oraso mukhato jāto dhammajo dhammanimmito dhammadāyādo’ti.
‘I am the Buddha’s true-born child, born from his mouth, born of principle, created by principle, heir to principle.’

Taṁ kissa hetu?
Why is that?

Tathāgatassa hetaṁ, vāseṭṭha, adhivacanaṁ ‘dhammakāyo’ itipi, ‘brahmakāyo’ itipi, ‘dhammabhūto’ itipi, ‘brahmabhūto’ itipi.
For these are terms for the Realized One: ‘the embodiment of truth’, and ‘the embodiment of holiness’, and ‘the one who has become the truth’, and ‘the one who has become holy’.

Hoti kho so, vāseṭṭha, samayo yaṁ kadāci karahaci dīghassa addhuno accayena ayaṁ loko saṁvaṭṭati.
There comes a time when, Vāseṭṭha, after a very long period has passed, this cosmos contracts.

As the cosmos contracts, sentient beings are mostly headed for the realm of streaming radiance.

Hoti kho so, vāseṭṭha, samayo yaṁ kadāci karahaci dīghassa addhuno accayena ayaṁ loko vivaṭṭati.
There comes a time when, after a very long period has passed, this cosmos expands.

Vivaṭṭamāne loke yebhuyyena sattā ābhassarakāyā cavitvā itthattaṁ āgacchanti.

As the cosmos expands, sentient beings mostly pass away from that host of radiant deities and come back to this realm.

Tedha honti manomayā pītibhakkhā sayaṁpabhā antalikkhacarā subhaṭṭhāyino ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ tiṭṭhanti.
Here they are mind-made, feeding on rapture, self-luminous, moving through the sky, steadily glorious, and they remain like that for a very long time.

2. Rasapathavipātubhāva

2. Solid Nectar Appears

Ekodakībhūtaṁ kho pana, vāseṭṭha, tena samayena hoti andhakāro andhakāratimisā.
But the single mass of water at that time was utterly dark.

Na candimasūriyā paññāyanti, na nakkhattāni tārakarūpāni paññāyanti, na rattindivā paññāyanti, na māsaḍḍhamāsā paññāyanti, na utusaṁvaccharā paññāyanti, na itthipumā paññāyanti, sattā sattātveva saṅkhyaṁ gacchanti.
The moon and sun were not found, nor were stars and constellations, day and night, months and fortnights, years and seasons, or male and female. Beings were simply known as ‘beings’.

Atha kho tesaṁ, vāseṭṭha, sattānaṁ kadāci karahaci dīghassa addhuno accayena rasapathavī udakasmiṁ samatani;
After a very long period had passed, solid nectar curdled in the water.

seyyathāpi nāma payaso tattassa nibbāyamānassa upari santānakaṁ hoti;
It appeared just like the curd on top of hot milk as it cools.

evameva pāturahosi.

Sā ahosi vaṇṇasampannā gandhasampannā rasasampannā, seyyathāpi nāma sampannaṁ vā sappi sampannaṁ vā navanītaṁ evaṁvaṇṇā ahosi.

It was beautiful, fragrant, and delicious, like ghee or butter.

Seyyathāpi nāma khuddamadhuṁ aneḷakaṁ;
And it was as sweet as pure manuka honey.

evamassādā ahosi.

Atha kho, vāseṭṭha, aññataro satto lolajātiko:
Now, one of those beings was reckless.

‘ambho, kimevidaṁ bhavissatī’ti rasapathaviṁ aṅguliyā sāyi.
Thinking, ‘Oh my, what might this be?’ they tasted the solid nectar with their finger.

Tassa rasapathaviṁ aṅguliyā sāyato acchādesi, taṇhā cassa okkami.
They enjoyed it, and craving was born in them.

Aññepi kho, vāseṭṭha, sattā tassa sattassa diṭṭhānugatiṁ āpajjamānā rasapathaviṁ aṅguliyā sāyiṁsu.
And other beings, following that being’s example, tasted solid nectar with their fingers.

Tesaṁ rasapathaviṁ aṅguliyā sāyataṁ acchādesi, taṇhā ca tesaṁ okkami.
They too enjoyed it, and craving was born in them.

3. Candimasūriyādipātubhāva

3. The Moon and Sun Appear

Atha kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā rasapathaviṁ hatthehi āluppakārakaṁ upakkamiṁsu paribhuñjituṁ.
Then those beings started to eat the solid nectar, breaking it into lumps.

Yato kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā rasapathaviṁ hatthehi āluppakārakaṁ upakkamiṁsu paribhuñjituṁ.
But when they did this

Atha tesaṁ sattānaṁ sayaṁpabhā antaradhāyi.
their luminosity vanished.

Sayaṁpabhāya antarahitāya candimasūriyā pāturahesuṁ.
And with the vanishing of their luminosity the moon and sun appeared,

Candimasūriyesu pātubhūtesu nakkhattāni tārakarūpāni pāturahesuṁ.
stars and constellations appeared,

Nakkhattesu tārakarūpesu pātubhūtesu rattindivā paññāyiṁsu.
days and nights were distinguished,

Rattindivesu paññāyamānesu māsaḍḍhamāsā paññāyiṁsu.
and so were months and fortnights,

Māsaḍḍhamāsesu paññāyamānesu utusaṁvaccharā paññāyiṁsu.
and years and seasons.

Ettāvatā kho, vāseṭṭha, ayaṁ loko puna vivaṭṭo hoti.
To this extent the world had evolved once more.

Atha kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā rasapathaviṁ paribhuñjantā tambhakkhā tadāhārā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu.
Then those beings eating the solid nectar, with that as their food and nourishment, remained for a very long time.

Yathā yathā kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā rasapathaviṁ paribhuñjantā tambhakkhā tadāhārā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu tathā tathā tesaṁ sattānaṁ rasapathaviṁ paribhuñjantānaṁ kharattañceva kāyasmiṁ okkami, vaṇṇavevaṇṇatā ca paññāyittha.
But so long as they ate that solid nectar, their bodies became more solid and they diverged in appearance;

Ekidaṁ sattā vaṇṇavanto honti, ekidaṁ sattā dubbaṇṇā.
some beautiful, some ugly.

Tattha ye te sattā vaṇṇavanto, te dubbaṇṇe satte atimaññanti:

And the beautiful beings looked down on the ugly ones:

‘mayametehi vaṇṇavantatarā, amhehete dubbaṇṇatarā’ti.
‘We’re more beautiful, they’re the ugly ones!’

Tesaṁ vaṇṇātimānapaccayā mānātimānajātikānaṁ rasapathavī antaradhāyi.
And the vanity of the beautiful ones made the solid nectar vanish.

Rasāya pathaviyā antarahitāya sannipatiṁsu.
They gathered together and bemoaned,

Sannipatitvā anutthuniṁsu:

‘aho rasaṁ, aho rasan’ti.
‘Oh, what a taste! Oh, what a taste!’

Tadetarahipi manussā kañcideva surasaṁ labhitvā evamāhaṁsu:
And even today when people get something tasty they say:

‘aho rasaṁ, aho rasan’ti.
‘Oh, what a taste! Oh, what a taste!’

Tadeva porāṇaṁ aggaññaṁ akkharaṁ anusaranti, na tvevassa atthaṁ ājānanti.
They’re just remembering an ancient traditional saying, but they don’t understand what it means.

4. Bhūmipappaṭakapātubhāva

4. Ground-Sprouts

Atha kho tesaṁ, vāseṭṭha, sattānaṁ rasāya pathaviyā antarahitāya bhūmipappaṭako pāturahosi.
When the solid nectar had vanished, ground-sprouts appeared to those beings.

Seyyathāpi nāma ahicchattako; evameva pāturahosi.
They appeared just like mushrooms.

So ahosi vaṇṇasampanno gandhasampanno rasasampanno, seyyathāpi nāma sampannaṁ vā sappi sampannaṁ vā navanītaṁ evaṁvaṇṇo ahosi.
They were beautiful, fragrant, and delicious, like ghee or butter.

Seyyathāpi nāma khuddamadhuṁ aneḷakaṁ; evamassādo ahosi.
And they were as sweet as pure manuka honey.

Atha kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā bhūmipappaṭakaṁ upakkamiṁsu paribhuñjituṁ.
Then those beings started to eat the ground-sprouts.

Te taṁ paribhuñjantā tambhakkhā tadāhārā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu.
With that as their food and nourishment, they remained for a very long time.

Yathā yathā kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā bhūmipappaṭakaṁ paribhuñjantā tambhakkhā tadāhārā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu tathā tathā tesaṁ sattānaṁ bhiyyoso mattāya kharattañceva kāyasmiṁ okkami, vaṇṇavevaṇṇatā ca paññāyittha.
But so long as they ate those ground-sprouts, their bodies became more solid and they diverged in appearance;

Ekidaṁ sattā vaṇṇavanto honti, ekidaṁ sattā dubbaṇṇā.
some beautiful, some ugly.

Tattha ye te sattā vaṇṇavanto, te dubbaṇṇe satte atimaññanti:
And the beautiful beings looked down on the ugly ones:

‘We’re more beautiful, they’re the ugly ones!’

Tesaṁ vaṇṇātimānapaccayā mānātimānajātikānaṁ bhūmipappaṭako antaradhāyi.
And the vanity of the beautiful ones made the ground-sprouts vanish.

5. Padālatāpātubhāva

5. Bursting Pods

Bhūmipappaṭake antarahite padālatā pāturahosi, seyyathāpi nāma kalambukā; evameva pāturahosi.
When the ground-sprouts had vanished, bursting pods appeared, like the fruit of the kadam tree.

Sā ahosi vaṇṇasampannā gandhasampannā rasasampannā, seyyathāpi nāma sampannaṁ vā sappi sampannaṁ vā navanītaṁ evaṁvaṇṇā ahosi.
They were beautiful, fragrant, and delicious, like ghee or butter.

Seyyathāpi nāma khuddamadhuṁ aneḷakaṁ; evamassādā ahosi.
And they were as sweet as pure manuka honey.

Atha kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā padālataṁ upakkamiṁsu paribhuñjituṁ.
Then those beings started to eat the bursting pods.

Te taṁ paribhuñjantā tambhakkhā tadāhārā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu.
With that as their food and nourishment, they remained for a very long time.

Yathā yathā kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā padālataṁ paribhuñjantā tambhakkhā tadāhārā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu tathā tathā tesaṁ sattānaṁ bhiyyoso mattāya kharattañceva kāyasmiṁ okkami, vaṇṇavevaṇṇatā ca paññāyittha.
But so long as they ate those bursting pods, their bodies became more solid and they diverged in appearance;

Ekidaṁ sattā vaṇṇavanto honti, ekidaṁ sattā dubbaṇṇā.
some beautiful, some ugly.

Tattha ye te sattā vaṇṇavanto, te dubbaṇṇe satte atimaññanti:
And the beautiful beings looked down on the ugly ones:

‘mayametehi vaṇṇavantatarā, amhehete dubbaṇṇatarā’ti.
‘We’re more beautiful, they’re the ugly ones!’

Tesaṁ vaṇṇātimānapaccayā mānātimānajātikānaṁ padālatā antaradhāyi.
And the vanity of the beautiful ones made the bursting pods vanish.

Padālatāya antarahitāya sannipatiṁsu. Sannipatitvā anutthuniṁsu:
They gathered together and bemoaned,

‘ahu vata no, ahāyi vata no padālatā’ti.
‘Oh, what we’ve lost! Oh, what we’ve lost—those bursting pods!’

Tadetarahipi manussā kenaci dukkhadhammena phuṭṭhā evamāhaṁsu:
And even today when people experience suffering they say:

‘ahu vata no, ahāyi vata no’ti.
‘Oh, what we’ve lost! Oh, what we’ve lost!’

Tadeva porāṇaṁ aggaññaṁ akkharaṁ anusaranti, na tvevassa atthaṁ ājānanti.
They’re just remembering an ancient traditional saying, but they don’t understand what it means.

6. Akaṭṭhapākasālipātubhāva

6. Ripe Untilled Rice

Atha kho tesaṁ, vāseṭṭha, sattānaṁ padālatāya antarahitāya akaṭṭhapāko sāli pāturahosi akaṇo athuso suddho sugandho taṇḍulapphalo.
When the bursting pods had vanished, ripe untilled rice appeared to those beings. It had no powder or husk, pure and fragrant, with only the rice-grain.

Yaṁ taṁ sāyaṁ sāyamāsāya āharanti, pāto taṁ hoti pakkaṁ paṭivirūḷhaṁ.
What they took for supper in the evening, by the morning had grown back and ripened.

Yaṁ taṁ pāto pātarāsāya āharanti, sāyaṁ taṁ hoti pakkaṁ paṭivirūḷhaṁ;
And what they took for breakfast in the morning had grown back and ripened by the evening, nāpadānaṁ paññāyati.

so the cutting didn’t show.

Atha kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā akaṭṭhapākaṁ sāliṁ paribhuñjantā tambhakkhā tadāhārā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu.
Then those beings eating the ripe untilled rice, with that as their food and nourishment, remained for a very long time.

7. Itthipurisaliṅgapātubhāva

7. Gender Appears

Yathā yathā kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā akaṭṭhapākaṁ sāliṁ paribhuñjantā tambhakkhā tadāhārā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu tathā tathā tesaṁ sattānaṁ bhiyyoso mattāya kharattañceva kāyasmiṁ okkami, vaṇṇavevaṇṇatā ca paññāyittha, itthiyā ca itthiliṅgaṁ pāturahosi purisassa ca purisaliṅgaṁ.
But so long as they ate that ripe untilled rice, their bodies became more solid and they diverged in appearance. And female characteristics appeared on women, while male characteristics appeared on men.

Itthī ca purisaṁ ativelaṁ upanijjhāyati puriso ca itthiṁ.
Women spent too much time gazing at men, and men at women.

Tesaṁ ativelaṁ aññamaññaṁ upanijjhāyataṁ sārāgo udapādi, pariḷāho kāyasmiṁ okkami.

They became lustful, and their bodies burned with fever.

Te pariḷāhapaccayā methunaṁ dhammaṁ paṭiseviṁsu.
Due to this fever they had sex with each other.

Ye kho pana te, vāseṭṭha, tena samayena sattā passanti methunaṁ dhammaṁ paṭisevante, aññe paṁsuṁ khipanti, aññe seṭṭhiṁ khipanti, aññe gomayaṁ khipanti:
Those who saw them having sex pelted them with dirt, ashes, or cow-dung, saying, ‘nassa asuci, nassa asucī’ti.

‘Get lost, filth! Get lost, filth!

‘Kathañhi nāma satto sattassa evarūpaṁ karissatī’ti.
How on earth can one being do that to another?’

Tadetarahipi manussā ekaccesu janapadesu vadhuyā nibbuyhamānāya aññe paṁsuṁ khipanti, aññe seṭṭhiṁ khipanti, aññe gomayaṁ khipanti.
And even today people in some countries, when a bride is carried off, pelt her with dirt, ashes, or cow-dung.

Tadeva porāṇaṁ aggaññaṁ akkharaṁ anusaranti, na tvevassa atthaṁ ājānanti.
They’re just remembering an ancient traditional saying, but they don’t understand what it means.

8. Methunadhammasamācāra

8. Sexual Intercourse

Adhammasammataṁ kho pana, vāseṭṭha, tena samayena hoti, tadetarahi dhammasammataṁ.
What was reckoned as immoral at that time, these days is reckoned as moral.

Ye kho pana, vāseṭṭha, tena samayena sattā methunaṁ dhammaṁ paṭisevanti, te māsampi dvemāsampi na labhanti gāmaṁ vā nigamaṁ vā pavisituṁ.
The beings who had sex together weren’t allowed to enter a village or town for one or two months.

Yato kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā tasmiṁ asaddhamme ativelaṁ pātabyataṁ āpajjiṁsu.
Ever since they excessively threw themselves into immorality,

Atha agārāni upakkamiṁsu kātuṁ tasseva asaddhammassa paṭicchādanatthaṁ.
they started to make buildings to hide their immoral deeds.

Atha kho, vāseṭṭha, aññatarassa sattassa alasajātikassa etadahosi:
Then one of those beings of idle disposition thought,

‘ambho, kimevāhaṁ vihaññāmi sāliṁ āharanto sāyaṁ sāyamāsāya pāto pātarāsāya.
‘Hey now, why should I be bothered to gather rice in the evening for supper, and in the morning for breakfast?

Yannūnāhaṁ sāliṁ āhareyyaṁ sakideva sāyapātarāsāyā’ti.
Why don’t I gather rice for supper and breakfast all at once?’

Atha kho so, vāseṭṭha, satto sāliṁ āhāsi sakideva sāyapātarāsāya.
So that’s what he did.

Atha kho, vāseṭṭha, aññataro satto yena so satto tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā taṁ sattaṁ etadavoca:
Then one of the other beings approached that being and said,

‘ehi, bho satta, sālāhāraṁ gamissāmā’ti.
‘Come, good being, we shall go to gather rice.’

‘Alaṁ, bho satta, āhato me sāli sakideva sāyapātarāsāyā’ti.
‘There’s no need, good being! I gathered rice for supper and breakfast all at once.’

Atha kho so, vāseṭṭha, satto tassa sattassa diṭṭhānugatiṁ āpajjamāno sāliṁ āhāsi sakideva dvīhāya. ‘Evampi kira, bho, sādhū’ti.
So that being, following their example, gathered rice for two days all at once, thinking: ‘This seems fine.’

Atha kho, vāseṭṭha, aññataro satto yena so satto tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā taṁ sattaṁ etadavoca:
Then one of the other beings approached that being and said,

‘ehi, bho satta, sālāhāraṁ gamissāmā’ti.
‘Come, good being, we shall go to gather rice.’

‘Alaṁ, bho satta, āhato me sāli sakideva dvīhāyā’ti.
‘There’s no need, good being! I gathered rice for two days all at once.’

Atha kho so, vāseṭṭha, satto tassa sattassa diṭṭhānugatiṁ āpajjamāno sāliṁ āhāsi sakideva catūhāya, ‘evampi kira, bho, sādhū’ti.
So that being, following their example, gathered rice for four days all at once, thinking: ‘This seems fine.’

Atha kho, vāseṭṭha, aññataro satto yena so satto tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā taṁ sattaṁ etadavoca:
Then one of the other beings approached that being and said,

‘ehi, bho satta, sālāhāraṁ gamissāmā’ti.
‘Come, good being, we shall go to gather rice.’

‘Alaṁ, bho satta, āhato me sāli sakideva catūhāyā’ti.
‘There’s no need, good being! I gathered rice for four days all at once.’

Atha kho so, vāseṭṭha, satto tassa sattassa diṭṭhānugatiṁ āpajjamāno sāliṁ āhāsi sakideva aṭṭhāhāya, ‘evampi kira, bho, sādhū’ti.
So that being, following their example, gathered rice for eight days all at once, thinking: ‘This seems fine.’

Yato kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā sannidhikārakaṁ sāliṁ upakkamiṁsu paribhuñjituṁ.
But when they started to store up rice to eat,

Atha kaṇopi taṇḍulaṁ pariyonandhi, thusopi taṇḍulaṁ pariyonandhi;
the rice grains became wrapped in powder and husk, lūnampi nappaṭivirūḷhaṁ, apadānaṁ paññāyittha, saṇḍasaṇḍā sālayo aṭṭhaṁsu.

it didn’t grow back after reaping, the cutting showed, and the rice stood in clumps.

9. Sālivibhāga

9. Dividing the Fields

Atha kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā sannipatiṁsu, sannipatitvā anutthuniṁsu:
Then those beings gathered together and bemoaned,

‘pāpakā vata, bho, dhammā sattesu pātubhūtā.
‘Oh, how wicked things have appeared among beings!

Mayañhi pubbe manomayā ahumhā pītibhakkhā sayaṁpabhā antalikkhacarā subhaṭṭhāyino, ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhamhā.
For we used to be mind-made, feeding on rapture, self-luminous, moving through the sky, steadily glorious, and we remained like that for a very long time.

Tesaṁ no amhākaṁ kadāci karahaci dīghassa addhuno accayena rasapathavī udakasmiṁ samatani.
After a very long period had passed, solid nectar curdled in the water.

Sā ahosi vaṇṇasampannā gandhasampannā rasasampannā.

Te mayaṁ rasapathaviṁ hatthehi āluppakārakaṁ upakkamimha paribhuñjituṁ, tesaṁ no rasapathaviṁ hatthehi āluppakārakaṁ upakkamataṁ paribhuñjituṁ sayaṁpabhā antaradhāyi.

Sayaṁpabhāya antarahitāya candimasūriyā pāturahesuṁ, candimasūriyesu pātubhūtesu nakkhattāni tārakarūpāni pāturahesuṁ, nakkhattesu tārakarūpesu pātubhūtesu rattindivā paññāyiṁsu, rattindivesu paññāyamānesu māsaḍḍhamāsā paññāyiṁsu.

Māsaḍḍhamāsesu paññāyamānesu utusaṁvaccharā paññāyiṁsu.

Te mayaṁ rasapathaviṁ paribhuñjantā tambhakkhā tadāhārā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhamhā.

Tesaṁ no pāpakānaṁyeva akusalānaṁ dhammānaṁ pātubhāvā rasapathavī antaradhāyi.
But due to bad, unskillful things among us, the savory nectar vanished, Rasapathaviyā antarahitāya bhūmipappaṭako pāturahosi.

So ahosi vaṇṇasampanno gandhasampanno rasasampanno.

Te mayaṁ bhūmipappaṭakaṁ upakkamimha paribhuñjituṁ.

Te mayaṁ taṁ paribhuñjantā tambhakkhā tadāhārā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhamhā.

Tesaṁ no pāpakānaṁyeva akusalānaṁ dhammānaṁ pātubhāvā bhūmipappaṭako antaradhāyi.
the ground-sprouts vanished,

Bhūmipappaṭake antarahite padālatā pāturahosi.

Sā ahosi vaṇṇasampannā gandhasampannā rasasampannā.

Te mayaṁ padālataṁ upakkamimha paribhuñjituṁ.

Te mayaṁ taṁ paribhuñjantā tambhakkhā tadāhārā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhamhā.

Tesaṁ no pāpakānaṁyeva akusalānaṁ dhammānaṁ pātubhāvā padālatā antaradhāyi.
the bursting pods vanished,

Padālatāya antarahitāya akaṭṭhapāko sāli pāturahosi akaṇo athuso suddho sugandho taṇḍulapphalo.

Yaṁ taṁ sāyaṁ sāyamāsāya āharāma, pāto taṁ hoti pakkaṁ paṭivirūḷhaṁ.

Yaṁ taṁ pāto pātarāsāya āharāma, sāyaṁ taṁ hoti pakkaṁ paṭivirūḷhaṁ.

Nāpadānaṁ paññāyittha.

Te mayaṁ akaṭṭhapākaṁ sāliṁ paribhuñjantā tambhakkhā tadāhārā ciraṁ dīghamaddhānaṁ aṭṭhamhā.

Tesaṁ no pāpakānaṁyeva akusalānaṁ dhammānaṁ pātubhāvā kaṇopi taṇḍulaṁ pariyonandhi, thusopi taṇḍulaṁ pariyonandhi, lūnampi nappaṭivirūḷhaṁ, apadānaṁ paññāyittha, saṇḍasaṇḍā sālayo ṭhitā.
and now the rice grains have become wrapped in powder and husk, it doesn’t grow back after reaping, the cutting shows, and the rice stands in clumps.

Yannūna mayaṁ sāliṁ vibhajeyyāma, mariyādaṁ ṭhapeyyāmā’ti.
We’d better divide up the rice and set boundaries.’

Atha kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā sāliṁ vibhajiṁsu, mariyādaṁ ṭhapesuṁ.
So that’s what they did.

Atha kho, vāseṭṭha, aññataro satto lolajātiko sakaṁ bhāgaṁ parirakkhanto aññataraṁ bhāgaṁ adinnaṁ ādiyitvā paribhuñji.
Now, one of those beings was reckless. While guarding their own share they took another’s share without it being given, and ate it.

Tamenaṁ aggahesuṁ, gahetvā etadavocuṁ:

They grabbed the one who had done this and said,

‘pāpakaṁ vata, bho satta, karosi, yatra hi nāma sakaṁ bhāgaṁ parirakkhanto aññataraṁ bhāgaṁ adinnaṁ ādiyitvā paribhuñjasi.
‘You have done a bad thing, good being, in that while guarding your own share you took another’s share without it being given, and ate it.

Māssu, bho satta, punapi evarūpamakāsī’ti.
Do not do such a thing again.’

‘Evaṁ, bho’ti kho, vāseṭṭha, so satto tesaṁ sattānaṁ paccassosi.
‘Yes, sirs,’ replied that being.

Dutiyampi kho, vāseṭṭha, so satto …pe…
But for a second time,

tatiyampi kho, vāseṭṭha, so satto sakaṁ bhāgaṁ parirakkhanto aññataraṁ bhāgaṁ adinnaṁ ādiyitvā paribhuñji.
and a third time they did the same thing, and were told not to continue.

Tamenaṁ aggahesuṁ, gahetvā etadavocuṁ:

‘pāpakaṁ vata, bho satta, karosi, yatra hi nāma sakaṁ bhāgaṁ parirakkhanto aññataraṁ bhāgaṁ adinnaṁ ādiyitvā paribhuñjasi.

Māssu, bho satta, punapi evarūpamakāsī’ti.

Aññe pāṇinā pahariṁsu, aññe leḍḍunā pahariṁsu, aññe daṇḍena pahariṁsu.
And then they struck that being, some with fists, others with stones, and still others with rods.

Tadagge kho, vāseṭṭha, adinnādānaṁ paññāyati, garahā paññāyati, musāvādo paññāyati, daṇḍādānaṁ paññāyati.
From that day on stealing was found, and blaming and lying and the taking up of rods.

10. Mahāsammatarājā

10. The Elected King

Atha kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā sannipatiṁsu, sannipatitvā anutthuniṁsu:
Then those beings gathered together and bemoaned,

‘pāpakā vata bho dhammā sattesu pātubhūtā, yatra hi nāma adinnādānaṁ paññāyissati, garahā paññāyissati, musāvādo paññāyissati, daṇḍādānaṁ paññāyissati.
‘Oh, how wicked things have appeared among beings, in that stealing is found, and blaming and lying and the taking up of rods!

Yannūna mayaṁ ekaṁ sattaṁ sammanneyyāma, yo no sammā khīyitabbaṁ khīyeyya, sammā garahitabbaṁ garaheyya, sammā pabbājetabbaṁ pabbājeyya.
Why don’t we elect one being who would rightly accuse those who deserve it, blame those who deserve it, and expel those who deserve it?

Mayaṁ panassa sālīnaṁ bhāgaṁ anuppadassāmā’ti.
We shall pay them with a share of rice.’

Atha kho te, vāseṭṭha, sattā yo nesaṁ satto abhirūpataro ca dassanīyataro ca pāsādikataro ca mahesakkhataro ca taṁ sattaṁ upasaṅkamitvā etadavocuṁ:
Then those beings approached the being among them who was most attractive, good-looking, lovely, and illustrious, and said, ‘ehi, bho satta, sammā khīyitabbaṁ khīya, sammā garahitabbaṁ garaha, sammā pabbājetabbaṁ pabbājehi.

‘Come, good being, rightly accuse those who deserve it, blame those who deserve it, and banish those who deserve it.

Mayaṁ pana te sālīnaṁ bhāgaṁ anuppadassāmā’ti.

‘Evaṁ, bho’ti kho, vāseṭṭha, so satto tesaṁ sattānaṁ paṭissuṇitvā sammā khīyitabbaṁ khīyi, sammā garahitabbaṁ garahi, sammā pabbājetabbaṁ pabbājesi.

‘Yes, sirs,’ replied that being. They acted accordingly,

Te panassa sālīnaṁ bhāgaṁ anuppadaṁsu.
and were paid with a share of rice.

Mahājanasammatoti kho, vāseṭṭha, ‘mahāsammato, mahāsammato’ tveva paṭhamaṁ akkharaṁ upanibbattaṁ.
‘Elected by the people’, Vāseṭṭha, is the meaning of ‘elected one’, the first term to be specifically invented for them.

Khettānaṁ adhipatīti kho, vāseṭṭha, ‘khattiyo, khattiyo’ tveva dutiyaṁ akkharaṁ upanibbattaṁ.
‘Lord of the fields’ is the meaning of ‘aristocrat’, the second term to be specifically invented.

Dhammena pare rañjetīti kho, vāseṭṭha, ‘rājā, rājā’ tveva tatiyaṁ akkharaṁ upanibbattaṁ.
‘They please others with principle’ is the meaning of ‘king’, the third term to be specifically invented.

‘Oh, how wicked things have appeared among beings, in that stealing is found, and blaming and lying and the taking up of rods and banishment!

Yannūna mayaṁ pāpake akusale dhamme vāheyyāmā’ti.
Why don’t we set aside bad, unskillful things?’

Te pāpake akusale dhamme vāhesuṁ.
So that’s what they did.

Pāpake akusale dhamme vāhentīti kho, vāseṭṭha, ‘brāhmaṇā, brāhmaṇā’ tveva paṭhamaṁ akkharaṁ upanibbattaṁ.
‘They set aside bad, unskillful things’ is the meaning of ‘brahmin’, the first term to be specifically invented for them.

Any mendicant from these four castes who is perfected—with defilements ended, who has completed the spiritual journey, done what had to be done, laid down the burden, achieved their own true goal, utterly ended the fetters of rebirth, and is rightly freed through enlightenment—is said to be the best by virtue of principle, not without principle.

Brahmunā pesā, vāseṭṭha, sanaṅkumārena gāthā bhāsitā:
Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra also spoke this verse:

‘Khattiyo seṭṭho janetasmiṁ,
‘The aristocrat is best of those people

ye gottapaṭisārino;
who take clan as the standard.

Vijjācaraṇasampanno,
But one accomplished in knowledge and conduct

That verse was well sung by Brahmā Sanaṅkumāra, not poorly sung; well spoken, not poorly spoken; beneficial, not harmful, and I agree with it.

Ahampi, vāseṭṭha, evaṁ vadāmi—
I also say:

Khattiyo seṭṭho janetasmiṁ,
The aristocrat is best of those people

ye gottapaṭisārino;
who take clan as the standard.

Vijjācaraṇasampanno,
But one accomplished in knowledge and conduct

so seṭṭho devamānuse”ti.

Inspiring Confidence

1. Sāriputtasīhanāda
1. Sāriputta's Lion's Roar

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā nāḷandāyaṁ viharati pāvārikambavane.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Nālandā in Pāvārika's mango grove.

Atha kho āyasmā sāriputto yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho āyasmā sāriputto bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Sāriputta went up to the Buddha, bowed, sat down to one side, and said to him:

"evaṁpasanno ahaṁ, bhante, bhagavati, na cāhu na ca bhavissati na cetarahi vijjati añño samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā bhagavatā bhiyyobhiññataro yadidaṁ sambodhiyan"ti.
"Sir, I have such confidence in the Buddha that I believe there's no other ascetic or brahmin—whether past, future, or present—whose direct knowledge is superior to the Buddha when it comes to awakening."

"Uḷārā kho te ayaṁ, sāriputta, āsabhī vācā bhāsitā, ekaṁso gahito, sīhanādo nadito:

“That’s a grand and dramatic statement, Sāriputta. You’ve roared a definitive, categorical lion’s roar, saying:

‘evaṁpasanno ahaṁ, bhante, bhagavati;
‘I have such confidence in the Buddha that na cāhu na ca bhavissati na cetarahi vijjati añño samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā bhagavatā bhiyyobhiññataro yadidaṁ sambodhiyan’ti.

I believe there’s no other ascetic or brahmin—whether past, future, or present—whose direct knowledge is superior to the Buddha when it comes to awakening.’

Kiṁ te, sāriputta, ye te ahesuṁ atītamaddhānaṁ arahanto sammāsambuddhā, sabbe te bhagavanto cetasā ceto paricca viditā:
What about all the perfected ones, the fully awakened Buddhas who lived in the past? Have you comprehended their minds to know that ‘evaṁsīlā te bhagavanto ahesuṁ itipi, evaṁdhammā te bhagavanto ahesuṁ itipi, evaṁpaññā te bhagavanto ahesuṁ itipi, evaṁvihārī te bhagavanto ahesuṁ itipi, evaṁvimuttā te bhagavanto ahesuṁ itipī’”ti?

those Buddhas had such ethics, or such qualities, or such wisdom, or such meditation, or such freedom?”

“No hetaṁ, bhante”.
“No, sir.”

“Kiṁ pana te, sāriputta, ye te bhavissanti anāgatamaddhānaṁ arahanto sammāsambuddhā, sabbe te bhagavanto cetasā ceto paricca viditā:
“And what about all the perfected ones, the fully awakened Buddhas who will live in the future? Have you comprehended their minds to know that ‘evaṁsīlā te bhagavanto bhavissanti itipi, evaṁdhammā … evaṁpaññā … evaṁvihārī … evaṁvimuttā te bhagavanto bhavissanti itipī’”ti?

those Buddhas will have such ethics, or such qualities, or such wisdom, or such meditation, or such freedom?”

“No hetaṁ, bhante”.
“No, sir.”

“Kiṁ pana te, sāriputta, ahaṁ etarahi arahaṁ sammāsambuddho cetasā ceto paricca vidito:
“And what about me, the perfected one, the fully awakened Buddha at present? Have you comprehended my mind to know that ‘evaṁsīlo bhagavā itipi, evaṁdhammo … evaṁpañño … evaṁvihārī … evaṁvimutto bhagavā itipī’”ti?

I have such ethics, or such qualities, or such wisdom, or such meditation, or such freedom?”

“No hetaṁ, bhante”.
“No, sir.”

“Ettha ca hi te, sāriputta, atītānāgatapaccuppannesu arahantesu sammāsambuddhesu cetopariyañāṇaṁ natthi.
“Well then, Sāriputta, given that you don’t comprehend the minds of Buddhas past, future, or present,

Atha kiṁ carahi te ayaṁ, sāriputta, uḷārā āsabhī vācā bhāsitā, ekaṁso gahito, sīhanādo nadito:

‘evaṁpasanno ahaṁ, bhante, bhagavati, na cāhu na ca bhavissati na cetarahi vijjati añño samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā bhagavatā bhiyyobhiññataro yadidaṁ sambodhiyan’”ti?

“Na kho me, bhante, atītānāgatapaccuppannesu arahantesu sammāsambuddhesu cetopariyañāṇaṁ atthi.
“Sir, though I don’t comprehend the minds of Buddhas past, future, and present, Api ca me dhammanvayo vidito.

still I understand this by inference from the teaching.

Seyyathāpi, bhante, rañño paccantimaṁ nagaraṁ daḷhuddhāpaṁ daḷhapākāratoraṇaṁ ekadvāraṁ.
Suppose there were a king’s frontier citadel with fortified embankments, ramparts, and arches, and a single gate.

Tatrassa dovāriko paṇḍito byatto medhāvī aññātānaṁ nivāretā, ñātānaṁ pavesetā.
And it has a gatekeeper who is astute, competent, and clever. He keeps strangers out and lets known people in.

So tassa nagarassa samantā anupariyāyapathaṁ anukkamamāno na passeyya pākārasandhiṁ vā pākāravivaraṁ vā antamaso biḷāranikkhamanamattampi.
As he walks around the patrol path, he doesn’t see a hole or cleft in the wall, not even one big enough for a cat to slip out.

Tassa evamassa:
They’d think,

‘ye kho keci oḷārikā pāṇā imaṁ nagaraṁ pavisanti vā nikkhamanti vā, sabbe te imināva dvārena pavisanti vā nikkhamanti vā’ti.
‘Whatever sizable creatures enter or leave the citadel, all of them do so via this gate.’

Evameva kho me, bhante, dhammanvayo vidito.
In the same way, I understand this by inference from the teaching:

Ye te, bhante, ahesuṁ atītamaddhānaṁ arahanto sammāsambuddhā, sabbe te bhagavanto pañca nīvaraṇe pahāya cetaso upakkilese paññāya dubbalīkaraṇe catūsu

‘All the perfected ones, fully awakened Buddhas—whether past, future, or present—give up the five hindrances, corruptions of the heart that weaken wisdom. Their mind is firmly established in the four kinds of mindfulness meditation. They correctly develop the seven awakening factors. And they wake up to the supreme perfect awakening.’

Yepi te, bhante, bhavissanti anāgatamaddhānaṁ arahanto sammāsambuddhā, sabbe te bhagavanto pañca nīvaraṇe pahāya cetaso upakkilese paññāya dubbalīkaraṇe catūsu satipaṭṭhānesu suppatiṭṭhitacittā, satta sambojjhaṅge yathābhūtaṁ bhāvetvā anuttaraṁ sammāsambodhiṁ abhisambujjhissanti.

Bhagavāpi, bhante, etarahi arahaṁ sammāsambuddho pañca nīvaraṇe pahāya cetaso upakkilese paññāya dubbalīkaraṇe catūsu satipaṭṭhānesu suppatiṭṭhitacitto satta sambojjhaṅge yathābhūtaṁ bhāvetvā anuttaraṁ sammāsambodhiṁ abhisambuddho.

Idhāhaṁ, bhante, yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamiṁ dhammassavanāya.
Sir, once I approached the Buddha to listen to the teaching.

Tassa me, bhante, bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti uttaruttaraṁ paṇītapaṇītaṁ kaṇhasukkasappaṭibhāgaṁ.
He explained Dhamma with its higher and higher stages, with its better and better stages, with its dark and bright sides.

Yathā yathā me, bhante, bhagavā dhammaṁ desesi uttaruttaraṁ paṇītapaṇītaṁ kaṇhasukkasappaṭibhāgaṁ tathā tathāhaṁ tasmiṁ dhamme abhiññā idhekaccaṁ dhammaṁ dhammesu niṭṭhamagamaṁ; satthari pasīdiṁ:
When I directly knew a certain principle of those teachings, in accordance with how I was taught, I came to a conclusion about the teachings. I had confidence in the Teacher:

‘sammāsambuddho bhagavā, svākkhāto bhagavatā dhammo, suppaṭipanno sāvakasaṅgho’ti.
‘The Blessed One is a fully awakened Buddha. The teaching is well explained. The Saṅgha is practicing well.’

1.1. Kusaladhammadesanā

1.1. Teaching Skillful Qualities

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti kusalesu dhammesu.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches skillful qualities is unsurpassable.

Tatrime kusalā dhammā seyyathidaṁ—
This consists of such skillful qualities as cattāro satipaṭṭhānā, cattāro sammappadhānā, cattāro iddhipādā, pañcindriyāni, pañca balāni, satta bojjhaṅgā, ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo.

the four kinds of mindfulness meditation, the four right efforts, the four bases of psychic power, the five faculties, the five powers, the seven awakening factors, and the noble eightfold path.

Idha, bhante, bhikkhu āsavānaṁ khayā anāsavaṁ cetovimuttiṁ paññāvimuttiṁ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharati.
By these a mendicant realizes the undefiled freedom of heart and freedom by wisdom in this very life. And they live having realized it with their own insight due to the ending of defilements.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, kusalesu dhammesu.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to skillful qualities.

Taṁ bhagavā asesamabhijānāti, taṁ bhagavato asesamabhijānato uttari abhiññeyyaṁ natthi, yadabhijānaṁ aññо samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā bhagavatā bhiyyobhiññataro assa, yadidaṁ kusalesu dhammesu.

The Buddha understands this without exception. There is nothing to be understood beyond this whereby another ascetic or brahmin might be superior in direct knowledge to the Buddha when it comes to skillful qualities.

1.2. Āyatanapaṇṇattidesanā

1.2. Describing the Sense Fields

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti āyatanapaṇṇattīsu.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches the description of the sense fields is unsurpassable.

Chayimāni, bhante, ajjhattikabāhirāni āyatanāni.
There are these six interior and exterior sense fields.

Cakkhuñceva rūpā ca, sotañceva saddā ca, ghānañceva gandhā ca, jivhā ceva rasā ca, kāyo ceva phoṭṭhabbā ca, mano ceva dhammā ca.
The eye and sights, the ear and sounds, the nose and smells, the tongue and tastes, the body and touches, and the mind and thoughts.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, āyatanapaṇṇattīsu.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to describing the sense fields.

Taṁ bhagavā asesamabhijānāti, taṁ bhagavato asesamabhijānato uttari abhiññeyyaṁ natthi, yadabhijānaṁ añño samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā bhagavatā bhiyyobhiññataro assa yadidaṁ āyatanapaṇṇattīsu.
The Buddha understands this without exception. There is nothing to be understood beyond this whereby another ascetic or brahmin might be superior in direct knowledge to the Buddha when it comes to describing the sense fields.

1.3. Gabbhāvakkantidesanā

1.3. The Conception of the Embryo

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti gabbhāvakkantīsu.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches the conception of the embryo is unsurpassable.

Catasso imā, bhante, gabbhāvakkantiyo.
There are these four kinds of conception.

Idha, bhante, ekacco asampajāno mātukucchiṁ okkamati; asampajāno mātukucchismiṁ ṭhāti; asampajāno mātukucchimhā nikkhamati. Ayaṁ paṭhamā gabbhāvakkanti.
Firstly, someone is unaware when conceived in their mother's womb, unaware as they remain there, and unaware as they emerge. This is the first kind of conception.

Puna caparaṁ, bhante, idhekacco sampajāno mātukucchiṁ okkamati; asampajāno mātukucchismiṁ ṭhāti; asampajāno mātukucchimhā nikkhamati. Ayaṁ dutiyā gabbhāvakkanti.
Furthermore, someone is aware when conceived in their mother's womb, but unaware as they remain there, and unaware as they emerge. This is the second kind of conception.

Puna caparaṁ, bhante, idhekacco sampajāno mātukucchiṁ okkamati; sampajāno mātukucchismiṁ ṭhāti; asampajāno mātukucchimhā nikkhamati. Ayaṁ tatiyā gabbhāvakkanti.
Furthermore, someone is aware when conceived in their mother's womb, aware as they remain there, but unaware as they emerge. This is the third kind of conception.

Puna caparaṁ, bhante, idhekacco sampajāno mātukucchiṁ okkamati; sampajāno mātukucchismiṁ ṭhāti; sampajāno mātukucchimhā nikkhamati. Ayaṁ catutthā gabbhāvakkanti.

Furthermore, someone is aware when conceived in their mother’s womb, aware as they remain there, and aware as they emerge. This is the fourth kind of conception.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, gabbhāvakkantīsu.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to the conception of the embryo.

1.4. Ādesanavidhādesanā

1.4. Ways of Revealing

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti ādesanavidhāsu.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches the different ways of revealing is unsurpassable.

Catasso imā, bhante, ādesanavidhā.
There are these four ways of revealing.

Idha, bhante, ekacco nimittena ādisati:
Firstly, someone reveals by means of a sign,

‘evampi te mano, itthampi te mano, itipi te cittan’ti.
‘This is what you’re thinking, such is your thought, and thus is your state of mind.’

So bahuñcepi ādisati, tatheva taṁ hoti, no aññathā.
And even if they reveal this many times, it turns out exactly so, not otherwise.

Ayaṁ paṭhamā ādesanavidhā.
This is the first way of revealing.

Puna caparaṁ, bhante, idhekacco na heva kho nimittena ādisati. Api ca kho manussānaṁ vā amanussānaṁ vā devatānaṁ vā saddaṁ sutvā ādisati:

Furthermore, someone reveals after hearing it from humans or non-humans or deities,

‘evampi te mano, itthampi te mano, itipi te cittan’ti.
‘This is what you’re thinking, such is your thought, and thus is your state of mind.’

So bahuñcepi ādisati, tatheva taṁ hoti, no aññathā.
And even if they reveal this many times, it turns out exactly so, not otherwise.

Ayaṁ dutiyā ādesanavidhā.
This is the second way of revealing.

Puna caparaṁ, bhante, idhekacco na heva kho nimittena ādisati, nāpi manussānaṁ vā amanussānaṁ vā devatānaṁ vā saddaṁ sutvā ādisati. Api ca kho vitakkayato vicārayato vitakkavipphārasaddaṁ sutvā ādisati:
Furthermore, someone reveals by hearing the sound of thought spreading as someone thinks and considers,

‘evampi te mano, itthampi te mano, itipi te cittan’ti.
‘This is what you’re thinking, such is your thought, and thus is your state of mind.’

So bahuñcepi ādisati, tatheva taṁ hoti, no aññathā.
And even if they reveal this many times, it turns out exactly so, not otherwise.

Ayaṁ tatiyā ādesanavidhā.
This is the third way of revealing.

Puna caparaṁ, bhante, idhekacco na heva kho nimittena ādisati, nāpi manussānaṁ vā amanussānaṁ vā devatānaṁ vā saddaṁ sutvā ādisati, nāpi vitakkayato vicārayato vitakkavipphārasaddaṁ sutvā ādisati. Api ca kho avitakkaṁ avicāraṁ samādhiṁ samāpannassa cetasā ceto paricca pajānāti:

Furthermore, someone comprehends the mind of a person who has attained the immersion that’s free of placing the mind and keeping it connected. They understand, ‘yathā imassa bhoto manosaṅkhārā paṇihitā. Tathā imassa cittassa anantarā imaṁ nāma vitakkaṁ vitakkessatī’ti.

‘Judging by the way this person’s intentions are directed, immediately after this mind state, they’ll think this thought.’

So bahuñcepi ādisati, tatheva taṁ hoti, no aññathā.
And even if they reveal this many times, it turns out exactly so, not otherwise.

Ayaṁ catutthā ādesanavidhā.
This is the fourth way of revealing.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, ādesanavidhāsu.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to the ways of revealing.

1.5. Dassanasamāpattidesanā

1.5. Attainments of Vision

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti dassanasamāpattīsu.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches the attainments of vision is unsurpassable.

Catasso imā, bhante, dassanasamāpattiyo.
There are these four attainments of vision.

Idha, bhante, ekacco samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā ātappamanvāya padhānamanvāya anuyogamanvāya appamādamanvāya sammāmanasikāramanvāya tathārūpaṁ cetosamādhiṁ phusati, yathāsamāhite citte imameva kāyaṁ uddhaṁ pādatalā adho kesamatthakā tacapariyantaṁ pūraṁ nānappakārassa asucino paccavekkhati:

Firstly, some ascetic or brahmin—by dint of keen, resolute, committed, and diligent effort, and right focus—experiences an immersion of the heart of such a kind that they examine their own body up from the soles of the feet and down from the tips of the hairs, wrapped in skin and full of many kinds of filth.

‘atthi imasmiṁ kāye kesā lomā nakhā dantā taco maṁsaṁ nhāru aṭṭhi aṭṭhimiñjaṁ vakkaṁ hadayaṁ yakanaṁ kilomakaṁ pihakaṁ papphāsaṁ antaṁ antaguṇaṁ udariyaṁ karīsaṁ pittaṁ semhaṁ pubbo lohitaṁ sedo medo assu vasā kheḷo siṅghānikā lasikā muttan’ti.
‘In this body there is head hair, body hair, nails, teeth, skin, flesh, sinews, bones, bone marrow, kidneys, heart, liver, diaphragm, spleen, lungs, intestines, mesentery, undigested food, feces, bile, phlegm, pus, blood, sweat, fat, tears, grease, saliva, snot, synovial fluid, urine.’

Ayaṁ paṭhamā dassanasamāpatti.
This is the first attainment of vision.

Puna caparaṁ, bhante, idhekacco samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā ātappamanvāya …pe… tathārūpaṁ cetosamādhiṁ phusati, yathāsamāhite citte imameva kāyaṁ uddhaṁ pādatalā adho kesamatthakā tacapariyantaṁ pūraṁ nānappakārassa asucino paccavekkhati:
Furthermore, some ascetic or brahmin attains that and goes beyond it.

‘atthi imasmiṁ kāye kesā lomā …pe… lasikā muttan’ti.

Atikkamma ca purisassa chavimaṁsalohitaṁ aṭṭhiṁ paccavekkhati.
They examine a person’s bones with skin, flesh, and blood.

Ayaṁ dutiyā dassanasamāpatti.
This is the second attainment of vision.

Puna caparaṁ, bhante, idhekacco samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā ātappamanvāya …pe… tathārūpaṁ cetosamādhiṁ phusati, yathāsamāhite citte imameva kāyaṁ uddhaṁ pādatalā adho kesamatthakā tacapariyantaṁ pūraṁ nānappakārassa asucino paccavekkhati:
Furthermore, some ascetic or brahmin attains that and goes beyond it.

‘atthi imasmiṁ kāye kesā lomā …pe… lasikā muttan’ti.

Atikkamma ca purisassa chavimaṁsalohitaṁ aṭṭhiṁ paccavekkhati.

Purisassa ca viññāṇasotaṁ pajānāti, ubhayato abbocchinnaṁ idha loke patiṭṭhitañca paraloke patiṭṭhitañca.
They understand a person’s stream of consciousness, unbroken on both sides, established in both this world and the next.

Ayaṁ tatiyā dassanasamāpatti.
This is the third attainment of vision.

Puna caparaṁ, bhante, idhekacco samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā ātappamanvāya …pe… tathārūpaṁ cetosamādhiṁ phusati, yathāsamāhite citte imameva kāyaṁ uddhaṁ pādatalā adho kesamatthakā tacapariyantaṁ pūraṁ nānappakārassa asucino paccavekkhati:

They understand a person’s stream of consciousness, unbroken on both sides, not established in either this world or the next.

Ayaṁ catutthā dassanasamāpatti.

This is the fourth attainment of vision.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, dassanasamāpattīsu.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to attainments of vision.

1.6. Puggalapaṇṇattidesanā

1.6. Descriptions of Individuals

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti puggalapaṇṇattīsu.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches the description of individuals is unsurpassable.

Sattime, bhante, puggalā.
There are these seven individuals.

Ubhatobhāgavimutto paññāvimutto kāyasakkhi diṭṭhippatto saddhāvimutto dhammānusārī saddhānusārī.
One freed both ways, one freed by wisdom, a personal witness, one attained to view, one freed by faith, a follower of the teachings, a follower by faith.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, puggalapaṇṇattīsu.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to the description of individuals.

1.7. Padhānadesanā

1.7. Kinds of Striving

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti padhānesu.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches the kinds of striving is unsurpassable.

Sattime, bhante, sambojjhaṅgā satisambojjhaṅgo dhammavicayasambojjhaṅgo vīriyasambojjhaṅgo pītisambojjhaṅgo passaddhisambojjhaṅgo samādhisambojjhaṅgo upekkhāsambojjhaṅgo.

There are these seven awakening factors: the awakening factors of mindfulness, investigation of principles, energy, rapture, tranquility, immersion, and equanimity.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, padhānesu.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to the kinds of striving.

1.8. Paṭipadādesanā

1.8. Ways of Practice

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti paṭipadāsu.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches the ways of practice is unsurpassable.

1. Catasso imā, bhante, paṭipadā dukkhā paṭipadā dandhābhiññā,
   Painful practice with slow insight,
2. dukkhā paṭipadā khippābhiññā, painful practice with swift insight,
3. sukhā paṭipadā dandhābhiññā, pleasant practice with slow insight, and
4. sukhā paṭipadā khippābhiññāti.
   pleasant practice with swift insight.

Tatra, bhante, yāyaṁ paṭipadā dukkhā dandhābhiññā, ayaṁ, bhante, paṭipadā ubhayeneva hīnā akkhāyati dukkhattā ca dandhattā ca.
Of these, the painful practice with slow insight is said to be inferior both ways: because it’s painful and because it’s slow.

Tatra, bhante, yāyaṁ paṭipadā dukkhā khippābhiññā, ayaṁ pana, bhante, paṭipadā dukkhattā hīnā akkhāyati.
The painful practice with swift insight is said to be inferior because it’s painful.

Tatra, bhante, yāyaṁ paṭipadā sukhā dandhābhiññā, ayaṁ pana, bhante, paṭipadā dandhattā hīnā akkhāyati.
The pleasant practice with slow insight is said to be inferior because it’s slow.

Tatra, bhante, yāyaṁ paṭipadā sukhā khippābhiññā, ayaṁ pana, bhante, paṭipadā ubhayeneva paṇītā akkhāyati sukhattā ca khippattā ca.
But the pleasant practice with swift insight is said to be superior both ways: because it’s pleasant and because it’s swift.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, paṭipadāsu.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to the ways of practice.

1.9. Bhassasamācārādidesanā

1.9. Behavior in Speech

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti bhassasamācāre.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches behavior in speech is unsurpassable.

Idha, bhante, ekacco na ceva musāvādupasañhitaṁ vācaṁ bhāsati na ca vebhūtiyaṁ na ca pesuṇiyaṁ na ca sārambhajaṁ jayāpekkho;
It’s when someone doesn’t use speech that’s connected with lying, or divisive, or backbiting, or aggressively trying to win.

mantā mantā ca vācaṁ bhāsati nidhānavatiṁ kālena.
They speak only wise counsel, valuable and timely.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, bhassasamācāre.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to behavior in speech.

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti purisasīlasamācāre.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches a person’s ethical behavior is unsurpassable.

Idha, bhante, ekacco sacco cassa saddho ca, na ca kuhako, na ca lapako, na ca nemittiko, na ca nippesiko, na ca lābhena lābhaṁ nijigīsanako, indriyesu guttadvāro, bhojane mattaññū, samakārī, jāgariyānuyogamanuyutto, atandito, āraddhavīriyo, jhāyī, satimā, kalyāṇapaṭibhāno, gatimā, dhitimā, matimā, na ca kāmesu giddho, sato ca nipako ca.
It’s when someone is honest and faithful. They don’t use deceit, flattery, hinting, or belittling, and they don’t use material possessions to pursue other material possessions. They guard the sense doors and eat in moderation. They’re fair, dedicated to wakefulness, tireless, energetic, and meditative. They have good memory, eloquence, range, retention, and thoughtfulness. They’re not greedy for sensual pleasures. They are mindful and alert.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, purisasīlasamācāre.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to a person’s ethical behavior.

1.10. Anusāsanavidhādesanā

1.10. Responsiveness to Instruction

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti anusāsanavidhāsu.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches the different degrees of responsiveness to instruction is unsurpassable.

Catasso imā, bhante, anusāsanavidhā—
There are these four degrees of responsiveness to instruction.

jānāti, bhante, bhagavā aparaṁ puggalaṁ paccattaṁ yonisomanasikārā

The Buddha knows by investigating inside another individual:

‘ayaṁ puggalo yathānusiṭṭhaṁ tathā paṭipajjamāno tiṇṇaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā sotāpanno bhavissati avinipātadhammo niyato sambodhiparāyaṇo’ti.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, anusāsanavidhāsu.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to the different degrees of responsiveness to instruction.

1.11. Parapuggalavimuttiñāṇadesanā

1.11. The Knowledge and Freedom of Others

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti parapuggalavimuttiñāṇe.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches the knowledge and freedom of other individuals is unsurpassable.

‘ayaṁ puggalo tiṇṇaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā sotāpanno bhavissati avinipātadhammo niyato sambodhiparāyaṇo’ti.
‘With the ending of three fetters this individual will become a stream-enterer, not liable to be reborn in the underworld, bound for awakening.’

Jānāti, bhante, bhagavā paraṁ puggalaṁ paccattaṁ yonisomanasikārā:
The Buddha knows by investigating inside another individual:

‘ayaṁ puggalo tiṇṇaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā rāgadosamohānaṁ tanuttā sakadāgāmī bhavissati, sakideva imaṁ lokaṁ āgantvā dukkhassantaṁ karissatī’ti.
‘With the ending of three fetters, and the weakening of greed, hate, and delusion, this individual will become a once-returner. They will come back to this world once only, then make an end of suffering.’

Jānāti, bhante, bhagavā paraṁ puggalaṁ paccattaṁ yonisomanasikārā:
The Buddha knows by investigating inside another individual:

‘ayaṁ puggalo pañcannaṁ orambhāgiyānaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā opapātiko bhavissati tattha parinibbāyī anāvattidhammo tasmā lokā’ti.
‘With the ending of the five lower fetters, this individual will be reborn spontaneously. They will be extinguished there, and are not liable to return from that world.’

Jānāti, bhante, bhagavā paraṁ puggalaṁ paccattaṁ yonisomanasikārā:
The Buddha knows by investigating inside another individual:

‘ayaṁ puggalo āsavānaṁ khayā anāsavaṁ cetovimuttiṁ paññāvimuttiṁ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharissatī’ti.
‘This individual will realize the undefiled freedom of heart and freedom by wisdom in this very life, and live having realized it with their own insight due to the ending of defilements.’

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, parapuggalavimuttiñāṇe.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to the knowledge and freedom of other individuals.

1.12. Sassatavādadesanā

1.12. Eternalism

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti sassatavādesu.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches eternalist doctrines is unsurpassable.

Tayome, bhante, sassatavādā.
There are these three eternalist doctrines.

etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, sassatavādesu.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to eternalist doctrines.

1.13. Pubbenivāsānussatiñāṇadesanā

1.13. Recollecting Past Lives

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti pubbenivāsānussatiñāṇe.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches the knowledge of recollecting past lives is unsurpassable.

Idha, bhante, ekacco samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā ātappamanvāya …pe… tathārūpaṁ cetosamādhiṁ phusati, yathāsamāhite citte anekavihitaṁ pubbenivāsaṁ anussarati.
It’s when some ascetic or brahmin—by dint of keen, resolute, committed, and diligent effort, and right focus—experiences an immersion of the heart of such a kind that they recollect their many kinds of past lives.

Seyyathidaṁ—ekampi jātiṁ dvepi jātiyo tissopi jātiyo catassopi jātiyo pañcapi jātiyo dasapi jātiyo vīsampi jātiyo tiṁsampi jātiyo cattālīsampi jātiyo paññāsampi jātiyo jātisatampi

That is: one, two, three, four, five, ten, twenty, thirty, forty, fifty, a hundred, a thousand, a hundred thousand rebirths; many eons of the world contracting, many eons of the world expanding, many eons of the world contracting and expanding. They remember:

‘amutrāsiṁ evaṁnāmo evaṅgotto evaṁvaṇṇo evamāhāro evaṁsukhadukkhappaṭisaṁvedī evamāyupariyanto, so tato cuto amutra udapādiṁ; tatrāpāsiṁ evaṁnāmo evaṅgotto evaṁvaṇṇo evamāhāro evaṁsukhadukkhappaṭisaṁvedī evamāyupariyanto, so tato cuto idhūpapanno’ti. ‘There, I was named this, my clan was that, I looked like this, and that was my food. This was how I felt pleasure and pain, and that was how my life ended. When I passed away from that place I was reborn somewhere else. There, too, I was named this, my clan was that, I looked like this, and that was my food. This was how I felt pleasure and pain, and that was how my life ended. When I passed away from that place I was reborn here.’ And so they recollect their many kinds of past lives, with features and details.

Santi, bhante, devā, yesaṁ na sakkā gaṇanāya vā saṅkhānena vā āyu saṅkhātuṁ.

Iti sākāraṁ sauddesaṁ anekavihitaṁ pubbenivāsaṁ anussarati.
they recollect their many kinds of past lives, with features and details.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, pubbenivāsānussatiñāṇe.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to the knowledge of recollecting past lives.

1.14. Cutūpapātañāṇadesanā
1.14. Death and Rebirth

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti sattānaṁ cutūpapātañāṇe.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches the knowledge of the death and rebirth of sentient beings is unsurpassable.

Idha, bhante, ekacco samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā ātappamanvāya …pe… tathārūpaṁ cetosamādhiṁ phusati, yathāsamāhite citte dibbena cakkhunā visuddhena atikkantamānusakena satte passati cavamāne upapajjamāne
It's when some ascetic or brahmin—by dint of keen, resolute, committed, and diligent effort, and right focus—experiences an immersion of the heart of such a kind that with clairvoyance that is purified and superhuman, they see sentient beings passing away and being reborn hīne paṇīte suvaṇṇe dubbaṇṇe sugate duggate yathākammūpage satte pajānāti: 'ime vata bhonto sattā kāyaduccaritena samannāgatā vacīduccaritena samannāgatā manoduccaritena samannāgatā ariyānaṁ upavādakā micchādiṭṭhikā micchādiṭṭhikammasamādānā. —inferior and superior, beautiful and ugly, in a good place or a bad place. They understand how sentient beings are reborn according to their deeds: ‘These dear beings did bad things by way of body, speech, and mind. They spoke ill of the noble ones; they had wrong view; and they chose to act out of that wrong view. When their body breaks up, after death, they’re reborn in a place of loss, a bad place, the underworld, hell. These dear beings, however, did good things by way of body, speech, and mind. They never spoke ill of the noble ones; they had right view; and they chose to act out of that right view. When their body breaks up, after death, they’re reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.’ And so, with clairvoyance that is purified and superhuman, they see sentient beings passing away and being reborn—inferior and superior, beautiful and ugly, in a good place or a bad place. They understand how sentient beings are reborn according to their deeds.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, sattānaṁ cutūpapātañāṇe.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to the knowledge of death and rebirth.

1.15. Iddhividhadesanā

1.15. Psychic Powers

Aparaṁ pana, bhante, etadānuttariyaṁ, yathā bhagavā dhammaṁ deseti iddhividhāsu.
And moreover, sir, how the Buddha teaches psychic power is unsurpassable.

Dvemā, bhante, iddhividhāyo—
There are these two kinds of psychic power.

atthi, bhante, iddhi sāsavā saupadhikā, ‘no ariyā’ti vuccati.
There are psychic powers that are accompanied by defilements and attachments, and are said to be ignoble.

Atthi, bhante, iddhi anāsavā anupadhikā ‘ariyā’ti vuccati.

And there are psychic powers that are free of defilements and attachments, and are said to be noble.

Katamā ca, bhante, iddhi sāsavā saupadhikā, ‘no ariyā’ti vuccati?
What are the psychic powers that are accompanied by defilements and attachments, and are said to be ignoble?

idha, bhante, ekacco samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā ātappamanvāya …pe… tathārūpaṁ cetosamādhiṁ phusati, yathāsamāhite citte anekavihitaṁ iddhividhaṁ paccanubhoti—
It’s when some ascetic or brahmin—by dint of keen, resolute, committed, and diligent effort, and right focus—experiences an immersion of the heart of such a kind that they wield the many kinds of psychic power:

ekopi hutvā bahudhā hoti, bahudhāpi hutvā eko hoti; āvibhāvaṁ tirobhāvaṁ tirokuṭṭaṁ tiropākāraṁ tiropabbataṁ asajjamāno gacchati seyyathāpi ākāse; pathaviyāpi ummujjanimujjaṁ karoti seyyathāpi udake; udakepi abhijjamāne gacchati seyyathāpi pathaviyaṁ; ākāsepi pallaṅkena kamati seyyathāpi pakkhī sakuṇo; imepi candimasūriye evaṁmahiddhike evaṁmahānubhāve pāṇinā parāmasati parimajjati; yāva brahmalokāpi kāyena vasaṁ vatteti.
multiplying themselves and becoming one again; going unimpeded through a wall, a rampart, or a mountain as if through space; diving in and out of the earth as if it were water; walking on water as if it were earth; flying cross-legged through the sky like a bird; touching and stroking with the hand the sun and moon, so mighty and powerful; controlling the body as far as the Brahmā realm.

Ayaṁ, bhante, iddhi sāsavā saupadhikā, ‘no ariyā’ti vuccati.
These are the psychic powers that are accompanied by defilements and attachments, and are said to be ignoble.

Katamā pana, bhante, iddhi anāsavā anupadhikā, ‘ariyā’ti vuccati?

But what are the psychic powers that are free of defilements and attachments, and are said to be noble?

Idha, bhante, bhikkhu sace ākaṅkhati: ‘paṭikūle appaṭikūlasaññī vihareyyan’ti, appaṭikūlasaññī tattha viharati.
It’s when, if a mendicant wishes: ‘May I meditate perceiving the unrepulsive in the repulsive,’ that’s what they do.

Sace ākaṅkhati: ‘appaṭikūle paṭikūlasaññī vihareyyan’ti, paṭikūlasaññī tattha viharati.
If they wish: ‘May I meditate perceiving the repulsive in the unrepulsive,’ that’s what they do.

Sace ākaṅkhati: ‘paṭikūle ca appaṭikūle ca appaṭikūlasaññī vihareyyan’ti, appaṭikūlasaññī tattha viharati.
If they wish: ‘May I meditate perceiving the unrepulsive in the repulsive and the unrepulsive,’ that’s what they do.

Sace ākaṅkhati: ‘paṭikūle ca appaṭikūle ca paṭikūlasaññī vihareyyan’ti, paṭikūlasaññī tattha viharati.
If they wish: ‘May I meditate perceiving the repulsive in the unrepulsive and the repulsive,’ that’s what they do.

Sace ākaṅkhati: ‘paṭikūlañca appaṭikūlañca tadubhayaṁ abhinivajjetvā upekkhako vihareyyaṁ sato sampajāno’ti, upekkhako tattha viharati sato sampajāno.
If they wish: ‘May I meditate staying equanimous, mindful and aware, rejecting both the repulsive and the unrepulsive,’ that’s what they do.

Ayaṁ, bhante, iddhi anāsavā anupadhikā ‘ariyā’ti vuccati.
These are the psychic powers that are free of defilements and attachments, and are said to be noble.

Etadānuttariyaṁ, bhante, iddhividhāsu.
This is unsurpassable when it comes to psychic powers.

Taṁ bhagavā asesamabhijānāti, taṁ bhagavato asesamabhijānato uttari abhiññeyyaṁ natthi, yadabhijānaṁ añño samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā bhagavatā bhiyyobhiññataro assa yadidaṁ iddhividhāsu.

The Buddha understands this without exception. There is nothing to be understood beyond this whereby another ascetic or brahmin might be superior in direct knowledge to the Buddha when it comes to psychic powers.

1.16. Aññathāsatthuguṇadassana

1.16. The Four Absorptions

Yaṁ taṁ, bhante, saddhena kulaputtena pattabbaṁ āraddhavīriyena thāmavatā purisathāmena purisavīriyena purisaparakkamena purisadhorayhena, anuppattaṁ taṁ bhagavatā.
The Buddha has achieved what should be achieved by a faithful gentleman by being energetic and strong, by manly strength, energy, vigor, and exertion.

Na ca, bhante, bhagavā kāmesu kāmasukhallikānuyogamanuyutto hīnaṁ gammaṁ pothujjanikaṁ anariyaṁ anatthasaṁhitaṁ, na ca attakilamathānuyogamanuyutto dukkhaṁ anariyaṁ anatthasaṁhitaṁ.
The Buddha doesn’t indulge in sensual pleasures, which are low, crude, ordinary, ignoble, and pointless. And he doesn’t indulge in self-mortification, which is painful, ignoble, and pointless.

Catunnañca bhagavā jhānānaṁ ābhicetasikānaṁ diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārānaṁ nikāmalābhī akicchalābhī akasiralābhī.
He gets the four absorptions—blissful meditations in the present life that belong to the higher mind—when he wants, without trouble or difficulty.

1.17. Anuyogadānappakāra

1.17. On Being Questioned

Sace maṁ, bhante, evaṁ puccheyya:

Sir, if they were to ask me,

‘Reverend Sāriputta, is there any other ascetic or brahmin—whether past, future, or present—whose direct knowledge is superior to the Buddha when it comes to awakening?’ I would tell them ‘No.’

‘Kiṁ panāvuso sāriputta, bhavissanti anāgatamaddhānaṁ aññe samaṇā vā brāhmaṇā vā bhagavatā bhiyyobhiññatarā sambodhiyan’ti, evaṁ puṭṭho ahaṁ, bhante, ‘no’ti vadeyyaṁ.

Sace pana maṁ, bhante, evaṁ puccheyya:
But if they were to ask me,

‘kiṁ nu kho, āvuso sāriputta, ahesuṁ atītamaddhānaṁ aññe samaṇā vā brāhmaṇā vā bhagavatā samasamā sambodhiyan’ti, evaṁ puṭṭho ahaṁ, bhante, ‘evan’ti vadeyyaṁ.
‘Reverend Sāriputta, is there any other ascetic or brahmin—whether past or future—whose direct knowledge is equal to the Buddha when it comes to awakening?’ I would tell them ‘Yes.’

‘Kiṁ panāvuso sāriputta, bhavissanti anāgatamaddhānaṁ aññe samaṇā vā brāhmaṇā vā bhagavatā samasamā sambodhiyan’ti, evaṁ puṭṭho ahaṁ, bhante, ‘evan’ti vadeyyaṁ.

‘Kiṁ panāvuso sāriputta, atthetarahi aññe samaṇā vā brāhmaṇā vā bhagavatā samasamā sambodhiyan’ti, evaṁ puṭṭho ahaṁ, bhante, ‘no’ti vadeyyaṁ.
But if they were to ask: ‘Reverend Sāriputta, is there any other ascetic or brahmin at present whose direct knowledge is equal to the Buddha when it comes to awakening?’ I would tell them ‘No.’

Sace pana maṁ, bhante, evaṁ puccheyya:

But if they were to ask me,

‘kiṁ panāyasmā sāriputto ekaccaṁ abbhanujānāti, ekaccaṁ na abbhanujānātī’ti, evaṁ puṭṭho ahaṁ, bhante, evaṁ byākareyyaṁ:
‘But why does Venerable Sāriputta grant this in respect of some but not others?’ I would answer them like this,

‘sammukhā metaṁ, āvuso, bhagavato sutaṁ, sammukhā paṭiggahitaṁ:
‘Reverends, I have heard and learned this in the presence of the Buddha:

“ahesuṁ atītamaddhānaṁ arahanto sammāsambuddhā mayā samasamā sambodhiyan”ti.
“The perfected ones, fully awakened Buddhas of the past and the future are equal to myself when it comes to awakening.”

Sammukhā metaṁ, āvuso, bhagavato sutaṁ, sammukhā paṭiggahitaṁ:

“bhavissanti anāgatamaddhānaṁ arahanto sammāsambuddhā mayā samasamā sambodhiyan”ti.

Sammukhā metaṁ, āvuso, bhagavato sutaṁ sammukhā paṭiggahitaṁ:
And I have also heard and learned this in the presence of the Buddha:

“aṭṭhānametaṁ anavakāso yaṁ ekissā lokadhātuyā dve arahanto sammāsambuddhā apubbaṁ acarimaṁ uppajjeyyuṁ, netaṁ ṭhānaṁ vijjatī”’ti.
“It’s impossible for two perfected ones, fully awakened Buddhas to arise in the same solar system at the same time.”’

Kaccāhaṁ, bhante, evaṁ puṭṭho evaṁ byākaramāno vuttavādī ceva bhagavato homi, na ca bhagavantaṁ abhūtena abbhācikkhāmi, dhammassa cānudhammaṁ byākaromi, na ca

Answering this way, I trust that I repeated what the Buddha has said, and didn’t misrepresent him with an untruth. I trust my explanation was in line with the teaching, and that there are no legitimate grounds for rebuke or criticism.”

“Taggha tvaṁ, sāriputta, evaṁ puṭṭho evaṁ byākaramāno vuttavādī ceva me hosi, na ca maṁ abhūtena abbhācikkhasi, dhammassa cānudhammaṁ byākarosi, na ca koci sahadhammiko vādānuvādo gārayhaṁ ṭhānaṁ āgacchatī”ti.
“Indeed, Sāriputta, in answering this way you repeat what I’ve said, and don’t misrepresent me with an untruth. Your explanation is in line with the teaching, and there are no legitimate grounds for rebuke or criticism.”

2. Acchariyaabbhuta

2. Incredible and Amazing

Evaṁ vutte, āyasmā udāyī bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
When he had spoken, Venerable Udāyī said to the Buddha, “acchariyaṁ, bhante, abbhutaṁ, bhante, tathāgatassa appicchatā santuṭṭhitā sallekhatā.

“It’s incredible, sir, it’s amazing! The Realized One has so few wishes, such contentment, such self-effacement!

See, Udāyī, how the Realized One has so few wishes, such contentment, such self-effacement.

Yatra hi nāma tathāgato evaṁmahiddhiko evaṁmahānubhāvo, atha ca pana nevattānaṁ pātukarissatī'"ti.

For even though the Realized One has such power and might, he will not make a display of himself.”

Atha kho bhagavā āyasmantaṁ sāriputtaṁ āmantesi:
Then the Buddha said to Venerable Sāriputta,

“Tasmātiha tvaṁ, sāriputta, imaṁ dhammapariyāyaṁ abhikkhaṇaṁ bhāseyyāsi bhikkhūnaṁ bhikkhunīnaṁ upāsakānaṁ upāsikānaṁ.
“So Sāriputta, you should frequently speak this exposition of the teaching to the monks, nuns, laymen, and laywomen.

Yesampi hi, sāriputta, moghapurisānaṁ bhavissati tathāgate kaṅkhā vā vimati vā, tesamimaṁ dhammapariyāyaṁ sutvā tathāgate kaṅkhā vā vimati vā, sā pahīyissatī”ti.
Though there will be some foolish people who have doubt or uncertainty regarding the Realized One, when they hear this exposition of the teaching they’ll give up that doubt or uncertainty.”

Iti hidaṁ āyasmā sāriputto bhagavato sammukhā sampasādaṁ pavedesi.
That’s how Venerable Sāriputta declared his confidence in the Buddha’s presence.

Tasmā imassa veyyākaraṇassa sampasādanīyantveva adhivacananti.
And that’s why the name of this discussion is “Inspiring Confidence”.

29. Pāsādikasutta

An Impressive Discourse

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā sakkesu viharati vedhaññā nāma sakyā, tesaṁ ambavane pāsāde.
At one time the Buddha was staying in the land of the Sakyans in a stilt longhouse in a mango grove belonging to the Sakyan family named Vedhañña.

Tena kho pana samayena nigaṇṭho nāṭaputto pāvāyaṁ adhunākālaṅkato hoti.
Now at that time the Nigaṇṭha Nātaputta had recently passed away at Pāvā.

Tassa kālaṅkiriyāya bhinnā nigaṇṭhā dvedhikajātā bhaṇḍanajātā kalahajātā vivādāpannā aññamaññaṁ mukhasattīhi vitudantā viharanti:
With his passing the Jain ascetics split, dividing into two factions, arguing, quarreling, and fighting, continually wounding each other with barbed words:

“na tvaṁ imaṁ dhammavinayaṁ ājānāsi, ahaṁ imaṁ dhammavinayaṁ ājānāmi, kiṁ tvaṁ imaṁ dhammavinayaṁ ājānissasi? Micchāpaṭipanno tvamasi, ahamasmi sammāpaṭipanno. Sahitaṁ me, asahitaṁ te. Purevacanīyaṁ pacchā avaca, pacchāvacanīyaṁ pure avaca. Adhiciṇṇaṁ te viparāvattaṁ, āropito te vādo, niggahito tvamasi, cara vādappamokkhāya, nibbeṭhehi vā sace pahosī”ti.

“You don’t understand this teaching and training. I understand this teaching and training. What, you understand this teaching and training? You’re practicing wrong. I’m practicing right. I stay on topic, you don’t. You said last what you should have said first. You said first what you should have said last. What you’ve thought so much about has been disproved. Your doctrine is refuted. Go on, save your doctrine! You’re trapped; get yourself out of this—if you can!”

Vadhoyeva kho maññe nigaṇṭhesu nāṭaputtiyesu vattati.
You’d think there was nothing but slaughter going on among the Jain ascetics.

Yepi nigaṇṭhassa nāṭaputtassa sāvakā gihī odātavasanā, tepi nigaṇṭhesu nāṭaputtiyesu nibbinnarūpā virattarūpā paṭivānarūpā, yathā taṁ durakkhāte dhammavinaye duppavedite aniyyānike anupasamasaṁvattanike asammāsambuddhappavedite bhinnathūpe appaṭisaraṇe.
And the Nigaṇṭha Nātaputta’s white-clothed lay disciples were disillusioned, dismayed, and disappointed in the Jain ascetics. They were equally disappointed with a teaching and training so poorly explained and poorly propounded, not emancipating, not leading to peace, proclaimed by someone who is not a fully awakened Buddha, with broken monument and without a refuge.

Atha kho cundo samaṇuddeso pāvāyaṁ vassaṁvuṭṭho yena sāmagāmo, yenāyasmā ānando tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdi. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho cundo samaṇuddeso āyasmantaṁ ānandaṁ etadavoca:
And then, after completing the rainy season residence near Pāvā, the novice Cunda went to see Venerable Ānanda at Sāma village. He bowed, sat down to one side, and told him what had happened.

“nigaṇṭho, bhante, nāṭaputto pāvāyaṁ adhunākālaṅkato.

Tassa kālaṅkiriyāya bhinnā nigaṇṭhā dvedhikajātā …pe… bhinnathūpe appaṭisaraṇe”ti.

Evaṁ vutte, āyasmā ānando cundaṁ samaṇuddesaṁ etadavoca:
Ānanda said to him,

“atthi kho idaṁ, āvuso cunda, kathāpābhataṁ bhagavantaṁ dassanāya.
“Reverend Cunda, we should see the Buddha about this matter.

Āyāmāvuso cunda, yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamissāma; upasaṅkamitvā etamatthaṁ bhagavato ārocessāmā”ti.
Come, let’s go to the Buddha and tell him about this.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho cundo samaṇuddeso āyasmato ānandassa paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Cunda.

Atha kho āyasmā ca ānando cundo ca samaṇuddeso yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu. Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho āyasmā ānando bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Then Ānanda and Cunda went to the Buddha, bowed, sat down to one side, and told him what had happened.

“ayaṁ, bhante, cundo samaṇuddeso evamāha, ‘nigaṇṭho, bhante, nāṭaputto pāvāyaṁ adhunākālaṅkato, tassa kālaṅkiriyāya bhinnā nigaṇṭhā …pe… bhinnathūpe appaṭisaraṇe’”ti.

1. The Teaching of the Unawakened

“Evaṁ hetaṁ, cunda, hoti durakkhāte dhammavinaye duppavedite aniyyānike anupasamasaṁvattanike asammāsambuddhappavedite.

“That’s what happens, Cunda, when a teaching and training is poorly explained and poorly propounded, not emancipating, not leading to peace, proclaimed by someone who is not a fully awakened Buddha.

Idha, cunda, satthā ca hoti asammāsambuddho, dhammo ca durakkhāto duppavedito aniyyāniko anupasamasaṁvattaniko asammāsambuddhappavedito,
Take the case where a teacher is not awakened, and the teaching is poorly explained and poorly propounded, not emancipating, not leading to peace, proclaimed by someone who is not a fully awakened Buddha.

sāvako ca tasmiṁ dhamme na dhammānudhammappaṭipanno viharati na sāmīcippaṭipanno na anudhammacārī, vokkamma ca tamhā dhammā vattati.
A disciple in that teaching does not practice in line with the teachings, does not practice following that procedure, does not live in line with the teaching. They proceed having turned away from that teaching.

So evamassa vacanīyo:
You should say this to them,

‘tassa te, āvuso, lābhā, tassa te suladdhaṁ,
‘You’re fortunate, reverend, you’re so very fortunate!

satthā ca te asammāsambuddho, dhammo ca durakkhāto duppavedito aniyyāniko anupasamasaṁvattaniko asammāsambuddhappavedito.
For your teacher is not awakened, and their teaching is poorly explained and poorly propounded, not emancipating, not leading to peace, proclaimed by someone who is not a fully awakened Buddha.

Tvañca tasmiṁ dhamme na dhammānudhammappaṭipanno viharasi, na sāmīcippaṭipanno, na anudhammacārī, vokkamma ca tamhā dhammā vattasī’ti.
But you don’t practice in line with that teaching, you don’t practice following that procedure, you don’t live in line with the teaching. You proceed having turned away from that teaching.’

Iti kho, cunda, satthāpi tattha gārayho, dhammopi tattha gārayho, sāvako ca tattha evaṁ pāsaṁso.
In such a case the teacher and the teaching are to blame, but the disciple deserves praise.

Yo kho, cunda, evarūpaṁ sāvakaṁ evaṁ vadeyya:
Suppose someone was to say to such a disciple,

‘etāyasmā tathā paṭipajjatu, yathā te satthārā dhammo desito paññatto’ti.
‘Come on, venerable, practice as taught and pointed out by your teacher.’

Yo ca samādapeti, yañca samādapeti, yo ca samādapito tathattāya paṭipajjati. Sabbe te bahuṁ apuññaṁ pasavanti.
The one who encourages, the one who they encourage, and the one who practices accordingly all make much bad karma.

Taṁ kissa hetu?
Why is that?

Evaṁ hetaṁ, cunda, hoti durakkhāte dhammavinaye duppavedite aniyyānike anupasamasaṁvattanike asammāsambuddhappavedite.
It’s because that teaching and training is poorly explained and poorly propounded, not emancipating, not leading to peace, proclaimed by someone who is not a fully awakened Buddha.

Idha pana, cunda, satthā ca hoti asammāsambuddho, dhammo ca durakkhāto duppavedito aniyyāniko anupasamasaṁvattaniko asammāsambuddhappavedito,
Take the case where a teacher is not awakened, and the teaching is poorly explained and poorly propounded, not emancipating, not leading to peace, proclaimed by someone who is not a fully awakened Buddha.

sāvako ca tasmiṁ dhamme dhammānudhammappaṭipanno viharati sāmīcippaṭipanno anudhammacārī, samādāya taṁ dhammaṁ vattati.
A disciple in that teaching practices in line with the teachings, practices following that procedure, lives in line with the teaching. They proceed having undertaken that teaching.

So evamassa vacanīyo:
You should say this to them,

‘tassa te, āvuso, alābhā, tassa te dulladdhaṁ, satthā ca te asammāsambuddho, dhammo ca durakkhāto duppavedito aniyyāniko anupasamasaṁvattaniko asammāsambuddhappavedito.
‘It’s your loss, reverend, it’s your misfortune! For your teacher is not awakened, and their teaching is poorly explained and poorly propounded, not emancipating, not leading to peace, proclaimed by someone who is not a fully awakened Buddha.

Tvañca tasmiṁ dhamme dhammānudhammappaṭipanno viharasi sāmīcippaṭipanno anudhammacārī, samādāya taṁ dhammaṁ vattasī’ti.
And you practice in line with that teaching, you practice following that procedure, you live in line with the teaching. You proceed having undertaken that teaching.’

Iti kho, cunda, satthāpi tattha gārayho, dhammopi tattha gārayho, sāvakopi tattha evaṁ gārayho.
In such a case the teacher, the teaching, and the disciple are all to blame.

Yo kho, cunda, evarūpaṁ sāvakaṁ evaṁ vadeyya:
Suppose someone was to say to such a disciple,

‘addhāyasmā ñāyappaṭipanno ñāyamārādhessatī’ti.
‘Clearly the venerable is practicing methodically and will succeed in completing that method.’

Yo ca pasaṁsati, yañca pasaṁsati, yo ca pasaṁsito bhiyyoso mattāya vīriyaṁ ārabhati. Sabbe te bahuṁ apuññaṁ pasavanti.

The one who praises, the one who they praise, and the one who, being praised, rouses up even more energy all make much bad karma.

Why is that?

Evañhetaṁ, cunda, hoti durakkhāte dhammavinaye duppavedite aniyyānike anupasamasaṁvattanike asammāsambuddhappavedite.

laywomen enjoying sensual pleasures, and the spiritual path is successful and prosperous, extensive, popular, widespread, and well proclaimed wherever there are gods and humans, and it has reached the peak of material possessions and fame,

Evaṁ taṁ brahmacariyaṁ paripūraṁ hoti tenaṅgena.
then that spiritual path is complete in that respect.

Ahaṁ kho pana, cunda, etarahi satthā loke uppanno arahaṁ sammāsambuddho.
I, Cunda, am a teacher who has arisen in the world today, perfected and fully awakened.

Dhammo ca svākkhāto suppavedito niyyāniko upasamasaṁvattaniko sammāsambuddhappavedito.
The teaching is well explained and well propounded, emancipating, leading to peace, proclaimed by someone who is fully awakened.

Viññāpitatthā ca me sāvakā saddhamme, kevalañca tesaṁ paripūraṁ brahmacariyaṁ āvikataṁ uttānīkataṁ sabbasaṅgāhapadakataṁ sappāṭihīrakataṁ yāva devamanussehi suppakāsitaṁ.
My disciples have inquired about the meaning of that good teaching. And the spiritual practice that's entirely full and pure has been disclosed and revealed to them with all its collected sayings, with its demonstrable basis, well proclaimed wherever there are gods and humans.

Ahaṁ kho pana, cunda, etarahi satthā thero rattaññū cirapabbajito addhagato vayoanuppatto.
I am a teacher today who is senior, long standing, long gone forth, advanced in years, and have reached the final stage of life.

Santi kho pana me, cunda, etarahi therā bhikkhū sāvakā honti viyattā vinītā visāradā pattayogakkhemā.
I have today disciples who are competent senior monks,

Alaṁ samakkhātuṁ saddhammassa, alaṁ uppannaṁ parappavādaṁ sahadhammehi suniggahitaṁ niggahetvā sappāṭihāriyaṁ dhammaṁ desetuṁ.

and laywomen enjoying sensual pleasures.

etarahi kho pana me, cunda, brahmacariyaṁ iddhañceva phītañca vitthārikaṁ bāhujaññaṁ puthubhūtaṁ yāva devamanussehi suppakāsitaṁ.
Today my spiritual life is successful and prosperous, extensive, popular, widespread, and well proclaimed wherever there are gods and humans.

Yāvatā kho, cunda, etarahi satthāro loke uppannā, nāhaṁ, cunda, aññaṁ ekasatthārampi samanupassāmi evaṁlābhaggayasaggappattaṁ yatharivāhaṁ.
Of all the teachers in the world today, Cunda, I don’t see even a single one who has reached the peak of material possessions and fame like me.

Yāvatā kho pana, cunda, etarahi saṅgho vā gaṇo vā loke uppanno;
Of all the spiritual communities and groups in the world today, Cunda, I don’t see even a single one who has reached the pinnacle of material possessions and fame like the mendicant Saṅgha.

nāhaṁ, cunda, aññaṁ ekasaṅghampi samanupassāmi evaṁlābhaggayasaggappattaṁ yatharivāyaṁ, cunda, bhikkhusaṅgho.

Yaṁ kho taṁ, cunda, sammā vadamāno vadeyya:
And if there's any spiritual path of which it may be rightly said that

'sabbākārasampannaṁ sabbākāraparipūraṁ anūnamanadhikaṁ svākkhātaṁ kevalaṁ paripūraṁ brahmacariyaṁ suppakāsitan'ti.
it's endowed with all good qualities, complete in all good qualities, neither too little nor too much, well explained, whole, full, and well propounded,

Idameva taṁ sammā vadamāno vadeyya:
it's of this spiritual path that this should be said.

'sabbākārasampannaṁ …pe… suppakāsitan'ti.

Udako sudaṁ, cunda, rāmaputto evaṁ vācaṁ bhāsati:
Uddaka, son of Rāma, used to say:

'passaṁ na passatī'ti.
'Seeing, one does not see.'

Kiñca passaṁ na passatīti?
But seeing what does one not see?

Khurassa sādhunisitassa talamassa passati, dhārañca khvassa na passati.
You can see the blade of a well-sharpened razor, but not the edge.

Idaṁ vuccati:
Thus it is said:

'passaṁ na passatī'ti.
'Seeing, one does not see.'

Yaṁ kho panetaṁ, cunda, udakena rāmaputtena bhāsitaṁ hīnaṁ gammaṁ pothujjanikaṁ anariyaṁ anatthasaṁhitaṁ khurameva sandhāya.
But that saying of Uddaka's is low, crude, ordinary, ignoble, and pointless, as it's only concerning a razor.

Yañca taṁ, cunda, sammā vadamāno vadeyya:

If there’s anything of which it may be rightly said:

‘passaṁ na passatī’ti, idameva taṁ sammā vadamāno vadeyya:
‘Seeing, one does not see,’ it’s of this that it should be said.

‘passaṁ na passatī’ti.

Kiñca passaṁ na passatīti?
Seeing what does one not see?

Evaṁ sabbākārasampannaṁ sabbākāraparipūraṁ anūnamanadhikaṁ svākkhātaṁ kevalaṁ paripūraṁ brahmacariyaṁ suppakāsitanti, iti hetaṁ passati.
One sees this: a spiritual path endowed with all good qualities, complete in all good qualities, neither too little nor too much, well explained, whole, full, and well propounded.

Idamettha apakaḍḍheyya, evaṁ taṁ parisuddhataraṁ assāti, iti hetaṁ na passati.
One does not see this: anything that, were it to be removed, would make it purer.

Idamettha upakaḍḍheyya, evaṁ taṁ paripūraṁ assāti, iti hetaṁ na passati.
One does not see this: anything that, were it to be added, would make it more complete.

Idaṁ vuccati, cunda:
Thus it is rightly said:

‘passaṁ na passatī’ti.
‘Seeing, one does not see.’

Yaṁ kho taṁ, cunda, sammā vadamāno vadeyya:

‘sabbākārasampannaṁ …pe…

brahmacariyaṁ suppakāsitan’ti.

Idameva taṁ sammā vadamāno vadeyya:

‘sabbākārasampannaṁ sabbākāraparipūraṁ anūnamanadhikaṁ svākkhātaṁ kevalaṁ paripūraṁ brahmacariyaṁ suppakāsitan’ti.

6. Saṅgāyitabbadhamma

6. Teachings Should be Recited in Concert

Tasmātiha, cunda, ye vo mayā dhammā abhiññā desitā, tattha sabbeheva saṅgamma samāgamma atthena atthaṁ byañjanena byañjanaṁ saṅgāyitabbaṁ na vivaditabbaṁ, yathayidaṁ brahmacariyaṁ addhaniyaṁ assa ciraṭṭhitikaṁ, tadassa bahujanahitāya bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānaṁ.
So, Cunda, you should all come together and recite in concert, without disputing, those things I have taught you from my direct knowledge, comparing meaning with meaning and phrasing with phrasing, so that this spiritual path may last for a long time. That would be for the welfare and happiness of the people, for the benefit, welfare, and happiness of gods and humans.

Katame ca te, cunda, dhammā mayā abhiññā desitā, yattha sabbeheva saṅgamma samāgamma atthena atthaṁ byañjanena byañjanaṁ saṅgāyitabbaṁ na vivaditabbaṁ, yathayidaṁ brahmacariyaṁ addhaniyaṁ assa ciraṭṭhitikaṁ, tadassa bahujanahitāya bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānaṁ?
And what are those things I have taught from my direct knowledge?

Seyyathidaṁ—cattāro satipaṭṭhānā, cattāro sammappadhānā, cattāro iddhipādā, pañcindriyāni, pañca balāni, satta bojjhaṅgā, ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo.
They are the four kinds of mindfulness meditation, the four right efforts, the four bases of psychic power, the five faculties, the five powers, the seven awakening factors, and the noble eightfold path.

Ime kho te, cunda, dhammā mayā abhiññā desitā.
These are the things I have taught from my own direct knowledge.

Yattha sabbeheva saṅgamma samāgamma atthena atthaṁ byañjanena byañjanaṁ saṅgāyitabbaṁ na vivaditabbaṁ, yathayidaṁ brahmacariyaṁ addhaniyaṁ assa ciraṭṭhitikaṁ, tadassa bahujanahitāya bahujanasukhāya lokānukampāya atthāya hitāya sukhāya devamanussānaṁ.

9. Sukhallikānuyoga

9. Indulgence in Pleasure

Ṭhānaṁ kho panetaṁ, cunda, vijjati yaṁ aññatitthiyā paribbājakā evaṁ vadeyyuṁ:
It’s possible that wanderers who follow other paths might say,

‘sukhallikānuyogamanuyuttā samaṇā sakyaputtiyā viharantī’ti.
‘The ascetics who follow the Sakyan live indulging in pleasure.’

Evaṁvādino, cunda, aññatitthiyā paribbājakā evamassu vacanīyā:
You should say to them,

‘katamo so, āvuso, sukhallikānuyogo?
‘What is that indulgence in pleasure?

Sukhallikānuyogā hi bahū anekavihitā nānappakārakā’ti.
For there are many different kinds of indulgence in pleasure.’

Cattārome, cunda, sukhallikānuyogā hīnā gammā pothujjanikā anariyā anatthasaṁhitā na nibbidāya na virāgāya na nirodhāya na upasamāya na abhiññāya na sambodhāya na nibbānāya saṁvattanti.

These four kinds of indulgence in pleasure, Cunda, are low, crude, ordinary, ignoble, and pointless. They don’t lead to disillusionment, dispassion, cessation, peace, insight, awakening, and extinguishment.

Katame cattāro?
What four?

Idha, cunda, ekacco bālo pāṇe vadhitvā vadhitvā attānaṁ sukheti pīṇeti.
It’s when some fool makes themselves happy and pleased by killing living creatures.

Ayaṁ paṭhamo sukhallikānuyogo.
This is the first kind of indulgence in pleasure.

Puna caparaṁ, cunda, idhekacco adinnaṁ ādiyitvā ādiyitvā attānaṁ sukheti pīṇeti.
Furthermore, someone makes themselves happy and pleased by theft.

Ayaṁ dutiyo sukhallikānuyogo.
This is the second kind of indulgence in pleasure.

Puna caparaṁ, cunda, idhekacco musā bhaṇitvā bhaṇitvā attānaṁ sukheti pīṇeti.
Furthermore, someone makes themselves happy and pleased by lying.

Ayaṁ tatiyo sukhallikānuyogo.
This is the third kind of indulgence in pleasure.

Puna caparaṁ, cunda, idhekacco pañcahi kāmaguṇehi samappito samaṅgībhūto paricāreti.

Furthermore, someone amuses themselves, supplied and provided with the five kinds of sensual stimulation.

Ayaṁ catuttho sukhallikānuyogo.
This is the fourth kind of indulgence in pleasure.

Ime kho, cunda, cattāro sukhallikānuyogā hīnā gammā pothujjanikā anariyā anatthasaṁhitā na nibbidāya na virāgāya na nirodhāya na upasamāya na abhiññāya na sambodhāya na nibbānāya saṁvattanti.
These are the four kinds of indulgence in pleasure that are low, crude, ordinary, ignoble, and pointless. They don’t lead to disillusionment, dispassion, cessation, peace, insight, awakening, and extinguishment.

Ṭhānaṁ kho panetaṁ, cunda, vijjati yaṁ aññatitthiyā paribbājakā evaṁ vadeyyuṁ:

‘The ascetics who follow the Sakyan live indulging in pleasure in these four ways.’

Te vo ‘mā hevaṁ’ tissu vacanīyā.
They should be told, ‘Not so!’

Na te vo sammā vadamānā vadeyyuṁ, abbhācikkheyyuṁ asatā abhūtena.
It isn’t right to say that about you; it misrepresents you with an untruth.

Cattārome, cunda, sukhallikānuyogā ekantanibbidāya virāgāya nirodhāya upasamāya abhiññāya sambodhāya nibbānāya saṁvattanti.
These four kinds of indulgence in pleasure, when developed and cultivated, lead solely to disillusionment, dispassion, cessation, peace, insight, awakening, and extinguishment.

Katame cattāro?
What four?

Idha, cunda, bhikkhu vivicceva kāmehi vivicca akusalehi dhammehi savitakkaṁ savicāraṁ vivekajaṁ pītisukhaṁ paṭhamaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
It’s when a mendicant, quite secluded from sensual pleasures, secluded from unskillful qualities, enters and remains in the first absorption, which has the rapture and bliss born of seclusion, while placing the mind and keeping it connected.

Ayaṁ paṭhamo sukhallikānuyogo.
This is the first kind of indulgence in pleasure.

Puna caparaṁ, cunda, bhikkhu vitakkavicārānaṁ vūpasamā …pe… dutiyaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
Furthermore, as the placing of the mind and keeping it connected are stilled, a mendicant enters and remains in the second absorption. It has the rapture and bliss born of immersion, with internal clarity and confidence, and unified mind, without placing the mind and keeping it connected.

Ayaṁ dutiyo sukhallikānuyogo.
This is the second kind of indulgence in pleasure.

Puna caparaṁ, cunda, bhikkhu pītiyā ca virāgā …pe… tatiyaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
Furthermore, with the fading away of rapture, a mendicant enters and remains in the third absorption. They meditate with equanimity, mindful and aware, personally experiencing the bliss of which the noble ones declare, ‘Equanimous and mindful, one meditates in bliss.’

Ayaṁ tatiyo sukhallikānuyogo.
This is the third kind of indulgence in pleasure.

Puna caparaṁ, cunda, bhikkhu sukhassa ca pahānā dukkhassa ca pahānā …pe… catutthaṁ jhānaṁ upasampajja viharati.
Furthermore, giving up pleasure and pain, and ending former happiness and sadness, a mendicant enters and remains in the fourth absorption. It is without pleasure or pain, with pure equanimity and mindfulness.

Ayaṁ catuttho sukhallikānuyogo.
This is the fourth kind of indulgence in pleasure.

Ime kho, cunda, cattāro sukhallikānuyogā ekantanibbidāya virāgāya nirodhāya upasamāya abhiññāya sambodhāya nibbānāya saṁvattanti.
These are the four kinds of indulgence in pleasure which, when developed and cultivated, lead solely to disillusionment, dispassion, cessation, peace, insight, awakening, and extinguishment.

Te vo 'evaṁ' tissu vacanīyā.
They should be told, 'Exactly so!'

Sammā te vo vadamānā vadeyyuṁ, na te vo abbhācikkheyyuṁ asatā abhūtena.
It's right to say that about you; it doesn't misrepresent you with an untruth.

10. The Benefits of Indulgence in Pleasure

Ṭhānaṁ kho panetaṁ, cunda, vijjati, yaṁ aññatitthiyā paribbājakā evaṁ vadeyyuṁ:
It’s possible that wanderers who follow other paths might say,

‘ime panāvuso, cattāro sukhallikānuyoge anuyuttānaṁ viharataṁ kati phalāni katānisaṁsā pāṭikaṅkhā’ti?
‘How many fruits and benefits may be expected by those who live indulging in pleasure in these four ways?’

Evaṁvādino, cunda, aññatitthiyā paribbājakā evamassu vacanīyā:
You should say to them,

‘ime kho, āvuso, cattāro sukhallikānuyoge anuyuttānaṁ viharataṁ cattāri phalāni cattāro ānisaṁsā pāṭikaṅkhā.
‘Four benefits may be expected by those who live indulging in pleasure in these four ways.

Katame cattāro?
What four?

Idhāvuso, bhikkhu tiṇṇaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā sotāpanno hoti avinipātadhammo niyato sambodhiparāyaṇo.
Firstly, with the ending of three fetters a mendicant becomes a stream-enterer, not liable to be reborn in the underworld, bound for awakening.

Idaṁ paṭhamaṁ phalaṁ, paṭhamo ānisaṁso.
This is the first fruit and benefit.

Puna caparaṁ, āvuso, bhikkhu tiṇṇaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā rāgadosamohānaṁ tanuttā sakadāgāmī hoti, sakideva imaṁ lokaṁ āgantvā dukkhassantaṁ karoti.
Furthermore, a mendicant—with the ending of three fetters, and the weakening of greed, hate, and delusion—becomes a once-returner. They come back to this world once only, then make an end of suffering.

Idaṁ dutiyaṁ phalaṁ, dutiyo ānisaṁso.

This is the second fruit and benefit.

Puna caparaṁ, āvuso, bhikkhu pañcannaṁ orambhāgiyānaṁ saṁyojanānaṁ parikkhayā opapātiko hoti, tattha parinibbāyī anāvattidhammo tasmā lokā.
Furthermore, with the ending of the five lower fetters, a mendicant is reborn spontaneously and will become extinguished there, not liable to return from that world.

Idaṁ tatiyaṁ phalaṁ, tatiyo ānisaṁso.
This is the third fruit and benefit.

Puna caparaṁ, āvuso, bhikkhu āsavānaṁ khayā anāsavaṁ cetovimuttiṁ paññāvimuttiṁ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṁ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharati.
Furthermore, a mendicant realizes the undefiled freedom of heart and freedom by wisdom in this very life, and lives having realized it with their own insight due to the ending of defilements.

Idaṁ catutthaṁ phalaṁ catuttho ānisaṁso.
This is the fourth fruit and benefit.

Ime kho, āvuso, cattāro sukhallikānuyoge anuyuttānaṁ viharataṁ imāni cattāri phalāni, cattāro ānisaṁsā pāṭikaṅkhā’ti.
These four benefits may be expected by those who live indulging in pleasure in these four ways.’

A mendicant who is perfected—with defilements ended, who has completed the spiritual journey, done what had to be done, laid down the burden, achieved their own true goal, utterly ended the fetters of rebirth, and is rightly freed through enlightenment—can’t transgress in nine respects.

Abhabbo, āvuso, khīṇāsavo bhikkhu sañcicca pāṇaṁ jīvitā voropetuṁ; abhabbo khīṇāsavo bhikkhu adinnaṁ

A mendicant with defilements ended can’t deliberately take the life of a living creature, take something with the intention to steal, have sex, tell a deliberate lie, or store up goods for their own enjoyment like they did as a lay person. And they can’t make decisions prejudiced by favoritism, hostility, stupidity, or cowardice.

12. Questions and Answers

Ṭhānaṁ kho panetaṁ, cunda, vijjati, yaṁ aññatitthiyā paribbājakā evaṁ vadeyyuṁ:
It’s possible that wanderers who follow other paths might say,

‘atītaṁ kho addhānaṁ ārabbha samaṇo gotamo atīrakaṁ ñāṇadassanaṁ paññapeti, no ca kho anāgataṁ addhānaṁ ārabbha atīrakaṁ ñāṇadassanaṁ paññapeti, tayidaṁ kiṁsu tayidaṁ kathaṁsū’ti?
‘The ascetic Gotama demonstrates boundless knowledge and vision of the past, but not of the future. What’s up with that?’

Te ca aññatitthiyā paribbājakā aññavihitakena ñāṇadassanena aññavihitakaṁ ñāṇadassanaṁ paññapetabbaṁ maññanti yathariva bālā abyattā.
Those wanderers, like incompetent fools, seem to imagine that one kind of knowledge and vision can be demonstrated by means of another kind of knowledge and vision.

Atītaṁ kho, cunda, addhānaṁ ārabbha tathāgatassa satānusāriñāṇaṁ hoti; Regarding the past, the Realized One has knowledge stemming from memory.

so yāvatakaṁ ākaṅkhati tāvatakaṁ anussarati.
He recollects as far as he wants.

Anāgatañca kho addhānaṁ ārabbha tathāgatassa bodhijaṁ ñāṇaṁ uppajjati:
Regarding the future, the Realized One has the knowledge born of awakening:

‘ayamantimā jāti, natthi dāni punabbhavo’ti.
‘This is my last rebirth. Now there are no more future lives.’

Atītañcepi, cunda, hoti abhūtaṁ atacchaṁ anatthasaṁhitaṁ, na taṁ tathāgato byākaroti.
If a question about the past is untrue, false, and pointless, the Realized One does not reply.

Atītañcepi, cunda, hoti bhūtaṁ tacchaṁ anatthasaṁhitaṁ, tampi tathāgato na byākaroti.
If a question about the past is true and substantive, but pointless, he does not reply.

Atītañcepi, cunda, hoti bhūtaṁ tacchaṁ atthasaṁhitaṁ, tatra kālaññū tathāgato hoti tassa pañhassa veyyākaraṇāya.
If a question about the past is true, substantive, and beneficial, he knows the right time to reply.

Anāgatañcepi, cunda, hoti abhūtaṁ atacchaṁ anatthasaṁhitaṁ, na taṁ tathāgato byākaroti …pe… tassa pañhassa veyyākaraṇāya.
And the Realized One replies to questions about the future or the present in the same way.

Paccuppannañcepi, cunda, hoti abhūtaṁ atacchaṁ anatthasaṁhitaṁ, na taṁ tathāgato byākaroti.

Paccuppannañcepi, cunda, hoti bhūtaṁ tacchaṁ anatthasaṁhitaṁ, tampi tathāgato na byākaroti.

Paccuppannañcepi, cunda, hoti bhūtaṁ tacchaṁ atthasaṁhitaṁ, tatra kālaññū tathāgato hoti tassa pañhassa veyyākaraṇāya.

Iti kho, cunda, atītānāgatapaccuppannesu dhammesu tathāgato kālavādī bhūtavādī atthavādī dhammavādī vinayavādī, tasmā ‘tathāgato’ti vuccati.
And so the Realized One has speech that’s well-timed, true, meaningful, in line with the teaching and training. That’s why he’s called the ‘Realized One’.

That’s why he’s called the ‘Realized One’.

tasmā ‘tathāgato’ti vuccati.
That’s why he’s called the ‘Realized One’.

Yathāvādī, cunda, tathāgato tathākārī, yathākārī tathāvādī.
The Realized One does as he says, and says as he does.

Iti yathāvādī tathākārī, yathākārī tathāvādī, tasmā ‘tathāgato’ti vuccati.
Since this is so, that’s why he’s called the ‘Realized One’.

it is very impressive. Sir, what is the name of this exposition of the teaching?”

“Tasmātiha tvaṁ, upavāṇa, imaṁ dhammapariyāyaṁ ‘pāsādiko’ tveva naṁ dhārehī”ti.
“Well, Upavāṇa, you may remember this exposition of the teaching as ‘The Impressive Discourse’.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Attamano āyasmā upavāṇo bhagavato bhāsitaṁ abhinandīti.
Satisfied, Venerable Upavāṇa was happy with what the Buddha said.

Pāsādikasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ chaṭṭhaṁ.

30. Lakkhaṇasutta

The Marks of a Great Man

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā sāvatthiyaṁ viharati jetavane anāthapiṇḍikassa ārāme.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Sāvatthī in Jeta’s Grove, Anāthapiṇḍika’s monastery.

Tatra kho bhagavā bhikkhū āmantesi:
There the Buddha addressed the mendicants,

“bhikkhavo”ti.
“Mendicants!”

“Bhaddante”ti te bhikkhū bhagavato paccassosuṁ.
“Venerable sir,” they replied.

Bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said this:

“Dvattiṁsimāni, bhikkhave, mahāpurisassa mahāpurisalakkhaṇāni, yehi samannāgatassa mahāpurisassa dveva gatiyo bhavanti anaññā.
“There are thirty-two marks of a great man. A great man who possesses these has only two possible destinies, no other.

Sace agāraṁ ajjhāvasati, rājā hoti cakkavattī dhammiko dhammarājā cāturanto vijitāvī janapadatthāvariyappatto sattaratanasamannāgato.

If he stays at home he becomes a king, a wheel-turning monarch, a just and principled king. His dominion extends to all four sides, he achieves stability in the country, and he possesses the seven treasures.

Tassimāni satta ratanāni bhavanti;
He has the following seven treasures:

Seyyathidaṁ—cakkaratanaṁ hatthiratanaṁ assaratanaṁ maṇiratanaṁ itthiratanaṁ gahapatiratanaṁ pariṇāyakaratanameva sattamaṁ.
the wheel, the elephant, the horse, the jewel, the woman, the treasurer, and the counselor as the seventh treasure.

Parosahassaṁ kho panassa puttā bhavanti sūrā vīraṅgarūpā parasenappamaddanā.
He has over a thousand sons who are valiant and heroic, crushing the armies of his enemies.

So imaṁ pathaviṁ sāgarapariyantaṁ adaṇḍena asatthena dhammena abhivijiya ajjhāvasati.
After conquering this land girt by sea, he reigns by principle, without rod or sword.

Sace kho pana agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajati, arahaṁ hoti sammāsambuddho loke vivaṭṭacchado.
But if he goes forth from the lay life to homelessness, he becomes a perfected one, a fully awakened Buddha, who draws back the veil from the world.

Katamāni ca tāni, bhikkhave, dvattiṁsa mahāpurisassa mahāpurisalakkhaṇāni, yehi samannāgatassa mahāpurisassa dveva gatiyo bhavanti anaññā?
And what are the thirty-two marks?

Sace agāraṁ ajjhāvasati, rājā hoti cakkavattī …pe…

sace kho pana agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajati, arahaṁ hoti sammāsambuddho loke vivaṭṭacchado.

Idha, bhikkhave, mahāpuriso suppatiṭṭhitapādo hoti. Yampi, bhikkhave, mahāpuriso suppatiṭṭhitapādo hoti, idampi, bhikkhave, mahāpurisassa mahāpurisalakkhaṇaṁ bhavati.
He has well-planted feet.

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, mahāpurisassa heṭṭhāpādatalesu cakkāni jātāni honti sahassārāni sanemikāni sanābhikāni sabbākāraparipūrāni. Yampi, bhikkhave, mahāpurisassa heṭṭhāpādatalesu cakkāni jātāni honti sahassārāni sanemikāni sanābhikāni sabbākāraparipūrāni, idampi, bhikkhave, mahāpurisassa mahāpurisalakkhaṇaṁ bhavati.
On the soles of his feet there are thousand-spoked wheels, with rims and hubs, complete in every detail.

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, mahāpuriso āyatapaṇhi hoti …pe…
He has projecting heels.

dīghaṅguli hoti …
He has long fingers.

mudutalunahatthapādo hoti …
His hands and feet are tender.

jālahatthapādo hoti …
His hands and feet cling gracefully.

ussaṅkhapādo hoti …
His feet are arched.

eṇijaṅgho hoti …
His calves are like those of an antelope.

ṭhitakova anonamanto ubhohi pāṇitalehi jaṇṇukāni parimasati parimajjati …

When standing upright and not bending over, the palms of both hands touch the knees.

kosohitavatthaguyho hoti …
His private parts are retracted.

suvaṇṇavaṇṇo hoti kañcanasannibhattaco …
He is gold colored; his skin has a golden sheen.

sukhumacchavi hoti, sukhumattā chaviyā rajojallaṁ kāye na upalimpati …
He has delicate skin, so delicate that dust and dirt don’t stick to his body.

ekekalomo hoti, ekekāni lomāni lomakūpesu jātāni …
His hairs grow one per pore.

uddhaggalomo hoti, uddhaggāni lomāni jātāni nīlāni añjanavaṇṇāni kuṇḍalāvaṭṭāni dakkhiṇāvaṭṭakajātāni …
His hairs stand up; they’re blue-black and curl clockwise.

brahmujugatto hoti …
His body is as straight as Brahmā’s.

sattussado hoti …
He has bulging muscles in seven places.

sīhapubbaddhakāyo hoti …
His chest is like that of a lion.

citantaraṁso hoti …
The gap between the shoulder-blades is filled in.

nigrodhaparimaṇḍalo hoti, yāvatakvassa kāyo tāvatakvassa byāmo yāvatakvassa byāmo tāvatakvassa kāyo …
He has the proportional circumference of a banyan tree: the span of his arms equals the height of his body.

samavaṭṭakkhandho hoti …
His torso is cylindrical.

rasaggasaggī hoti …
He has an excellent sense of taste.

sīhahanu hoti …
His jaw is like that of a lion.

cattālīsadanto hoti …
He has forty teeth.

samadanto hoti …
His teeth are even.

aviraḷadanto hoti …
His teeth have no gaps.

susukkadāṭho hoti …
His teeth are perfectly white.

pahūtajivho hoti …
He has a large tongue.

brahmassaro hoti karavīkabhāṇī …
He has the voice of Brahmā, like a cuckoo’s call.

abhinīlanetto hoti …

His eyes are deep blue.

gopakhumo hoti …
He has eyelashes like a cow’s.

uṇṇā bhamukantare jātā hoti, odātā mudutūlasannibhā. Yampi, bhikkhave, mahāpurisassa uṇṇā bhamukantare jātā hoti, odātā mudutūlasannibhā, idampi, bhikkhave, mahāpurisassa mahāpurisalakkhaṇaṁ bhavati.
Between his eyebrows there grows a tuft, soft and white like cotton-wool.

Puna caparaṁ, bhikkhave, mahāpuriso uṇhīsasīso hoti. Yampi, bhikkhave, mahāpuriso uṇhīsasīso hoti, idampi, bhikkhave, mahāpurisassa mahāpurisalakkhaṇaṁ bhavati.
His head is shaped like a turban.

Imāni kho tāni, bhikkhave, dvattiṁsa mahāpurisassa mahāpurisalakkhaṇāni, yehi samannāgatassa mahāpurisassa dveva gatiyo bhavanti anaññā.
These are the thirty-two marks of a great man. A great man who possesses these has only two possible destinies, no other.

Sace agāraṁ ajjhāvasati, rājā hoti cakkavattī …pe…

sace kho pana agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajati, arahaṁ hoti sammāsambuddho loke vivaṭṭacchado.

Imāni kho, bhikkhave, dvattiṁsa mahāpurisassa mahāpurisalakkhaṇāni bāhirakāpi isayo dhārenti, no ca kho te jānanti:
Seers outside of Buddhism remember these marks, but they do not know ‘imassa kammassa kaṭattā idaṁ lakkhaṇaṁ paṭilabhatī’ti.

the specific deeds performed in the past to obtain each mark.

1. Suppatiṭṭhitapādatālakkhaṇaṁ

1. Well-Planted Feet

Yampi, bhikkhave, tathāgato purimaṁ jātiṁ purimaṁ bhavaṁ purimaṁ niketaṁ pubbe manussabhūto samāno daḷhasamādāno ahosi kusalesu dhammesu, avatthitasamādāno kāyasucarite vacīsucarite manosucarite dānasaṁvibhāge sīlasamādāne uposathupavāse matteyyatāya petteyyatāya sāmaññatāya brahmaññatāya kule jeṭṭhāpacāyitāya aññataraññataresu ca adhikusalesu dhammesu.
In some past lives, past existences, past abodes the Realized One was reborn as a human being. He firmly undertook and persisted in skillful behaviors such as good conduct by way of body, speech, giving and sharing, taking precepts, observing the sabbath, paying due respect to mother and father, ascetics and brahmins, honoring the elders in the family, and various other things pertaining to skillful behaviors.

So tassa kammassa kaṭattā upacitattā ussannattā vipulattā kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajjati.
Due to performing, accumulating, heaping up, and amassing those deeds, when his body broke up, after death, he was reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.

So tattha aññe deve dasahi ṭhānehi adhigganhāti dibbena āyunā dibbena vaṇṇena dibbena sukhena dibbena yasena dibbena ādhipateyyena dibbehi rūpehi dibbehi saddehi dibbehi gandhehi dibbehi rasehi dibbehi phoṭṭhabbehi.
There he surpassed the other gods in ten respects: divine life span, beauty, happiness, glory, sovereignty, sights, sounds, smells, tastes, and touches.

So tato cuto itthattaṁ āgato samāno imaṁ mahāpurisalakkhaṇaṁ paṭilabhati.
When he passed away from there and came back to this state of existence he obtained this mark of a great man:

Suppatiṭṭhitapādo hoti.
he has well-planted feet.

Samaṁ pādaṁ bhūmiyaṁ nikkhipati, samaṁ uddharati, samaṁ sabbāvantehi pādatalehi bhūmiṁ phusati.
He places his foot on the ground evenly, raises it evenly, and touches the ground evenly with the whole sole of his foot.

So tena lakkhaṇena samannāgato sace agāraṁ ajjhāvasati, rājā hoti cakkavattī dhammiko dhammarājā cāturanto vijitāvī janapadatthāvariyappatto sattaratanasamannāgato.
Possessing this mark, if he stays at home he becomes a wheel-turning monarch.

Tassimāni satta ratanāni bhavanti;
He has the following seven treasures:

Seyyathidaṁ—cakkaratanaṁ hatthiratanaṁ assaratanaṁ maṇiratanaṁ itthiratanaṁ gahapatiratanaṁ pariṇāyakaratanameva sattamaṁ.
the wheel, the elephant, the horse, the jewel, the woman, the treasurer, and the counselor as the seventh treasure.

Parosahassaṁ kho panassa puttā bhavanti sūrā vīraṅgarūpā parasenappamaddanā.
He has over a thousand sons who are valiant and heroic, crushing the armies of his enemies.

So imaṁ pathaviṁ sāgarapariyantaṁ akhilamanimittamakaṇṭakaṁ iddhaṁ phītaṁ khemaṁ sivaṁ nirabbudaṁ adaṇḍena asatthena dhammena abhivijiya ajjhāvasati.
After conquering this land girt by sea—free of harassment by bandits, successful and prosperous, safe, blessed, and untroubled—he reigns by principle, without rod or sword.

Rājā samāno kiṁ labhati?
And what does he obtain as king?

Akkhambhiyo hoti kenaci manussabhūtena paccatthikena paccāmittena.
He can’t be stopped by any human foe or enemy.

Rājā samāno idaṁ labhati.
That’s what he obtains as king.

Sace kho pana agārasmā anagāriyaṁ pabbajati, arahaṁ hoti sammāsambuddho loke vivaṭṭacchado.
But if he goes forth from the lay life to homelessness, he becomes a perfected one, a fully awakened Buddha, who draws back the veil from the world.

Buddho samāno kiṁ labhati?
And what does he obtain as Buddha?

Akkhambhiyo hoti abbhantarehi vā bāhirehi vā paccatthikehi paccāmittehi rāgena vā dosena vā mohena vā samaṇena vā brāhmaṇena vā devena vā mārena vā brahmunā vā kenaci vā lokasmiṁ.
He can’t be stopped by any foe or enemy whether internal or external; nor by greed, hate, or delusion; nor by any ascetic or brahmin or god or Māra or Brahmā or by anyone in the world.

Buddho samāno idaṁ labhati”.
That’s what he obtains as Buddha.”

Etamatthaṁ bhagavā avoca.
That is what the Buddha said.

firmly undertaking these things, he lived accordingly.

So tena kammena divaṁ samakkami,
By means of these deeds he went to heaven,

Sukhañca khiḍḍāratiyo ca anvabhi;
where he enjoyed happiness and merriment.

Tato cavitvā punarāgato idha,
After passing away from there to here,

he steps evenly on this rich earth.

Byākaṁsu veyyañjanikā samāgatā,
The gathered soothsayers predicted that there is no stopping one of such even tread,

Gihissa vā pabbajitassa vā puna,
as householder or renunciate.

Taṁ lakkhaṇaṁ bhavati tadatthajotakaṁ.
That’s the meaning shown by this mark.

Akkhambhiyo hoti agāramāvasaṁ,
While living at home he cannot be stopped,

Parābhibhū sattubhi nappamaddano;
he defeats his foes, and cannot be beaten.

Manussabhūtenidha hoti kenaci,
Due to the fruit of that deed,

Akkhambhiyo tassa phalena kammuno.
he cannot be stopped by any human.

Sace ca pabbajjamupeti tādiso,
But if he chooses the life gone forth,

Nekkhammachandābhirato vicakkhaṇo;
seeing clearly, loving renunciation,

Aggo na so gacchati jātu khambhanaṁ, not even the best can hope to stop him;

Naruttamo esa hi tassa dhammatā”ti.
this is the nature of the supreme person.”

Possessing these marks, if he stays at home he becomes a king, a wheel-turning monarch, a just and principled king. His dominion extends to all four sides, he achieves stability in the country, and he possesses the seven treasures.

Tassimāni satta ratanāni bhavanti, seyyathidaṁ—
He has the following seven treasures:

31. Siṅgālasutta

Advice to Sigālaka

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā rājagahe viharati veḷuvane kalandakanivāpe.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Rājagaha, in the Bamboo Grove, the squirrels’ feeding ground.

Tena kho pana samayena siṅgālako gahapatiputto kālasseva uṭṭhāya rājagahā nikkhamitvā allavattho allakeso pañjaliko puthudisā namassati—
Now at that time the householder’s son Sigālaka rose early and left Rājagaha. With his clothes and hair all wet, he raised his joined palms to revere the quarters—puratthimaṁ disaṁ dakkhiṇaṁ disaṁ pacchimaṁ disaṁ uttaraṁ disaṁ heṭṭhimaṁ disaṁ uparimaṁ disaṁ.

east, south, west, north, below, and above.

Atha kho bhagavā pubbaṇhasamayaṁ nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya rājagahaṁ piṇḍāya pāvisi.
Then the Buddha robed up in the morning and, taking his bowl and robe, entered Rājagaha for alms.

Addasā kho bhagavā siṅgālakaṁ gahapatiputtaṁ kālasseva vuṭṭhāya rājagahā nikkhamitvā allavatthaṁ allakesaṁ pañjalikaṁ puthudisā namassantaṁ—
He saw Sigālaka revering the quarters

puratthimaṁ disaṁ dakkhiṇaṁ disaṁ pacchimaṁ disaṁ uttaraṁ disaṁ heṭṭhimaṁ disaṁ uparimaṁ disaṁ.

Disvā siṅgālakaṁ gahapatiputtaṁ etadavoca:
and said to him,

“kiṁ nu kho tvaṁ, gahapatiputta, kālasseva vuṭṭhāya rājagahā nikkhamitvā allavattho allakeso pañjaliko puthudisā namassasi—“Householder’s son, why are you revering the quarters in this way?”

puratthimaṁ disaṁ dakkhiṇaṁ disaṁ pacchimaṁ disaṁ uttaraṁ disaṁ heṭṭhimaṁ disaṁ uparimaṁ disan”ti?

“Pitā maṁ, bhante, kālaṁ karonto evaṁ avaca:
“Sir, on his deathbed my father said to me:

‘disā, tāta, namasseyyāsī’ti.
‘My dear, please revere the quarters.’

So kho ahaṁ, bhante, pituvacanaṁ sakkaronto garuṁ karonto mānento pūjento kālasseva uṭṭhāya rājagahā nikkhamitvā allavattho allakeso pañjaliko puthudisā namassāmi—
Honoring, respecting, and venerating my father’s words, I rose early and left Rājagaha and, with my clothes and hair all wet, raised my joined palms to revere the quarters—puratthimaṁ disaṁ dakkhiṇaṁ disaṁ pacchimaṁ disaṁ uttaraṁ disaṁ heṭṭhimaṁ disaṁ uparimaṁ disan”ti.

east, south, west, north, below, and above.”

1. Cha disā

1. The Six Quarters

“Na kho, gahapatiputta, ariyassa vinaye evaṁ cha disā namassitabbā”ti.
“Householder’s son, that’s not how the six quarters should be revered in the training of the noble one.”

“Yathā kathaṁ pana, bhante, ariyassa vinaye cha disā namassitabbā?
“But sir, how should the six quarters be revered in the training of the noble one?

Sādhu me, bhante, bhagavā tathā dhammaṁ desetu, yathā ariyassa vinaye cha disā namassitabbā”ti.
Sir, please teach me this.”

“Tena hi, gahapatiputta, suṇohi sādhukaṁ manasikarohi bhāsissāmī”ti.
“Well then, householder’s son, listen and pay close attention, I will speak.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho siṅgālako gahapatiputto bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” replied Sigālaka.

Bhagavā etadavoca:
The Buddha said this:

“Yato kho, gahapatiputta, ariyasāvakassa cattāro kammakilesā pahīnā honti, catūhi ca ṭhānehi pāpakammaṁ na karoti, cha ca bhogānaṁ apāyamukhāni na sevati, so evaṁ cuddasa pāpakāpagato chaddisāpaṭicchādī “Householder’s son, a noble disciple gives up four corrupt deeds, doesn’t do bad deeds on four grounds, and avoids six drains on wealth. When they’ve left these fourteen bad things behind they have the six quarters covered.

ubholokavijayāya paṭipanno hoti. Tassa ayañceva loko āraddho hoti paro ca loko.
They’re practicing to win in both worlds, and they succeed in this world and the next.

So kāyassa bhedā paraṁ maraṇā sugatiṁ saggaṁ lokaṁ upapajjati.

When their body breaks up, after death, they’re reborn in a good place, a heavenly realm.

2. Cattāro kammakilesā

2. Four Corrupt Deeds

Katamassa cattāro kammakilesā pahīnā honti?
What four corrupt deeds have they given up?

Pāṇātipāto kho, gahapatiputta, kammakileso, adinnādānaṁ kammakileso, kāmesumicchācāro kammakileso, musāvādo kammakileso.
Killing living creatures, stealing, sexual misconduct, and lying: these are corrupt deeds.

Imassa cattāro kammakilesā pahīnā hontī”ti.
These are the four corrupt deeds they’ve given up.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Idaṁ vatvāna sugato athāparaṁ etadavoca satthā:
Then the Holy One, the Teacher, went on to say:

> “Pāṇātipāto adinnādānaṁ,
> “Killing, stealing,
>
> Musāvādo ca vuccati;
> telling lies,
>
> Paradāragamanañceva,
> and committing adultery:
>
> Nappasaṁsanti paṇḍitā”ti.
> astute people don’t praise these things.”

3. Catuṭhānaṁ

3. Four Grounds

“Katamehi catūhi ṭhānehi pāpakammaṁ na karoti?
“On what four grounds do they not do bad deeds?

Chandāgatiṁ gacchanto pāpakammaṁ karoti, dosāgatiṁ gacchanto pāpakammaṁ karoti, mohāgatiṁ gacchanto pāpakammaṁ karoti, bhayāgatiṁ gacchanto pāpakammaṁ karoti.
One does bad deeds prejudiced by favoritism, hostility, stupidity, and cowardice.

Yato kho, gahapatiputta, ariyasāvako neva chandāgatiṁ gacchati, na dosāgatiṁ gacchati, na mohāgatiṁ gacchati, na bhayāgatiṁ gacchati;
When a noble disciple is not prejudiced by favoritism, hostility, stupidity, and cowardice, imehi catūhi ṭhānehi pāpakammaṁ na karotī”ti.

they don’t do bad deeds on these four grounds.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Idaṁ vatvāna sugato athāparaṁ etadavoca satthā:
Then the Holy One, the Teacher, went on to say:

“Chandā dosā bhayā mohā,
“If you act against the teaching yo dhammaṁ ativattati;

out of favoritism, hostility, cowardice, or stupidity,

Nihīyati yaso tassa,
your fame shrinks,

kāḷapakkheva candimā.
like the moon in the waning fortnight.

Chandā dosā bhayā mohā,
If you don’t act against the teaching yo dhammaṁ nātivattati;

out of favoritism, hostility, cowardice, and stupidity,

Āpūrati yaso tassa,
your fame swells,

sukkapakkheva candimā”ti.
like the moon in the waxing fortnight.”

4. Cha apāyamukhāni
4. Six Drains on Wealth

“Katamāni cha bhogānaṁ apāyamukhāni na sevati?
“What six drains on wealth do they avoid?

Surāmerayamajjappamādaṭṭhānānuyogo kho, gahapatiputta, bhogānaṁ apāyamukhaṁ, vikālavisikhācariyānuyogo bhogānaṁ apāyamukhaṁ, samajjābhicaraṇaṁ bhogānaṁ apāyamukhaṁ, jūtappamādaṭṭhānānuyogo bhogānaṁ apāyamukhaṁ, pāpamittānuyogo bhogānaṁ apāyamukhaṁ, ālasyānuyogo bhogānaṁ apāyamukhaṁ.
Habitually engaging in the following things is a drain on wealth: drinking alcohol; roaming the streets at night; frequenting festivals; gambling; bad friends; laziness.

5. Surāmerayassa cha ādīnavā
5. Six Drawbacks of Drinking

Cha khome, gahapatiputta, ādīnavā surāmerayamajjappamādaṭṭhānānuyoge.
There are these six drawbacks of habitually drinking alcohol.

Sandiṭṭhikā dhanajāni, kalahappavaḍḍhanī, rogānaṁ āyatanaṁ, akittisañjananī, kopīnanidaṁsanī, paññāya dubbalikaraṇītveva chaṭṭhaṁ padaṁ bhavati.
Immediate loss of wealth, promotion of quarrels, susceptibility to illness, disrepute, indecent exposure; and weakened wisdom is the sixth thing.

Ime kho, gahapatiputta, cha ādīnavā surāmerayamajjappamādaṭṭhānānuyoge.
These are the six drawbacks of habitually drinking alcohol.

6. Vikālacariyāya cha ādīnavā

6. Six Drawbacks of Roaming the Streets at Night

Cha khome, gahapatiputta, ādīnavā vikālavisikhācariyānuyoge.
There are these six drawbacks of roaming the streets at night.

Attāpissa agutto arakkhito hoti, puttadāropissa agutto arakkhito hoti, sāpateyyampissa aguttaṁ arakkhitaṁ hoti, saṅkiyo ca hoti pāpakesu ṭhānesu, abhūtavacanañca tasmiṁ rūhati, bahūnañca dukkhadhammānaṁ purakkhato hoti.
Yourself, your partners and children, and your property are all left unguarded. You’re suspected of bad deeds. Untrue rumors spread about you. You’re at the forefront of many things that entail suffering.

Ime kho, gahapatiputta, cha ādīnavā vikālavisikhācariyānuyoge.
These are the six drawbacks of roaming the streets at night.

7. Samajjābhicaraṇassa cha ādīnavā

7. Six Drawbacks of Festivals

Cha khome, gahapatiputta, ādīnavā samajjābhicaraṇe.
There are these six drawbacks of frequenting festivals.

Kva naccaṁ, kva gītaṁ, kva vāditaṁ, kva akkhānaṁ, kva pāṇissaraṁ, kva kumbhathunanti.
You're always thinking: 'Where's the dancing? Where's the singing? Where's the music? Where are the stories? Where's the applause? Where are the kettle-drums?'

Ime kho, gahapatiputta, cha ādīnavā samajjābhicaraṇe.
These are the six drawbacks of frequenting festivals.

8. Jūtappamādassa cha ādīnavā

8. Six Drawbacks of Gambling

Cha khome, gahapatiputta, ādīnavā jūtappamādaṭṭhānānuyoge.
There are these six drawbacks of habitually gambling.

Jayaṁ veraṁ pasavati, jino vittamanusocati, sandiṭṭhikā dhanajāni, sabhāgatassa vacanaṁ na rūhati, mittāmaccānaṁ paribhūto hoti, āvāhavivāhakānaṁ apatthito hoti:
Victory breeds enmity. The loser mourns their money. There is immediate loss of wealth. A gambler's word carries no weight in public assembly. Friends and colleagues treat them with contempt. And no-one wants to marry a gambler, for they think:

'akkhadhutto ayaṁ purisapuggalo nālaṁ dārabharaṇāyā'ti.
'This individual is a gambler—they're not able to support a partner.'

Ime kho, gahapatiputta, cha ādīnavā jūtappamādaṭṭhānānuyoge.
These are the six drawbacks of habitually gambling.

9. Pāpamittatāya cha ādīnavā

9. Six Drawbacks of Bad Friends

Cha khome, gahapatiputta, ādīnavā pāpamittānuyoge.
There are these six drawbacks of bad friends.

Ye dhuttā, ye soṇḍā, ye pipāsā, ye nekatikā, ye vañcanikā, ye sāhasikā. Tyāssa mittā honti te sahāyā.
You become friends and companions with those who are scoundrels, drunkards, addicts, frauds, swindlers, and thugs.

Ime kho, gahapatiputta, cha ādīnavā pāpamittānuyoge.
These are the six drawbacks of bad friends.

10. Ālasyassa cha ādīnavā
10. Six Drawbacks of Laziness

Cha khome, gahapatiputta, ādīnavā ālasyānuyoge.
There are these six drawbacks of habitual laziness.

Atisītanti kammaṁ na karoti, atiuṇhanti kammaṁ na karoti, atisāyanti kammaṁ na karoti, atipātoti kammaṁ na karoti, atichātosmīti kammaṁ na karoti, atidhātosmīti kammaṁ na karoti.
You don’t get your work done because you think: ‘It’s too cold! It’s too hot. It’s too late! It’s too early! I’m too hungry! I’m too full!’

Tassa evaṁ kiccāpadesabahulassa viharato anuppannā ceva bhogā nuppajjanti, uppannā ca bhogā parikkhayaṁ gacchanti.
By dwelling on so many excuses for not working, you don’t make any more money, and the money you already have runs out.

Ime kho, gahapatiputta, cha ādīnavā ālasyānuyoge”ti.
These are the six drawbacks of habitual laziness.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Idaṁ vatvāna sugato athāparaṁ etadavoca satthā:

11. Mittapatirūpaka

11. Fake Friends

“Cattārome, gahapatiputta, amittā mittapatirūpakā veditabbā.
“Householder’s son, you should recognize these four enemies disguised as friends:

Aññadatthuharo amitto mittapatirūpako veditabbo, vacīparamo amitto mittapatirūpako veditabbo, anuppiyabhāṇī amitto mittapatirūpako veditabbo, apāyasahāyo amitto mittapatirūpako veditabbo.
the taker, the talker, the flatterer, the spender.

Catūhi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi aññadatthuharo amitto mittapatirūpako veditabbo.
You can recognize a fake friend who’s all take on four grounds.

Aññadatthuharo hoti,
Your possessions end up theirs.

appena bahumicchati;
Giving little, they expect a lot.

Bhayassa kiccaṁ karoti,
They do their duty out of fear.

sevati atthakāraṇā.
They associate for their own advantage.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, catūhi ṭhānehi aññadatthuharo amitto mittapatirūpako veditabbo.
You can recognize a fake friend who’s all take on these four grounds.

Catūhi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi vacīparamo amitto mittapatirūpako veditabbo.
You can recognize a fake friend who’s all talk on four grounds.

Atītena paṭisantharati, anāgatena paṭisantharati, niratthakena saṅgaṇhāti, paccuppannesu kiccesu byasanaṁ dasseti.
They’re hospitable in the past. They’re hospitable in the future. They’re full of meaningless pleasantries. When something needs doing in the present they point to their own misfortune.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, catūhi ṭhānehi vacīparamo amitto mittapatirūpako veditabbo.
You can recognize a fake friend who’s all talk on these four grounds.

Catūhi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi anuppiyabhāṇī amitto mittapatirūpako veditabbo.
You can recognize a fake friend who’s a flatterer on four grounds.

Pāpakampissa anujānāti, kalyāṇampissa anujānāti, sammukhāssa vaṇṇaṁ bhāsati, parammukhāssa avaṇṇaṁ bhāsati.
They support you equally in doing bad and doing good. They praise you to your face, and put you down behind your back.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, catūhi ṭhānehi anuppiyabhāṇī amitto mittapatirūpako veditabbo.
You can recognize a fake friend who’s a flatterer on these four grounds.

Catūhi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi apāyasahāyo amitto mittapatirūpako veditabbo.
You can recognize a fake friend who’s a spender on four grounds.

Surāmerayamajjappamādaṭṭhānānuyoge sahāyo hoti, vikālavisikhācariyānuyoge sahāyo hoti, samajjābhicaraṇe sahāyo hoti, jūtappamādaṭṭhānānuyoge sahāyo hoti.
They accompany you when drinking, roaming the streets at night, frequenting festivals, and gambling.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, catūhi ṭhānehi apāyasahāyo amitto mittapatirūpako veditabbo”ti.
You can recognize a fake friend who’s a spender on these four grounds.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Idaṁ vatvāna sugato athāparaṁ etadavoca satthā:
Then the Holy One, the Teacher, went on to say:

“Aññadatthuharo mitto,
“One friend is all take,

yo ca mitto vacīparo;
another all talk;

Anuppiyañca yo āha,
one’s just a flatterer,

apāyesu ca yo sakhā.
and one’s a friend who spends.

Ete amitte cattāro,
An astute person understands

iti viññāya paṇḍito;
these four enemies for what they are

Ārakā parivajjeyya, and keeps them at a distance,

maggaṁ paṭibhayaṁ yathā”ti.
as they’d shun a risky road.”

12. Suhadamitta

12. Good-Hearted Friends

“Cattārome, gahapatiputta, mittā suhadā veditabbā.
“Householder’s son, you should recognize these four good-hearted friends:

Upakāro mitto suhado veditabbo, samānasukhadukkho mitto suhado veditabbo, atthakkhāyī mitto suhado veditabbo, anukampako mitto suhado veditabbo.
the helper, the friend in good times and bad, the counselor, and the one who’s compassionate.

Catūhi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi upakāro mitto suhado veditabbo.
You can recognize a good-hearted friend who’s a helper on four grounds.

Pamattaṁ rakkhati, pamattassa sāpateyyaṁ rakkhati, bhītassa saraṇaṁ hoti, uppannesu kiccakaraṇīyesu taddiguṇaṁ bhogaṁ anuppadeti.
They guard you when you're negligent. They guard your property when you're negligent. They keep you safe in times of danger. When something needs doing, they supply you with twice the money you need.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, catūhi ṭhānehi upakāro mitto suhado veditabbo.
You can recognize a good-hearted friend who's a helper on these four grounds.

Catūhi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi samānasukhadukkho mitto suhado veditabbo.
You can recognize a good-hearted friend who's the same in good times and bad on four grounds.

Guyhamassa ācikkhati, guyhamassa parigūhati, āpadāsu na vijahati, jīvitampissa atthāya pariccattaṁ hoti.
They tell you secrets. They keep your secrets. They don't abandon you in times of trouble. They'd even give their life for you.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, catūhi ṭhānehi samānasukhadukkho mitto suhado veditabbo.
You can recognize a good-hearted friend who's the same in good times and bad on these four grounds.

Catūhi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi atthakkhāyī mitto suhado veditabbo.
You can recognize a good-hearted friend who's a counselor on four grounds.

Pāpā nivāreti, kalyāṇe niveseti, assutaṁ sāveti, saggassa maggaṁ ācikkhati.
They keep you from doing bad. They support you in doing good. They teach you what you do not know. They explain the path to heaven.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, catūhi ṭhānehi atthakkhāyī mitto suhado veditabbo.
You can recognize a good-hearted friend who’s a counselor on these four grounds.

Catūhi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi anukampako mitto suhado veditabbo.
You can recognize a good-hearted friend who’s compassionate on four grounds.

Abhavenassa na nandati, bhavenassa nandati, avaṇṇaṁ bhaṇamānaṁ nivāreti, vaṇṇaṁ bhaṇamānaṁ pasaṁsati.
They don’t delight in your misfortune. They delight in your good fortune. They keep others from criticizing you. They encourage praise of you.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, catūhi ṭhānehi anukampako mitto suhado veditabbo”ti.
You can recognize a good-hearted friend who’s compassionate on these four grounds.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Idaṁ vatvāna sugato athāparaṁ etadavoca satthā:
Then the Holy One, the Teacher, went on to say:

> “Upakāro ca yo mitto,

and one of compassion;

Etepi mitte cattāro,
an astute person understands

iti viññāya paṇḍito;
these four friends for what they are

Sakkaccaṁ payirupāseyya, and carefully looks after them,

mātā puttaṁva orasaṁ;
like a mother the child at her breast.

Paṇḍito sīlasampanno,
The astute and virtuous

for times of trouble.”

13. Chaddisāpaṭicchādanakaṇḍa

13. Covering the Six Quarters

“Kathañca, gahapatiputta, ariyasāvako chaddisāpaṭicchādī hoti?
“And how, householder’s son, does a noble disciple cover the six quarters?

Cha imā, gahapatiputta, disā veditabbā.
These six quarters should be recognized:

Puratthimā disā mātāpitaro veditabbā, dakkhiṇā disā ācariyā veditabbā, pacchimā disā puttadārā veditabbā, uttarā disā mittāmaccā veditabbā, heṭṭhimā disā dāsakammakarā veditabbā, uparimā disā samaṇabrāhmaṇā veditabbā.
parents as the east, teachers as the south, partner and children as the west, friends and colleagues as the north, bondservants and workers as beneath, and ascetics and brahmins as above.

Pañcahi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi puttena puratthimā disā mātāpitaro paccupaṭṭhātabbā—

A child should serve their parents as the eastern quarter in five ways, thinking:

bhato ne bharissāmi, kiccaṁ nesaṁ karissāmi, kulavaṁsaṁ ṭhapessāmi, dāyajjaṁ paṭipajjāmi, atha vā pana petānaṁ kālaṅkatānaṁ dakkhiṇaṁ anuppadassāmīti.
‘I will support those who supported me. I’ll do my duty for them. I’ll maintain the family traditions. I’ll take care of the inheritance. When they have passed away, I’ll make an offering on their behalf.’

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, pañcahi ṭhānehi puttena puratthimā disā mātāpitaro paccupaṭṭhitā pañcahi ṭhānehi puttaṁ anukampanti.
Parents served by the children in these five ways show compassion to them in five ways.

Pāpā nivārenti, kalyāṇe nivesenti, sippaṁ sikkhāpenti, patirūpena dārena saṁyojenti, samaye dāyajjaṁ niyyādenti.
They keep them from doing bad. They support them in doing good. They train them in a profession. They connect them with a suitable partner. They transfer the inheritance in due time.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, pañcahi ṭhānehi puttena puratthimā disā mātāpitaro paccupaṭṭhitā imehi pañcahi ṭhānehi puttaṁ anukampanti.
Parents served by their children in these five ways show compassion to them in these five ways.

Evamassa esā puratthimā disā paṭicchannā hoti khemā appaṭibhayā.
And that’s how the eastern quarter is covered, kept safe and free of peril.

Pañcahi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi antevāsinā dakkhiṇā disā ācariyā paccupaṭṭhātabbā—
A student should serve their teacher as the southern quarter in five ways:

uṭṭhānena upaṭṭhānena sussusāya pāricariyāya sakkaccaṁ sippapaṭiggahaṇena.
by rising for them, by serving them, by listening well, by looking after them, and by carefully learning their profession.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, pañcahi ṭhānehi antevāsinā dakkhiṇā disā ācariyā paccupaṭṭhitā pañcahi ṭhānehi antevāsiṁ anukampanti—Teachers served by their students in these five ways show compassion to them in five ways.

suvinītaṁ vinenti, suggahitaṁ gāhāpenti, sabbasippassutaṁ samakkhāyino bhavanti, mittāmaccesu paṭiyādenti, disāsu parittāṇaṁ karonti.
They make sure they're well trained and well educated. They clearly explain all the knowledge of the profession. They introduce them to their friends and colleagues. They provide protection in every region.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, pañcahi ṭhānehi antevāsinā dakkhiṇā disā ācariyā paccupaṭṭhitā imehi pañcahi ṭhānehi antevāsiṁ anukampanti.
Teachers served by their students in these five ways show compassion to them in these five ways.

Evamassa esā dakkhiṇā disā paṭicchannā hoti khemā appaṭibhayā.
And that's how the southern quarter is covered, kept safe and free of peril.

Pañcahi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi sāmikena pacchimā disā bhariyā paccupaṭṭhātabbā—
A husband should serve his wife as the western quarter in five ways:

sammānanāya anavamānanāya anaticariyāya issariyavossaggena alaṅkārānuppadānena.
by treating her with honor, by not looking down on her, by not being unfaithful, by relinquishing authority to her, and by presenting her with adornments.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, pañcahi ṭhānehi sāmikena pacchimā disā bhariyā paccupaṭṭhitā pañcahi ṭhānehi sāmikaṁ anukampati—
A wife served by her husband in these five ways shows compassion to him in five ways.

susaṁvihitakammantā ca hoti, saṅgahitaparijanā ca, anaticārinī ca, sambhatañca anurakkhati, dakkhā ca hoti analasā sabbakiccesu.
She's well-organized in her work. She manages the domestic help. She's not unfaithful. She preserves his earnings. She's deft and tireless in all her duties.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, pañcahi ṭhānehi sāmikena pacchimā disā bhariyā paccupaṭṭhitā imehi pañcahi ṭhānehi sāmikaṁ anukampati.
A wife served by her husband in these five ways shows compassion to him in these five ways.

Evamassa esā pacchimā disā paṭicchannā hoti khemā appaṭibhayā.
And that's how the western quarter is covered, kept safe and free of peril.

Pañcahi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi kulaputtena uttarā disā mittāmaccā paccupaṭṭhātabbā—
A gentleman should serve his friends and colleagues as the northern quarter in five ways:

dānena peyyavajjena atthacariyāya samānattatāya avisaṁvādanatāya.
giving, kindly words, taking care, equality, and not using tricky words.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, pañcahi ṭhānehi kulaputtena uttarā disā mittāmaccā paccupaṭṭhitā pañcahi ṭhānehi kulaputtaṁ anukampanti—
Friends and colleagues served by a gentleman in these five ways show compassion to him in five ways.

pamattaṁ rakkhanti, pamattassa sāpateyyaṁ rakkhanti, bhītassa saraṇaṁ honti, āpadāsu na vijahanti, aparapajā cassa paṭipūjenti.
They guard him when they’re negligent. They guard his property when they’re negligent. They keep him safe in times of danger. They don’t abandon him in times of trouble. They honor his descendants.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, pañcahi ṭhānehi kulaputtena uttarā disā mittāmaccā paccupaṭṭhitā imehi pañcahi ṭhānehi kulaputtaṁ anukampanti.
Friends and colleagues served by a gentleman in these five ways show compassion to him in these five ways.

Evamassa esā uttarā disā paṭicchannā hoti khemā appaṭibhayā.
And that’s how the northern quarter is covered, kept safe and free of peril.

Pañcahi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi ayyirakena heṭṭhimā disā dāsakammakarā paccupaṭṭhātabbā—
A master should serve their bondservants and workers as the lower quarter in five ways:

yathābalaṁ kammantasaṁvidhānena bhattavetanānuppadānena gilānupaṭṭhānena acchariyānaṁ rasānaṁ saṁvibhāgena samaye vossaggena.
by organizing work according to ability, by paying food and wages, by nursing them when sick, by sharing special treats, and by giving time off work.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, pañcahi ṭhānehi ayyirakena heṭṭhimā disā dāsakammakarā paccupaṭṭhitā pañcahi ṭhānehi ayyirakaṁ anukampanti—Bondservants and workers served by a master in these five ways show compassion to him in five ways.

pubbuṭṭhāyino ca honti, pacchā nipātino ca, dinnādāyino ca, sukatakammakarā ca, kittivaṇṇaharā ca.

They get up first, and go to bed last. They don’t steal. They do their work well. And they promote a good reputation.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, pañcahi ṭhānehi ayyirakena heṭṭhimā disā dāsakammakarā paccupaṭṭhitā imehi pañcahi ṭhānehi ayyirakaṁ anukampanti.
Bondservants and workers served by a master in these five ways show compassion to him in these five ways.

Evamassa esā heṭṭhimā disā paṭicchannā hoti khemā appaṭibhayā.
And that’s how the lower quarter is covered, kept safe and free of peril.

Pañcahi kho, gahapatiputta, ṭhānehi kulaputtena uparimā disā samaṇabrāhmaṇā paccupaṭṭhātabbā—
A gentleman should serve ascetics and brahmins as the upper quarter in five ways:

mettena kāyakammena mettena vacīkammena mettena manokammena anāvaṭadvāratāya āmisānuppadānena.
by loving deeds of body, speech, and mind, by not turning them away at the gate, and by providing them with material needs.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, pañcahi ṭhānehi kulaputtena uparimā disā samaṇabrāhmaṇā paccupaṭṭhitā chahi ṭhānehi kulaputtaṁ anukampanti—Ascetics and brahmins served by a gentleman in these five ways show compassion to him in six ways.

pāpā nivārenti, kalyāṇe nivesenti, kalyāṇena manasā anukampanti, assutaṁ sāventi, sutaṁ pariyodāpenti, saggassa maggaṁ ācikkhanti.
They keep him from doing bad. They support him in doing good. They think of him with kindly thoughts. They teach him what he does not know. They clarify what he’s already learned. They explain the path to heaven.

Imehi kho, gahapatiputta, pañcahi ṭhānehi kulaputtena uparimā disā samaṇabrāhmaṇā paccupaṭṭhitā imehi chahi ṭhānehi kulaputtaṁ anukampanti.
Ascetics and brahmins served by a gentleman in these five ways show compassion to him in these six ways.

Evamassa esā uparimā disā paṭicchannā hoti khemā appaṭibhayā”ti.
And that’s how the upper quarter is covered, kept safe and free of peril.”

Idamavoca bhagavā.
That is what the Buddha said.

Idaṁ vatvāna sugato athāparaṁ etadavoca satthā:
Then the Holy One, the Teacher, went on to say:

Evaṁ vutte, siṅgālako gahapatiputto bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:

When this was said, Sigālaka the householder’s son said to the Buddha, “abhikkantaṁ, bhante, abhikkantaṁ, bhante.

“Excellent, sir! Excellent!

As if he were righting the overturned, or revealing the hidden, or pointing out the path to the lost, or lighting a lamp in the dark so people with good eyes can see what’s there, the Buddha has made the teaching clear in many ways.

Esāhaṁ, bhante, bhagavantaṁ saraṇaṁ gacchāmi dhammañca bhikkhusaṅghañca.
I go for refuge to the Buddha, to the teaching, and to the mendicant Saṅgha.

From this day forth, may the Buddha remember me as a lay follower who has gone for refuge for life.”

Siṅgālasuttaṁ niṭṭhitaṁ aṭṭhamaṁ.

32. Āṭānāṭiyasutta

The Āṭānāṭiya Protection

1. Paṭhamabhāṇavāra

1. The First Recitation Section

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā rājagahe viharati gijjhakūṭe pabbate.
At one time the Buddha was staying near Rājagaha, on the Vulture's Peak Mountain.

Atha kho cattāro mahārājā mahatiyā ca yakkhasenāya mahatiyā ca gandhabbasenāya mahatiyā ca kumbhaṇḍasenāya mahatiyā ca nāgasenāya catuddisaṁ rakkhaṁ ṭhapetvā catuddisaṁ gumbaṁ ṭhapetvā catuddisaṁ ovaraṇaṁ ṭhapetvā abhikkantāya rattiyā abhikkantavaṇṇā kevalakappaṁ gijjhakūṭaṁ pabbataṁ obhāsetvā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu.
Then, late at night, the Four Great Kings—with large armies of spirits, fairies, goblins, and dragons—set guards, troops, and wards at the four quarters and then, lighting up the entire Vulture's Peak with their beauty, went up to the Buddha, bowed, and sat down to one side.

Tepi kho yakkhā appekacce bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu, appekacce bhagavatā saddhiṁ sammodiṁsu, sammodanīyaṁ kathaṁ sāraṇīyaṁ vītisāretvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu, appekacce yena bhagavā tenañjaliṁ paṇāmetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu, appekacce nāmagottaṁ sāvetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu, appekacce tuṇhībhūtā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu.
Before sitting down to one side, some spirits bowed, some exchanged greetings and polite conversation, some held up their joined palms toward the Buddha, some announced their name and clan, while some kept silent.

Ekamantaṁ nisinno kho vessavaṇo mahārājā bhagavantaṁ etadavoca:
Seated to one side, the Great King Vessavaṇa said to the Buddha, “santi hi, bhante, uḷārā yakkhā bhagavato appasannā.

“Sir, some high spirits have confidence in the Buddha,

Santi hi, bhante, uḷārā yakkhā bhagavato pasannā.
some do not.

Santi hi, bhante, majjhimā yakkhā bhagavato appasannā.
Some middling spirits have confidence in the Buddha,

Santi hi, bhante, majjhimā yakkhā bhagavato pasannā.
some do not.

Santi hi, bhante, nīcā yakkhā bhagavato appasannā.
Some low spirits have confidence in the Buddha,

Santi hi, bhante, nīcā yakkhā bhagavato pasannā.
some do not.

Yebhuyyena kho pana, bhante, yakkhā appasannāyeva bhagavato.
But mostly the spirits don’t have confidence in the Buddha.

Taṁ kissa hetu?
Why is that?

Bhagavā hi, bhante, pāṇātipātā veramaṇiyā dhammaṁ deseti, adinnādānā veramaṇiyā dhammaṁ deseti, kāmesumicchācārā veramaṇiyā dhammaṁ deseti, musāvādā veramaṇiyā dhammaṁ deseti, surāmerayamajjappamādaṭṭhānā veramaṇiyā dhammaṁ deseti.
Because the Buddha teaches them to refrain from killing living creatures, stealing, lying, sexual misconduct, and drinking alcohol.

Yebhuyyena kho pana, bhante, yakkhā appaṭiviratāyeva pāṇātipātā, appaṭiviratā adinnādānā, appaṭiviratā kāmesumicchācārā, appaṭiviratā musāvādā, appaṭiviratā surāmerayamajjappamādaṭṭhānā.

But mostly they don’t refrain from such things.

Tesaṁ taṁ hoti appiyaṁ amanāpaṁ.
They don’t like that or approve of it.

Santi hi, bhante, bhagavato sāvakā araññavanapatthāni pantāni senāsanāni paṭisevanti appasaddāni appanigghosāni vijanavātāni manussarāhasseyyakāni paṭisallānasāruppāni.
Sir, there are disciples of the Buddha who frequent remote lodgings in the wilderness and the forest that are quiet and still, far from the madding crowd, remote from human settlements, and fit for retreat.

Tattha santi uḷārā yakkhā nivāsino, ye imasmiṁ bhagavato pāvacane appasannā.
There dwell high spirits who have no confidence in the Buddha’s dispensation.

Tesaṁ pasādāya uggaṇhātu, bhante, bhagavā āṭānāṭiyaṁ rakkhaṁ bhikkhūnaṁ bhikkhunīnaṁ upāsakānaṁ upāsikānaṁ guttiyā rakkhāya avihiṁsāya phāsuvihārāyā”ti.
To give them confidence, may the Buddha please learn the Āṭānāṭiya protection for the guarding, protection, safety, and comfort of the monks, nuns, laymen, and laywomen.”

Adhivāsesi bhagavā tuṇhībhāvena.
The Buddha consented in silence.

Atha kho vessavaṇo mahārājā bhagavato adhivāsanaṁ viditvā tāyaṁ velāyaṁ imaṁ āṭānāṭiyaṁ rakkhaṁ abhāsi:
Then, knowing that the Buddha had consented, on that occasion Great King Vessavaṇa recited the Āṭānāṭiya protection.

> “Vipassissa ca namatthu,
> “Hail Vipassī,

an ocean, where water flows.
Evaṁ taṁ tattha jānanti,
So they know that in that place ‘samuddo saritodako’.
there is an ocean where waters flow.

Ito ‘sā purimā disā’,
From here that is the eastern quarter,

33. Saṅgītisutta

Reciting in Concert

Evaṁ me sutaṁ—
So I have heard.

ekaṁ samayaṁ bhagavā mallesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi yena pāvā nāma mallānaṁ nagaraṁ tadavasari.
At one time the Buddha was wandering in the land of the Mallas together with a large Saṅgha of five hundred mendicants when he arrived at a Mallian town named Pāvā.

Tatra sudaṁ bhagavā pāvāyaṁ viharati cundassa kammāraputtassa ambavane.
There he stayed in Cunda the smith’s mango grove.

Tena kho pana samayena pāveyyakānaṁ mallānaṁ ubbhatakaṁ nāma navaṁ sandhāgāraṁ acirakāritaṁ hoti anajjhāvuṭṭhaṁ samaṇena vā brāhmaṇena vā kenaci vā manussabhūtena.
Now at that time a new town hall named Ubbhaṭaka had recently been constructed for the Mallas of Pāvā. It had not yet been occupied by an ascetic or brahmin or any person at all.

Assosuṁ kho pāveyyakā mallā: “bhagavā kira mallesu cārikaṁ caramāno mahatā bhikkhusaṅghena saddhiṁ pañcamattehi bhikkhusatehi pāvaṁ anuppatto pāvāyaṁ viharati cundassa kammāraputtassa ambavane”ti.
The Mallas of Pāvā also heard that the Buddha had arrived and was staying in Cunda’s mango grove.

Atha kho pāveyyakā mallā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ nisīdiṁsu. Ekamantaṁ nisinnā kho pāveyyakā mallā bhagavantaṁ etadavocuṁ:

Then they went up to the Buddha, bowed, sat down to one side, and said to him, “idha, bhante, pāveyyakānaṁ mallānaṁ ubbhatakaṁ nāma navaṁ sandhāgāraṁ acirakāritaṁ hoti anajjhāvuṭṭhaṁ samaṇena vā brāhmaṇena vā kenaci vā manussabhūtena.

“Sir, a new town hall named Ubbhaṭaka has recently been constructed for the Mallas of Pāvā. It has not yet been occupied by an ascetic or brahmin or any person at all.

Tañca kho, bhante, bhagavā paṭhamaṁ paribhuñjatu, bhagavatā paṭhamaṁ paribhuttaṁ pacchā pāveyyakā mallā paribhuñjissanti.
May the Buddha be the first to use it, and only then will the Mallas of Pāvā use it.

Tadassa pāveyyakānaṁ mallānaṁ dīgharattaṁ hitāya sukhāyā”ti.
That would be for the lasting welfare and happiness of the Mallas of Pāvā.”

Adhivāsesi kho bhagavā tuṇhībhāvena.
The Buddha consented in silence.

Atha kho pāveyyakā mallā bhagavato adhivāsanaṁ viditvā uṭṭhāyāsanā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā yena sandhāgāraṁ tenupasaṅkamiṁsu; upasaṅkamitvā sabbasanthariṁ sandhāgāraṁ santharitvā bhagavato āsanāni paññāpetvā udakamaṇikaṁ patiṭṭhapetvā telapadīpaṁ āropetvā yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamiṁsu;
Then, knowing that the Buddha had consented, the Mallas got up from their seat, bowed, and respectfully circled the Buddha, keeping him on their right. Then they went to the new town hall, where they spread carpets all over, prepared seats, set up a water jar, and placed a lamp. Then they went back to the Buddha, upasaṅkamitvā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā ekamantaṁ aṭṭhaṁsu.

bowed, stood to one side,

Ekamantaṁ ṭhitā kho te pāveyyakā mallā bhagavantaṁ etadavocuṁ:
and told him of their preparations, saying,

“sabbasantharisanthataṁ, bhante, sandhāgāraṁ, bhagavato āsanāni paññattāni, udakamaṇiko patiṭṭhāpito, telapadīpo āropito.

Yassadāni, bhante, bhagavā kālaṁ maññatī”ti.
“Please, sir, come at your convenience.”

Atha kho bhagavā nivāsetvā pattacīvaramādāya saddhiṁ bhikkhusaṅghena yena sandhāgāraṁ tenupasaṅkami; upasaṅkamitvā pāde pakkhāletvā sandhāgāraṁ pavisitvā majjhimaṁ thambhaṁ nissāya puratthābhimukho nisīdi.
Then the Buddha robed up and, taking his bowl and robe, went to the new town hall together with the Saṅgha of mendicants. Having washed his feet he entered the town hall and sat against the central column facing east.

Bhikkhusaṅghopi kho pāde pakkhāletvā sandhāgāraṁ pavisitvā pacchimaṁ bhittiṁ nissāya puratthābhimukho nisīdi bhagavantaṁyeva purakkhatvā.
The Saṅgha of mendicants also washed their feet, entered the town hall, and sat against the west wall facing east, with the Buddha right in front of them.

Pāveyyakāpi kho mallā pāde pakkhāletvā sandhāgāraṁ pavisitvā puratthimaṁ bhittiṁ nissāya pacchimābhimukhā nisīdiṁsu bhagavantaṁyeva purakkhatvā.
The Mallas of Pāvā also washed their feet, entered the town hall, and sat against the east wall facing west, with the Buddha right in front of them.

Atha kho bhagavā pāveyyake malle bahudeva rattiṁ dhammiyā kathāya sandassetvā samādapetvā samuttejetvā sampahaṁsetvā uyyojesi:
The Buddha spent most of the night educating, encouraging, firing up, and inspiring the Mallas with a Dhamma talk. Then he dismissed them, “abhikkantā kho, vāseṭṭhā, ratti.

“The night is getting late, Vāseṭṭhas.

Yassadāni tumhe kālaṁ maññathā”ti.
Please go at your convenience.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho pāveyyakā mallā bhagavato paṭissutvā uṭṭhāyāsanā bhagavantaṁ abhivādetvā padakkhiṇaṁ katvā pakkamiṁsu.
“Yes, sir,” replied the Mallas. They got up from their seat, bowed, and respectfully circled the Buddha, keeping him on their right, before leaving.

Atha kho bhagavā acirapakkantesu pāveyyakesu mallesu tuṇhībhūtaṁ tuṇhībhūtaṁ bhikkhusaṅghaṁ anuviloketvā āyasmantaṁ sāriputtaṁ āmantesi:
Soon after they left, the Buddha looked around the Saṅgha of monks, who were so very silent. He addressed Venerable Sāriputta, “vigatathinamiddho kho, sāriputta, bhikkhusaṅgho.

“Sāriputta, the Saṅgha of mendicants is rid of dullness and drowsiness.

Paṭibhātu taṁ, sāriputta, bhikkhūnaṁ dhammīkathā.
Give them some Dhamma talk as you feel inspired.

Piṭṭhi me āgilāyati.
My back is sore,

Tamahaṁ āyamissāmī”ti.
I’ll stretch it.”

“Evaṁ, bhante”ti kho āyasmā sāriputto bhagavato paccassosi.
“Yes, sir,” Sāriputta replied.

Atha kho bhagavā catugguṇaṁ saṅghāṭiṁ paññāpetvā dakkhiṇena passena sīhaseyyaṁ kappesi pāde pādaṁ accādhāya, sato sampajāno uṭṭhānasaññaṁ manasi karitvā.
And then the Buddha spread out his outer robe folded in four and laid down in the lion’s posture—on the right side, placing one foot on top of the other—mindful and aware, and focused on the time of getting up.

Tena kho pana samayena nigaṇṭho nāṭaputto pāvāyaṁ adhunākālaṅkato hoti.
Now at that time the Nigaṇṭha Nātaputta had recently passed away at Pāvā.

Tassa kālaṅkiriyāya bhinnā nigaṇṭhā dvedhikajātā bhaṇḍanajātā kalahajātā vivādāpannā aññamaññaṁ mukhasattīhi vitudantā viharanti:
With his passing the Jain ascetics split, dividing into two factions, arguing, quarreling, and fighting, continually wounding each other with barbed words:

“na tvaṁ imaṁ dhammavinayaṁ ājānāsi, ahaṁ imaṁ dhammavinayaṁ ājānāmi, kiṁ tvaṁ imaṁ dhammavinayaṁ ājānissasi. Micchāpaṭipanno tvamasi, ahamasmi sammāpaṭipanno. Sahitaṁ me, asahitaṁ te. Purevacanīyaṁ pacchā avaca, pacchāvacanīyaṁ pure avaca. Adhiciṇṇaṁ te viparāvattaṁ, āropito te vādo, niggahito tvamasi, cara vādappamokkhāya, nibbeṭhehi vā sace pahosī”ti.
“You don’t understand this teaching and training. I understand this teaching and training. What, you understand this teaching and training? You’re practicing wrong. I’m practicing right. I stay on topic, you don’t. You said last what you should have said first. You said first what you should have said last. What you’ve thought so much about has been disproved. Your doctrine is refuted. Go on, save your doctrine! You’re trapped; get yourself out of this—if you can!”

Vadhoyeva kho maññe nigaṇṭhesu nāṭaputtiyesu vattati.
You’d think there was nothing but slaughter going on among the Jain ascetics.

Yepi nigaṇṭhassa nāṭaputtassa sāvakā gihī odātavasanā, tepi nigaṇṭhesu nāṭaputtiyesu nibbinnarūpā virattarūpā paṭivānarūpā, yathā taṁ durakkhāte dhammavinaye duppavedite aniyyānike anupasamasaṁvattanike asammāsambuddhappavedite bhinnathūpe appaṭisaraṇe.
And the Nigaṇṭha Nātaputta’s white-clothed lay disciples were disillusioned, dismayed, and disappointed in the Jain ascetics. They were equally disappointed with a teaching and training so poorly explained and poorly propounded, not emancipating, not leading to peace, proclaimed by someone who is not a fully awakened Buddha, with broken monument and without a refuge.

Atha kho āyasmā sāriputto bhikkhū āmantesi:
Then Sāriputta told the mendicants about these things. He went on to say, “nigaṇṭho, āvuso, nāṭaputto pāvāyaṁ adhunākālaṅkato, tassa kālaṅkiriyāya bhinnā nigaṇṭhā dvedhikajātā …pe… bhinnathūpe appaṭisaraṇe.

Evañhetaṁ, āvuso, hoti durakkhāte dhammavinaye duppavedite aniyyānike anupasamasaṁvattanike asammāsambuddhappavedite.
“That’s what happens, reverends, when a teaching and training is poorly explained and poorly propounded, not emancipating, not leading to peace, proclaimed by someone who is not a fully awakened Buddha.

Ayaṁ kho panāvuso, amhākaṁ bhagavatā dhammo svākkhāto suppavedito niyyāniko upasamasaṁvattaniko
